OHIO STATE LABOR CONVENTION RAPS WPA AND HEARS VIGOROUS ATTACK ON NLRB POLICIES

Cincinnati. — The fifty-fourth convention of the Ohio State Federation of Labor, held August 1 to 5, at the Netherland Plaza Hotel, Cincinnati, was the largest in 21 years. The only other state convention to exceed it in size was also held in Cincinnati. Upwards of 400 delegates and, at a convention [illegible] than 1,000 visitors attended.

Among outstanding actions of the convention was the endorsement of five resolutions dealing with the Works Progress Administration. In one of these, the WPA was charged with "slowly but surely destroying the contract system [illegible] the construction industry by unskilled and incompetent workmen." Legislation abolishing WPA work on public construction was advocated.

A. F. of L. Gains Told.

[illegible] the American Federation of Labor, meeting in the auditorium of Music Hall, Cincinnati, [illegible] an address [illegible] set forth the progress of the A. F. of L. in the past year.

In emphatically denouncing certain policies of the National Labor Relations Board, he declared that the A. F. of L. would seek drastic amendment of the Labor Relations Act in the next Congress.

Discrimination Charged.

"The NLRB has discriminated against the A. F. of L.," he declarred. "We therefore will not resort to that board until every other lawful avenue of achieving our ends has been exhausted. If organized labor, through the A. F. of L., mobilizes its tremendous and growing strength, we will not need to resort to any agency of whose impartiality we have doubts."

Other actions of the convention included:

Favored legislation authorizing [illegible] Relations Department to appoint a study of the [illegible] and commercial dealings of [illegible] and other owners to report those found unfair.

Opposed employment of both [illegible] and favored any [illegible] to this effect.

For Negro Organization.

The present Executive Board, consisting of M. J. Lyden, Youngstown, president; Stanley Ogg, Hamilton, first vice president; James F. Maloy, Cincinnati, second vice president; Albert Dachs, Cincinnati, third vice president; Jay E. Breidenbach, Dayton, fourth vice president; George Sauer, Cincinnati, fifth vice president; Otto W. Beach, Toledo, sixth vice president; Arnold Bin, Cleveland, seventh vice president; and James J. Donnelly, Cincinnati, secretary-treasurer, were set up for election owing to the three-year term provision in the constitution.

Massachusetts Labor Asks Removal Of Two Labor Board Members

Worcester, Mass.—Following an attack by William Green on policies of the National Labor Relations Board, the Massachusetts Federation of Labor, in annual convention here, called upon President Roosevelt to remove Edwin S. Smith and Donald Smith from the boarrd because of their "perversion" of the National Labor Relations Act.

The convention charged that Edwin Smith, who is from Massachusetts, had "betrayed the teachings and the people of his state" and was a "tool of a designing group, aided and abetted by Donald Smith."

President Green, addressing the convention, cited example of what he charged was Edwin Smith's attitude in favor of the CIO. Smith, he said, "has gone so far as to declare our A. F. of L. craft unions are company unions." Mr. Green declared the A. F. of L. was determined to bring about a change in the membership of the NLRB. He accused the present membership of "using th CIO movement to foster secession in the labor movement."

At Washington, Edwin S. Smith asserted that charges made against him by Green were "reckless and untrue." He added: "I never made any such declaration. No intelligent student of the American labor movement would refer to the craft unions of the American Federation of Labor as company unions."

UNION OFFICIAL MURDER

Chicago.—James G. Dungan, 36, businesss agent of the Chicago Painters' Union, slain on the night of August 8 by assassins, was the victim of rivals who long have been attempting to obtain control of the union, police believed. Dungan was shot in front of his home, as a score of neighbors watched, by a man with whom he apparently was acquainted.

Auto Union Suspension To Be Fought in Court

Milwaukee, Wis.—All questions concerning the legal right of the United Automobile Workers' International union to suspend officers of a chartered local will be tried out in Milwaukee before Circuit Judge Otto H. Breidenbach. This was indicated by Judge Breidenbach's ruling ordering that the international union be interpleaded as a complainant in the suit begun by George B. Kiebler against the Allis-Chalmers Manufacturing company to compel the company to recognize Kiebler's suspension of the elected officers of Local 248 and to deal with five temporary officers appointed by Kiebler.

The old officers of the local were suspended by Kiebler by direction of Homer Martin, the union's international president, who appointed Kiebler administrator of the local. Martin's suspension order was prompted by the local union's refusal to recognize Martin's suspension order was prompted by the national treasurer of the U. A. W. The local's officers withheld payment of dues to the successor of Addis.

It was said that this was the first case in which Martin's acts had been challenged by a local union.

MILWAUKEE VOTES PAY FOR STRIKE INJURIES

The judiciary committee of the common council of Milwaukee, Wis., and the Milwaukee city attorney's office have sanctioned the right of persons injured during strike violence to collect claims from the city, according to the New Milwaukee Leader.

Five non-strikers contended they were bruised and beaten up by disorderly and riotous" persons during the prolonged strike at the A. F. Gallun & Sons tannery last winter. The combined claims totaled a number of thousand dollars, but the city officials whittled them down to a total of $1,900.

City Attorney Burczyk said the payments were recommended under the state laws which makes localities liable for injury to persons or property during "mob" riots. The electric company in Milwaukee collected money from the city for damage to its property in connection with its 1934 strike, but Milwaukee officials said this is the first time personal injury claims in strikes have been granted.

Higher Pay Fight Wins Governor's Active Support

HAMMOND, La. (ILNS).—Governor Richard W. Leche threw his full support behind a fight for higher wages when he arrived here to investigate a strike at the Hammond Box Factory.

Approximately 150 pickets surrounded the plant when the governor, accompanied by state police, arrived. He asked the pickets the wage paid and when they replied "15 cents an hour" Leche said:

"No man in Louisiana has to work for that wage."

The governor then hired wives of the strikers at double the wage the box factory paid their husbands, established a soup kitchen, instructed the wives to prepare meals and went into conference with strrikers and company representatives.

The strike was called by Local 2543 of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America, an A. F. of L. affiliate.

Vice-President Virgil C. Cannon of the local, said the company officials had refused to negotiate a demand for raises from 12 to 15 cents an hour to 30 cents an hour.

Henry Ford has called 24,000 of his employes back to work as casually and with as little thought of their rights as he showed in sending them and several times their number into idleness. What Henry wants is to him the supreme law.

Philadelphia Yellow Cab Drivers Strike

Philadelphia, Pa.—More than 1,000 drivers, members of Local 156 of the Taxi Drivers' union, A. F. of L. affiliate, participated in the vote here that called a strike against the Yellow Cab company, which operates about 600 of the 700 licensed taxis in Philadelphia. Union officials said the vote was unanimous.

Under the expired contract the drivers received 45 per cent of the gross recipts and an $18 minimum. following a number of weeks negotiations the union compromised on 50 per cent of the receipts and $30 minimum. Refusal of the company to grant this demand resulted in the strike call.

Lilienthal, of the TVA, says that the board took a risk in fixing low rates, but that it worked, and doubled consumption. And big business papers report this as an "admission." Why not confession?

Labor and President Hail Security Progress on Third Anniversary Of Social Security Act

Washington.—The third anniversary of the social security act received an impressive celebration, though entirely destitute of fireworks, President William Green, of the American Federation of Labor, made a sober, thoughtful statement, giving [illegible] labor the credit which it deserves. Chairman Altmeyer, of the security board, and the board itself issued other fact statements; and, capping the celebration, President Roosevelt devoted a "fireside Chat" entirely to the act and what it does and should be made to do.

Security for Workers.

"By the social security act," said Mr. Green, "we have established a national practice that through government, a definite part of the national income is set aside to insure workers against the hardships of irregular employment and of penniless old age.

"It is estimated that over 2,500,000 workers [illegible] benefits during the first half of 1938 for varying periods of total or partial unemployment. . . . By June 30, 1938, a total of almost a billion dollars was turned into buying power for beneficiaries of five social security programs.

"Labor was a sponsor of social security legislation. Labor is pledged to see to it that the act fulfills our expectations."

Act Called "Partnership.

Chairman Altmeyer described the act as a "partnership of mutual protection between the American people and their government." The social security board pointed out the gains in public health resulting from some parts of the act.

President Roosevelt in his radio address called the attention of his audience to the fact that the rich and powerful had come to the government for help long before the poor had thought of doing it.

"Taking a generous view of the situation," said the president, "I think it was not that government deliberately ignored the working man but that the working man was not sufficiently articulate to make his needs and his problems known. The powerful in industry and commerce had powerful voices, both individually and as a group. And whenever they saw their possessions threatened, they raised their voices in appeals for government protection.

Organization Brought Gains.

"It was not until workers became more articulate through organization that protective labor legislation was passed. While such laws raised the standards of life, they still gave no assurance of economic security. Strength or skill or arm or brain did not guarantee a man a job; it did not guarantee him a roof, it did not guarante him the ability to provide for those dependent upon him or to take care of himself when he was too old to work. . . .

"We have come a long way. But we still have a long way to go. There is still today a frontier that remains unconquered—an America unreclaimed. This is the great, the nationwide frontier of insecurity, of human want and fear. This is the frontier—the America—we have set ourselves to reclaim."

Union Charges Circus Violated Labor Act

Washington, D. C.—The American Federation of Actors has charged that Ringling Brothers and Barnum and Bailey Combined Shows, Inc., violated the Wagner Act by discharging approximately 1,200 workers.

The union, A. F. of L. affiliate, asserted that the "greatest show on earth" employed a "fraudulent scheme" to evade a five-year union shop contract which set wage rates. In a complaint filed with the NLRB, it asked action against the circus.

"Gun-toters" Come Into TEPCO Strike Scene Here

IBEW GROWS WEARY OF REFUSAL TO BARGAIN, CALLS STATEWIDE STRIKE

Tennessee Electric Power Company Crippled As Linemen 'Rest'---1917 Massengale Murder Recalled As Unknown Men Appear

A deadly and grim aspect was injected into the strike of the IBEW linemen Tuesday morning when pickets around the street car barns observed three automobiles with Alabama licenses unloading capable looking men with .45-caliber guns slung low on hips. None of the gunbearers were known or identified. When news of the occurrence became known, thousands of Chattanoogans recalled with shudders the brutal murder of William Massengale from a street car by a "guard" who shot into a crowd of pedestrians without warning or provocation.

After many months of fruitless attempts by six local unions of International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers to negotiate an agreement with the Tennessee Electric Power company for its membership, the linemen over the state walked out from their jobs Monday night in an effort to convince the company that they were really organized and demanding consideration.

For the past three weeks a federal conciliator has been attempting to secure a settlement of matters without avail. Although it is now an established fact that over half of the employes in the system are members of the IBEW, the utility several months ago signed a contract with an outside group at Hale's Bar plant, employing a few men.

In spite of the signing of this contract the company contends that they have no right by law to sign with the IBEW.

> The national labor relations board has officially notified the company that they may sign a contract with the IBEW.

Newspaper reports say that 22 towns in Tennessee are without electric current, and from indications it appears that other sections are going down rapidly because of lack of experienced men to handle the high-voltage wires. Only experienced veterans dare handle the death-dealing power lines with thousands of volts singing through them.

O. A. Walker, representative of the IBEW, laid up in bed in the Patten hotel with a broken foot, is in charge of the strike, with G. X. Barker, vice-president of the IBEW.

Mr. Walker Tuesday presented to the public the position that has been forced upon the linemen locals by the arbitrary and established attitude of the Tennessee Electric Power company not to allow its system to become organized:

"There is a strike in progress in the Tennessee Electric Power company system that was forced upon the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers after the services of a federal mediator had failed over a three-weeks' period of attempt at conciliation, and after our brotherhood had attempted negotiations for three months.

"The company refuses to recognize our brotherhood, although the company has signed a contract with a CIO group that has a membership of much less than 10 per cent of the employes in the system. Our brotherhood has a paid-up membership of over five times that of the CIO. We have six local unions in the system in Tennessee.

"The Atlanta office of the NLRB has notified the company that the company would be in its rights to do business with the IBEW. At a recent election held by the NLRB there were more votes in the ballot boxes than were employes voting. We have protested this cramming of the ballot box, but the NLRB has to date ignored our protest.

"The company has seemed anxious to do business with the CIO, which represents an infinitesimal fraction of employes, and even rushed to sign an agreement with CIO in face of an impending election in protest of the CIO contract.

"In various sections of the state the company union plan has sprung up even during the process of an NLRB election. In face of this cooperation with CIO the company flatly refuses to negotiate with the IBEW, which is the only responsible agency for collective bargaining in the electrical industry.

"In many instances wage raises have been given by the company in an attempt to forestall recognition of the IBEW.

"Our membership of over 500 employes have felt the intimidation, threats and freeze-out tactics of the company to such an extent that they feel that they must take this step to keep from being forced under CIO domination by the company.

"We want to settle this trouble with a minimum of inconvenience to the public. We ask the public to insist that the Tennessee Electric Power company deal with its employes according to the law of the land. This trouble can be settled by the company agreeing to meet with us with a purpose of coming to an agreement, and recognizing the IBEW as the appropriate collective bargaining unit.

"Already we have seen Alabama automobiles at the car barns loaded with men with guns on their hips. We hope that the company will not use the same tactics they used in the street car strike years ago where unionists were shot down in cold blood."

Charter Member IBEW Local 175 Dies in Wreck

Carl J. Scott, electrician on the Southern railroad, was killed last Sunday when his car was thrown into Chickamauga creek as the bridge collapsed.

Brother Scott was a member of Local 311, Railroad Electricians, but he originally was a charter member of Local 175, contract electricians.

Two other people with Brother Scott were severely injured.

Murder Committed In 1917 Streetcar Strike Is Recalled

The Labor World reprints an editorial from its September 28, 1917, issue on the murder of William Massengale, who was killed by a blast from an armed thug on a street car on a Sunday afternoon.

The local street car company had imported strikebreakers to defeat the union strikers, and on this particular occasion they deliberately ran street cars through an orderly and legal parade of unionists and sympathizers "just for the fun of it." Without provocation the murderer fired point-blank into the body of Massengale, who was in the parade.

"SUNDAY'S MURDER CAR"

"The Chattanooga Railway and Light company undoubtedly had a legal right to send its cars through the parade Sunday afternoon, though it has always been customary to suspend operation while parades passed down Market street. We do not know whether it is the duty of the police department to order such a suspension, but common sense should have dictated to the management of the street car company that it would be unwise for their motormen and conductors to endeavor to push through the crowd after having run down an automobile or two which could not get out of the way. But aside from this, and granting that the Chattanooga Railway and Light company officials had a legal right to flaunt the scabs in the face of the immense throngs gathered to witness the parade, there can be no excuse for the action of whoever was responsible for ordering the car loaded with gunmen to proceed up Market street after the police and military authorities had subdued the rioters and the soldiers had formed a square about the street car company's property, affording ample protection. Judging from the testimony of those who were near when the murder was committed, the gunmen on the car intended to run into the crowd, kill a few people and then proceed back to the barns. According to testimony of Mr. Hoover, he ordered out the "wrecker" to bring in the crippled cars. Apparently the car was a "wrecker" all right, but not the kind that is usually sent out to pull in cars or do repair work.

"Regardless of what may be the final outcome of the legal proceedings against those charged with being responsible for the murder, citizens of this community will not soon forget that the murder car proceeded up Market street with guns leveled at bystanders, reached the corner of Eighth and Market, opened fire on the crowd and then hastened back to the joint at Third and Market, where a social event of note was held the preceding Sunday.

"The coroner's jury held Messrs. Hoover and Anderson as accessories to the murder, and they will doubtless have to shoulder the responsibility for sending out the car of death. At the coroner's inquest it appeared from testimony that nobody was responsible for the car being loaded with gunmen; that the thugs aboard were just itching for a "joy ride" and jumped aboard for an outing. If this be true, then somebody should take charge of the car barns who is willing to accept responsibility for the actions of the company and its employes. A remarkable feature in connection with the killing is that those in charge of the local street railway company's affairs have not been able to disclose who was on the car. It developed at the coroner's inquest that S. O. Welch, of Athens, who has been charged with the murder, was on the car, as was also one "Dick" Baker, a Nashville bootlegger. This is interesting to those who would know the character of men employed as strikebreakers to terrorize the citizens of Chattanooga and Hamilton county.

"Labor mourns the loss of a brother, a sorrowing wife and family mourn the loss of a loved one, and the entire community regrets the fact that a man was murdered on Market street on a Sabbath afternoon."

Clay McKenzie Receives Hurts With 2 Others

Word was received in Chattanooga this week that W. Clay McKenzie, editor of the Knoxville Labor News, was injured as his car ran off the highway near Knoxville last Sunday.

William Buchanan, president of the Knoxville Central Labor union, received a broken arm, and Lloyd Luttrell, president of the Aluminum Workers' union at Alcoa, was cut up a bit.

ORIENT FLOUR MILL GETS POLICE ESCORT AS PICKETS WATCH

Without Slightest Disorder, Commissioner Sends Policemen Out.

Taxi Owners Continue to Flout Law as Bryan Sees No Disorder.

Last Monday morning saw Commissioner Eugene Bryan mobilizing his force once more to invade picket lines to escort "loyal" employes into a strike-bound plant. The Mountain City flour mill, which owns the Chattanooga bakery, now on strike, and adjacent to the cracker plant, called on the commissioner, it is said, and stated it "feared" there would be trouble.

Observers said that there had not been the slightest disorder about the place. However, a squad of policemen were ordered by their boss to perform the odious duty of strikebreaking.

The job was done more efficiently, it was said, due to the training the commissioner put them through during the Bennett-Hubbard affair.

In upholding the laws of the city, no arrests have been made as yet of "sit-down" striking taxi owners who have thumbed their noses at the city ordinance requiring insurance on the cabs in order to protect life and limb.

Injunction Issued Against Pickets At Cracker Plant

Judge Oscar Yarnell issued a temporary injunction against the Bakery and Confectionery Workers now on strike at the Chattanooga Baking company. Hearing for a final injunction will be held Sept. 6, according to information.

Pickets were limited to three, among other things.

No disorders had been reported. The plant is closed down and no one has attempted to return to work.

Candidates Should Run For Specific Office

We approve of the suggestion that our Hamilton delegation in the state legislature have a law passed which will require candidates for the city commission to announce the office for which they are running.

As it is now, a field of candidates run for any one of the four posts of commissionership. The posts are doled out to the four successful candidates after election. The posts to be filled are commissioners of education, streets and sewers, parks and playgrounds and fire and police.

Qualifications for each commissionership are entirely different. A man who might be outstanding in ability to be a head of the police department might be ridiculous as the head of the school system of our city.

It can be possible for four candidates to be elected who would make wonderful heads of the streets and sewers department, but who would be out of place as heads of the parks and playgrounds.

Under the present system political combinations can be formed which would eliminate a candidate from the commission who would be universally declared competent for a particular post.

If each candidate should be forced to wage his campaign before the people on a platform of efficiency in a particular office, the electorate might make a choice of specially trained officials for specific offices.

It might be wise to take our public offices out of the political grab-bag and place such offices in the public showcase so that taxpayers can chose public servants to fill particular needs.

Please Be Fair

An editorial in the News says that the striking linemen should subordinate their interests, right or wrong, to the proposition of keeping the service of Tepco intact.

The editorial writer is surely ignorant of the true state of affairs. The power company is responsible for the strike. For many months the linemen begged the company to meet with them for the purpose of bargaining collectively for the membership of their six local unions.

The company's attitude has been to do nothing, while at the same time they have engaged themselves in breaking up the union through discharges and lay-offs and intimidation.

The strikers' families are important to the strikers. Men who face death while dealing with high-voltage wires have loved ones at home. The company owes something to the families of their employes as well as to families of the public.

Propaganda stories concerning dynamited transmission towers that do not fall, cut lines that do not cut off lights, are obvious. Experienced linemen who built these towers and put up these lines could most certainly really tear them down in a few seconds if they desired.

However, terrifying stories of the almost successful sabotage tend to turn the public away from the strikers, and make the public mind forget the real issue.

Apparently, with a depleted force, the power company has been able to replace in most instances "sabotaged" lines as they were actually falling so that lights merely flickered.

TVA hearings now being held in Chattanooga have clearly brought out the extent to which the power company will go in its efforts to propagandize the public to the company's advantage.

The union has publicly stated that if the company will merely agree to meet with the union for the purpose of collectively bargaining for the membership of the union, men will go back to work in two hours.

Is not this fair? Refusal to do [illegible] is a case of deliberate cruelty to the public caused by the stubbornness of the power company.

to the Editor

To the Editor:

It is a shame and a disgrace to this city when Local No. 43 of the Molders' union has to go to Rome, Ga., to find a union-made stove for the display at Warner park on Labor day.

For some reason or other Chattanooga cannot boast of one union-made stove.

It cannot be blamed on the loyal members of the Molders' union of the International Molders' union, for they have spent years of time and thousands of dollars here in this city, only to have the weak-kneed company pets fall by the wayside after a few cents raise by the company and a never-to-be-kept-promise of "you stick to me and I'll stick to you." But we can expect these loggerheads in all the labor unions in any city.

Our city can boast of three stove foundries that employ about 225 molders during these dull times, and I can furnish proof where men and working four days per week for less than $12.00. Not a living, just starvation wages, and the conditions under which they work you people would be surprised—dust by the tons, with the chance of 10 to 1 that you will get your shoe full of iron, or a strained back before the day is made.

In the future when we buy a stove let's ask ourselves the question, or, better still, ask the merchant: Is this stove made under union conditions, does the molder work decent hours, does he receive a pay check on pay day that enables him to have the necessities of life, or does he receive an average of less than $2.50 per day? Then, if not don't buy, for we do have left companies that are willing to give the molder an even break and do not demand all the profit for themselves.

So, brother union members of this city, wake up to the fact that Chattanooga does not produce a single union-made stove, and in the future when you or your family buys a stove, please, for the sake of us union molders, insist on a union label being on the stove you buy, for if in any industry we need better working conditions, shorter hours, better pay and better sanitary conditions, it is in the stove foundries of Chattanooga, Tenn.

ROY C. RANDLES,
Secretary Chattanooga Vicinity Conference Board International Molders' Union.

AFL CONVENTION CALL ISSUED

The American Federation of Labor issued its convention call on Aug. 20. Date of the convention will begin Oct. 3, at 10 a.m., in Houston, Tex., and will continue until all business is disposed of. The conventions usually last three weeks.

The call says, in part:

"In many respects the fifty-eighth annual convention of the American Federation of Labor which will convene at Houston, Tex., on Oct. 3 will be the most important ever held. A re-examination of the basis upon which our great movement is founded will be made and an analysis of the political and economic philosophy which our great movement espoused and proclaimed will take place. We will determine from the experience through which we have passed during the past year how indestructible and sound is the basis upon which our organization and superstructure rests. The records show that our great movement has faced every test and met every difficulty in a most successful and satisfactory way which it has been called upon to face during the past year. Harmony exists within the ranks of the American Federation of Labor. Differences, discord, bitterness and hate prevail within the ranks of the secession movement called the Committee for Industrial Organization. We will solidify our movement, unite our forces and develop fraternity, brotherhood and co-operation to the highest degree at this great historic fifty-eighth annual convention of the American Federation of Labor. It is of the greatest importance that all organizations affiliated with the American Federation of Labor be represented at this convention."

Delegate to represent Tennessee Federation of Labor will be Lev Loring, of Memphis.

COUNTY COURT IGNORES ORGANIZED LABOR'S PLEA FOR BETTER CONDITIONS

Breaks Promise to Teachers Two Years in a Row---Bus Drivers Turned Down---Cummings Digs Up Sales Tax Again

Hamilton county court met again and fixed the budget last week. Last year the court solemnly resoluted that "next year" the school teachers would be put back on their salary schedule, but this year when the time came to carry out its pledge, the court blandly broke its word.

Also, a plea from the school bus drivers' union for adequate pay was refused. Led by Attorney T. Pope Shepherd and County Judge Will Cummings, the court reiterated it was 100 per cent for everything.

The salary of Mr. Frank Peck, officially known as custodian of supplies, was given a $300 increase from $1,200.

Once more County Judge Will Cummings brought up the sales tax plea which would definitely place the tax burden on the working people.

Take It or Leave It

Points of View Picked Up From Various Sources
CY KOLOGY, EDITOR

"Communists Active in Labor Movement," say headlines on the Dies house committee investigation.

"Well, what of it?" some innocent souls comment.

Just this: Communists in the labor movement are an unmitigated nuisance. This is putting it mildly.

An unmitigated nuisance can cover a lot of ground and that is exactly what the communist in the labor movement does.

Don't take our word for it; ask any union man who has had to fight the communist borer; he'll tell you plenty.

Members of organized labor believe in the rights guaranteed citizens by federal and state constitutions. They believe that any person, member of a labor union or not, has a right to any political, religious or economic faith. They grant the right of any trade unionist to be a believer in communism.

They do not believe that a communist has a right to make hell-raising his chief and sometimes only union activity. And hell-raising is the chief activity of many communist members, simply because they put party loyalty above union loyalty. Communist party loyalty means loyalty to "the revolution."

Putting objectives of any party above union objectives invariably leads to trouble in a union.

Up to a few years ago, communist hell-raising in unions took the form of outright attempts at union demoralization and destruction. Then the reds fondly believed world revolution was right around the corner and could be hastened by destruction of the labor movement, which they knew was opposed to all their works. So they did their damndest to wreck the unions.

International Ladies' Garment Workers' union had an experience with this kind of communist tactics it will long remember. Fanatical communists split the union for a time and it seemed headed for destruction.

David Dubinsky and others fought the reds to a standstill and in the end pried loose the communist grip of death.

Edward F. McGrady was one of the A. F. of L. men who aided Dubinsky in his winning fight.

About the same time, John L. Lewis, now having communist trouble, was fighting what he denounced as a communist element in the United Mine Workers. The mine workers barred communists from membership by constitutional provision, which shows what they thought of communists.

Now the reds pursue different tactics in the unions. In communist terminology, they follow a different "line." They do not seek outright destruction, under the new "line," which comes straight from Moscow. They "bore from within" with the object of bending union policy and action to communist purpose. They drive non-communist members away from meetings by constant bickering, fault-finding and general noise. They are strong on noise everywhere. By packing small meetings, they often commit a union to a stand entirely foreign to the opinion of a majority of its members.

* * *

A favorite stunt is to commit a union to a fervent denunciation of dictatorship in Italy and Germany. They are careful that nary a word is said against dictatorship in Russia. They inveigh against war and shout for peace, but work to win American aid for Russia in the event of what they consider the inevitable clash between communist Russia and nazi Germany. They want America to side with one dictatorship against another.

* * *

The barest outline of some communist activity has been mentioned here. Pages and pages could be devoted to the subject. People who are informed on what the communists have done and are doing, do not say, "Well, what of it?" They know, as stated in the beginning, that communists in the labor movement are an unmitigated nuisance.

FURNITURE WORKERS GIVEN HIGHER PAY

San Francisco.—Wage increases ranging from 22 to 44 per cent were awarded nearly 500 members of the American Federation of Labor Furniture Workers' union, Local No. 1541, by an arbitration board headed by Prof. A. M. Kidd, of the University of California.

Thirteen shops will be affected by the award, and it is expected that several shops not parties to the arbitration will agree to comply.

When a man tires at the "slow progress" of the labor movement a good recipe is to stand off a bit and survey the work actually accomplished.

Although provisions of the wage-hour law do not become effective until late in October, Andrews prepared to move immediately to prepare the background for his new post.

As he was sworn in, Andrews said the law he will enforce "might well be termed a better business act both from a moral and monetary viewpoint."

"I believe the law will help business, labor and the public and will tend to reduce the number of labor disputes," he said.

"In progressive states which have progressive laws, they have tended to reduce labor trouble," Andrews said. "For instance, I believe we had only one sit-down strike in New York. These laws seem to improve the relationship between employers and employes."

He praised businessmen for their co-operation and pledged himself to administer the law impartially.

He estimated that approximately 4,000,000 workers will be affected by either the wage or hour provision when the law becomes effective.

He said he hoped to "avoid the confusion" that marked the early days of the national recovery administration by dealing with only three or four industries simultaneously. First industries to be dealt with will be textiles, cotton garments and tobacco, he said.

Rivalry between the A. F. of L. and the CIO for representation on industry committees "will be a very real problem," Andrews said. But he added he hopes to solve the problem by apportioning labor representatives on basis of the number of workers in each industry that they have organized.

HULL OUTLINES WORLD PEACE PROGRAM IN INTERNATIONAL RADIO ADDRESS

Washington.—In a thoughtful, sober but challenging radio address, broadcast internationally, Secretary of State Hull began by saying that all nations—not all governments—have a primary interest in peace; but was obliged to say that the reliance of some governments on war, the disregard of treaties, "the contemptuous brushing aside of all rules of morality . . . seriously threaten the very foundations of our civilization."

He gave what might almost be called a democratic "credo" of international affairs, of which a part should be quoted.

"We believe in, we support, and we recommend respect for and observance of treaties. . .

"We believe in, we support, and we recommend voluntary self-restraint, abstention from the use of force . . . and the settlement of differences by processes of peaceful negotiation and agreement.

"We believe in, we support, and we recommend to all nations that they be prepared to limit and progressively reduce their armaments."

"The people of this country," Hull went on, ". . . are becoming increasingly concerned over the spread of international lawlessness, and its adverse effect upon the present and future welfare of our own country. Each day's developments make more and more clear the fact that our own situation is profoundly affected by what happens elsewhere in the world. . . .

Rome and Berlin Dissent.

"When the dignity of the human soul is denied in great parts of the world, and when that denial is made a slogan under which propaganda is set in motion and armies take the field, no one of us can be sure that his country is safe."

In Britain, Secretary Hull's speech was received aloofly by the conservatives, but hailed as a help to the world by the liberals.

In Berlin, it was denounced as an attempt by the United States to "play moral schoolmaster to the world."

A. F. of L. Fights NLRB Order On West Coast

WASHINGTON.—The American Federation of Labor has opened its fight to win reversal of a National Labor Relations Board order designating a collective bargaining agency for a large area, as it did in the Pacific coast longshoremen's case.

Joseph A. Padway, counsel for the federation, under direction of William Green, president, and Joseph P. Ryan, president of the International Longshoremen's Union, an A. F. of L. affiliate, asked that the board reverse its decision declaring the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union, a CIO affiliate, to be the sole bargaining agency for 13,000 longshoremen in 31 west coast ports. He served notice that if this were not done he would file an appeal in the Circuit Court of Appeals.

"The American Federation of Labor," said a public statement, "is greatly disturbed over the extraordinary powers assumed by the board in constituting a large geographical area, beyond the boundaries of one state and embracing thousands of workers of numerous employers and affiliated with different unions, as a single unit for the purpose of collective bargaining.

"The American Federation of Labor takes the position that this is an unwarranted assumption of power, contrary to the National Labor Relaions Act, which would in many instances deny to A. F. of L. employes who are in the majority in a specified local union the right to select A. F. of L. unions as their bargaining agent.

"The decree of the board has the effect in this case of disestablishing A. F. of L. unions by denying their members the right to bargain through their unions, although in a majority."

Sumter, S. C.—About 400 negro laborers struck here last week against the Brooklyn Cooperage company, said to be owned by the American Sugar Refinery company. The strikers are not organized, but said they grew desperate while working for 80 cents a day for as rich a corporation as that by which they are employed. Officials of the South Carolina Federation of Labor have sent men into Sumpter at the request of the workers, and it is said that a local union is being formed and plans made for properly handling the strike.

There will always be stars through the window bars—if we look to see them shine.—Mabel W. Clapp.

Fish Company in Move To Cripple Union

HALIFAX, N. S.—In the hope of crippling the Nova Scotia Fishermen's Federation, the National Fish Company, which has a virtual monopoly of cold storage and marketing facilities, announces that it will build a fleet of motor fishing schooners and operate them on their own account.

The main division of the Fishermen's Federation consists of the crews of motor fishing schooners, mostly owned by co-operative societies of which captains and crews are members. Last winter they won a strike for higher prices for their catches. Mostly they work on the share principle, so that their earnings depend on prices.

The National Fish Company was the result of a merger of various concerns, backed by American capital; but it was announced that local people had bought out the American interest when the fishermen began to organize. It remains to be seen whether the company can secure crews for its vessels except under union conditions. But it may be able to put the co-operatively owned vessels out of business through its control of marketing facilities.

Veterans Give Radio Series On Job for Workers Over 40

CHICAGO. — "Employment For Men Over 40" was the title of three programs presented by the veterans organizations of Illinois over WCFL in Chicago. Charles Dove, representing the Veterans of Foreign Wars, inaugurated the series on July 28, followed by S. Phil Hutchison, Commander Department of Illinois Disabled American Veterans, on August 4, and Lawrence J. Fenlon of the American Legion on August 11.

The purpose of the series was to create a friendly attitude on the part of employers toward the middle-aged unemployed and to assist men over 40 in re-allocating themselves to changed economic conditions. All members of the three veterans organizations in Illinois are supporting the drive which culminates in a state-wide American Legion meeting in Rockford, Ill., on August 22.

SOUTHERN LABOR "SPOTS"

Columbia, S. C.—A minimum wage rate of 47½ cents an hour has been adopted by the South Carolina Public Service Authority for the first unit of work to be done on the $37,500,000 Santee-Cooper dam project, and wage rates for skilled labor will be the same as is being paid in the Tennessee Valley Authority. This first job on the big undertaking is the exploration work on foundations for the structures.

The South Carolina Public Service Authority's board of directors met in Charleston recently for the purpose of considering a call for bids on the first part of the work. Appearing before the board of directors were President Al Flynn, of the South Carolina Federation of Labor, and several representatives of international unions, with whom the board of directors discussed the wage rates to be adopted. After full discussion of the matter, the following resolution was adopted by the board of directors:

"Be it resolved by the board of directors of the South Carolina Public Service Authority, That the wage schedule to be used in the proposed contract for boring and explorations for foundations be fixed so that the sum of 47½ cents an hour will be the minimum wage which shall be paid on the boring and exploration contract, and that the wages for skilled trades to be used on the boring contract be the same as now in effect in the work of the Tennessee Valley Authority."

While this wage schedule is adopted for the first unit of the big job, it is believed that it will prevail throughout the construction period of the huge undertaking.

Hon. Burnet R. Maybank, mayor Charleston and the state's leading candidate for governor, is chairman of the authority; Hon. Charles H. Gerald, of Columbia, is secretary; Hon. R. M. Jeffries, of Walterboro, is general counsel; Hon. Edwin B. Boyle, of Sumpter; Hon. W. L. Daniel, of Greenwood; Hon. A. Stanley Llewellyn, of Camden; Hon. W. L. Rhodes, of Estill; Hon. D. D. Witcover, of Darlington, and Hon. T. W. Woodsworth, of Spartanburg, are members of the South Carolina Public Service Authority.

The following gentlemen representing their respective organizations appeared before the board and took part in the discussions which resulted in adoption of the wage rates:

E. E. McDaniel, of the Building and Construction Laborers; Stanley Rounds, of the Iron Workers; Charles W. Gill, of the Painters and Decorators; Alex F. McDonald, of the Operating Engineers; W. P. Hooker, of the Electrical Workers; James Coles, of the Building and Construction Trades; F. A. Smith, of the Plumbers and Steamfitters, and Al Flynn, president of the South Carolina Federation of Labor.

The representatives of labor appearing before the authority and all labor throughout the state and the south are loud in their praise of the fairness of the members of the authority, and have expressed special gratification for the fine spirit and hearty co-operation given labor's representatives by Chairman Burnet R. Maybank.

Montgomery, Ala.—That the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employes has been of tremendous value to the members in this section is evidenced by the gains made during the past year, both in increased wages for the state employes and the wonderfully improved conditions obtained through the organization.

The Alabama State Employes' Local Union No. 11 was organized here May 30, 1937, just a little over one year ago. Since that time the members have obtained the following advancements:

Increase in pay ranging from 10 per cent to 50 per cent.

Hours of employment reduced for guards, foremen, etc., in convict camps from 16 hours a day to 12 hours a day, and from seven days a week to five and one-half days per week.

Fifteen days' vacation each year with full pay.

Thirty days' sick leave each year, to be extended if conditions warrant.

Christmas Eve and Christmas day, Labor day, Thanksgiving day and the Fourth of July have been obtained as holidays for these workers. Before the union was organized these workers did not even get Christmas Eve and Christmas day off from their labors.

The members now have recourse to an appeal and a hearing before the state board of administration in case of discharge. Heretofore, these employes were at the absolute command of their bosses, and could be fired at the will or whim of the man in charge. This protection and security provided for the members since the union was organized wherein they can appeal to the state board is one of the most highly prized conditions obtained by these state employes.

Double time rate of pay is now provided for all work done on Sundays.

Columbia, S. C.—Building tradesmen of South Carolina plan to complete the organization of a state building trades council on Sept. 11, when members of the various building trades are to meet here for that purpose. Already two meetings have been held, and all preliminary plans made for the final organization of the statewide movement.

Application will be made to the building and construction trades department of the A. F. of L. for a state charter. North Carolina has already been chartered, and the state organization has been functioning in the sister state for several months. Tennessee building trades members are about ready to make application for a state charter. Other states in the south are doing likewise. The leaders in the building trades unions have stated that it will not be long until all of the southern states will have state building trades councils.

The advantages to the building trades members of having a state organization are many, chief among them being the adoption of a uniform wage scale. Through the state organization the low wage rates for building craftsmen in the smaller centers can be eliminated as an influence in reducing the rates of builders in the larger centers where organization has enabled a fair wage rate to be established.

Walter P. Hooker, of Charleston, vice-president of the South Carolina Federation of Labor, is temporary chairman of the group seeking a state charter. George Blackburn, of Columbia, is acting as secretary. The meetings have been attended by representativs of intrnational unions in the building trades department. Assisting the building craftsmen in their work, Earle R. Britton and other leaders in the state federation of labor have taken a prominent part.

Birmingham, Ala.—This city is all agog over the coming of the International Typographical union convention which starts here on Saturday, Sept. 10, and lasts until the following Saturday. Birmingham Local Union No. 104 is host to the convention, officially speaking, but all of Birmingham is on tiptoe in preparing for the convention, and all organizations in the city are listed as "hosts" to the great gathering.

The convention delegates will be in full possession of the city from the time of the arrival of the "million dollar" Chicago Tygographical Union band, scheduled to reach the L. & N. station Saturday morning, Sept. 10. The band will lead the thousands who will gather at the station in a parade to the Tutwiler hotel, convention headquarters, playing the "Typographical March." All Typographical locals in the south are to be represented with full delegations at the convention, it is said, while practically all locals throughout the United States and Canada will send delegates to the great affair.

Birmingham, Ala.—The annual convention of the Cement Workers' council, an affiliate of the A. F. of L., was held here last week, with National President Schoenburg and Secretary Gallo in charge of the proceedings. Lewis G. Hines, director of organization for the American Federation of Labor; Paul J. Aymon, representing the southern headquarters of the A. F. of L., and S. E. Roper, president of the Alabama Federation of Labor and representative of the A. F. of L., attended the sessions and assisted the officers in the work of the convention.

Local unions of cement, lime and gypsum plant workers throughout the country constitute the national council, and reports made to the convention here indicate rapid growth in membership. A fine record of achievements for the membership in the way of increased wages, shorter hours and improved working conditions was read into the minutes of the convention's proceedings.

Atlanta, Ga.—The national convention of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employes will convene in this city Monday, Aug. 29. Headquarters will be maintained at the Ansley hotel. Fulton County Lomal No. 3, Atlanta City Employes' Local No. 4, and Georgia State Employes' Local No. 19 will be hosts to the convention delegates and visitors. Fred K. Stephens, of Atlanta, national vice-president, and Albert W. Gossett, southern representative of the national organization, with committees from the above named local unions, have charge of all arrangements.

George L. Googe, southern representative of the American Federation of Labor; Gov. Ed Rivers, Mayor Hartsfield and other distinguished citizens will attend the sessions and deliver addresses. Arnold S. Zander, of Wisconsin, is national president of the organization, and Gordon W. Chapman is national secretary-treasurer.

Many gains have been made by state, county and municipal employes through their local unions affiliated with the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employes. Wages have been increased, hours of labor regulated, and conditions of labor greatly improved since the organization established its local unions in the south.

Atlanta, Ga.—The annual convention of the International Association of Fire Fighters will be held in Atlanta beginning Monday, Aug. 29. Headquarters will be maintained at the Atlanta Biltmore hotel. Hugh Kilgore, president of Local Union 134, Atlanta, will preside at the opening ceremonies of the convention, and will turn the gavel over to Fred W. Baer, international president, when the business sessions begin.

An elaborate program has been arranged for entertainment of the delegates, their wives and other visitors. This feature includes a tea to be given by the governor and Mrs. Rivers, while the ball to be given at the Biltmore is expected to be attended by hundreds of friends of the firefighters.

Many outstanding leaders in labor, business, civic groups and the ministerial association are on the program for addresses. The convention will be in session three days.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Several persons who don't like to have the deviltries of Big Business exposed have compared the work of the La Follette Senate Civil Liberties Committee to war. On that basis, the quiz of Tom Girdler should be compared to Cannae, the perfect battle, where Hannibal not merely routed the Roman army, but destroyed it.

Girdler insisted that it was his policy, as head of the Republic Steel Corporation to permit its employes to join unions of their own choosing, with no interference. Instead of cross examining, Senator La Follette called other witnesses who gave evidence and introduced documents, tending to show that the Republic system of espionage, which Girdler admitted existed, and those it kept were active in the union, and their leaders, by company agents if they went on the payroll.

Witnesses Refute Girdler.

Girdler declared that he had given orders against espionage. La Follette introduced Frank O. Mason, who testified that he had been employed by Republic Steel Corp., he was instructed to keep posted, spy on union meetings, keep plant workers from joining.

La Follette read a statement made by the Republic last summer stating that every employee was free to join whatever labor organization he pleased. Girdler admitted that the statement was prepared by J. L. Wilkinson, head of the Republic police force and sanctioned by the board of directors, but he never heard of that statement until it was read in the committee room.

Girdler declared that beyond friendly persuasion, no effort was made to keep men from joining a union. La Follette called Spencer McCulloch, of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, who identified an article he had written on Girdler as an ironhanded union smasher, riddling everything with spies, having union organizers beaten up.

"Where did you get this material?" asked La Follette.

"From Girdler's associates, and took it to him for comment," replied McCulloch.

"What did he say about it?"

"He said it was a damned near perfect picture," replied McCulloch. "Even Girdler couldn't quite deny that."

WHAT MAKES A LYNCHING?

(Press Service, National Association For Advancement of Colored People.)

What makes a lynching possible? The question is answered effectively by George Leighton in the second and final installment of his story of an American city, Omaha, Neb., appearing in the current issue of Harper's magazine.

In a straightforward and moving account of the forces behind the rise and fall and later lame attempt at a comeback of this midwestern railroad center since the 1890's, Leighton includes an account of the lynching of Will Brown, a prowling horse wrecker in Omaha during the latter part of September, 1919, for an alleged attack on Agnes Loucks, a white woman.

Carefully, he builds up the background of this case, showing the political corruption that included control of organized vice, the part played by so-called respectable business men of the town, railroad barons, the giant utilities with their headquarters in the east, the monopolistic meatpackers with their main offices in Chicago. All these forces, aided by the Omaha Bee, pushed a press campaign of slander against negroes, accusing them of attacking whites, that culminated in the lynching of Brown, Leighton says in his article.

Leighton makes it clear that it is not racial hatred, but the desire for fat profits, built up on the backs of prostitutes and sweatshop labor, and the crushing of organized labor through organized corrupt politicians that accounted for the lynching of Will Brown back in 1919.

Comment On World Events

Harper's Magazine is a publication not much read by wage-earners. Partly, this is due to its 40-cent price and partly to its high-brow tradition. But a recent issue contains an article by George B. Cressey on Siberia packed with facts which everyone ought to know—especially these days when world politics has a habit of being on the front page. Some of these facts are set forth below. Mr. Cressey makes no comment on the virtues or sins of the Russian regime.

Siberia is nearly 60 per cent larger than the United States. It used to be the chief destination of exiles; now it is the scene of an astounding colonization. Its population has grown from 10,400,000 in 1914 to 25,637,000 in 1933—a growth of 146 per cent. Probably it has at least 30,000,000 people now. Cultivated land in the same time increased 205 per cent—"It is an impressive sight," says Mr. Cressey, "to see thousands of acres plowed for the first time in history." In 1937, two-thirds of spring plowing and 75 per cent of fall plowing was done by tractors; and every railroad station in Siberia has a new grain elevator.

In Siberia, as in Canada, a majority of the land is not fit for agriculture; but in both cases, much of the land unfit for the plow is covered by timber. Some of this timber is exported by the Arctic ocean; more of it by the Trans-Siberian railway and its European connections. Much of the rolling stock of that railway is poor, though vastly better than in 1923.

"Last summer," said Mr. Cressey, "I spent several weeks traveling back and forth on the main line, and frequently counted the freight trains going in the opposite direction. The average was one train every 17 minutes."

Fully equal to the development of agriculture and the railway is the development of manufacture, especially that of iron and steel. The second largest steel production of the soviets is in the Kuznetz area of Siberia. A region which contained less than 100,000 people a dozen years ago now has well over a million; and Mr. Cressey tells of four blast furnaces producing 4,000 tons of pig iron a day.

Like other American visitors, Mr. Cressey finds living standards in Russia vastly improved, with plenty of room for further gains.

"The development of Siberia has become a major safeguard for world peace," declares Mr. Cressey, pointing out that even a successful war would check the development now going on. But if war comes between Russia and Japan, Russia will not be fighting at the end of the world's longest fishing pole, as she did 33 years ago. She has big bilitary supplies thousands of miles nearer the fighting front now than then.

Delegates Return From Convention

V. O. Cunningham and Roy Rutherford have returned from Birmingham, where they represented Federal Labor Union No. 18269 at the annual convention of the National Council of United Cement Workers.

There are 82 local unions in the cement, lime, gypsum and allied industries, and they have been working together as a national council. At this meeting the council petitioned the American Federation of Labor for an international charter.

There has been a gain in membership among the cement workers of 187 per cent during the past year.

Local 18269 is the first local union organized in this industry and Chattanooga is quite proud of its cement workers' union.

U. S. Judge Cuts Pay On Electric Railroad

Fifteen Per Cent Slash Affecting 1,300 Workers Brings Strike Threat on Chicago, North Shore & Milwaukee.

Chicago.—Wages of 1,300 workers on the Chicago, North Shore and Milwaukee Electric railroad have been cut 15 per cent by the order of Federal District Judge Will M. Sparks. The order was entered to go into effect in a little over twenty-four hours. Judge Sparks made five points in favor of his own decree, but it is No. 4 that rouses the wrath of the men:

To which not only the workers on the road but labor of Chicago in general is answering: "Why?" Why should an enterprise already in bankruptcy and going deeper be subsidized by a 15 per cent tax on the pay roll? And a still more embarrassing question was put as close to the door of the courtroom as could be done without risking charges of contempt:

"Are you getting a 15 per cent cut on your supplies?"

The employes, members of the Amalgamated Association of Street, Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employes of America, have frequently expressed opposition to any pay cut.

The basis of the shorter work day movement is recognition of the truth that man does not live to work, but works to live.

Labor Day Edition — FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 2, 1938 — Section A

LORD'S PRAYER A SOCIAL PETITION

Includes Everyone Instead of Individual

The "Lord's Prayer" is familiar to nearly every man, woman and child in this country. It is used on public occasions when a prayer suitable to all classes, and people of all religious beliefs, is desired. But there probably isn't one person in a thousand who realizes what he is asking when he presents its petitions.

Not that thereis anything mysterious about it, or that it is difficult to understand—it is simply because the average man doesn't stop to think of the words he is using.

It should be understood that no man can pray this prayer for himself alone. There isn't a single "I" or "my" in it. It is a social prayer.

Notice the way it begins: Our Father—not my Father.

And here are its principal petitions:

"Give us this day our daily bread."

"Forgive us our trespasses."

"Lead us not into temptation."

"Deliver us from evil."

No man can use this prayer unless he has the spirit of brotherhood.

If the spirit of this prayer were accepted we would have the solution of most of our social problems; wars would cease; unemployment would be largely taken care of; human hatred would disappear.

Suppose, for example, that the man who prayed for daily bread was deeply concerned about his neighbor also getting his daily bread? Nobody would go hungry.

Suppose that the man who asked for forgiveness was anxious that others should be forgiven? It would eliminate hatred. As a matter of fact, the only comment Jesus made upon the prayer which He taught His disciples was this: "If we forgive not men their trespasses, how can your Heavenly Father forgive you your trespasses?"

The man who prays for "deliverance from evil," must take care that he does not lead others into temptation.

The next time you offer this prayer to the Almighty, stop and ask yourself—"Am I including my neighbor in this prayer?" If not, you might better quit, because your voice will reach no higher than your own lips.

And this applies to the "pious" employer of labor who doesn't permit his religion to interfere with his business, as well as the worker who has no sense of brotherhood toward his fellow-workers. For when we pray "Our Father," we must accept the doctrine of the "Brotherhood of man."

A LABOR DAY PLEDGE

I. M. ORNBURN, Secretary-Treasurer

Union Label Trades Department

American Federation of Labor

THE TRIPLE B's of collective action for Labor Unionists are Bargaining, Buying and Balloting. They are the most powerful weapons organized workers possess. With them, if properly utilized, labor can change the economic map of America.

BARGAINING collectively with their employers through representatives of their own choosing is the best method members of Labor Unions have discovered to raise wages, shorten hours and improve their conditions. In order to carry out this "triple B" program, a worker must join a Labor Union of his trade. Stockholders of an industry do not act individually. Neither are all the stockholders in a body allowed to act as spokesman for a certain industry. Industrialists are well organized. They choose their most able members to represent their organization in all important negotiations. Likewise, the worker who is helpless as an individual must join with his brother unionists in order to select representatives to deal effectively with employers. Today, when a majority in any industry belongs to a Labor Union, the employer is compelled by law to recognize the representative of the respective Union.

BUYING collectively of Union Label Products and patronizing of Union services is constantly urged upon members of Labor Unions, their families and friends, by the Union Label Trades Department of the American Federation of Labor. It is the only way to maintain the labor standards that have been established through collective bargaining. The Union Label is the emblem used to designate the products which are made by unionized industries. The Shop Card and Working Button are the emblems of Union services. Workers should not fail to reciprocate with "fair" employers in buying only products of unionized industry. The A. F. of L. Union Label and Industrial Exhibition recently held in Cincinnati is an outstanding example of Labor's effort to secure for "fair" employers our vast union market.

BALLOTING collectively by all voting members of Labor Unions and their families is also necessary, in order to preserve and protect our rights. The American Federation of Labor has had the long-established policy of "electing our friends and defeating our enemies." We must safeguard our right to organize; to bargain collectively; to picket; and even to strike, if necessary. From time to time, Union Labor has placed on the statute books of state and nation most effective laws to preserve these fundamental rights. It is only through collective balloting for our friends that organized workers can retain them. We cannot, therefore, emphasize too strongly the great benefits that can be obtained and maintained for American workers through collective action in Bargaining, Buying and Balloting.

On this Labor Day, when we celebrate the progress and achievements of American Labor, it should be most fitting for each person at every gathering to raise his right hand and take the Union Label pledge: "I promise to patronize only those firms that display the Union Label, Shop Card or Service Button!"

PADWAY MEMBER NEW BAR GROUP

AFL Counsel, 8 More Will Map Out Plans

Washington.— Frank J. Hogan, president of the American Bar association, named Greenville Clark, prominent New York lawyer, to head the association's committee for defense of civil liberties guaranteed by the bill of rights of the constitution. The committee, set up by the recent bar association convention in Cleveland, is charged with the "protection and preservation" of personal liberties vouchsafed by the first ten amendments to the constitution.

Mr. Clark is a member of the Corporation of Harvard University, trustee of the graduate faculty of Political and Social Science of New York, and a member of the firm of Root, Clark, Buckner & Ballantine.

Other members of the committee are Zechariah Chaffee, Jr., professor of law, Harvard university; Joseph A. Padway, counsel for the American Federation of Labor, Washington, D. C., and Milwaukee, Wis.; Douglas Arant, Birmingham; Osmer C. Fitts, Ludlow, Vt.; Ernest A. Green, St. Louis; George I. Haight, Chicago; Monte M. Lehman, New Orleans, and John Francis Neylan, San Francisco.

It was announced that the committee will investigate alleged violations of the bill of rights and provide defense if aggrieved persons are unable to finance the action.

TRADE UNIONISTS OBLIGATED TO "BUY UNION"

By I. M. ORNBURN

Secretary-Treasurer, Union Label Trades Department, A. F. of L.

Labor unionists are obligated to manufacturers who recognize bona fide labor unions. We cannot expect industry to accept collective bargaining agreements and then not buy the products that are made under union conditions. We owe it to those "fair" concerns to co-operate in buying the merchandise upon which the union label is displayed.

If members of labor unions, their families and friends will patronize only those firms that sell union label goods and employ union services, we may confidently expect a steady growth for labor unions; but if we fail to reciprocate by consuming the union-made goods processed by our own friends, we will lose the high standards we established. WE MUST SHOW RESULTS TO UNIONIZED INDUSTRY.

KOHLER STRIKERS STAND FIRM AFTER FOUR YEARS STRUGGLE

The solid ranks of the Kohler strikers march in a memorial picket line four years after their fight began, with the four-year-old daughter of Henry Engelmann and the parents of Lee Wakefield, two strikers slain in a provoked riot, leading the parade.

High upon labor's honor roll should stand the names of the employees of the Kohler Company, Kohler, Wis., who for four years have remained on strike and refused to [illegible].

The strike was called in May, 1934, by A. F. of L. Federal Labor Union No. 18545 and was characterized by violent methods used by the company against the union which resulted in two union-men being shot so seriously that they were sent to hospitals.

The following letter, received by President William Green, tells a story of human courage and devotion to a cause that speaks for itself:

Sheboygan, Wis., August 6, 1938.

Mr. William Green, President,
American Federation of Labor,
A. F. of L. Building,
Washington, D. C.

Dear Sir and Brother:

Enclosed we are sending to you [illegible] at the fourth annual memorial in honor of Lee Wakefield and Henry Engelmann, killed on July 27, 1934, at Kohler, Wis., in a riot provoked by the Kohler company.

[illegible] the past the offices and plant of the Kohler Company and then marched to the picket camp where a short memorial service was held. [illegible] Sigman delivered an outstanding memorial address at the picket camp.

This silent memorial picket line [illegible] Kohler strikers, with the excention of several relatives of our slain brothers.

The memorial picket line was headed by the four-year-olddaughter of Henry Engelmann and the parents of Lee Wakefield.

[illegible] finds our members still loyal and more than ever determined to win this struggle against industrial autocracy.

We are proud to be members of the A. F. of L. and will win this great fight no matter how long it may take.

We are certain that no rival group anywhere ever did, or will, carry on a struggle for years like our A. F. of L. union did.

The members of Federal Labor Union 18545, with the support of the American Federation of Labor and the Wisconsin State Federation of Labor, are awaiting the day of final victory, a victory that no C. I. O. union anywhere would fight for years to achieve.

The Kohler company is feeling the effects of a nation-wide fight against their unfair products. Kohler warehouses and branch offices throughout the land were picketed last Saturday at the same time our memorial was held at home.

The radio station WCFL in Chicago broadcast a memorial service in honor of our dead brothers.

A telling blow in our behalf was struck by our circular letter of May 17, 1938. Since that time Kohler has indicated that a termination of the strike would be a great relief.

About two months ago, through the medium of third parties, Kohler began o angle for a possible settlement.

A conference between the representatives of our union and the Kohler Company was arranged for August 10. Several officials of the Wisconsin Labor Board were quite active in bringing this scheduled conference about. Our union will, of course, have the advice and assistance of President Henry Ohl, Jr. (Winconsin State Federation of Labor) in this matter. It will be our duty to keep your fuly informed.

The members of 18545 will accept none of these so-called settlements the C. I. O. is making all over the country, but will fight on to victory and will thereafter set out to build one of the best unions in the A. F. of L.

Again we thank you, President Green, for your help and knowing that the same help will be ours in the future, we remain with best wishes,

Fraternally yours,
FEDERAL LABOR UNION No. 18545.
Charles Heymanns, President.

AFL ACTS TO ORGANIZE NEW SEAMEN'S UNION

Washington.—Tentative plans for a new international seamen's union, built around a nucleus of 8,000 members of the Sailors' Union of the Pacific, were announced here by President William Green, of the American Federation of Labor.

President Green announced a referendum will be held among the approximately 17,000 members of A. F. of L. federal seamen's locals on the Atlantic and Gulf coasts and at Great Lakes ports to vote on the merger.

"We confidently expect approval of the proposal by the seamen who will see the advantages of uniting and organizing on a national and international basis for their own protection and welfare," he said.

"The organizations to become part of the new union have a present membership of more than 25,000. An intensive organization drive will be inaugurated immediately along the Atlantic and Gulf coasts which is expected to double that membership within a year."

The strengthened and augmented union would go into direct rivalry with the CIO's National Maritime union.

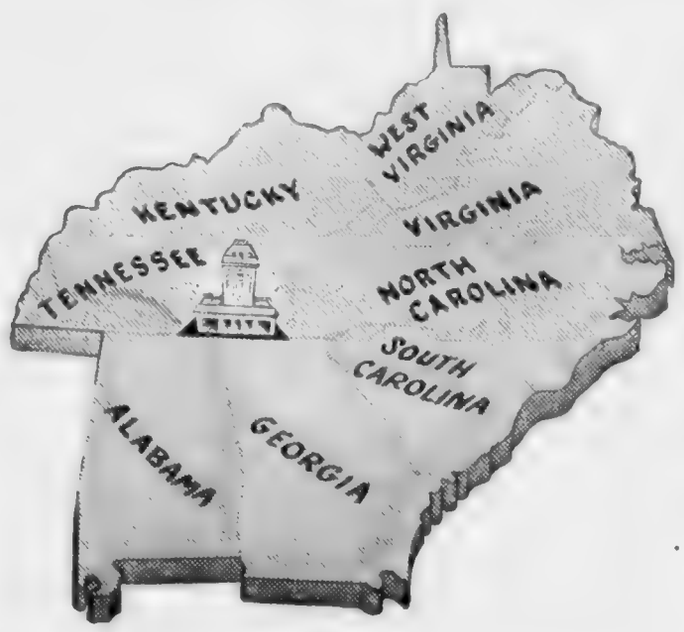
Service to Policyholders is more than a slogan at the Provident

—it has always been a creed of action for every day in the year.

If only you could go with us behind the scene where thousands upon thousands of Provident benefit checks go yearly to families hit by sickness, or accident, or robbed of the Breadwinner, you would see what relief these benefit payments brought in times of financial emergency.

Over $42,000,000.00 has been so distributed to Provident Policyholders since organization.

In mines and mills, lumbering plants and other major industries of the nation, Provident Protection now guards over 250,000 employees and their dependents against losses from sickness, accidents, and gives financial aid upon the death of the Breadminner.



The Provident leads in the production of Accident and Health business in the eight states here shown, as reported by an independent source for the year 1937. The Provident now ranks among the ten leading companies of the entire nation in the production of Accident and Health business.

The Provident appreciates the generous share of patronage which workers of Chattanooga and employers of labor have granted us through the years.

American Federation of Labor Proud Of Distinctive Record of Services

Shortly Will Celebrate 58th Year of Founding With Approximately 4,000,000 Enrolled in Constitutent Local Unions Over Nation.

While the American Federation of Labor was actually organized in 1886, yet its history should properly include the organizations which preceded it. Therefore, it could rightfully be said that the American Federation of Labor really started with the organization of the Knights of Labor in the late 1870's.

The Knights of Labor was a secret organization with signs and passwords and admitted members of all workers regardless of craft to membership. Certain labor questions were discussed and voted upon by them in secret and the [illegible] Knights of Labor being merged into the Federation of Organized Trades and Labor Unions of the United States and Canada, which organized in Columbus, Ohio, and a number of delegates were invited to meet in Pittsburgh, Pa., where 107 delegates participated.

In 1886 the convention was held at Columbus, Ohio, and a number of delegates were invited to send representatives to the purpose of organizing the [illegible] which would be known as [illegible] Gompers as the first president. Since the Federation of Organized Trades and Labor Unions of the United States and Canada by the merger became a part of the American Federation of Labor, the latter is said to have been really organized November 15, 1881.

State and Central bodies composed of representatives or delegates of local unions affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, are also affiliated with the present organization and act closely in the same capacity as the American Federation of Labor acts nationally and internationally. Thus, the American Federation of Labor binds the various national and international unions into a voluntary federation that operates for the welfare of all concerned and collectively, and stands ready to assist any or all of its affiliates at any time the need for assistance should arise.

The American Federation of Labor maintains a corps of organizers in action practically continuously whose work it is to organize such crafts or groups of workmen as may not have been previously organized, and to assist the organized crafts in making additions to their rolls. It protects the workers' interests in the law-making bodies of the country by striving for the enactment of such laws as would be beneficial to the worker and to protect such laws as would operate against them. It fosters better conditions, better standards of living for the workers through education, agitation and organization, and is continually studying and developing ways and means by which these things may be accomplished.

The American Federation of Labor is founded upon the principle that in union there is strength; that unionism is teamwork and not individual effort; that individual crafts and organizations can handle their own internal affairs much better than outsiders who are not familiar with their particular problems. Once each year chosen representatives of all its affiliated organizations meet together in a convention where general problems are discussed; where ideas are exchanged and methods are considered for the promoting of the interests of the Labor movement in general.

The officers of the American Federation of Labor are the president, fifteen vice-presidents, a secretary-treasurer, all of whom must members of an affiliated organization. These officers also compose the Executive Council which administers the affairs of Organized Labor between conventions. It is the duty of this council to watch all labor legislation and see that the workers' interests are protected; to propose laws that would benefit labor; to supervise the organization of new unions and to assist in the adjustment of any grievances which might arise between affiliated organizations.

The organization in 1881 started with approximately 50,000 affiliated members. In 1920 the American Federation of Labor reported a membership of 3,080,000, but this number suffered a decline in 1921-22 but came back a year or two later, the average membership being approximately 4,000,000 and in the depression years of 1932-33 again reached its ratio. In 1934 the membership began to climb and it reached the 4,000,000 mark in April, 1937, or 1,805,982 in [illegible] over that of August, 1936, or more than a million and a half members, the exact increase being 1,805,982. At the present time it can be safely said that the affiliated membership of the Federation is over the 4,000,000 mark and it is still growing.

The A. F. of L. is made up of 104 national and international unions, 1[illegible] organizations, 49 State Federations of Labor, 730 City Central unions, 400 [illegible] trade and Federal Labor Unions. These figures, however, do not include all of the membership of Organized Labor. There [illegible] a number of Labor Unions which are not affiliated with the American Federation of Labor. Among these are the Railroad Brotherhoods. The total membership of these unions is estimated at approximately 1,000,000 workers.

An unparalleled record of service in behalf of the masses, the working men and women of the Nation, in the last two years reached a new peak when, following years of agitation by the American Federation of Labor and its affiliated organization memberships, resulted in the enactment of the National Labor Relations Act, which established the principle in law under which employers are prohibited from discriminating against or interfering with employees forming a union of their own choosing for the improvement of labor conditions.

The agitation which has been carried on by the American Federation of Labor and its affiliated membership for legislation to afford protection for wage workers in the exercise of rights guaranteed under the Constitution of the United States has focused attention upon the principles of liberty involved and brought about a wider appreciation of the justice of the demand of labor for the right of independent representation in the court that wields greater power over the "life, liberty and happiness" of wage workers than any other tribunal, the office of their employer.

The struggle which affiliated unions has carried on in defense of the right to organize has had all the implications of warfare with enemy forces. Those members whose loyalty survives the crucial test of experience know there is no rapid road to success. The policies of the organized labor movement, as represented by the American Federation of Labor, are based on principles of democracy. These principles comprehend the fullest opportunity for the presentation and support of divergent views and convictions, out of which are shaped the majority judgment, which must be applied to achieve direction and execution of plans.

The labor movement has made progress because trade union practices impose self-restraint and self-discipline in the face of gruelling provocation. This method has permitted better judgment to prevail, gains to be secured and maintained to await the opportunity of another day.

The American Federation of Labor with its fifty-six years of service in labor matters is a tried and true institution and one that continues well worthy of every conndence reposed in it by those who would so continue to improve their working conditions and standards of living until that objective which guarantees peace, happiness and contentment has been fully attained.

HOUSE LABOR COMMITTEE, IN 1894 URGED PASSAGE OF LABOR DAY BILL

Lawrence E. McGann, Committee Chairman, Said the National Holiday Would "Tend to Increase the Feeling of Common Brotherhood Among Men of All Crafts and Callings."

On Sept. 6, 1893, Representatives Amos J. Cummings, of New York, and Robert E. De Forest, of Connecticut, introduced bills in the Fifty-third Congress making Labor Day a legal holiday. Representative Cummings' bill was officially called "H. R. 28" and Representative De Forest's bill "H. R. 334." Both bills were referred to the House Committee on Labor, of which Lawrence E. McGann, of Illinois, was chairman.

On May 15, 1894, Chairman McGann, for the Committee on Labor, submitted a report to the House recommending the enactment of the Cummings bill.

The committee stressed the importance of the proposed holiday as an important element in maintaining the "nobility of labor" and developing in the worker the feeling "that he holds an honorable as well as a useful place in the body politic."

Text of Committee's Report

Following is the text of the Committee's report:

"The Committee on Labor, to whom was referred the bills (H. R. 28 and H. R. 334) making the first Monday in September, known as 'labor day,' a legal holiday, beg leave to report as follows:

"The bills provide, in substance, that the first Monday in September in each year, being the day celebrated and known as labor day, be made a legal public holiday.

Equality and Dignity of Labor

"The use of national holidays is to emphasize some great event or principle in the minds of the people by giving them a day of rest and recreation, a day of enjoyment, in commemoration of it. By making one day in each year a public holiday for the benefit of working men the equality and dignity of labor is emphasized. Nothing is more important to the public weal than that the nobility of labor be maintained. So long as the laboring man can feel that he holds an honorable as well as a useful place in the body politic, so long will he be a loyal and faithful citizen.

"The celebration of Labor Day as a national holiday will in time naturally lead to an honorable emulation among the different crafts beneficial to them and to the whole public. It will tend to increase the feeling of common brotherhood among men of all crafts and callings and at the same time kindle an honorable desire in each craft to surpass the rest.

Organized Workers Request Holiday

"There can be no substantial objection to making one day in the year a national holiday for the benefit of labor. The labor organization of the whole country, representing the great body of our artisan population, request it. They are the ones most interested. They desire and should have it

"If the farmers, manufacturers, and professional men are indifferent to the measure, or even oppose it, which there is no reason to believe, that still would constitute no good objection, for their work can be continued on holidays as well as on other days if they so desire it.

"Working men should have one day in the year peculiarly their own. Nor will their employers lose anything by it. Working men are benefited by a reasonable amount of rest and recreation. Whatever makes a working man more of a man makes him more useful as a craftsman.

State Labor Day Laws

"The first Monday in September is known as labor day and is recognized as a legal holiday in Colorado, Connecticut, Iowa, Massachusetts, Nebraska, New York, New Jersey, Ohio, Alabama, Delaware, Oregon, Georgia, Illinois, Indiana, Kansas, Louisiana, Maine, Montana, New Hampshire, Tennessee, Texas, Wisconsin, and Washington. In all these States the legislatures have passed a law recognizing labor day as a legal holiday.

"The Federal government seems to have confined its duties in the premises to enacting laws for legal holidays in the District of Columbia. Christmas, the first day of January, the twenty-second day of February, the thirtieth day of May, and the fourth day of July are now made by law public holidays.

"The bill simply provides that the first Monday of September in each year is made a legal holiday to all intents and purposes in the same manner as Christmas and other holidays now provided by the United States statutes.

"Your committee respectfully recommend that bill H. R. 28 be passed."

PYRAMIDS ARE CONSTRUCTED OF STONE AND BRICK

Twenty Years Necessary For Their Building

ARE 450 FEET HIGH

Interior Contains the King's Chamber

There are in all seventy of the Egyptian pyramids. Seven of these are at Gizeh, five at Abusir, eleven at Sakkara, five at Dashur and the remainder scattered throughout the country. Some are built of stone and others of brick.

The principal ones, including the great pyramid of Cheops, are at Gizeh. The great pyramid was erected as a mausoleum for Khufu or Cheops, of the fourth Egyptian dynasty, who resigned about 3800 B. C. It is constructed of stone, transported, for the most part, over a causeway eight miles long, extending from the quarries to the site. It is said that the construction of this causeway alone occupied 100,000 men ten years.

Twenty years more were consumed in building the pyramid itself, which is 450 feet 9 inches in height and 746 feet square at the base, and is estimated to contain 6,800,000 tons of stone. The four sides exactly face the four cardinal points. This is the case with all the pyramids, notes a writer in the Cleveland Plain Dealer.

The interior contains what are called the king's chamber and the queen's chamber, in which the sarcophagi and the bodies of the sovereigns were found, and numerous small chambers.

Various theories have been advanced as to the religious and astronomical uses intended in the construction of the great pyrimad and several of the lesses ones. While for the most part conjectural, these explanations of the monuments have brought into being a very extensive literature.

WHO TEACH OUR CHILDREN?

BY DR. J. E. AVENT

Professor of Educational Psychology

There are 10,315 teachers in Tennessee's county elementary schools. Of these, 13 per cent have four years of college education, eight per cent have three years, 34 per cent have two years. 36 per cent hav one year, and 7 per cent are high school graduates only. Two per cent have had less than a high school education.

The majority of those of lower academic qualifications came into the school work under former requirements of lower qualifications, and may have, by the dint of hard work over many years, become in their own right excellent teachers, even without the higher academic qualifications.

While the foregoing represents the academic qualifications of those teachers, the question may still be raised as to what are the desirable qualifications for our teachers. Let [illegible] retained, even if they never went to high school. They should never be displaced until old age and infirmity render excellence of work no longer possible.

But in the selection of new teachers, all should be graduates of four-year colleges or teachers colleges. In addition, these persons should have had 27 quarter hours of education, pertaining to the type of work to be done. If one is to do primary grade work, he or she should have had courses in Primary Education. A part of this professional education study should have covered the grades and the subjects to be taught.

It is far from being enough for a person to hold a bacheior's degree or even a master's degree, to be considered for employment as a teacher. The important thing is not what degree a person holds. It is rather that that person has learned that he or she can teach. Something more than graduation is prerequisite to good teaching.

A graduate in engineering is not qualified to practice medicine. So it is in teaching. Even in science, one who has had four years in chemistry is not qualified to teach biology. One who has had four years in Latin is not qualified to teach French or German. Nor is one who has a master's degree in mathematics qualified to teach in the third grade of school. The content of those subjects and grades is different.

A college graduate who has had no study of elementary education is not qualified to teach in the grades, regardless of how many degrees he or she holds. Pupils in the grades should not be required to wait two or three years for a new teacher to learn the content of the subject or grade assigned to be taught by a new teacher. The children's time is too precious to be thus wasted. There are qualified teachers available. The pupils do not have to wait for the teacher to learn.

International Union Made. B. & C. W. I. U. OF A. (REGISTERED)

This Label is an important safeguard of the Bakery and Confectionery Workers' International Union for its members against inhuman conditions, low wages and long working hours. People demanding this Label are not only supporting the Bakery and Confectionery Workers, protecting them against the conditions mentioned, but they are also protecting themselves and their families against the spread of disease-breeding germs which exist in unsanitary bake-shops. Our Label is only granted to sanitary and clean bakeries. If a bakery owner lives up to the requirements of our organization, he may use our Label. The Union shop workers are subject to health examination by Union physician and health maintenance by Union support.

Other requirements are (a) Sanitation and cleanliness in the shop; (b) treatment of the workers as human beings; (c) reasonable hours of work; (d) payment of the Union wage scale. Bakeries not displaying our Label on their products do not meet with either one or all of the above-stated requirements. Any fair-minded employer, however, will not object to them and may use the above Label. Does the bread you buy bear this protective Label of the Bakery and Confectionery Workers? We solicit your cooperation.

IT'S TOGETHER THAT COUNTS

A Monologue By JOSEPH LAWRENCE

(From American Federationist, April, 1938)

Why join the union?
Listen, bud, were you ever in a crowd
Where you didn't know anybody
And nobody knew you, and didn't care to?
Did you ever work in a shop
And do your job
Day after day without a word?
I did.
I'd get up in the morning
And drag myself off to work, and sweat out the day
And didn't talk to anybody.
That guy next to me was a scared punk
Who put out more work than I did
And tried to get me in wrong with the boss.
The foreman would give me dirt to work on
And I couldn't say a thing.
The dopes in the other departments
Didn't have anything to do with me,
And I didn't have anything to do with them.

I just beat it out of the shop as fast as I could,
I'd eat, go to the movies maybe,
Play ball or pool with some boys maybe,
And then go to sleep.
If you can call it sleep,—
I'd dream of tomorrow,
Working alone and talking to nobody.
Working with a guy who was afraid I'd take his job from him,
Being afraid that someone would take my job from me.
And in my dreams I would see
A long line of tomorrows,
Stretching ahead of me like little stalls,
Way, way down; all alike.
I could see myself pushing into one,
And then the next, and the next,
Being the same in each one,
Doing the same, thinking the same.
Until I got to the spot where the foreman would say
"Sorry, fellow. You're through.
You're not as fast as you used to be.
Better look for another kind of job.
And I could see
The kid who took my job.
A slick kid with a fresh grin
Who thought, "Out of my way, mugg.
It's my turn now."
Just the way I was ten years ago
When I took a job
From a guy who had three kids and a sick wife to feed.
That's what I dream.
I'd work that much harder and faster
And when I'd go to work the next day,
To keep that tomorrow as far away as I could.

Why join the union, eh?
We got a union now.
I know the fellow working next to me now.
I know the guys in the other departments now.
The're all right.
They're my sort.
Sure, we got higher wages and shorter hours,
But we got more than that.
We got a right to keep our heads up.
That's a union.
When I got a kick coming, the rest back me up.
When they got a kick coming, I back them up.
When the day is over, I don't beat it home,
I hang around and talk.
The boss can't come around to the fellow next to me and say:
"I got to lay one of you fellows off.
If you'll work for less, I'll lay the other guy off."
Not now, he can't
We take good and bad together.
Why I'd rather take a cut with the rest of the boys
Than get a raise by myself.

Why?
Because that keeps me in.
Because then I'm with my own side
And not selling out.
Some guys can be stools and suckers
And make a few extra bucks a week
By trying to jump over on the other side of the fence.
Not me
I'm on the side that'll always be my friends,
And not toss me over when they don't need me any more.
Take it frome me, fellow, when you need a friend
There's the guy working right next to you.
You ask a favor from the boss
And you got your soul in hock for the rest of your life.
I'm in the union now
And the fellow next to me,
And the guys in the other departments,
And everybody in the plant.
We're all in the union now
We got a feeling of sticking together.
And working together and fighting together.
We're all together and our unions are together,
All over the country and all over the world.
"The scum o' the earth," they called us before.
But not now.
Now we count.

Enterprise.

At a recent dinner, one of the speakers started telling a number of supposedly funny stories. After a few early attempts, he went on to tell the story of the princess and the frog, while the other diners listened with polite forbearance.

"Most of you must have heard that story on the radio," he said, when he had finished. "But, just as a matter of interest, I'd like all those who haven't heard it to put up their hands."

A dozen of the company raised their hands, and the story teller sat down.

In a day or two, each of the dozen received a radio catalogue. The speaker was a radio dealer.

Pres. William Green's Labor Day Message

It is with sincere gratification that I transmit this Labor day message. Despite the sharp and serious period of economic demoralization through which we are passing and despite the efforts of a rebel group to build up a dual labor organization, the American Federation of Labor exercises greater prestige and influence in both the political and the economic field than ever before. Our record makes us a dependable, constructive organization that maintains discipline within its own ranks while it keeps progress for wage-earners abreast of progress for the whole of society.

Our objectives are in line with democratic ideals, for we seek equal opportunity for all men and women. We realize that we must build a ladder round upon round, making it possible for all to mount to the plane of equal opportunity. As we build and mount, we fit ourselves for wider opportunities. The American Federation of Labor believes that American labor can promote its own welfare within American institutions—and that progress for labor is inseparable from progress for all.

We have stood solidly against the principles and practices of communism. Such unions as tolerated communists or their sympathizers have found unity of action impossible and their organizations torn asunder. As to the wisdom of our decision, even though opposed by some liberals and radical opportunists, we have only to point to the terrible purge that has already cost two million lives in Russia. No group within a nation can permanently impose its will on other groups.

During the past year we have added to our union ranks and have extended and strengthened the practice of collective bargaining and as a result have been able to defeat many proposed wge cuts. We have contributed to understanding of the fact that wages are both pay for work and appro..imately 80 per cent of consuming power upon which industries depend for sale of products and services. There is now more conscience and hesitation on the part of employers in proposing wage cuts matched by intelligent resistance on the part of unions. The result has been a steadying force in business activity.

In the past year unemployment compensation laws have gone into effect in more than half our states and will be in effect in all but two with the beginning of next year. The purpose of unemployment compensation is to provide economic security for those employable workers who have lost their jobs. Even though the laws are not yet perfect or their administration satisfactory, the big thing is the establishment of the principle that workers losing jobs still have a right to income.

Another big forward step of the past year is social legislation fixing a wage minimum below which competition may not force workers to work in industries under federal jurisdiction and establishing maximum hours beyond which overtime is enforced. These two measures raised the economic level of all our living and provide a new sense of security for those whose incomes depend upon keeping their jobs.

However, these new laws, together with the national labor relations act, public contracts, as well as the more familiar laws, bring us to the serious problem of getting understanding and practical administrators. Labor experience is necessary for the administration of labor law.

The problems of the coming year challenge labor's ability in organization and securing representation for its views and experience in the administrative work of the government.

The situation calls for a rededication to the cause of unionism and for unifying our labor movement. Our national life is a unity and labor cannot divide its forces without loss to itself and the cause of human welfare.

Let us determine to forge a new unity during the year, sweep aside all disruption, and take advantage of the opportunities which we can turn into strength for the cause of unionism and higher standards of living for all.

Half Century History of I.A.M. Has Fine Achievements

First Lodge Instituted at Atlanta in 1888; International Association Has Been Officered for Many Years By O. A. Wharton and E. C. Davidson » Membership Now at Highest Peak

On the evening of May 5, 1888, a number of machinists in the city of Atlanta, Ga., organized Atlanta Lodge No. 1, of the United Machinists and Mechanical Engineers of America, with a membership of nineteen.

The growth of the organization was necessarily slow, but in the month of February, 1889, there were twenty-two local lodges with a total membership of more than a thousand, and in this month was issued the first journal, a pamphlet consisting og four pages.

The first convention of the association was called to meet in the city of Atlanta, on May 6, 1889. At the time of holding this convention there were thirty-four locals in the order and twenty-two delegates attended the convention. Fourteen States were represented and the name of the order was changed to the National Association of Machinists. T. W. Talbott was elected grand master machinist, which title corresponds to that of international president. At this convention J. J. Creamer was elected grand foreman, which office corresponds with that of international vice-president, and W. L. Dawley was elected financial secretary, and headquarters were established at Atlanta, Ga.

Immediately following the first convention, many new lodges were formed and in the month of July, 1889, the pages of the journal were increased to sixteen in number.

The second annual convention was held in the city of Louisville, Ky. There were eighty lodges in the association and thirty-nine delegates attended this convention. At this convention, the former officers were re-elected to office, with the exception of W. R. Mills, who was elected treasurer.

In the month of June, 1890, T. W. Talbot resigned as grand master machinist and was succeeded by J. J. Creamer. The headquarters was removed to Richmond, Va.

At the close of the year 1890 there were one hundred and forty-eight lodges on the roster, and in the month of February, 1897, the journal had become so well established that its pages were increased to thirty-two in number.

A. this time the wages of machinists throughout the country ranged from $1.75 to $3.00 per day, the latter wage being an extremely high rate.

In May, 1891, the third annual convention was held at Pittsburgh, Pa. At this convention the name was changed to the International Association of Machinists and the general executive board elected. J. J. Creamer was re-elcted grand master machinist and W. L. Dawley was re-elected secretary.

The fourth annual convention was held in Chicago, in May, 1892. This convention elected John O'Day grand master machinist and W. L. Dawley was re-elected secretary, and Harry Easton was elected grand foreman and organizer.

The fifth annual convention was held in 1893 in Indianapolis, Ind. This convention elected J. O'Connell as grand master machinist, and also approved the selection of an editor by the general executive board, who was to devote his entire time to this work. J. J. Creamer was the first editor and the first issue of the journal under his management was in August, 1893.

No convention was held in 1894, it being decided to hold biennial conventions in the future.

Business conditions continued dull throughout the year and very little was accomplished in the way of obtaining better conditions in this year, 1895.

The sixth convention was held in Cincinnati, Brother J. O'Connell was re-elected to the office of grand master machinist and D. Douglas Wilson was elected grand foreman and editor, the convention combining these two offices. This convention also elected George Preston as general secretary-treasurer, which position he held until July, 1917. The first journal edited by D. Douglas Wilson was issued in July, 1895.

At the Cincinnati convention, it was decided that the International Associaion of Machinists should affiliate with the American Federation of Labor.

Very little progress was made during the year 1896 in the way of organizing new lodges and at the close of this year there were four hundred and fifty lodges in existence.

In May, 1897, the seventh convention was held in Kansas City, Mo., there was abolished the use of the black ball, which had been in vogue in the association up until this time. At this convention the present stamp system was adopted and provision was made for quarterly dues stamp to cost 25 cents, with an idea of building up a fund to provide for a death benefit and to furnish the journal free of cost to all good standing members. The laws providing for death benefits went into effect April 1, 1896.

The year 1898 was uneventful. There were about four hundred and twenty lodges in good standing.

In 1899 the eighth convention was held in Buffalo, N. Y. The reports showed that during the two previous years thirty-one new lodges had been organized and thirty-eight lodges reorganized

The Buffalo convention enacted laws authorizing the grand lodge to pay one-half of the legitimate expenses of business agents appointed by local unions. The titles of grand master machinist and grand foreman were changed to International president and vice president. At this convention the general executive board was abolished and a board of trustees elected. This convention ordered headquarters moved to Washington, D. C., which was accomplished in the month of November 1899

In 1901 the first general movement was made by the association toward reducing the hours of labor. On the morning of May 20, 1901, it was estimated that nearly fifty thousand machinists laid down their tools when the strike for the nine-hour day was declared.

The ninth convention was held in the city of Toronto in 1901. The dues were raised to 75 cents per month and the quarterly dues stamp was abolished. Death benefit laws were changed providing different amounts to be paid on the death of a member ranging from $50.00 to $200.00, depending on the period of good standing. The Toronto convention increased the number of vice-presidents to five.

In 1902 and 1903 many agreements were made, whereby machinists of the country increased their wages and reduced their working hours and obtained better working conditions.

In May, 1903, the tenth convention was held in Milwaukee. This convention provided for two additional vice-presidents, making seven in all, and also decided that a general movement for the eight-hour day be encouraged.

In 1905 the eleventh convention was held in Boston, the convention meeting in September instead of May as had been the previous custom. The Boston convention provided that in January of odd numbered years, a referendum vote be taken to decide whether the convention was to be held that year. It was in the year of 1905 that the grand lodge officers were first elected by the referendum system. This convention increased the per capita tax to the grand lodge and raised the dues from 75c to $1.00 per month.

In September, 1907, the twelfth convention was held in St. Louis, Mo. At this convention an assessment was levied equivalent to one day's pay each year for three years upon each member.

Has 75,000 Members.

At this time, the association had reached seventy-five thousand members and had about seven hundred and fifty locals in the roster.

In 1907, the association felt the result of a depression and the membership decreased rapidly until it had less than fifty thousand good standing members at the close of 1908.

In September, 1909, the thirteenth convention was held in Denver.

In 1911 the fourteenth convention was held in Davenport, Iowa, being the last convention held until the fifteenth convention, held in Baltimore, Md., it having been decided by the Davenport convention not to hold conventions in the future unless authorized through the referendum vote to do so.

Under the referendum laws prevailing in 1911, William H. Johnston was elected to succeed James O'Connell as international president, who served several years, being succeeded by O. A. Wharton, who still holds the post.

The fifteenth convention was held in Baltimore, Md., in September of 1916. The basis of membership at the fifteenth convention was 113,515.

In the latter part of 1916, a recall was circulated for the general secretary-treasurer, George Beston, and in July, 1917, the election was declared and E. C. Davison was elected as general secretary-treasurer. He has been re-elected from that time until the present.

The International Association of Machinists has continued since 1920 to function in the same progressive manner as it did during previous years.

It has a proud record of achievements, and the prospects for the future are bright.

The total benefits paid by the association from 1898 until June, 1920, inclusive, were $7,065,540.56.

The headquarters building is located at Ninth street and Mt. Vernon Place, Northwest, Washington, D. C., occupying one of the most prominent corners in the city.

The site for this structure was purchased July 16, 1918. Building operations started February, 1919; the corner-stone laid Wednesday, July 2, 1919, and the building complete and occupied April 1, 1920.

The sixth and seventh floors and portion of the second floor are occupied by the grand lodge offices of the International Association of Machinists. The fifth floor is occupied by the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers; the fourth by the Plumb Plan league; the third by the Marine Engineers' Beneficial association; the Brotherhood of Railroad Signal Men of America; the International Brotherhood of Steam Shovel and Dredge Men; the Farmer and Labor Cooperative commission, and District No. 44, International Association of Machinists; the second by real estate offices, physicians, telegraph office, and security companies; the ground floor being occupied by the Mt. Vernon Savings bank.

The Machinists have made an enviable record for bona fide trade unionism in bettering the economic condition of the workers throughout the country and today has one of the largest memberships of any international union.

The American Federation of Labor In Chattanooga Territory
Honored and Respected For Nearly 40 Years
For Its Integrity

ALL FORTY-EIGHT STATES NOW HAVE OLD AGE PENSION ACTS

Enactment of Social Security Law by 1938 Session of Virginia Legislature Completed Program for Protection of Needy Aged Sponsored by American Federation of Labor.

When Gov. James H. Price, of Virginia, affixed his signature to the Weaver-Hillard omnibus social security bill enacted by the recent session of the Virginia legislature, he placed the last state of the Union on the roll of old age pension commonwealths.

The enactment of the Virginia law completing nation-wide legislation providing assistance for the indigent aged in the United States may be rightly regarded as a definite achievement of the American Federation of Labor, which has long been the militant advocate of this eminently just protection for persons who have reached old age without adequate income to provide them with the necessities of life.

As early as 1902 the American Federation of Labor approved the principle of old age pensions. The increasing need for this form of social legislation was emphasized by A. F. of L. conventions from year to year coupled with efforts to secure both federal and state assistance for the needy aged. In 1927 the federation assumed the leadership in a vigorous movement for the prompt realization of this necessary type of social justice.

Ordered Study of Pension Systems.

Impressed by the continual increase in the number of aged destitute persons and the utterly inadequate systems in operation in a few states for their protection, only six states and the territory of Alaska having pension plans, the 1927 convention of the federation adopted the recommendation of the A. F. of L. Executive Council for a "comprehensive study of all plans of old-age pensions."

The council made a voluminous report to the 1928 convention covering old-age pension systems in the various states of the United States and in Canada, including forty-seven bills on this subject submitted to the congress of the United States beginning with the bill introduced by Congressman W. B. Wilson in 1907, the federal bills all having had the support of the American Federation of Labor.

Believing, however, that there was urgent need for more adequate information, the council recommended "that the American Federation of Labor ask the congress of the United States to make the necessary appropriation and to authorize a commission on old-age income to study the problem and make report." The council said that "such a commission should consist of representatives of labor, employers and the public and should have adequate technical counsel."

Started Militant Pension Campaign in 1929.

Recurring to the importance of protection for the indigent aged in its report to the 1929 convention the A. F. of L. Executive Council recommended that "a model compulsory old-age pension law should be drafted by the federation and recommended to state federations of labor as a matter of first order of importance," and declared that "we should then inaugurate an active campaign for the enactment of such laws in every state." After a thorough discussion the convention adopted the council's recommendation with practically no opposition.

Hearing on Pensions Held by Congress.

In 1930, the congress of the United States, at the request of the American Federation of Labor, held an extensive hearing on the question of old-age pensions for the first time in the history of that body. Although ten states and one territory were listed as having enacted old-age pension laws, the A. F. of L. Executive Council reported to the 1930 convention of the federation that "none of them is of such a practical character that the American Federation of Labor can unequivocally indorse them as model laws."

Seventeen States Had Pension Laws in 1931.

By 1931 the executive council informed the A. F. of L. convention that seventeen states had enacted old-age pension laws, but that practically all of them required amendments to make them more in accordance with the principles of justice for the aged advocated by the American Federation of Labor.

In 1932 old-age pension legislation came before congress in a bill introduced by Representative Connery, chairman of the house labor committee, granting aid to the states that would enact old-age pension laws. It provided that the government appropriate $10,000,000 to the various states to pay one-third of what ever sum was paid to aged persons. A bill covering this subject approved by the American Federation of Labor was also introduced in both houses of congress.

In 1933 There Were Twenty-five Pension States.

In its report to the 1933 convention the Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor said that through the aggressive campaign in behalf of old-age pension legislation by state federations of labor and city central bodies during the year the number of states with old-age security laws had been increased to twenty-five.

Federal Assistance Included in Social Security Act.

The council said it was its purpose and intention "to utilize every means at the command of the American Federation of Labor and to continue its efforts to secure the enactment of old-age pension laws in the different states."

In 1934 President Roosevelt named President Green and other representatives of the American Federation of Labor to serve in an advisory capacity on the president's committee on economic security whose report the president used as the basis for his message to congress early in 1935 recommending the enactment of the social security bill which included a section pledging the federal government to match up to $15 a month old-age pensions in states where the state pension law has been approved by the social security board.

From the time the social security bill was introduced until it was enacted into law and signed by the president in August, 1935, the American Federation of Labor represented the united front of the labor movement in favor of the measure, including federal grants for state old-age pensions.

And now in less than ten years after the American Federation of Labor inaugurated its vigorous campaign for state old-age pensions for the indigent aged, and in less than three years after the provisions for federal assistance to state old-age pensions contained in the social security act became the law of the land, every state in the United States has passed the necessary legislation to give the indigent aged monthly pensions to protect them from want.

This significant achievement is certainly one of which the American Federation of Labor with its more than three and one-half million members may well be proud.

COAL OPERATORS URGE COOPERATION

Fairmont, W. Va.—Jesse V. Sullivan, executive secretary of the West Virginia Coal association, told leaders of the industry in this and other states that their great need is research to "stress ultilization" of mine products. He spoke at the meeting of the Northern West Virginia Sub-divisional Coal association, and was heard by operators who represented more than 16,000,000 annual tons of production.

"It seems to me," he said, "that the time has come, while our markets are diminishing, to stress utilization rather than production."

The operators also heard John D. Battle, executive secretary of the National Coal association, urge co-operation in the industry rather than cut-throat competition. Sullivan called for the national bituminous coal commission, which ,he said, "has ample funds" to allocate sufficient money for establishment of a research bureau at the University of West Virginia.

Let us all stand equal before the law, and let the law be so just, so reasonable, so carefully drawn, that it protects alike the rights of all.—Justice Louis D. Brandeis.

The Position of Church Groups On Fundamental Labor Questions

Trade Unionism and Higher Wages Are in Harmony With the "Social Ideals of Christianity"; Unjust Distribution Wealth Criticized; Turning Wage-Earners Into "Mere Instruments for the Making of Money for Others" Attacked as a Violation of God's Purpose.

The American Federation of Labor Weekly News Service has received many requests for information relative to the views of the Christian church on the vital economic and social questions affecting the interests of America's millions of working men and women.

The Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America, composed of twenty-three Protestant denominations with a membership approximating 22,000,000, issues annually, through its department of the church and social service, a "Labor Sunday Message" designed to be read from the pulpits of all Protestant churches on the Sunday preceding Labor Day. The message gives the views of the affiliated groups on current questions concerning the broad aspects of the labor problem and sets forth a general program for the guidance of church leaders and members. The "Labor Sunday Message" for 1937, the last one available at this writing, deplored the unjust distribution of wealth with its resultant poverty as a profound denial of the principles enunciated by Christ, and asserted that trade unionism and higher wages are in line with Christian social ideals.

Claiming that the Bible justifies the application of the principles of the Christian religion to the organization and operation of modern industry so that poverty can be abolished and the rights of the workers affirmed. the federal council's 1937 message said:

"On this Labor Sunday, dedicated to a consideration of the meaning of the Christian Gospel for our industrial life, we remind ourselves of the spiritual insight of the prophets of Israel who saw that the God who rules the universe is also the God of justice in human affairs. God, as revealed in the Bible, calls us to share in His concern for justice for all. As Jeremiah said of King Josiah, 'He judged the cause of the poor and needy: then it was well. Was not this to know me? saith the Lord.'

"On this day we remind ourselves also of the compassion of Christ for the poor and disinherited. That compassion, in a day when poverty was inevitable, becomes for us in our day, when poverty can be abolished, a demand for justice in the distribution of the product of industry. From the perspective of Christianity it is intolerable that masses of men, women and children should be denied the opportunities which comfortable people regard as necessities. God did not create wage-earners to be mere instruments for the making of money for others; the welfare of all must be inherent in the end for which all the processes of production and distribution are carried on.

Labor Organization Is Necessary.

"It is because of the concern of religion for justice and for social welfare that church bodies have for thirty years officially declared for the right of employes as well as employers to organize. Back of these declarations has lain a conviction of the sacredness of human personality and of the dignity of the common man, which is born of the teaching of Jesus that all men are children of God.

"Such a belief issues in a demand for democracy, both in political and industrial relations. This leads to the organization of workers in order that they may have a recognized voice in determining the conditions which they live and work. Experience has shown that since industry is often organized on a national or even wider basis, labor unions of corresponding scope are needed if workers are to be adequately represented in truly democratic relations, and if industry-wide standards are to be maintained."

Union Membership Grows.

Emphasizing the fact that "many industries in this country have been organized over a long period of years," and that "it has been demonstrated that it is possible for organized employers and organized employes to maintain generally harmonious relations, and to adjust their differences through joint conciliation without recourse to strikes or lockouts during the terms of their contracts," the council pointed out that "the past year has been marked by a significant advance in wider organization of workers," and said "the decision of the supreme court validating the national labor relations act marks a wider and more far-reaching recognition in law of labor's right to organize and bargain collectively."

Low Wages Condemned.

"As yet only a minority of American workers are organized," the council continued, "and it must be recognized that annual wages of many skilled workers are still below a comfort level of living, while the wages in many industries both urban and agricultural are grossly inadequate for a decent standard of living for an American family. Many millions still can find no work. We are convinced, therefore, that thoughtful Christians will welcome the contemporary gains in status and economic welfare on the part of labor as in line with the social ideals of Christianity.

Class Bias of Church Members.

"In the growing complexity of society many of us have been so cut off from the lives of the industrial workers that we are tempted to think of them not as neighbors, not as persons whose welfare in this world is as important in the sight of God as our own, but as strange masses.

"While there are millions of wage-earners in our churches, yet many of our congregations have drawn their membership, by reason of location and association, chiefly from the more comfortable middle classes. Many church members see the world from a point of view quite different from the point of view of the laboring masses.

"As a result of belonging to a class that is relatively secure, many of us tend to fear the very social changes which we should welcome because of the ethical demands of our Christian faith. While protesting against anything that accentuates class consciousness, we fail to realize that our point of view is largely controlled by the bias of class.

"Our first need is for self-knowledge and repentance, and sincere desire that the same mind may be in us which was in Christ Jesus who counted not privilege and power as things to be grasped, but emptied Himself in the service of man.

Consumers Co-operation Stressed.

"There are many parties to industry. The demand of the hour is for greater tolerance, understanding and fair play among them. Voices have been raised among employers urging modification of the older attitudes of many toward organized labor. Leaders of labor should realize that with increasing power, the labor movement must accept greater responsibility, not only fulfilling its traditional ideal of a fair day's work for a fair day's pay, but also taking a broad view of the economic scene as a whole.

"The achievement of increasing industrial wages alone will not solve the total problem. A balance between agriculture and industry must be attained. Prices to consumers must be taken into account. Labor and consumers in many countries have been quick to grasp the advantages of consumers' cooperation as a vital part of the movement toward a better day.

"Comprehensive collaboration of all groups is urgently needed. Employers, labor, consumers and the government must work together to provide for the economic needs of all the people. We must create also such cooperative relations among the nations and such access to raw materials for all as shall promote international peace.

Economic Insecurity Must End.

"As industrial and economic life becomes more complex we discover increasing urgent need for more personal consecration of individuals to the religious life. For religion will always be indispensable not only for the soul of the individual, but also as social cement to hold any society together in the bonds of peace. Selfish struggles for prestige or power on the part of individuals or groups can become divisive forces in any society.

"There must, indeed, be such a reorganization of our economic life as will remove the fear of economic insecurity on the part of men and nations which now leads to inter-class and international conflict, but they may still remain in individual lives those destructive and socially divisive forces of sin and selfishness, of jealousy and pride and intolerance which would tend to tear apart any social order.

"The church must therefore continue to serve society by proclaiming Christ's gospel of justice, love and reconciliation, and by insisting that both individuals and economic and political institutions shall conform to the will of the God of justice and love."

LABOR DAY Greetings..

OVER a period of 49 years this organization has had an active part in serving the financial needs of Chattanooga, and thereby helping to make it the outstanding industrial city of the South. We welcome every opportunity to co-operate with Labor and Industry in order that Chattanooga may have the growth and progress it justly deserves. Labor has a great part in this task. It is a pleasure to extend our most appreciative greetings on occasion of this Labor Day.

Convenience in Banking

CONVENIENT banking service is important to business, industry and individuals. To render proper service, THE HAMILTON NATIONAL BANK has for many years maintained five banking offices located in the various business centers of the city.

ax Dollar Goes!

Greetings to Citizens of Organized Labor!

THE PURPOSE of your City Government is to render the best possible municipal service without entailing excessive tax burdens. Lacking in no element of public service and educational provisions, Chattanoogans have paid in less revenue per capita than citizens of Nashville, Memphis, Atlanta and other Southern cities of comparable population—which denotes that the per capita cost of government is correspondingly lower. The illustration above shows how your tax dollar is used.

Efficient and economical government is a fundamental step toward community expansion, and is a vital influence in the future growth of any city. The city so governed is always a favorable location for labor and all trades.

Organized labor has attained a favorable position in this community, and it is vastly to the credit of our union leadership that Chattanooga has had less serious labor troubles than any other city of like magnitude and diversity of manufactures. A fine ground for confidence in the future of Chattanooga is the fact that our leaders of both labor and industry are conservative and reasonable; willing to discuss and iron out differences rather than resorting to extreme measures—which really settle nothing.

And so, on this Labor Day occasion, and on behalf of the hundreds of employes of your City Government, we say that everything is fine and promising and extend cordial greetings to organized labor.

DESIRE TO PRINT GOES BACK TO CAVE-MEN

The Art Today Is a Far Cry from Original Efforts of Our Ancestors

Printing, according to Webster, is: "act, art, practice, or business of one who, or that which, prints; typography." To tell the complete story of printing would require many volumes. From earliest times, man has been influenced by his language, be it oral or transcribed. The oral or written or printed word has made for peace and it has made for war. The story of printing, therefore, would include the story of reformations, of revolutions, of conquest, of progress with a capital "P."

From the study of ancient libraries it is learned that man has desired to print for a mighty long time. The cave man drew pictures on clay walls and stone to transfer his thoughts. The first library to be known as such is the cuneiform collection of writings of the Assyrian king, Asurbanipal. He reigned from 668 to 626 B. C., and his books, written upon clay, formed a true library. There is dispute as to the first Greek libraries, but "library" to the Greeks meant "bookshop." Aristotle had the first important private library; Sulla later took it to Rome.

The largest library of the ancient world was at Alexandria, founded either by Ptolemy I, Soter, or Ptolemy II, Philadelphus. Scholars could study at this or at a second library, smaller, also at Alexandria. In rivalry with the library at Pergamon, the Egyptians "tried to hamper the latter's growth by a rather futile embargo on the exportation of papyrus. Thereupon the people at Pergamon invented the book-material which received its name from their city—parchment." The library at Alexandria was burned in 47 B. C., with a loss of about 700,000 books (these, of course, being rolls or volumes). But ancient folks built other libraries when they felt the urge. Romans copied the Greeks, and by the [illegible] A. D., Rome had 2[illegible] of 2[illegible] each.

Reading was rather difficult in ancient days. People read by the ear, for words were not separated from each other, and there was little punctuation. The old-timers read aloud, this explaining why their reading rooms were huge pillared halls. The Chinese, many centuries ago, had a great deal to do with the beginning of printing, but that is another long story.

As centuries slipped by, type came into being, and what a boon for the printer! The word "type" comes from typus (Latin), "figure, image," and from the Greek meaning of "mark or impression of something; stamp; sign; emblem." (Does the printer of today, however, realize that "Mandate" is a throwback to script?) In the Fifteenth century, Johannes Gutenberg, reputed inventor of printing from movable types, really started something. This German and others became godfathers to the typesetter. Now the printed word "go places."

Benjamin Franklin, American statesman and printer, was born in 1706. Sixteen years before his birth, the first American newspaper had appeared in Boston, his home town. It was a four-page sheet, each sheet about the size of an ordinary letterhead; two columns to a page—and the last page was blank. The Franklins, says the Hon. Augustus E. Geigengack, public printer of the United States today, "had been blacksmiths for 200 years—and we of today know how easily a natural-born blacksmith can become a printer." But after his post, Geigengack goes on to relate, now printers have collaborated with writers and have driven illiteracy into a tight corner. Printers have, as we all know, been fond of travel. Franklin was no exception. He printed in London and Paris as well as at home. And to the end, his favorite description of himself was "Benjamin Franklin, Printer."

Although papers and books grew in volume and in size, and the hand setting boys thrived at their trade, printingdom made its greatest stride forward in the 1880s. On July 3, 1886, in the composing room of the New York Tribune, a man sat down to a strange contraption, constructed of levers, rods and whatnot. Shortly after an alphabetic keyboard was fingered, a line of type emerged. The operation was repeated, with brass matrices making a jingling sound. For 400 years all type had been set by hand. Operation of the Linotype was hailed "as the second greatest event in the history of printing, the first being the invention of movable type," says the Associated Press.

An operator now could compose as many lines as five or six compositors who set type by hand, or at "the case." Printing was speeded up, and cost was lessened. In 1889, asserts the A. P., "the number of persons employed in the graphic arts in the United States was 136,836; in 1930, the number had grown to 327,390. Ottmar Mergenthaler had indeed revolutionized printing, and The Times of Chattanooga was among the first papers to obtain several of his "Baltimore machines" in 1892. Many handmen forsook the "stick" and learned to operate the linotype.

In the meantime, printers, even as the guildsmen of old, had seen the need of organization, not only to increase their wages, but also to better working conditions, to educate and train apprentices, to provide remedial measures for unfortunate fellow-craftsmen, and to seek security and respect for their trade along with participation in civic affairs. Trade unionism was an essential feature in the growth of industry. The printers never lagged as American working men organized for mutual welfare.

The International Typographical Union had its origin in the National Typographical Union of the United States, along with the growth of typographical societies in Canada; the international seal bears the date of 1852, a date earlier than actual merger. Founded in 1795, "The Typographical Society" in New York City, says George F. Middendorf, "was the first known society devoting its energies to trade conditions and wage scales that existed for any appreciable length of time. It succeeded in securing an increase of wages for New York printers to $1 per day." Louisville, Ky, boasted a pioneer society of printers in 1834, along with other American cities early in the last century.

The first trade union in Canada was formed in 1832 by some English-speaking printers in York (now Toronto), says William R. Lucas, of that local. This first Typographical Society of 1832 was later expanded and reorganized under the name of the Toronto Typographical Society, which, in 1866, became affiliated with the National Typographical Union of the United States. In 1870 came the evolvement of the I. T. U.

Fourteen states were represented in the memorable convention at Cincinnati in 1852. Fourteen numbers were drawn by as many cities to determine the first charter members, St. Louis, Louisville, Memphis and Baltimore being the only cities of the South and border states to share such honors.

At the Louisville convention of 1864 (we wonder how many Southerners were there at this period of the Civil war), the proofreaders were recognized as a department to which journeymen printers were graduated. ("Graduates," it is our opinion, were full-fledged voting journeymen; apprentices couldn't vote until they reached 21.) At this date, also, the working card system was adopted. Whereas in early days the Typographical Union recognized pressmen, bookbinders, stereotypers and electrotypers and photo-engravers as different branches of its organizations, later conventions granted separate charters. Today, printers and mailers alone remain under jurisdiction of the I. T. U.—and now the question of independence for mailers has come up. Early in the present century, machinists of the composing rooms took their place alongside printers.

The establishment of an institution for needy and infirm members of the printing craft was proposed as early as 1857, but it was not until 1886 that the plan met with success. In that year, George W. Childs and A. J. Drexel, two Philadelphia capitalists, provided a gift of $10,000, which paved the way for erection of the home at Colorado Springs. This haven for printers took care of an average of 387 members last year, the average cost of maintenance being $807 per member. Cost of the home, additions, improvements and maintenance from its inception to June 21, 1937, totaled $7,885,490.25.

Thoroughly democratic in its organization, the I. T. U. has steadily and sanely forged ahead. As of June 21, 1937, the average paying membership of journeymen was 74,781; record cards of affiliation showed a total membership of 78,489, an increase of 4,178 over 1936. Between 3,000 and 4,000 of this membership are mailers. Average earnings per member have fluctuated with increase and decrease of employment. In 1909, the average member earned, yearly, $897; he tobogganed to $1,594.87 in 1934 after having reached a high of $2,372.36 in 1930. Last year he earned $1,954.80, a result of increased employment.

GOMPERS LED WAY IN FORCING OUTSIDERS TO LEAVE LABOR ALONE

The late Samuel Gompers, who, with the exception of one year, was President of the American Federation of Labor from the time it was organized in 1881 until death claimed him in 1924, always resented any intrusion by outsiders in the affairs of Organized Labor.

He took the position that the organized workers not only should manage their own business, but that they were perfectly capable of doing so without the assistance of what he was pleased to call the intelligentsia, many of whom, though honest in their desire to aid the Labor Movement, had ideas that ran counter to those of President Gompers, who insisted to the day of his death that the organized wage earners must work out their own destiny without interference on the part of anyone who was not identified with the Organized Labor movement in America.

He successfully resisted every effort on the part of non-members to play any part in moulding the policies of the A. F. of L., and despite tremendous pressure from within and without the Labor movement, he was victorious in his fight to maintain the practice that the internal affairs of the Federation shall be determined entirely by Labor men.

It is true that many times he welcomed to gatherings of Labor leaders, economists who were sympathetic to the aims and objects of Organized Labor, but he always had a feeling of suspicion towards those whose theories ran counter to his own. In his autobiography entitled, "Seventy Years of Life and Labor," he says: "The first economic theory that came under my eyes was not calculated to make me think highly of economists."

He rejected the iron law of laws, the immutable law of supply and demand, and so-called "Natural Laws," and took the position that such "laws" had no connection with economic forces. He declared they were not laws, but merely theories which sought to justify existing practices. He sought to break the control of the so-called Captains of Industry over the workers which rested upon strategic economic advantage, and saw no reason why it was not just as practical for employees to mobilize and control their economic power as a counter move to force recognition of human interests by employers who, ignoring the needs of the workers, sought to bring about that control by the wage earners that would serve their own selfish purposes.

Not only did he resist with all the power at his command the attempts of employers to exercise any control over the policies of the Organized Labor movement, as represented by the A. F. of L., but he defeated every effort on the part of those co-called radicals in the Labor movement to commit it to the theories of the various "isms" that sprang up from time to time. He stood firmly for a united Labor movement and, while recognizing the right of minorities in the Labor movement to advocate changes in policies, he always insisted on majority rule, taking the position that, if the majority erred, time would reveal the mistakes, which could, and no doubt, would be corrected in due course.

In view of the foregoing it is safe to assume that were Samuel Gompers alive today he would oppose just as bitterly as does William Green, his successor as president of the American Federation of Labor, and his associates, the activities of John L. Lewis and his misguided followers, who have split asunder the Organized Labor movement of America which Gompers and those early pioneers associated with him laboriously built up during the nearly half century he served as leader of the A. F. of L.

There is no doubt he would brand them as traitors and vigorously condemn the disrupting tactics these recalcitrants have employed in an attempt to wrest control of the A. F. of L. from those chosen by the majority of delegates in attendance at conventions to administer its affairs.

Gompers always insisted that the autonomy granted national and international Trade Unions chartered by the A. F. of L. must be respected, and one of the chief reasons he advocated withdrawal of the Federation from the International Federation of Trade Unions was because the constitution of that organization abrogated the principle of complete autonomy for each national Trade Union federation.

The so-called C. I. O. are not the first group to advocate the One Big Union idea because that, in fact, is what the C. I. O. really is. The Knights of Labor, the American Railway Union, the Western Federation of Labor, which later changed its name to American Labor Union, the Industrial Workers of the World, known as the I. W. W., the One Big Union, all flourished for a time, then withered and died. They are now but a memory and, regardless of the opinion of Messrs. Lewis, the late Charles P. Howard, and Hillman to the contrary, the C. I. O. will meet the same fate.

There is not room on the American continent for two labor movements, both attempting to operate in the same industrial field. One must go, and no sane person will for a moment deceive himself into believing that the A. F. of L., which is so deeply rooted in our American life that it is an integral part of our American institutions, will be supplanted by the C. I. O., or any similar organization.

The A. F. of L. is a democratic organization patterned after the government of the United States, in which the will of the majority must and does prevail. It is built on solid foundations and will continue to function when the C. I. O. will, as Frank Morrison, Secretary of the A. F. of L., predicted in a recent debate with the ill-advised late Charles P. Howard, president of the I. T. U., have passed out of existence to be remembered only as an idea of a few men who were willing to gamble at the expense of the Trade Union movement to establish what they believed, or pretended to believe—a newborn organization, when, as a matter of fact, they have tried to establish a dictatorship of a minority over a majority.

BOOKBINDERS' BROTHEDHOOD HAS FINE 46-YEAR RECORD

First Independent Union Was Organized in Washington, D. C., in 1850, President Haggerty Says; Forty-Hour Week for Entire Book-binding Industry Is Included Among Many Benefits Secured Through Efficient Organization.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—A creditable record of achievement by the International Brotherhood of Bookbinders in benefitting men and women employed in the bookbinding industry was presented in a radio address delivered here by John B. Haggerty, president of the International Brotherhood, on the Labor News Review broadcast over station WJSV of the Columbia Broadcasting System.

Tracing the history of organized bookbinders back to Washington, D. C., in 1850, when a local union was established, President Haggerty said the International Brotherhood of Bookbinders was organized in 1892 and was chartered by the American Federation of Labor in 1898. Since then its progress has been steady throughout its entire jurisdiction, which includes the United States and Canada.

Text of Haggerty's Address

"The opportunity offered to union officials by the 'Labor News Review' to come here and tell their own story in their own way to a vast radio audience is a worthy public service that is contributing to better understanding and mutual progress.

"The International Brotherhood of Bookbinders, which I have the honor to represent as president, is justly proud of its history, of its accomplishments today.

Eary History Traced

"The Brotherhood was organized May 5, 1892, at Philadelphia. However, bookbinders were organized in Knights of Labor Assemblies during the earliest days of that organization, and an independent union of bookbinders, now a part of our Brotherhood, was formed in Washington, D. C., in 1850.

"When the International Typographical Union was formed in 1852, some bookbinders became a part of the I. T. U. which at the beginning embraced the entire printing industry. Bookbinders were the second of the craft divisions within the I. T. U. following the pressmen. Two years after the organization of our International Brotherhood, in 1892, the I. T. U. formally recognized our union and promptly released its comparatively few bookbinders to the Brotherhood.

"The International Brotherhood of Tip Printers, which had been organized in 1902, became a part of our Brotherhood, Dec. 31, 1918.

"The International Brotherhood of Bookbinders was chartered by the American Federation of Labor March 24, 1898, and it has been a part of our mission to co-operate fully with the Federation and with all allied trades in the printing industry, from the very beginning.

Objects of Brotherhood

"Among the stated objects of our Brotherhood are: "To attain a uniform scale of wages, hours of labor, apprenticeship laws for the government of the trade; the abolition of unjust, inhuman and degrading contract systems, the insidious task and bonus systems; to secure to the men and women of our craft the full enjoyment and compensation of the wealth they create; to agree to arbitrate all differences existing between the employer and employee and to promote such laws as will have a tendency to create harmony between employer and employee and the advancement of the bookbinding industry.'

"Our territorial jurisdiction includes the United States, its possessions and the Dominion of Canada.

Initiative and Referendum Used

"General legislation is enacted at our conventions. However, legislation may also be by initiative and referendum and constitutional amendments adopted by convention must be submitted to referendum. Officers are nominated by local unions and elected by referendum vote of the membership. Local unions are autonomous within the limits of our International Constitution.

"The Brotherhood admits both men and women and our constitution specifically provides that our third and fifth vice presidents shall be women.

"It should therefore be clear to all that we have a very democratic Brotherhood, in which the will of the general membership is the ruling force.

Many Achievements Listed

"The International Brotherhood of Bookbinders, now nearing a half century of service, despite occasional unfortunate circumstances, has made constant, consistent, practical progress. Wages and working conditions have been improved and the 40-hour work week now prevails throughout practically all of the industry.

"The long and honorable record of the Brotherhood has finally become appreciated throughout the industry, with the result that our membership has nearly doubled during the past year. We face the future with a thoroughly justifiable confidence.

Functions of Allied Printing Trades Association

"You have been told that I have also been honored by election as Chairman of the Board of Governors of the International Allied Printing Trades Association of North America. The Association comprises the International Typographical Union, the International Printing Pressmen and Assistants' Union, the International Stereotypers and Electrotypers' Union, the International Photo-Engravers' Union and the International Brotherhood of Bookbinders. This Association has local Allied Printing Trades Councils throughout the North American Continent. It has for its purpose the fostering and publicizing of the Allied Printing Trades Union Label, and such other service as the Association may properly render.

Copyright Convention Opposed

"Occasionally, the Association finds it advisable to participate in legislative matters, for the protection of the printing industry and for the welfare of our great nation. Currently, this is true with respect to the proposed International Copyright Convention, Executive Report No. 4, now pending in the Senate of the United States. A brief, which we prepared and submitted, February 11, 1938, in support of a request for recommital and reconsideration of the proposed International Copyright Convention, reveals clearly its insidious destructive features.

"For example, the present Copyright Law, which extends to the printing trades workers some protection in requiring manufacture within the United States of certain copyrighted works, would be nullified by ratification of the proposed treaty. We are, of course, supporting employers in the printing industry, as well as employees. Also, in this instance as always, the Association firmly believes it is serving the best interests of all the people of our beloved country."

Get into the habit of looking for the silver lining of the cloud, and when you have found it, continue to look at it rather than at the leaden gray in the middle. It will help you over many hated places. —A. A. W.

LABOR SUNDAY MESSAGE 1938

(Issued by the Executive Committee of the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America, through its Department of the Church and Social Service)

Requested to be read in the churches on Labor Sunday, Sept. 4, 1938, or on the first available Sunday thereafter

The recent World Conference of Churches at Oxford described our day as "a time when mankind is oppressed with perplexity and fear. Men are burdened with evils almost insupportable and with problems apparently insoluble. Even in countries which are at peace, unemployment and malnutrition sap men's strength of body, mind, and spirit. In other countries war does its 'devil's work,' and threatens to overwhelm us all in its limitless catastrophe."

It is heartening in such a day that the Church is affirming the Word of God with new definiteness and courage, and that throughout the churches an increasing concern is felt about the problems of the social order, such as unemployment, the distribution of income, social security, the rights of labor, consumers' cooperation, and the relations of races and nations. It is heartening, too, that the churches are renewing their declarations that no human authority, not even the State, has a right to dictate to the conscience, since all authority is from God and the State also "stands under His judgment."

The Duty of Christians.

It is the duty of Christians not only to bear witness to their faith within the existing economic order, but also, as the Oxford conference declared, "to test all economic institutions in the light of their understanding of God's will" and contribute to "the transformation, if necessary, the thorough reconstruction of the present economic and political system."

In pursuing these ends, Christian men and women in the same occupations should meet together for prayerful discussion as to how in their particular sphere of life the problems which arise can be dealt with in accordance with the mind of Christ. In their membership in political parties, employers' associations, trade unions, farmers' organizations, consumers' co-operatives and other similar groups, Christians have an opportunity to make their influence felt in practical activities.

As citizens we should reaffirm our faith in democracy. For democracy alone guarantees the liberty of the human spirit and, by placing responsibility on the individual, promotes character and develops human personality. In the realm of industrial relations, the basic idea of democracy finds expression in the organization of labor for collective dealing with employers. For employers of the great mass of industrial workers today are no longer individuals, as were the employers of a century ago, but large companies or corporations. In such circumstances there can be no genuine negotiation unless it be collective negotiation; no genuinely free contract unless it be a collective contract. Labor, therefore, must be organized as a necessary factor in the extension of democratic processes in American life. The responsible heads of some of our greater industries, who have entered into collective bargaining relations with their employes, have exhibited industrial statesmanship. On the other hand, it is regrettable that some have used the misdeeds of labor organizations as an excuse for obscuring the major issue of democratic industrial relations. Labor, like the employer, must accept the obligations that go with the democratic process, taking care that the affairs of its own organizations are democratically and responsibly conducted.

During industrial conflict, unethical and unjustifiable methods on the part of all parties too frequently prevail. In the public interest as well as their own, labor and employers should discontinue resorting to violence, racketeering, autocratic methods, internal dissension, refusal to participate in genuine collective bargaining, breaking of contracts, the use of industrial spies, and misleading propaganda. Organization and legislation alone will avail little if the right spirit be absent. The church as a fellowship of the spirit dare never forget or cease to emphasize this fact.

Religion and Civil Liberties.

Liberty is one and indivisible. We cannot have freedom in one sphere and deny it in another. In the world today the right of labor to have a voice in determining the conditions of its work, and the right of the church to have a voice in determining the conditions of its worship, stand or fall together. Under dictatorships, whether of the right or of the left, it is not alone the freedom of labor to organize independently of the employer and of the state which has been denied, but also free speech, free press, freedom of assemblage, and freedom of worship.

Concerned as we are for democracy, we must also be concerned for peace. For war is the enemy of democracy. If war should come, we would stand to lose in life and liberties all our hard-won gains. We must therefore unite in opposing increased armaments, conscription and industrial mobilization; in supporting all measures for removing basic economic causes of war; and in building a co-operative world-order.

Ominous as is the condition of the world, we would conclude this message in the words of the Oxford World Conference of Churches: "We are troubled yet we do not despair. Our hope is anchored in the living God. . . In His Name we set our hands, as the servants of God and in Him of one another, to the task of proclaiming God's message of redemption, of living as His Children, and of combating injustice, cruelty and hate."

A Prayer for Labor

O God, Thou art Thyself the Master Workman, skilled Creator. Hast Thou not also revealed Thyself to us in Jesus the carpenter, whose roughened hands bear eternal testimony to the dignity of toil?

We sense Thy presence in the labor movement, in the upward surge of the masses, who with the awakened self-respect of children of God, have through the centuries cast off the shackles of slavery and serfdom, and stand now gazing toward the dawn of a greater freedom.

We praise Thee for those brave spirits who have led the way; who have dared to risk even their children's bread in organized endeavor to improve the lot of all; who for their unselfish devotion have been condemned as outcasts of society; suffered contumely; endured prison; sacrificed their lives as martyrs to the cause.

Help Thou the labor movement of our day to be worthy of its heritage. Unite in high purpose the workers in the factory and on the farm. Preserve them from temptation to selfish complacency in partial gains for any favored craft or race or nation. Guard their leaders from lust for personal power. Guide them in the service of the common good.

Help the workers of all lands to stand shoulder to shoulder for justice and peace among the nations. Save them from contamination with the sin of selfish nationalism. Keep them from supporting national armaments under the false illusion of providing work or special privilege for themselves, while they betray the workers of the world for a mess of pottage.

Grant to labor the wisdom to seek a world of peace and plenty by means of organization and the ballot, keeping their movement free from hate and violence, building into the co-operative commonwealth those spiritual values which alone can make it endure.

Bring, at last, all workers by hand or brain into world-wide brotherhood; into closer fellowship with Thee, O God, the Father of us all.

In the name of Jesus Christ, our Lord, Amen.

BOTTLED DRINKS

are SANITARY and SAFE

THERE is no guesswork when you buy products sealed in glass bottles! For purity and cleanliness there is nothing that exceeds the efficiency of inorganic GLASS . . . The most delicious and valuable wines in the world today were sealed in GLASS BOTTLES hundreds of years ago. . . . And in all these years the fluid in those bottles has been completely isolated and cut off from the outer world by a thin and yet sufficient wall of glass! And now, when this aged wine is served, it is served in that same bottle; not merely because of the intrinsic value its antique appearance affords, but because of the convenience of putting ice around the bottles and chilling the contents without the danger of diluting.

So it is with our modern beverages: there is no need for one to drink a beverage that is weakened by melting ice—drinks in glass bottles can be served ice-cold without the liquid touching the ice.

UNION GBBA MADE

FIRST ORGANIZER FOR ELECTRICAL WORKERS WAS A 'REAL' MISSIONARY

Union Organization, With Four Decades of Service Behind It Looks to Future With Confidence Early Pioneers Made Rich History for Flourishing Organization.

By G. M. BUGNIAZET

Secretary, International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers.

The International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, the dominant union organization in the electrical field, faces the future with assurance.

It has co-operated with the federal government in the development of Norris dam, Boulder dam and Grand Coulee. It has recently made great strides in the radio manufacturing field, maritime seagoing eletrical field, and it is foremost in electrical construction and electrical transportation. It is leading in radio broadcasting and has a foothold in that great anti-union corporation, the Bell interests.

The development of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers has followed closely the changes in the electrical industry wrought by the advance in electrical science. The brotherhood is forty-six years old. In its nearly half a century of life, it has perfected organization and carried the philosophy of labor into every section of a fast-growing intricate industry. It has set its mark on every section of that industry and is a recognized factor in it. Its leadership is more secure today than at any time in the history of the union.

Losses Are Recovered.

Despite the disastrous depression, it has emerged from the misfortunes of the past six years not only a going concern, but as a vital, closeknit entity. Progress has been made all along the line. Losses in membership, due to the depression, have been recovered.

The secret of this progress has been the management policies of the union, successfully pursued over many years. Leadership has come out of the practical ranks. Contact with management, in many of the branches of the industry has been close and in branches of the organization the union has participated in management problems. The international office is a modern office.

Trained persons with veterans' experience handle each problem that concerns the organization. Only in such wise could a complex organization like the International Brotherhoodof Electrical Workers be operated. The electrical industry is not a primitive industry. It is probably the most advanced industry in the United States and the success of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers is an indication of sound management policies and practices.

The International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers has operated as an arm of the American Federation of Labor. It has jurisdiction over: electrical construction, electric power and light, marine, water power, electrical transportation, including aviation, electrical manufacturing, including radio broadcasting, and telephone.

Kept Jogging Along.

The experiments of Franklin and his followers gave rise to a pool of information about the queer "electrical fluid" which was destined to kindle the imagination of other men growing up in the new country.

In 1890 a "great electrical fair" was held at St. Louis. What quaint contrivances were displayed there we do not know; but the occasion led to the assemblage of a large number of electricians to install the wiring. For the first time, perhaps, these men realized that their craft was becoming an important one, which deserved recognition. With the help of Charles Cassel, an A. F. of L. organizer, they were chartered as Wiremen's and Linemen's Union No. 5221.

Henry Miller, first president of the local, a man of courage and resourcefulness, believed that a national organization of electrical workers was necessary. There were no funds to extend organization. Kit of tools on his back, Miller traveled from city to city, working and spreading the gospel. He organized locals in Evansville, Louisville, Indianapolis, Chicago and Milwaukee. Others took example of him, and locals were established at New Orleans, Toledo, Pittsburgh, Cincinnati and Duluth.

One year later, in St. Louis, Nov. 21, 1891, the first national convention of electrical workers was called, and the National Brotherhood of Electrical Workers was born. There were only ten delegates, representing less than 500 members. Henry Miller was selected as the first national president and St. Louis Local No. 1. (Not till 1899 when Canadian locals were organized did the brotherhood become international.) No money was available for salaries of officers, or traveling expenses; President Miller, undismayed, packed up his tools and set out on another tour. In 1882 he reported the organization of forty-five locals; the following year he increased the number to sixty-five.

Though panics and depressions took their toll at times, the membership generally kept jogging along upward as the use of electricity increased and appreciation of the union by electrical craftsmen mounted.

Which to single out as the most expansive a decade of the union's life is not easy. The first ten years meant the slow fulfillment of an idea and an ideal. There was little encouragement, little money, and universal indifference or hatred of organized labor.

The fourth decade has been the most constructive, the one productive of the greatest increase in membership, and most gains in power and influence. Insurance benefits were put on a sound basis, a pension plan set up. A national research department was founded in 1925. Educational activities have been extended. The scope of membership has been broadened to include the spreading branches of the electrical craft. Union management policies have progressed.

Young in years, and in its energy, gameness and vitality, the union has matured in experience. It has become a constructive institution, capable of giving and receiving blows, but desirous, above all, of making a lasting contribution to the electrical industry.

LABOR DAY 1938

By FRANK MORRISON

Secretary-Treasurer, American Federation of Labor.

The CIO has failed in its purpose to rule or ruin within the American Federation of Labor. Since the suspension of the ten national and international organizations for refusal to withdraw from the CIO, the 102 national and international and local trade and federal labor unions affiliated with the American Federation of Labor have gained over 1,130,000 dues paying members.

Leaders of the CIO provide several outstanding figures in the American labor movement. It is not surprising that they attack the American Federation of Labor attracted widespread attention and became the uppermost topic of public discussion. The leaders of the secession movement have had their orgy of publicity. By way of competition our federation had little to offer in the way of sensationalism.

One valuable lesson to be learned from membership and leadership in the labor movement is that a labor union must have within itself the elements that will make it durable. Pyrotechnics play no part in the progress of a labor union. Permanent accomplishments require qualities in men and women that impel them to remain steadfast through a monotonous routine which builds up stamina and discipline necessary to establish a responsible union. This is the type of membership that has made the American Federation of Labor the spearhead of the labor movement of this country; that made powerful corporations so apprehensive of its power to attract the membership of their employes that they surrounded the enforcement of restrictive labor policies with impressive legal talent and professional spy operations. The leaders of the CIO may express contempt for the American Federation of Labor and its leaders, but not so the great corporations and firms that held a stranglehold over the communities within which they operated.

Of recent memory are the brutalities of the coal and iron police in the steel and mining communities carrying on their activities with the legal blessing of the injunction judge, while political authorities either openly connived or passively stood by. It is a long way from the medieval theory of labor and the application to individual workers of the right to join a union of their own choosing to improve conditions of labor. This way has been traversed by the American Federation of Labor within the period of its existence. All through the years the American Federation of Labor has directed its efforts to secure the enactment of specific legislative regulations to prohibit unfair practices against workers in industry; the records of the United States congress, state legislatures, county and city governments, give ample testimony of [illegible]

The Norris-LaGuardia injunction law and the national labor relations act, both enacted in 1935, are the latest achievements to testify to the progress of the American Federation of Labor. Both of these measures, now federal statutes of the United States, impose upon law-making and law-enforcing bodies the duty to recognize and enforce the principle of the right of workers in industry to join unions of their own choosing. The administration of the national labor relations act is unsatisfactory. The American Federation of Labor sponsored this legislation not to force workers into a particular union or any union, but to permit them to exercise freely the right to join a union of their own choosing. The American Federation of Labor will continue its campaign with respect to the operation of this law until its administration conforms to the principles of freedom which should be applied under our form of government.

John D. Rockefeller comes back from Europe to report that none of the common people want war. It needs no tourist o'er the deep, St. John, to tell us that. But what the common people to say about it [illegible]

Almshouse Report Published By U.T.

The survey report on county almshouses in Tennessee, made recently by the University of Tennessee bureau of research, appears in the current issue of the "U. T. Record," published by the U. T. division of extension. The report is available on request without charge.

Conducted by Dr. M. E. Cole, U. T. sociologist, the survey was made to determine present conditions in the almshouses and the effect of the new social security act on the almshouses. It was made in co-operation with the state department of institutions and public welfare.

Dr. Cole concluded after the survey that the new act would not close all almshouses in the state, though the number of inmates eligible for the new relief money will materially reduce the almshouse population. He brought out that five counties have already been able to close their almshouses, and recommended that all others with about fifteen inmates or less be closed. The indigent in the smaller homes could be cared for differently, he said.

Conditions in the various almshouses rate from "excellent" to "deplorable," said Dr. Cole, listing among the unfavorable conditions: non-segregation of sexes, non-segregation of diseased, keeping insane persons in almshouses, insanitary and unhealthy conditions, overcrowded nd inadequate buildings, and inadequate medical facilities.

Home at Lakeland Is Security for Aging Members Against Want and Deprivation » Union Dates History Back to Colonial Days » Furnished Quarters for Nucleus of Constitution

The first carpenter was probably a primitive man, who tired of living in a damp cave built a hut of the bark and limbs of trees. Today the massive buildings all over the world are monuments to their skill.

The pages of history are filled with the deeds of men who were recruited from this profession. Great statesmen, writers, soldiers, preachers and other leaders in the affairs of the world were once carpenters—Christ was a member of this class.

Carpenter unions of the United States have provided a home in Lakeland, Fla., for members of the organization who are unable to work. Requirements for entrance in the home are that the carpenter shall have been a member of a union for 30 years and at least 65 years of age.

Here in a warm climate and among beautiful surroundings, these old workmen who have toiled many years, find a haven of rest. Their days of building are finished, but the national organization, of which the local union is affiliated, sees that their last days will not be spent in want.

The home is a group of Spanish buildings, centering about 1800 acres of land on beautiful Lake Gibson. The grounds are landscaped with palms and flowers of many kinds and have facilities for golf, bowling, roque, croquet, shuffleboard, horse-shoe, pool, billiards.

There is boating on the lake, as well as swimming and fishing. Indoors, in the auditorium, picture shows and organ recitals are held weekly. Everything for the amusement and comfort is arranged.

Accommodates 400

The buildings are modern and have every convenience. An up-to-date hospital, with a registered nurse and daily visits from a physician, is located on the grounds, to keep the residents in health.

About 900 acres of the land is covered with citrus groves, which provides fruit for the home and a partial income for its maintenance. Otherwise the institution is entirely supported by the union, and operated with no charge at all to the members who live there.

The Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America, which has established this fine institution, is the oldest labor union in the country. It was established in Philadelphia in 1724, called then the "Carpenters' Company of Philadelphia."

The duty of the first union was to establish uniform prices and wages. At that time there was no question of working hours. The rising and setting sun regulated that, and measured the work day. But the prices and wages were already being fixed by the government, not the minimum, but the maximum. For instance, one of the laws declared that any workman who demanded more or any employer who paid more, than 30 shillings a day, about forty cents, for carpenter's work or bricklaying, should be punishable by the courts.

When the people of this country were forced to throw off the yoke of British oppression, delegates were chosen by American colonists to assemble in convention in Philadelphia and adopt such measures as would induce England to recognize the rights of the American people.

When the delegates arrived they were escorted to the city tavern. It was the general impression that the convention would assemble in the legislative hall of the state capitol. However, this was denied them and when it became known, it caused much resentment. It was in this emergency that the Carpenters Company unanimously placed the use of the Carpenter's Hall, at the disposal of the delegates. On Sept. 5, 1774, the first meeting of the Continental Congress assembled in the hall and commenced deliberations that resulted in declaring the colonies "Free and Independent."

During the course of the war British troops took possession of Philadelphia and were quartered in the hall. The convention appointed by congress to draft a constitution for the United States of America met in the Carpenter's Hall.

Wherever there's progress you'll find me,
Without me the world could not live,
And yet you would seek to destroy me,
With the meager pittance you give.

Today you may grind me as my better,
You may dictate to me from the throne
But tomorrow I throw off my fetters,

I am master of field and factory,
I am many while you are but few,
No longer I'll bow in submission,
I am LABOR and ask for my due.

GOMPERS VISIONED LABOR DAY DEVOTED TO TOILERS' CAUSE

"It Was Not Given to, But Conquered by Labor, and Established as a Holiday Before Any Legislature, State or National, Enacted It Into Law," Declared First President of A. F. of L.

EDITOR'S NOTE: The late Samuel Gompers was president of the American Federation of Labor in 1891 when Congress enacted the law making Labor Day a legal holiday. An editorial in the American Federationist for September, 1898, Mr. Gompers proposed the keeping sacred of Labor Day as a special holiday for the workers. The editorial reads:

LABOR DAY—WHAT IT PORTENDS

BY SAMUEL GOMPERS

No day in the calendar is a greater fixture, one which is more truly regarded as a real holiday, or one which is so surely destined to endure for all time, than the first Monday in September of each succeeding year, Labor Day. With the coming of the year's parting summer hold in the respect and confidence of the people.

It is regarded as the day for which workers of past centuries looked forward, when their rights and their wrongs might be discussed, based upon a higher plane of thought and feeling; that the workers of our day may not only lay down their tools of labor for a holiday, but upon which they may form themselves in marching parades and feel the stronger for it; meet at their parks, groves and grounds, and by appropriate speech, coupled with, and pledge to, each other that the coming year shall witness greater effort than the preceding in the grand struggle to raise mankind free, true and pure.

Workers' Struggle Against Tyranny

Labor Day differs in every essential from the other holidays of the year of any country. All other holidays are in a more or less degree connected with conflicts and battles of man's prowess over man, of race and hatred for greed or power or glories achieved by one nation over another.

Labor Day, on the other hand, marks a new epoch in the annals of human history. It is at once a manifestation of sympathy for the struggles of the masses against tyranny and oppression from time immemorial; it imparts to battle for the right in our day for the men, women and children of our land new hope and encouragement for the attainment of the aspirations for the future of the human family. It is devoted to no man, living or dead; to no sect, race, or nation. It is founded upon the highest principles of humanity, as its bread in its scope as the universe. It was not given to, but conquered by labor, and established as a holiday before any legislature, State or National, enacted it into law.

Organization Necessary To Free Labor

The marching toilers in the Labor Day demonstrations signalize no martial glory, brutal domination, conquests or war-like pomp. They are, in their essence, the manifestations of the growing intelligence of the workers who recognize that peace is as essential to successful industry and real progress as air is to lung-breathing animals; that justice to the toilers has too long been denied; that in the midst of the civilization at the close of the Nineteenth century, wrongs too gross, widespread, and well known to require mention here, still abound; that if man is to be free in the time to come, "eternal vigilance" must be exercised, organization of the workers proclaimed, maintained and extended; education of the educated as well as of the masses, be furthered and nurtured; and agitation of labor's wrongs endured and rights denied, undertaken, with all the zest and energy begotten by devotion to a cause which is at once holy, noble, pure, lofty, just, wise and humane.

Consecrated to the Toilers' Cause

All through history, holiday observances and feasts have abounded; but it was reserved for our time and for the workers of our country to first proclaim and observe a day devoted to the toilers, the toilers' cause, the cause of justice—this day of days, consecrated by the sufferings borne, the battles fought, the aspirations, often inarticulate yearnings, of the masses for their final emancipation, the triumphant enthronment of absolute justice, and the effacement of the brutal, unnatural causes of "man's inhumanity to man which makes countless numbers mourn."

To make our lives and environments of today more in harmony with the wonderful achievements of modern industry, to participate in the results—rewards of the beautiful peace and our bountiful labor, no less than in receiving deserved renown for our services and sacrifices in a just war, we must organize more thoroughly, more compactly, than ever.

"Workers, You Can Be Free!"

The trade unions, scoffed, denounced, ridiculed in turn, and antagonized as no other organization on earth, are now being argued with, their merits, as the wage earners' defenders, protectors, and advance guard for a juster reward for the wealth producers are more widely discussed and generally conceded.

Labor Day is now the general tribute of our entire people to the victories won, the vantage ground gained, by organized labor and the hope entertained that that happier, truer life among men may soon be ushered in—that day of which poets have sung, philosophers dreamed, and workers struggled for ages.

Workers, you can be free! You can not only proclaim, but establish, justice, freedom, and "good-will toward all mankind," if you will but organize, be true to yourselves and to each other.

Not Very Falttering

In an Irish court an old man was called to the witness box. He was nearly blind and mistook the steps that led into the witness box; instead, he mounted those that led up to the bench.

The judge smiled at the mistake and asked him jocularly: "Is it a judge you want to be, my good man?"

"Ah, faith, thin, your honor," was the reply, "I am an ould man now, and maybe it is all I'm fit for."

WIVES OF STEEL STRIKERS DESCRIBE GAS ATTACK BY CITY POLICE

The [illegible] of the strike in "Little Steel" last summer will say that the strike was broken by systematic brutality and occasional [illegible] longer in doubt. The La Follette Civil Liberties Committee investigations of the past few days have established the facts beyond question.

Two Youngstown, O., steel workers' wives, whose English halted and stumbled, but whose minds were clear, told how the city police used gas to drive them from the picket line. They were sitting in folding chairs.

[illegible] my eyes and go home to find children. I could not go back. I go [illegible] crying all.

Woman's Story Confirmed.

[illegible] still more halting, but confirmed that of Mrs. Krin. And out of this gassing of women came the "riot" in which two men were killed.

Robert Burke, Steel Workers Organizing Committee organizer, arriving a few minutes after the trouble started, pleaded with the police to stop firing tear gas, and let him persuade the crowd to disperse.

He got the crowd to go behind a building where they were partly sheltered from the gas, and tried to persuade them to go home. A shout for help came from the place they had left, the crowd [illegible] the street, and the police turned on their gas barrage."

"It was a real barrage," said [illegible] 200 [illegible] been fired. [illegible] off the streets. Busses were stopped and some shells hit automobiles. Over [illegible] I could hear [illegible] into murder."

No Police Wounded.

He heard that two men had been shot, and called union headquarters to ask the sheriff to stop the shooting. Police insisted that the strikers began firing. No police were wounded; while one striker and one spectator were killed, both by shots which obviously came from the Republic Steel Corporation buildings. The worst the police had to meet were stones thrown after they started gassing women; though Capt. Charles Richmond of the Youngstown police professed to be greatly shocked by the names he was called after the gassing had begun.

Henry A. Hoppe, attorney and chairman of a Businessmen's Law and Order Committee, testified that $40,000 was raised among Trumbull County manufacturers [illegible] of special police [illegible].

A Sermon

The preacher was giving the congregation a heated sermon on drinking.

"If I had every drop of liquor in the city I'd dump it in the river."

After a long time he concluded:

"If I had every drop of liquor in the country I'd dump it in the river."

He then requested a hymn.

IN THE NEWS
THOMAS C. BLAISDELL

Thomas C. Blaisdell, 43 years old as an individual and only a little over a month old as a member of the Securities and Exchange [illegible] but is going to get more so as [illegible]. With an experience which ranges from teaching in colleges in India and China to being executive director of the consumer's division of the NRA, Mr. Blaisdell, by virtue of his position, as well as of his natural bent, is taking an important part in the monopoly investigation.

Mr. Blaisdell's faith in the common folks of the world may have bounds, but they haven't been found yet. "I never had better students in Columbia university than I had in India and China," he said recently; and before that, he declared that the common people of any country could understand any public question if it were put up to them in the right way.

His work on the NRA, his studies in writing a history of the federal trade commission, and many other experiences and qualities should make him one of the uncommonly valuable men in the monopoly investigation.

Personally, he is about 5 feet 9, still showing a youthful leanness. He is fair-skinned, blue-eyed, with hair which his Chinese pupils must have considered red, for that color shows through the overlying brown. His eyebrows are much thicker than those of most men so light in coloring; and he has an oddly gentle voice.

The labels at present are used on butcher saws, mechanic's tools, barber and beauty shop equipment, mechanical saving banks, shoe-makers' cutlery and metal novelties, as well as on various types of machinery. The label is registered in the United States and Canada.

Washington.—Government employe unions associated in the American Federation of Labor Government Employes' council are preparing for their conventions or board meetings, most of which will be held prior to the convention of the American Federation of Labor in Houston, Tex., and will develop programs for the improvement of conditions in the government service in order that the indorsement of the federation may be obtained for them.

Although these programs will cover many items, since the individual unions have many problems more or less peculiar to themselves, one objective important to all of them is that of extending and strengthening the merit system, to insure the highest type of government employes for the benefit of the government and the taxpayers, and to increase the opportunities of those already in the service to make a career in their work.

The executive orders of President Roosevelt, issued on June 24, brought in many thousands of government employes, but a much greater number hold positions set up under statutes which cannot be affected by executive orders. Representative Ramspeck, chairman of the house civil service committee, is expected, early in the next session, to introduce a bill which will have for its purpose the extension of civil service throughout the government employ, and which will bring into the scope of the civil service practically all the positions now exempt.

A similar bill, introduced at the last session of congress, had the support of the American Federation of Labor, but it made no progress because many of its aims were incorporated in the government reorganization bill. The reorganization bill had certain other features which the government employe unions affiliated with the federation considered detrimental to the interests of the employes, and consequently the federation opposed it.

The government employe unions found the support of the federation invaluable, and the importance of the federation's influence was recently referred to by President Harry B. Mitchell, of the civil service commission, when he spoke before the District of Columbit department of the American Federation of Government Employes to urge their support for Mr. Ramspeck's proposed bill to extend the merit system.

LAST MESSAGE OF
TO AMERICAN LABOR

"SO LONG as we have held fast to voluntary principles and have been actuated and inspired by the spirit of SERVICE, we have sustained our forward progress and we have made our labor movement something to be respected and accorded a place in the councils of our republic. Where we have blundered into trying to force a policy or decision, even though wise and right, we have impeded, if not forfeited, the realization of our aims.

"As the only delegate to your first convention who has stayed with the problems through to the hour of this message, as one who with clean hands and singleness of purpose has tried to serve the labor movement honestly, and in a spirit of consecration to the cause of humanity, I want to urge devotion to the fundamentals of HUMAN LIBERTY —the principles of voluntarism.

"No lasting gain has ever come from compulsion. If we seek to force, we but tear apart that which is otherwise invincible. There is no way whereby our labor movement may be assured sustained progress in determining its policies and plans other than by sincere deliberation until a unanimous decision is reached.

"This may seem a cumbersome, slow method to the impatient, but the impatient are more concerned with immediate triumph than for constructive, permanent development.

"Understanding, patience, high-minded service—the compelling power of voluntarism—have in America made what was but a rope of sand into a united, purposeful, integrated organization, potent for human welfare—material and spiritual. I have been with this movement since the beginning. I have been given a privilege for service that has been accorded to but few. Nor would that privilege have continued open to me had not service to the cause been my guiding purpose.

"Events in recent months have made me keenly aware that the time is not far distant when I must lay down my trust for others to carry forward.

"When one comes to close grips with things eternal, there comes a new sense of relative values, and less worthy things lose significance.

"As I review the events during my 60 years contact with the labor movement, and as I survey the problems of today and study the opportunities of the future, I want to say to you, men and women of the American labor movement:

"Do not reject the cornerstone upon which labor's structure has been builded—but base your all upon voluntary principles, and illumine your every problem by consecrated devotion to that highest of all purposes—HUMAN WELL BEING in the fullest, widest and deepest sense."

"GOD BLESS OUR AMERICAN INSTITUTIONS"

We are ALL WORKERS—in the American Sense

WITH almost his last breath Samuel Gompers, the greatest of all labor leaders, whose work will live when flitting sensationalism of others is forgotten, asked God's blessing upon "OUR AMERICAN INSTITUTIONS"—meaning our liberties, the voluntarism of our adherence to sound and just business and social practices that have made us the greatest and richest nation on earth. Gompers was FIRST an American—and that is something for us to remember in these days. . . . . The management of RHODES-JONES have always been believers in the right of good workmen to organize and to bargain collectively for better conditions of work and pay, because Gompers sold us the right of it. . . . . Too, we have always felt a keen obligation of service in the broader sense. So we have searched the markets for greater values, we have devised more favorable terms for credit purchase, better and better store systems and facilities, such as the improvement we have just completed—all to enable our people to make the most of their earnings, whatever they may be, in securing more comfortable and attractive home surroundings, better living standards. Therefore, we welcome this Labor Day occasion for the rededication of this store to the greater service of our people.

1938 Labor Day Sees Three Strike Fronts Locally

TEPCO SPURNS PEACE PARLEY TRIES

Propaganda Efforts Remindful of Wartime Tales of Atrocity to Beguile Public's Sympathy

Strike situation in the Tennessee Electric Power company entered into the eleventh day yesterday with the company continuing to refuse to discuss peace with anyone.

New development Tuesday was the reported seizure of four linemen by the sheriff at Linden, Tenn., without a warrant or any charge against the quartet being made. These four men were said to have been taken to Nashville by Nashville detectives, still without warrants or charges, and put through a "third degree," it is report .

Late last Wednesday evening these four men had not been located, although Nashville authorities said that they had left Nashville at 2:30 p.m. in custody of the detectives for Linden.

It was said at Nashville that the men had signed a "confession."

The strike was called by the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers after more than three months unsuccessful effort by the union to secure a conference with the company to discuss an agreement for the members of the union. The union has 500 or more members.

The company claims that transmission towers have been dynamited all over the state, and is offering a reward of $500 for apprehension of parties responsible.

It is also reported that approximately 400 armed men have been employed by the company.

The union has asked the company to agree to a conference with the governor of the state, the mayors of Nashville and Chattanooga and another mayor sitting in. The company has refused to consider any effort to secure peace.

The union is only asking for an agreement for its membership, and is not asking for sole bargaining rights for the system.

The company, in face of a national labor relations board hearing, some months ago signed an agreement with the CIO for a small group of employes at the Hales Bar plant, numbering about 65 members. The company now refuses to discuss an agreement with the IBEW with 500 or more members.

O. A. Walker, representative of the IBEW, has received several telephoned threats to "blow you out" of his hotel room at the Patten.

In spite of armed guards, threats and blunt refused to consider peace, the striking lineman have held firm, and last Tuesday the local substations saw the union members and non-union members walk out on call from the IBEW. Service of the company has dwindled to practically nothing.

During the week a storm tore down the lines at the Chattanooga airport, and several striking linemen went to the airport to assist in repairing the lines so that incoming planes would not be endangered in landing.

Operating Engineers In Splendid Shape

Operating Engineers, Local 917, had an unusually interesting meeting Saturday night, with a large number of members attending.

Mr. Fred Schlemmer, construction superintendent at the Chickamauga dam, was the guest speaker and gave an interesting talk on "Safety." He stressed the importance of the workers taking every precaution to insure their safety while on the job and congratulated Local 917 on the record they had made at the dam.

This local union has recently undergone reorganization.

Fred Wilkerson, vice-president.

Fred Limming, financial secretary.

Joe Rogers, recording secretary.

J. O. Rice, treasurer.

R. T. Lusk, conductor.

P. T. Fitzpatrick, guard.

Local 917 is making great strides under the new set-up and has gotten its financial affairs in splendid condition, settling up all back bills and building up its treasury.

Bob Cooke Is "Grampaw" Again

Mr. and Mrs. Harry J. Cooke are the parents of a fine son, who will probably be named for his daddy. The baby was born Wednesday night and both the mother and baby are doing fine.

"Harry" is a member of the Mailers' union and helps mail out The Labor World every week.

The new baby is extremely fortunate, too, in that he has Commissioner Bob and Mrs. Cooke for his grandparents.

Frey Is Slated As Main Speaker For Labor Day

John P. Frey, president of the Metal Trades department of the American Federation of Labor, and a member of the executive council of the American Federation of Labor, will be the main speaker at Warner park Labor day.

Mr. Frey was selected by President William Green to come to Chattanooga. He will speak at 5 p.m.

"Sit-Down" Strikers Still Holding Firm

Taxicab operators who have been waging a "sit-down" strike against the city commission and the citizens of Chattanooga for several months are continuing their successful thumbing of noses at the laws of this community.

A city ordinance passed over one year ago requires that every taxicab must provide liability insurance in order to protect patrons and the public against the hazards of the business.

Taxi owners have point-blank refused to obey the law and are today whizzing over the streets without insurance.

No arrests have been made to date.

COMMITTEE SET FINE PROGRAM FOR LABOR DAY

Full Slate for Every Minute With More Prizes Than Ever

Everything is set for Labor day! A hard-working committee appointed by Central Body has done a fine job, and members and friends of organized labor can count on going to Warner park next Monday with the entire family early in the morning and not have an idle moment.

The kiddies will be delighted with the grand climax of the day when fireworks will zoom and boom at about 9 o'clock in the evening.

Lincoln park has a similar schedule as Warner park. The negro unionists of Chattanooga, numbering well over the two thousand mark, have assurance from their committee, appointed especially for the day, that they are ready for a large turnout.

The athletic program is more complete than ever, thanks to Recreation Director Ed Hargraves and Superintendent of Parks P. R. Olgiati.

At Warner park the speaker of the day will go on at 5 p.m., in the person of John P. Frey, head of the metal trades department of the American Federation of Labor and also an executive board member of the AFL.

The complete programs for both parks are printed on page two of this edition.

A new batteryless telephone, designed for use in coal mines, lumber camps and aboard ships, has been recently announced. Conversations can be conducted for distances up to 200 miles. Vibrations of the speaker's voice alone generate the power necessary to transmit the sound.

CHATTANOOGA BAKERY STILL CLOSED

H. L. Judd Company Is Closed in Protest of Six-Month's Refusal to Negotiate Agreement

Judd Plant Closed After 6 Months' Stall by Bosses

Local 1882, Woodworkers, an affiliate of United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners, declared a strike Monday morning at the H. L. Judd company plant. The strike was caused by a six-months' fruitless effort on the part of the union to secure a renewal of a signed contract which expired the first of the year.

Approximately 140 employes are affected by the strike, and the plant is down completely.

Mr. Roland Adams, representative of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters, an AFL affiliate, is in Chattanooga in an effort to negotiate a settlement.

JAKE COHEN RESUMES DUTIES AS EDITOR

Trades unionists in Tennessee will be interested to learn that Jake Cohen has reassumed his duties as editor of the Memphis Labor Review.

Brother Jake Cohen was editor of the Memphis labor paper for many years and resigned only for the period he was serving as county register in Shelby county.

While Brother Cohen was serving in that position the post of editor was ably held down by our good friend Horace Kelley, who voluntarily took time off from other duties to help Memphis keep a good labor paper.

Brother "Jake" is known throughout the state labor movement and has served as president of the Tennessee Federation of Labor, besides having held positions of importance in the Memphis labor movement.

Chicago.—Thirteen hundred employes of the Chicago, North Shore & Milwaukee railroad have struck against the 15 per cent cut in wages, imposed by the receiver of the bankrupt electric line, and enforced by order of a federal district court.

Though electric lines here as everywhere else have lost ground to buses and private automobiles, it is estimated that 25,000 fairly frequent passengers were affected.

SALES UP

New York City.—Electric range sales in the United States last year totalled 400,000 units, a survey of the electrical industry says. The figure is one-third higher than the previous year, and twice the total for 1935.

Chattanooga Bakery Still Closed as Injunction Limits Picketing.

Lookout crackers and cakes and Orient flour sales continue to decrease, according to reports, as Local 25, Bakery and Confectionery Workers' International union wage their fight for recognition and pay increases.

Going into its fourth week, no new developments are to be reported after last week's injunction was temporarily issued by Judge Oscar Yarnell which limited pickets to three about the plants of the Mountain City Milling company and the Chattanooga Baking company.

The controversy is a result of the management of the cracker and cake company to make an agreement with the union of its employes. Wages in the industry here are reported to be half of that paid in the Atlanta plant of the National Biscuit company, which is entirely union and which is a competitor of the Chattanooga concern.

The flour mill is continuing to operate, with shipments from it dwindling away. Several times a week the pickets are treated to the sight of freight carloads of flour being returned to the siding, reports say, which is the result of customers of the company refusing to accept Orient flour for sale.

CIO Woolen Unions Hit Dictatorship in TWOC

Providence, R. I.—Two hundred and fifty delegates to a special convention of the Federation of Woolen and Worsted Workers of America, held in Providence, protested against the dictatorial methods of the textile workers' organizing committee and approved recommendations proposed by Francis Gorman, president of the United Textile Workers of America, another affiliate of the CIO, to "salvage" the textile organization from "self-constituted" leaders.

It was claimed that the TWOC governing board does not include a single textile worker member, and that TWOC leaders had removed officers of the Woolen and Worsted Workers' federation from the payroll of the TWOC. Mr. Gorman, who was made a member of the governing board of the textile workers' organizing committee by John L. Lewis, chairman of the CIO, in March, 1937, recently resigned because of disagreement over policy.

The utter chaos of modern economic life is shown by the fact that the announcement of a new English variety of wheat to yield 10 more bushels to the acre than any other kind startles almost as many people as it pleases

Labor Day Excellent Time to Plan Active Support of Labor Press

By OLIVER E. CARRUTH

Labor day, 1938, is an excellent time for union men and women to give thought to strengthening of the labor press, to make it more effective than ever before in championing labor's cause.

Since the first Labor day celebration, the labor press has been a powerful factor in promoting and advancing the interests of American workers. It is needed now and will be needed in the future, as much as in the past. In these days of national and international uncertainty and danger, it is vitally important that labor have a press pledged to support the workers' cause, come what may. Only strong support can assure a labor press fitted to survive and flourish in unfavorable as well as in favorable times.

The labor press is the only press the worker can depend upon to support his cause through thick and thin, through times of peace as well as times of stress. Unless the worker supports his press when times are favorable for its development, it will not have the opportunity to grow and strengthen itself for the times when it perhaps will be the only medium through which the worker can present his side of a controversy.

How Worker Can Help.

There are many ways in which the worker can support the labor press. Of course his first duty is to subscribe to his labor paper and see that his fellow workers do likewise. Then he can talk labor press whenever he sees the opportunity. He can point out what a strong labor paper does for the cause of trade unionism. He can direct attention to the fact that the labor paper serves the community by exposing corruption and injustice. He can show that the labor paper not only ends the activities of rascals who rob and exploit the people but that it makes those disposed to try the same game think twice before embarking on a career which is pretty sure to be ended by the white light of publicity.

Friends of the labor press can also be alert to aid the editor in making his paper of the greatest interest and value to union men and their families. They can often suggest features and articles which will prove of interest.

Of course the editor knows about the calling of strikes, signing of new agreements and other important labor news in his community, but he may not always know of less important events which are of keen interest to his readers. Among these are dances and other social affairs given by unions or of organizations made up largely of union members. A timely "tip" on these affairs will be appreciated by the editor. He will also appreciate information on affairs and events of all kinds affecting union members.

By supporting the labor press and co-operating with it in every possible way, the worker is not only building up a strong and powerful press of his own; he is forcing the daily papers and other publications to give constantly an increasing amount of space to organized labor and its activities.

Thus by supporting the labor press, organized labor gains greatly increased publicity for its cause, with a consequently widened sympathy for, and appreciation of, the aims of trade unionism.

Union Sues Communist Daily Newspaper for $390,000 Damages

Minneapolis.—General Drivers' Union No. 544 and four members have sued the Daily Worker, New York City communist newspaper, for $390,000 in Hennepin county district court.

Suit was brought by Vincent, Grant and Miles Dunne, Farrell Dobbs and the union against the paper in connection with articles it published after the murder last November of Patrick J. Corcoran, Minneapolis labor leader.

Corcoran, official of the Teamsters' joint council of which 544 isan affiliate, was ambushed at the rear of his home. No solution of the crime has been made.

The suit cited several of the Daily Worker's articles calling the Dunne brothers "Trotzkyites" and linking them with the underworld, attributing the Corcoran slaying to imported racketeers in the labor movement.

AFL to Seek Labor Law Amendments

Washington.—The American Federation of Labor announces it will seek "perfecting amendments" to the wage-hour law at the next session of congress.

"It is important to emphasize that the wage and hour law as finally enacted is far from perfect," A. F. of L. President William Green stated. "In a number of respects the law falls short of the standards set up by the federation. The undesirable provisions of the act must and can be corrected in the future. It is the declared purpose of the American Federation of Labor to urge perfecting amendments to the law in the next session of congress."

LABOR DAY

Dedicated to the Progress of Human Happiness

PROGRESS is not measured in terms of possession and affluence, but by the increase of human happiness. Our activities are of lasting importance only as they contribute to this end. The things we enjoy are the products of conscientious labor. It has been proven that 85 per cent of every dollar we pay for these things represents labor. Therefore, it is fitting that one day each year be set aside to honor the workers whose skill and intelligence do so much to promote human happiness, and to keep us reminded of the debt we owe to toilers in all walks of life.

Instituted as an expression of confidence and appreciation between employer and employe, LABOR DAY has gained added significance through the years because its ideal is constant in the face of trying conditions. It will not change so long as man enjoys the right to choose his job, to think his own thoughts and to exercise the liberties which are his under our system of business.

Again this year all the people of the nation join in the observance of the day as an ideal which so generally affects our measure of material benefits and spiritual well-being.

HAVERTY'S is always conscious of the obligation business owes to the workers who have been our best customers, our constant friends. Therefore, we close all day Monday, and extend our cordial wishes for a happy LABOR DAY observance.

Public Should Insist on Knowing Causes of Tepco Strike

An editorial in the News yesterday had this to say about the strike in progress in the Tennessee Electric Power company system:

> "The public doesn't care a rap who works how many hours for how much or joins which union. All it wants is to find juice at the end of the wire when the button is pushed."

This is a surprising statement coming from a paper which prides itself in its civic-mindedness, which styles itself as a champion for public welfare, which at various times has waged intensive campaigns to find the cause of certain effects which have been harmful to the public.

Such an attitude as not "giving a rap" what the trouble is about, just so long as there is juice at the end of the wire when the button is pushed, certainly does not tend to protect the public's welfare.

Suppose the strike of the power company linemen is lost, and the public continues to get its "juice." The injustice that caused the trouble would still exist and would flare up again at a later date.

If this great "progressive" daily and the public would investigate, they will find the power company has caused this trouble by refusing to discuss matters with lawful representatives of a large number of its employes.

So long as the public "does not give a rap," this company, with vast resources, derived perhaps from the public through its stock sale ramifications, and high rates, is able to "just sit." By "just sitting" it is able to wear down employes who have families depending on weekly incomes to provide food and shelter.

By "just sitting," the power company can draw on these resources for an indefinite period of time until the employes grow weary and are forced to return to their jobs. These employes did not leave their jobs because they wanted a vacation.

Surely no one could object to two disputing parties going into a room with certain honest and well-defined convictions, and in that room have a frank discussion of those convictions and finally arriving at a settlement.

This is all that the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers is asking of the company. Furthermore, the union has repeatedly and publicly stated that if the company will agree to a conference, every man on strike will be back on the job within two hours' time.

The company has refused to discuss the matter with the mayor of our city. Its refusal certainly does not put it in a position of insuring to the public that their interests are being protected. If the company felt that it was on safe ground, that its position was based on justice, it should have nothing to fear from a conference concerning the matters involved.

> The union has agreed that in such conference certain high public officials would be invited to sit in and represent the public. The officials to be invited are the governor of our state, the mayor of Nashville and the mayor of Chattanooga, with the mayor of another Tennessee city involved in the strike. Several officials have indicated their willingness to serve.

Can the power company have any fears from such a conference when the public interests would be represented? With such public representation sitting in, an unreasonable attitude on the part of the union would immediately be made known to the public, and any further fight on the part of the union would be useless and unwarranted.

> Perhaps the power company is afraid its position in this controversy will not bear inspection on the part of representatives of the public and therefore the company does not dare to discuss its stand.

The public does remember policies followed in the 1917 street car strike. A most arbitrary policy was used then against employes. In the strike that necessarily followed a man was murdered in cold blood by a "guard" sitting in one of the street cars. This guard, without provocation, but in a spirit of fun and jollification, fired point-blank into the crowded sidewalk and filled a man's back full of lead. The man, William Massengale, dropped dead.

In that same strike this city was infested with hired detectives. Agents provocateurs were plentiful, and it is estimated more money was spent in breaking up the union of street car men than the company would have had to pay out in pay increases for many, many years.

Other utilities talk to their employes through union representatives and peace and harmony prevails. We might add that general pay scales are much higher. Right next door to us, the Georgia Power company has a signed contract with the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers. Its president, Mr. Arkwright, has publicly stated he would not have it any other way—that if he were a lineman he would join the union.

> But he is not interested in discussing such slight matters as labor unions with anyone. He is too big to talk to the mayor of our city. He is too busy getting "juice" at the end of the wire, even though men lose their lives and families go hungry.

We say that the public should give a "rap."

Thank Our Advertisers

This Labor day issue finds the Chattanooga labor movement in better condition than ever before. It has reason to be proud of its movement and the respect with which it is held by merchants and citizens in general. The large number of advertisements in this week's paper is an indication of the esteem held for us by business people.

Not only have the advertisers in this paper expressed their esteem, but they also indicate that advertising in The Labor World is a good business investment. As a rule, members of organized labor give preference to adveritsers in The Labor World, due to the fact that this paper is directly owned by the organized labor movement.

Members of organized labor should notice carefully the names of advertisers and express to them in a tangible manner such appreciation.

The Labor World is an asset to this community. It represents all that is good for the upbuilding of our city and county, and is always lined up on the side of justice and common sense. It solicits business on a business basis, and refuses to accept advertising on the basis of donations and contributions. Unless a merchant feels that he is buying legitimate advertising, his business is not accepted.

Patronize our advertisers and give them value for the money they have invested in our advertising columns.

Make Them Call Their Shots

WANTED: An executive to manage a million dollar system. Applicant need have no qualifications. No previous experience necessary. Political combination all that is necessary.

This is in effect all that the voters of Chattanooga have with which they select their city commissioners every four years. Instead of requiring candidates for the four departments of the city to run for a particular department, stating their qualifications for a particular office, they now put their name in the pot, and the four highest "draw straws" to see who is to manage what.

We hope that candidates for city commissioners next March are required to announce for a particular office and wage their campaign on their respective qualification for that particular job.

As it is now, political combinations are formed, such combinations pooling their respective voting strength, and in many instances we find after the election that we have a lot of square pegs to fit into round holes.

HANDSOME LABOR DAY PRIZE

MORE BUILDING UNIONS BACK PLAN TO STABILIZE WORK AND PAY ON U. S.-FINANCED HOUSING PROJECTS

Washington.—The movement for prevention of strikes and stabilization of wages on building projects financed by the United States Housing Authority is growing rapidly as the result of co-operation by organized building trades workers.

Ten more building trades councils affiliated with the American Federation of Labor and fourteen additional local unions have reported to the housing authority that they have adopted resolutions intended to obviate the possibility of any stoppage of work on low-rent housing projects to be built with USHA loans.

The latest building trades councils to join the movement were those in Lafayette and Muncie, Ind.; Lake Charles, La.; Springfield, Mo.; Plainfield, N. J.; Minot, N. K.; Fort Worth, Tex.; Longview, Wash., and Milwaukee and Waukesha, Wis., together with 14 local unions in Fort Worth.

Thus seventy building trades councils and 184 local unions have adopted resolutions which provide:

1. That in case jurisdictional disputes arise on a USHA project, there shall be no stoppage of work until such time as the building and construction trades department of the A. F. of L., the local housing authority and the USHA have had full opportunity to adjust the differences between the trades.

2. That wage rates in effect at the time work is commenced on such a project shall remain in effect until its completion.

The action of the unions is regarded as having inestimable value in that they will make it possible to practically guarantee construction schedules in the $800,000,000 United States Housing Authority program.

Lumber Firm Ordered To Rehire Union Men

Corsett, Ark.—The National Labor Relations Board ordered the Corsett Lumber Company to cease and desist from interference with the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners, Lumber and Sawmill Workers, Local 25590 affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, to end espionage against its workers, and to reinstate with back pay 34 workers found to have been discharged for union activity.

The reinstatement order requires the company to give back pay less net earnings during the period of discrimination, including expensess incurred by the 34 discharged workers in finding work in places located in other States. These workers, the board said, "incurred expenses which they would not have had if they had continued to work for the Crossett Company and had not been forced by unfair labor practices to leave their homes." To the extent that these expenses diminished the employs' earnings, the Board ruled that such earnings shall not be deducted in computing the loss of pay.

ICC Fixes Minimum Rates To Stop Truck Wars in Eastern Territory

Washington. — The interstate commerce commission has moved to stop truck wars by establishing minimum rates in practically the entire region north of the Ohio and Potomac rivers, and east of the Mississippi. New England, with part of New York, were separated from the rest of the territory in the two rate decisions.

"We are convinced," says the ICC, "that an emergency does exist, which requires action on our part, and this is substantially admitted to be the fact by all concerned. This emergency is the product of the great and all-pervasive element of competition from within and without the motor carrier industry, coupled with the very large number of motor carriers. It has been rendered more acute by the depression in business which has materially reduced the amount of available traffic."

This is the first time the ICC has used the large powers given it by the motor carrier act, though such action has been urged by railroad workers and managers alike.

The commission, recognizing the experimental nature of its work, limited the New England rates to one year, and required the carriers to present at the end of six months new rate schedules framed in the light of experience with this minimum rate.

Three State Federations of Labor Order Scrutiny of Special and Hidden Taxation Proposals

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Protests against the spreading network of sales taxes and other special, punitive and hidden taxes were voiced officially by State Federations of North Carolina, Ohio and Massachusetts recently. Annually conventions of the three bodies were in session.

North Carolina Federation took advantage of the presence of the state legislature in a special session meeting at the same time. A strong resolution demanding repeal of the state sales tax was passed by the Federation and sent to the assembled legislature. Another resolution registering concern over the growing load of special and hidden taxes called for creation of a special tax committee to investigate and report to the executive board.

Massachusets State Federation had already aided in defeating a sales tax proposal when its legislature met earlier in the year. However a resolution asking for an alert scrutiny of special tax proposals was referred to the executive board with power to act.

Similarly, the Ohio Federation equipped itself with a special tax study authorization placed in the hands of the executive committee by convention action.

Other states in which Federations have created tax committees to give special attention o new tax proposals injurious to labor's interests include: New Jersey, New Mexico, Florida, Georgia, Alabama, South Carolina, Mississippi, Iowa, Tennessee, Arizona.

Shrimp Fishermen Strike On Louisiana Coast

New Orleans.—Betting in this city is almost even between those who think that the strike of 2,000 shrimp fishermen on the Louisiana coast will spread to Florida and Georgia, and those who believe it likely to be settled by a compromise almost overnight. The facts to date are these:

The fishermen are asking a price of $8.50 a barrel, the price that was paid last year.

Some of the canneries are willing to compromise on $7.50 a barrel for this year.

Prices as low as $1.50 to $3 a barrel were offered just before the strike came.

About 200 shrimp trawlers are idle, and nearly 2,000 men. There are six different unions among the shrimp men, but the one which counts is the Gulf Coast Fishermen's and Trappers' association.

As a result of the strike, the supply of shrimps has been barely enough to meet the demand of the city housewives, and offers hardly anything to the canners.

Union Agreement Ratified

New York.—More than 6,000 workers in the knitgoods industry, members of an affiliate of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' union, ratified an agreement reached with the manufacturers. The agreement retains the 35-hour week, which the employers had sought to increase to 40 hours.

CEMENT WORKERS PROUD OF THEIR "LABOR TEMPLE"

First Union of Cement Workers Organized in Chattanooga During NRA • Have Made Wonderful Progress • Every Employee at Signal Mountain Portland Cement Company Has Union Card in Pocket •

Federal Labor Union 18269, employed in the Signal Mountain Portland Cement company just outside of Chattanooga's city limits, has a proud record in the ranks of organized labor of this section.

Commonly known as Cement Workers Union, this local became organized in the early days of NRA. The way they became organized was unusual in itself.

These cement workers did not wait until an American Federation of Labor representative hunted them up. The employes of the large cement plant decided that they wanted to get into the American Federation of Labor. A committee was appointed to contact the A. F. of L. "brass." Much was done.

As a result, swift and snappy meetings were held in the span of a few weeks, and lo and behold, everyone soon had cards and a charter.

These boys leased a small one-room store just across the highway from the plant, had it painted and cleaned, and they proudly refer to it as their "labor temple."

Another record to be proud of is the fact that the Chattanooga local was the first group of cement workers to become organized. Today, almost one hundred unions of cement plant employes have successfully organized and have signed agreements with their employes.

Enough local unions in the cement industry have organized to form an international union of their own, and it is believed that before many months go by the American Federation of Labor will grant a charter to them as separate international union, having complete jurisdiction in that line of industry.

Management of Signal Mountain Cement company has "gone along" with the boys in a big way. Very fine relations are being enjoyed through a "good agreement," and since organization several pay increases have been granted, with reductions in hours and other benefits in working conditions.

These "boys" have also taken their rightful place in the labor movement by doing their share of work in the Chattanooga Central Body and the Tennessee Federation of Labor. They always answer any call for help their brother unionists give them, and you should hear them preach the union label.

Officers of this progressive local this year provide some very fine material for leadership. The officials of the local organization are:

J. H. Baker, president.

Roy Rutherford, vice-president.

V. O. Cunningham, Financial Secretary.

Glenn Parson, Recording Secretary.

J. H. Cooley, Treasurer.

J. P. Merriman, Doorkeeper.

This is the pride and joy of Federal Labor Union No. 18269, located across the highway from the Signal Mountain Cement company.

Cement Workers Progress

President Schoenberg of A. F. of L. National Council Reports Large Increase in Affiliated Cement, Lime and Gypsum Locals to Birmingham Convention; Agreements With Many Companies.

Birmingham, Ala. — Constant progress both in organization and in practical gains for wage earners in the cement industry was reflected in the annual report of William Schoenberg, president of the National Council of United Cement Workers, to the second annual convention of the Council which opened here on August 15.

It was brought out that the number of A. F. of L. cement workers' locals has grown from 44 since the Pittsburgh convention to 66. There are also five lime workers' local unions and eleven locals in the gypsum manufacturing industry. At the time of the Pittsburgh convention, only 29 of the 44 locals in the cement industry then existing were affiliated with the National Council. Today, 58 of the total of 66 local unions in this important industry are affiliated with the National Council of United Cement Workers, along with four of the lime workers' locals and two gypsum locals, all of which show big organizational gains.

Many Agreements Negotiated.

Remarkable progress in contractural relations with employers by cement and allied workers affiliated with the American Federation of Labor is likewise shown. Of the 66 A. F. of L. cement workers' locals, 56 now have union working agreements with employers, including 37 Portland cement manufacturing companies. Three of the five locals in the lime industry also have signed agreements with their employing companies, and in the gypsum line two local unions work under contracts with their eemployers. In all instances, vast improvements have been realized for all workers concerned in the matter of wages, hours and working conditions.

Lime and Gypsum Workers Organized.

The president's annual report says with reference to uniting of workers in these allied industries: "Shortly before the Pittsburgh convention, the jurisdiction of the National Council of United Cement Workers was extended to the lime manufacturing industry. Recently, a further extension was granted to accept the affiliation of Federal Labor Unions composed of workers engaged in the gypsum industry.

"Both the lime and gypsum industries are closely related to the cement industry, and often these plants ar located in the same approximate localities. At times workers of one of these three industries change employment from one to anothr. This, and other prevailing conditions, makes it advisable to have the local unions composed of workers in these three important industries, join hands in one National Council, to be followed by one great International Union.

"Although at this time the cement unions are still predominating and are the backbone of the National Council, numerically and otherwise, definite progress towards organization of the workers in the lime and gypsum industries was made (during the past year) and a few unions in each industry are now affiliated with the National Council."

The report expresses appreciation for valuable co-operation by William Green, president, Frank Morrison, secretary-treasurer, and Lewis G. Hines, Director of Organization, of the American Federation of Labor, and highly compliments the work of organizers assigned to the cement and allied industries.

Official Journal Established.

An official organ for the National Council, called "The Voice of the Union Cement Workers," was established following the Pittsburgh convention, which according to President Schoenberg, is proving a valuable aid in keeping the membership advised on matters affecting their interests.

The June, 1938, issue of "The Voice of the Union Cement Worker" outlined some of the requirements for the establishment of an International Union for the cement and allied industries.

International Charter Sought.

The second annual convention of the National Council, upon the recomendation of President Schoenberg, is expected to seriously consider the possibility of instructing executive officers of the National Council to make application to the Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor for an International Union charter.

List of Union Companies.

Union contracts have been secured with 56 plants of 37 different companies, covering thousands of workers. It is brought out that friendly and business-like relationship, particularly with the Portland cement manufacturing companies, made it possible for the National Council and the American Federation of Labor to maintain and renew every single agreement that existed in 1937, and to add many new ones to the list.

Pension systems established by Ohio cities for policemen and firemen have been upheld by the Supreme Court of that State. The case originated in the action of the city council of Marion, Ohio, abolishing its pension systems for these two groups of city employes. The Marion County Common Pleas Court upheld the action of the city council.

The Court of Appeals of the third district, reversing the Common Pleas Court ruling, held that the city council lacked authority to abolish the pension systems. The Appeal Court added that a State legislature had granted the power to establish the pension systems, but not the authority to repeal them.

The decision of the Supreme Court upheld the decision of the Court of Appeals.

C. I. O. IS UNDER COMMUNIST DOMINATION, FREY DECLARES

President of A. F. of L. Metal Trades Department Gives House Committee Names of Several Hundred Alleged Communists or Communist Sympathizers Who Are Either Employed by the Committee for Industrial Organization or Are Leaders of C. I. O. Affiliates.

Washington.—John P. Frey, president of the Metal Trades Department of the American Federation of Labor, in three days testimony before the special house committee investigating un-American activities in the United States, presented abundant proof of the influence wielded by the communists in the committee for industrial organization, the chairman of which is John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, a CIO affiliate.

Starting off with the statement that the communists held many important positions in the committee for industrial organization, Mr. Frey, in the first installment of his testimony listed 284 alleged communist party members who were or are on the CIO payroll and about sixty others as CIO leaders who, he claimed, were either members of the communist party or were supporting communist propaganda in the CIO. Later he submitted 230 more names, bringing his list of communist party members who were active CIO workers to about 500.

CIO Indorsed by Communists.

Charging that the program of the committee for industrial organization had the "hearty indorsement of the communist party," and that violence in connection with strikes in the automobile and steel industries was encouraged by communist leaders, Mr. Frey declared that the sit-down strike and mass picketing had been used by the communists as front line trenches in which to train members "for the day when the signal for revolution is given."

He stressed the point that attempts of the communists to plant themselves in the organized labor movement in the United States were wholly unsuccessful until John L. Lewis organized the committee for industrial organization in 1935. Since then, he said, communism ha become a definite factor in the ranks of the American labor movement.

Outlines A. F. of L. Policy.

Mr. Frey began his testimony with a declaration outlining the policy of the American Federation of Labor in contrast with the policy of the communists.

"The American Federation of Labor," Mr. Frey said, "has believed in evolutionary instead of revolutionary methods. It has believed that labor, through voluntary association in trade unions, must build up the structure of protection step by step and stone by stone.

"The leaders of the American Federation of Labor have been convinced, from the study of history, that the evolutionary and educational method is the only constructive one. It has been applying these methods for over fifty years, and the record of accomplishment is impressive.

Sit-Down Strikes and Mass Picking Are Communist Specialties.

"The communists heap ridicule upon the progress made by the American Federation of Labor. They jeer at its constructive evolutionary methods. They preach revolution. Within the last two or three years they have seized every sit-down strike, every mass picketing venture, as a means of stimulating their revolutionary tactics.

"The sit-down strike and mass picketing has been used by the communists in our country as a training camp in which communists can become familiar with the tactics they are to apply when their revolutionary program is put into action. The sit-down strike and mass picketing have been used as front line trenches in which the mass revolutionists of the future are to receive experience and training to equip them for the day when the signal for revolution is given.

A. F. of L. Supports American Government and Institutions.

"The American Federation of Labor in its structure, its policy and its methods has been made to conform as closely as possible to the principles underlying our American form of government and our American institutions of human liberty.

"Because of its understanding of American institutions and methods it vigorously set itself in opposition to the theories and apparent purposes of socialism. As a result the socialists' attempts to determine the policies of the American Federation of Labor met with complete failure. The American Federation of Labor learned its lessons in the practical and sometimes costly school of experience.

"As the success of the communist party in any country depends primarily upon its ability to infiltrate into the national trade union movements and control their policymaking, the American Federation of Labor has vigorously defended its affiliated unions from communist propaganda and communists boring from within. Because of this the communist party made no real progress in the United States.

Communists Secured Foothold in CIO.

"It failed to secure a foothold in an American trade union movement until the CIO was organized. Since then the communist party has become a definite factor in the American labor movement.

"In connection with the evidence indicating communist activities within the CIO, it must be said, in all fairness to the majority of the membership, that they are not communists and that they are opposed to communism. In many local instances these members of the CIO have arisen in revolt against the communist leadership which had secured control.

"The CIO is not yet a communist organization, so far as the great majority of the rank and file is concerned. The fact seems to be that the CIO membership unwittingly became a carrier for the virus of communism because of the attitude of its leadership."

Among the sixty officials of the committee for industrial organization who Mr. Frey described as either communists or supporters of communist propaganda were John Brophy, CIO director; Francis Gorman, president of the United Textile Workers; Morris Muster, president of the United Furniture Workers of America; George Woolf, president of the Fish and Cannery Workers' International union; Harold Pritchett, a Canadian, who is president of the International Woodworkers of America.

Also Prof. Donald Henderson, formerly of Columbia university, and now president of the United Cannery, Agricultural Packing and Allied Workers of America; Julius H. Klyman, vice-president of the American Newspaper guild, and Joseph Curran, president of the National Maritime Workers' union.

He said that William Gebhert, a member of the central committee of the communist party, had been active in the CIO campaign to organize workers in the steel industry.

Provoking Murder.

An angler who had been trying to hook something for the last six hours was sitting gloomily looking at his float, when a mother and her small son came along.

"Oh," cried the youngster, "do let me see you catch a fish."

The mother said severely: "Now, don't you catch a fish for him until he says 'Please.'"

PRINTING TRADES UNIONS ASK WPA TO ALLOT $10,000,000 FOR NEW SCHOOL TEXTBOOKS

President Haggerty Tells Works Progress Administrator Hopkins That Reduction of Hundreds of Millions of Dollars Annually in School Expenditures During the Depression Despite Big Increase in Number of Students Makes Increased Supply of Books Absolutely Necessary; WPA Allotment Is Also Held Essential to Provide Job Opportunities for Thousands of Idle Workers in Printing Trades, in Which Five Unions During the Past Eight Years Have Paid Millions of Dollars of Benefits to Their Unemployed Members.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—John B. Haggerty, president of the International Allied Printing Trades Association, has requested the Works Progress Administration to allot ten million dollars to purchase new text books for the many thousands of schools in the United States whose expenditures for school purposes have decreased nearly $700,000,000 annually during the past eight years despite the fact that the number of students has increased many hundreds of thousands.

The International Allied Printing Trades Association is composed of the International Printing Pressmen and Assistants Union, the International Brotherhood of Bookbinders, the International Typographical Union, the International Stereotypers and Electrotypers Union, and the International Photo-Engravers Union.

Citing John W. Studebaker, U. S. Commissioner of Education, as asserting that this wholesale reduction in the budget of American schools has created a great need for new text books, Mr. Haggerty emphasized the tremendous importance of the allotment in the interest of providing our boys and girls with adequate manuals for their instruction.

In addition, Mr. Haggerty stressed the justice of the request that the WPA set apart the ten-million-dollar school text book purchase fund to provide employment for many thousands of jobless in the printing trades. He pointed out that over a period of eight years the five national and international unions constituting the Allied Printing Trades Association have paid out nearly $97,000,000 in benefits to their unemployed members, and that the time has come when the Federal Government, through the WPA, should "make some contribution toward the unemployment relief of the organized printing trades workers."

In making the request, Mr. Haggerty, speaking for the Board of Governors of the International Allied Printing Trades Association, stressed the point that in order to create work for the unemployed in the five printing industry trades the $10,000,000 must be expended exclusively for textbooks produced after the allotment is made.

Text of Haggerty's Letter.

Following is the text of Mr. Haggerty's letter to Mr. Hopkins:

Mr. Harry L. Hopkins,
Administrator, Works Progress Administration,
Washington, D. C.

Dear Mr. Hopkins:

The International Allied Printing Trades Association, representing 100,000 organized printing trades workers, realizing the detrimental effects which the depression of the past eight years has had in the purchase of school text books of some 125,000 or more school districts of the United States, appeal to you, first, in the interest of the maintenance of the health of our children who handle such books; secondly, with a view of providing educational methods and equipment for our youth, and thirdly, and at this particular time more important, the need of job opportunities for many thousands of the organized printing trades workers who have been deprived of employment through the lack of purchase of such school text books as a result of the continuing depression, to allot ten million dollars of WPA funds for the purchase of new text books to be allotted to school districts in need of new school text books.

We have checked the effect of this depression through the lack of purchase on the part of our 125,000 school districts with Dr. Studebaker of the Office of Education, Department of the Interior. Dr. Studebaker assures us that there are thousands of school districts in dire need of new school text books. We understand that during the past eight years there has been an annual decrease of more than $665,000,000 expended for school purposes while annual enrollments in the schools have increased more than 756,000.

Senate Report No. 224, issued by the Committee on Education and Labor, March 19, 1937, page 9, states:

"The depression has been more disastrous to the schools than to any other governmental service, and has widened the inequalities that were here before its arrival. The poor communities and states have become poorer, and the closer they were to the margin of economic existence the more disastrous has been the shock.

"From 1930-34 expenditures for all governmental purposes in the entire nation increased 20 per cent. Federal expenditures increased 109.6 per cent, state expenditures decreased 5.8 per cent, and local expenditures decreased 15.2 per cent. During this same period expenditures for all public education decreased 25.6 per cent. The total decrease in educational expenditures since 1930 has been over $665,000,000 annually.

"This decrease has occurred in spite of the fact that school enrollments have increased more than 756,000, the number of students in our public high schools being now one-third greater than in 1930."

The local unions affiliated with the International Allied Printing Trades Association have, each year, during the past eight years, contributed to those unemployed through assessments on those employed, a vast sum of money.

For the past eight years, this contribution to the unemployed, coupled with the fact that our printing trades workers have been sharing work with those unemployed, computed in days of employment given to our unemployed, will exceed a million days.

Local unions have restricted their membership in many instances to employment of not over four days per week and thousands work only half time or less. This would bring the aggregate contribution to the organized allied printing trade workers for relief to the unemployed, in terms of money, to over one hundred million dollars.

The International Typographical Union, for the four years ending June 20, 1937, contributed a sum in excess of $58,000,000 for the relief of its unemployed members through the fact that situation holders, beginning with 1933, were required to employ a substitute one day each week. In addition to this very large contribution, local unions of the International Typographical Union paid in direct cash unemployment benefits totaling $5,230,884.17 between June 21, 1930, and June 20, 1937.

We have figures of total benefits paid (including unemployment benefits) by the five international printing trades unions affiliated with the International Printing Trades Association as follows:

International Electrotypers and Stereotypers (7 years), $2,948,000.

International Typographical Union (4 years), $73,236,881.25. Of this sum, $58,240,000 constitutes the value of 35,000 days per week contributed by situation holders on newspapers at $8 per day for four years, 1933-36, inclusive.

International Brotherhood of Bookbinders (8 years), $5,000,000.

During the year ended June 20, 1938, local unions paid $149,290.29, as direct cash unemployment benefits. The total of all benefits paid by local unions of the International Typographical Union, including unemployment benefits, was $906,855.84. The International Union paid out, as benefits, a total of $3,155,870.68, making a total of direct cash benefits paid by local and international unions for the year of $4,062,726.52.

Situation Warrants Government Unemployment Relief.

In view of this contribution on the part of our membership, which contribution has taken the place of money which otherwise would have been expended by governmental agencies for unemployment relief, we believe it only fair that the government should now make some contribution toward the unemployment relief of the organized printing trades workers. The employment hereby provided will be highly productive and beneficial not only to the printing trades workers, but to the millions of school students who at the present are forced to handle books which medical science has determined, after a few years, become germ carriers and disease breeders.

The Board of Governors of the International Allied Printing Trades Association, after careful consideration, have directed that as chairman of the board, I should present this appeal to you and, in their name, request immediate and favorable consideration of an allotment of WPA funds in the amount of $10,000,000 to be spent for the purchase of school text books satisfactory to the requirement of those school districts of the United States who are in need of such new school text books.

In making this request, we are making it with a view of providing job opportunities. Therefore, we particularly stress the need that in the allotment of such funds it be specified that such money shall be spent only for new books made from composition, plates and bindings produced after the allotment of the funds hereby appealed for. We particularly stress the need, if job opportunities are to be provided, that the regulations shall specify that none of this money be spent for the purchase of books which are in whole or in part, now available.

We respectfully request your early and favorable consideration of this humane appeal and will appreciate a personal interview to explain in detail the appeal herein made.

Respectfully yours,
JOHN B. HAGGERTY,
President.

58th Annual A. F. of L. Convention Will Meet in Houston on Oct. 3

Executive Council Says Delegates Will Proclaim Again the Fundamental Principles of the American Federation of Labor for the More Perfect Development of "Fraternity, Brotherhood and Co-operation."

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor issued a notification that the Fifty-eighth Annual Convention of the Federation will convene in the Exposition and Convention Hall, Houston, Texas, at 10 o'clock, Monday morning, October 3, 1938, and continue in session from day to day until the business of the convention shall have been completed.

Importance of Convention Stressed

"In many respects the Fifty-eighth Annual Convention of the American Federation of Labor which will convene at Houston, Texas, on October 3 will be the most important ever held," the Executive Council said.

"A re-examination of the basis upon which our great movement is founded will be made and an analysis of the political and economic philosopny which our great movement espoused and proclaimed will take place.

"We will determine from the experience through which we have passed during the past year how indestructible and sound is the basis upon which our organization and superstructure rests.

"The records show that our great movement has faced every test and met every difficulty in a most successful and satisfactory way which it has been called upon to face during the past year.

"Harmony exists within the ranks of the American Federation of Labor.

"Differences, discord, bitterness and hate prevail within the ranks of the secession movement called the Committee for Industrial Organization.

"We will solidify our movement, unite our forces and develop fraternity, brotherhood and co-operation to the highest degree at this great historic Fifty-eighth Annual Convention of the American Federation of Labor.

"It is of the greatest importance that all organizations affiliated with the American Federation of Labor be represented at this Convention.

Election of Delegates

"Delegates must be elected at least two weeks previous to the convention, and their names forwarded to the secretary-treasurer of the American Federation of Labor immediately after their election.

"Delegates are not entitled to seats in the convention unless the tax and assessments of their organization have been paid in full to August 31, 1938.

"The importance of our movement, the duty of the hour and for the future, demand that every organization entitled to representation shall send its full quota of delegates to the Houston Convention, October 3, 1938.

Credentials

"Credentials in duplicate are forwarded to all affiliated unions. The original credential should be given to the delegate-elect and the duplicate forwarded to the American Federation of Labor Office, A. F. of L. Building, Washington, D. C.

"The Committee on Credentials will meet at the headquarters of the American Federation of Labor six days previous to the opening of the convention, and will report immediately upon the opening thereof at Houston, hence secretaries will observe the necessity of mailing the duplicate credentials of their respective delegates at the earliest possible moment to Washington, D. C."

CALIFORNIA UNIONS HIT LABOR RELATIONS BOARD

San Francisco, Cal.—Demands that California members of congress make an immediate investigation of the practices of the 20th regional office of the national labor relations board were made here by Edward D. Vandeleur, secretary of the California State Federationof Labor. The demands are based on charges that:

1. Public funds are being wasted in connection with a hearing now being conducted in Oakland by Trial Examiner Charles A. Wood, of the national labor relations board, in the so-called cannery conspiracy case.

2. Favoritism toward and attempts to defend communists and othe. who are communistically inclined is constantly exhibited in the taking of testimony and the examination of witnesses.

3. The spirit of the national labor relations act is being continually violated by Trial Examiner Wood.

Mr. Vandeleur said the labor board's investigation, now in its fourth month, into the alleged cannery conspiracy," was "based upon an accusation of a lone woman organizer for the CIO, who is known to associate with communists and other radicals." He characterized the entire inquiry as "a travesty and farce," and a "clear waste of public funds."

Splendid Exhibit To Be Shown By Local Bakers' Union

Local 25, Bakers' union, is planning a large exhibit of union-made products at Warner park Labor day.

This strong union is very proud of the progress it has made since its organization in Chattanooga a few years ago. Practically all important brands of bread, cakes, doughnuts and all bakery products in Chattanooga are union-made and the exhibit on Labor day will be an impressive one.

The bakers will also exhibit union-made bakery products which are made in other towns and are sold on the Chattanooga market.

So be sure to stop by the Bakers' exhibit at Warner park next Monday and find out about the union-made products in Chattanooga.

The address will be made at Roger Williams Park from 4 to 4:30 p.m., eastern daylight savings time, and will be broadcast over the NBC Blue network.

Labor Warned Against Forming Political Party of Own

Buffalo, N. Y.—Atty.-Gen. Bennett pointed to the doctrines of Samuel Gompers as he warned labor against "forming its own political party." Hands off of political issues was one of the primary rules set down by Gompers when he founded the A. F. of L. Bennett spoke at the 75th annual convention of the New York State Federation of Labor.

Senator Robert F. Wagner also addressed the delegates. He urged the formation of a government-directed national health policy.

Comment On World Events

In Germany, questions of hours of work and wages, which for years have been kept on a very low depression level, are closely bound up with the war economy, says the information service of the foreign bureau of the German trade unions.

The entire economic and financial structure of war prosperity with its vast investments in state enterprises would soon collapse if hours of work and wages could be freely determined by negotiation between the interested parties. The attempt to stabilize prices is not always successful because the prices are naturally dependent on the world market and the substitute materials make things more expensive, since the poorer quality that results necessitates greater consumption, the information service declares.

The workers can only get higher incomes by longer working hours, and through increased production which is still being raised by more efficient methods of work. One of the secret reasons why the economy has not yet collapsed lies in the fact that armament costs are in this way transferred to the shoulders of the masses.

But this is not only a German problem because the workers of other countries are more and more influenced by what is happening in Germany.

If the working capacities of a nation of 75 million are strained to the limit to produce armaments, then the other countries have to introduce similar measures in order to meet the threat with which they are confronted.

France has just given recognition of this danger in striking fashion. The French government has proposed increase of the working week from 40 hours to 48, especially in the national defense industries, and has told the people that the 40-hour week is detrimental to the safety and prosperity of the nation under present circumstances.

Hours of work must be increased, Premier Daladier says, to meet competition with other countries in which no limit is set on industrial activity. Thus a backward step is proposed in France because another great nation is making everything subordinate to preparation for war.

All countries are under great pressure to protect themselves when the extension of hours of work in Germany affects their own economic situation. In that way Germany intrudes on other countries through the laws of international trade, and no aprt of economic life is safe from this danger.

Reports about wages and working hours in Germany are therefore more than just a description of conditions in Germany. They should be carefully followed by the working class in other countries because in a way they determine the measures that should be taken to protect social conditions and social progress in the rest of the world against the national socialist danger, European labor is pointing out.

Physicians Inaugurate Group Medical Service Plan

Denver.—The Denver Medical society has inaugurated a plan providing for low-cost group medical service similar in some respects to the Washington, D. C., experiment in group medical care which drew condemnation from the American Medical association as a move to "socialize medicine."

The plan, to be offered through a centralized medical bureau to be set up by the society, will allow persons or families to make regular advance payments for which, when an emergency arises, they will be given the previously-fixed amount of medical care without additional cost.

AFL Challenges Labor Board Order

Claims Authority Was Exceeded in Pacific Coast Longshoremen's Case; Board's Decision Will Be Appealed to U. S. Court Unless Reversed.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, and Joseph Ryan, president of the International Longshoremen's Union, have directed Joseph A. Padway, counsel for the Federation, to institute proceedings before the National Labor Relations Board and in the courts to secure a reversal of the decision of the board making the C. I. O. Longshoremen's Union the sole bargaining agency for longshoremen on the Pacific Coast, according to a statement issued by the American Federation of Labor here.

Mr. Padway served upon the board a motion for a rehearing and demanded that the decree entered in this case be set aside. If the board denies the motion, it was asserted that Padway will promptly file appeal in the United States Circuit Court of Appeals to have the decree reviewed and reversed.

Board's Power Questioned

"The American Federation of Labor," the statement said, "is greatly disturbed over the extraordinary powers assumed by the board in constituting a large geographical area, beyond the boundaries of one state and embracing thousands of workers of numerous employers and affiliated with different unions, as a single unit for the purpose of collective bargaining.

"The American Federation of Labor takes the position that this is an unwarranted assumption of power, contrary to the National Labor Relations Act, which would in many instances deny to A. F. of L. employees who are in the majority in a specified local union, the right to select A. F. of L. unions as their bargaining agent.

"The decree of the Board has the effect in this case of disestablishing A. F. of L. unions by denying their members the right to bargain through their unions, although in a majority."

Padway Outlines Legal Situation

The A. F. of L. statement included the following explanation by Mr. Padway of the appeal filed by him, outlining the legal situation:

"If the precedent established by the board in this case is to remain the board may deal similarly with the steel industry, the automobile industry, the lumber industry, the clothing industry, the metal trades indusry. Groups of employers and employees in a large geographical area will be designated as a single unit, thus denying the right of self-organization and free choice of representatives by majorities in single plants and separate units.

"It is no justification for the board to impose such a unit upon employees and employers on the basis that the employers and employees involved have bargained along similar lines in the past.

"The situation is quite different when employers and employees and their unions by agreement among themselves connstitute such a unit for the purpose of collective bargaining. It is quite common for a number of unions affiliated with the A. F. of L., as for instance, the Metal Trades, to join in one council and to bargain with a number of employers as one group respecting wages, hours and working conditions.

"It will be found, however, that the agreement to do so is unanimous and voluntary on the part of the employers and the employees and their unions, and no organization and no individual employer is compelled to join in with the others.

"Likewise, when a number of employers and a number of unions agree to bargain as one, every union maintains its autonomy and existence. No agreement of this type is ever entered into which results in denying to any single union the right to bargain on behalf of the majority and no union is dis-established by the joint agreement.

Decision Held Unlawful

"In this decision of the board the decree is compulsory as to all employers in the group and binding on all unions no matter where located even though they have an overwhelming majority of all employes in the locality as members in the union. For instance, the Longshoremen in the City of Tacoma are members of the A. F. of L. By the decree of the board these employees must be bargained for by the CIO.

"The mere statement of the principle proves its injustice and there is no doubt as to its unlawfulness. Therefore, the compulsory decree will be resisted and will be fought through to a final conclusion."

A LABOR DAY MESAGE

From

HAROLD B. BUTLER

Director of the International Labor Office, Geneva.

In spite of the troubles and uncertainties of the moment, I think there is reason for viewing the future with courage and confidence. Although the last year has seen another recession, another turn in the cycle of prosperity and depression, everything seems to point to it being shorter and shallower than the slump of 1929-32. Many countries have been little affected by it, and even in those which have been hit most there are signs of recovery setting in.

I am glad to think that the relations between the International Labor Organization and the United States have become closer every year. We were happy to welcome the Secretary of Labor at this year's session of the International Labor Conference and were heartened by the news of the ratification of five Maritime Conventions by the United States. But the clearest proof of the big part which the United States is now playing in the world-wide Organization is the appointment of an American, Mr. John G. Winant, as the new Director of the International Labor Office. Mr. Winant will succeed me when I leave at the end of the year. No one could ask for a better successor, and I am glad to think that he will take office at a time when the prestige and standing of the International Labor Organization were never higher.

Among the many regrets which I feel at leaving the office, none is keener than the loss of official contacts with American labor, at whose hands I have received so much help, hospitality and friendliness. I am hoping, however, not to lose touch with the United States, or with my many friends in the labor ranks there, while in the new job which I am taking up in England.

Senator Norris Urges Felix Frankfurter For Supreme Court

WAUPACA, Wis. — Senator George W. Norris has recommended that President Roosevelt appoint Felix Frankfurter to the United States Supreme Court to succeed the late Justice Benjamin Cardozo.

Frankfurter has been a close friend of the President since they sat together on the Labor Policies Board during the World War. He is regarded as one of the country's greatest experts on the science of government and law. He declined an appointment to the Massachusetts Supreme Judicial Court in 1932.

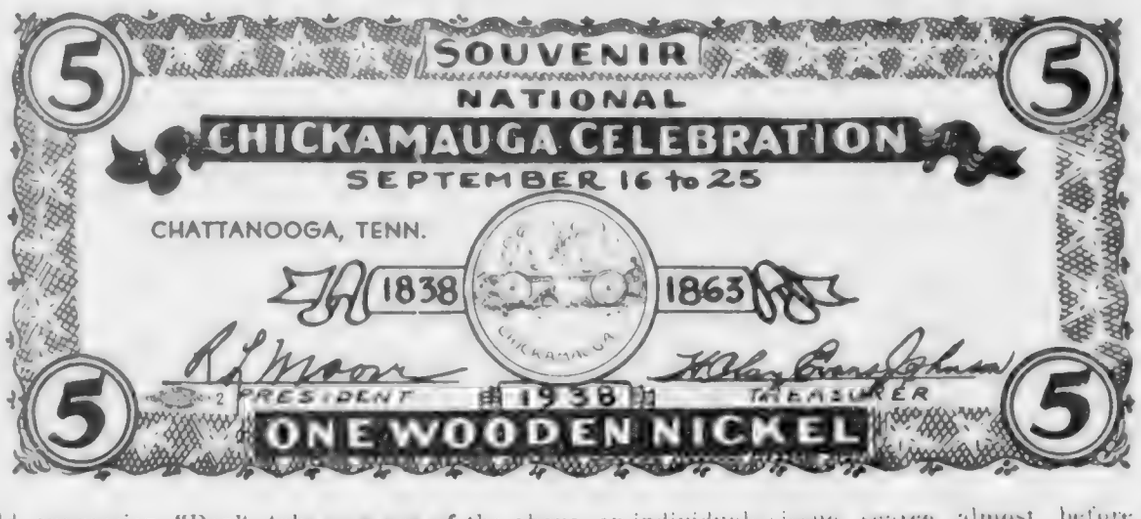
Chickamauga Celebration "Wooden Nickels" Union-Made



The old expression "Don't take any wooden nickels" is no longer the favorite by-word in Chattanooga. Now it's "Have you got a Wooden Nickel?"

It all came about through the efforts of the Chickamauga Celebration Commission to publicize the celebration, which commemorates the 75th anniversary of the battles of Chattanooga, Chickamauga, Missionary Ridge and Lookout Mountain, the centennial of Chattanooga, and the character and history of the Cherokee Indians.

Wooden Nickels have been issued in series, each series commemorating one of the above, or individuals connected with one of the above episodes, and other objects of historical importance to Chattanooga. For instance, John Ross, soldiers of the Confederacy and the U. S. of Civil War days arm in arm, a Cherokee Indian, Brainerd Mission, The General, etc.

The current issue, which is almost sold out, is the Chickamauga issue, printed in a bright red ink, indicative of the red blood that flowed so freely over Chickamauga Battlefield. Each issue is printed in a different color ink. The demand for "sets" is making each issue scarce almost before it is placed on sale.

Wooden Nickels are being produced in the plant of the Angel Printing company, and bear the union label. Henry L. Morris, chairman of the committee handling the distribution of Wooden Nickels, is a member of Pressmen's local No. 165.

Wooden Nickels, while costing 5c each, are fully redeemable up to noon Monday, Sept. 19, 1938, at celebration headquarters, Eighth and Cherry streets. They may be obtained from many Chattanooga merchants, both down-town and in suburban sections.

Labor Day Message From Sec. of Labor Frances Perkins

"Wage-earners of the United States can celebrate Labor day with assurances that their welfare will be promoted, their working conditions improved and their opportunities for profitable employment advanced as a result of passage of the fair labor standards act, the social security act and the national labor relations act, three outstanding laws enacted since March, 1933.

"Marked economic gains have been made which have benefited not only workers but employers and investors as well in the last five and a half years. Weekly factory pay rolls rose from $77,083,000 in March, 1933, to $137,162,000 in July, 1938, a gain of $60,079,000, and in the same period there was an advance in a nonagricultural employment from 25,946,000 to 31,769,000, rise of 5,823,000. Building construction went up from $24,100,000 in March, 1933, to $182,900,000 in July, 1938, an increase of $158,800,000.

"Such advances as these have been in the interest of the well-being of all Americans. They have been accompanied by a feeling of greater security for the future on the part of the worker and his family, thanks to the legislation designed to protect that great mass of our people from economic vicissitudes.

"Passage of the fair labor standards act, since the observance of Labor day, 1937, should be a source of satisfaction to wage-earners and employers all over the country. Putting a floor under wages, a ceiling over hours of work and ending child labor in industries engaged in interstate commerce, it will be the means of increasing the purchasing power of millions of workers in the years to come. This in turn will benefit employers, investors and farmers. The act will also serve as a protection to that great majority of employers who want to maintain decent standards but have been at the mercy of price-cutting competitors in the past.

"It is a pleasure to report such progress to the workers of America upon the day which is so much theirs and to assure them that the United States department of labor, established by the congress to foster, promote and develop the welfare of the wage-earners of the United States, to improve their working conditions and to advance their opportunities for profitable employment, will continue to fulfill its duty in their interest and in that of the nation."

By GEORGE L. GOOGE

Labor day, nineteen hundred thirty-eight, finds the American Federation of Labor more firmly implanted upon southern soil than ever before. It is equally true that the principles, policies and purposes of the American Federation of Labor are more deeply loved by the hosts of labor in the south than ever before. And just as these statements are true, so it is true that the A. F. of L. is held in higher esteem by the public in the south than ever before.

There are good and sufficient reasons why these facts are discernable at this time. During the past year and a half more than 500 new local unions affiliated with the American Federation of Labor have been organized and chartered in the southland, while the already established local unions have added many thousands of new members to their ranks. In the course of the A. F. of L.'s activities, hundreds of agreements have been obtained for the workers in industries, providing increased pay, shorter hours of work and greatly improved working rules.

[illegible] offices of the various federations of labor in the south in the past year and a half. In the course of which the conventions were held in [illegible], Louisiana, Georgia, Arkansas, Tennessee, South Carolina, Mississippi and North Carolina, each showed greatly increased membership, both in affiliated local unions and in membership of those local. Each convention was pronounced the largest and most successful in history. These facts prove conclusively that the American Federation of Labor is more firmly implanted upon southern soil today than ever before.

The matchless loyalty to the labor movement manifested by its members throughout the south, their solidified support of the American Federation of Labor when it was attacked by enemies leading a dual movement, and the sacrificial services rendered the A. F. of L. by the true trades unionists of the south, prove beyond a doubt their deep love for the principles, policies and purposes of this great American Federation of Labor.

The general public has come to recognize the fact that the American Federation of Labor is simply what its name implies—an American federation of the forces of American labor. The people realize for the first time, probably, that the American Federation of Labor has been and is now America's strongest ally and democracy's greatest defender. The public has witnessed the men of the American Federation of Labor standing on the front line trenches, bearing the onrush of the hordes whose leaders boast of our ruin and whose purpose is to destroy the ideals of our fathers.

To the men and women in the ranks of labor belong the glory and the credit for the great advancements made by the American Federation of Labor. The officers of the state federations of labor, the city central labor unions and the local unions, and the membership of these unions, are the ones who constitute the real army of labor. As the southern representative of the American Federation of Labor, I wish to commend the membership of our unions for the glorious fight they have made and the more glorious victory they have won. I congratulate the southland upon having an army of real Americans standing in solid phalanx, such as this great army of American labor, to hold aloft the banner of freedom and lead the fight for the perpetuation of this free country of ours and the preservation of its ideals of democracy.

NLRB Examiner Asks Order Against Ford

Washington.—A national labor relations board examiner has recommended to the board that it order the Ford Motor company to reinstate 400 strikers at its Long Beach, Cal., assembly plant and grant sole bargaining rights to the United Automobile Workers, an affiliate of the CIO.

The examiner, R. N. Denham, ruled that the company had violated the Wagner act by refusing on three different occasions to bargain with the UAW, which, he said, represented a majority of the company's employes.

He recommended that the company be required to withdraw all recognition from the unaffiliated independent auto workers as a collective bargaining agency of its workers and "completely disestablish" the organization "as such representative, either in its present form or in any other form identified with or traceable to its present organization, management or administration."

Denham's report marked the fifth Ford case in which either the board itself or one of its examiners had found the company guilty of vialting the labor relations act.

NATIONAL COUNCIL OF TEXTILE UNIONS FORMED BY A. F. OF L.

Green Says Large Increase in Unions of Textile Workers in the American Federation of Labor Requires a Medium for Joint Action Which the New Group Will Provide.

In announcing the creation of the National Council in the textile industry Mr. Green said:

"The recent rapid growth of the Textile Workers' Unions within the ranks of the American Federation of Labor has made necessary the formation of the National Council, representative of the workers in this industry.

"The purpose of the National Council is to consolidate the outstanding gains made by the American Federation of Labor in the organization of textile workers and to launch a new nation-wide organizing drive among the workers throughout the industry.

"The Council will unify and strengthen the efforts of individual local unions affiliated with the Federation, will serve the unions as a clearing house for information, and will offer a basis for joint action and representation in furthering the common interests of the textile workers on a nation-wide scale.

"The record of union contracts recently negotiated by the American Federation of Labor affiliates in the textile industry have demonstrated the effectiveness of these unions in securing better wages and better working conditions for the textile workers. The National Council, patterned after the councils established by the Federation in a number of other industries, will make possible even more rapid progress than has been shown in the past.

"The New England Division of the National Council, to be headed by Francis P. Fenton, will have its headquarters at Boston, Massachusetts. The Southern Division of the Council, headed by George L. Googe, will maintain its offices in Atlanta, Ga."

AFL Council Considers Questions of Importance

Changes in Labor Relations Act, Social Security Act and Wages and Hours Act Scheduled for Recommendation.

Atlantic City, N. J.—The quarterly meeting of the Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor opened at the Hotel Ambassador here with some of the most important questions affecting the organized labor movement scheduled for consideration and action.

Members of the Executive Council are elated over the substantial increase in A. F of L. membership during the last year despite the business depression. Although the exact membership figures will not be available until the convention meets Oct. 3, it is estimated they will be much larger than 3,271,000 dues-paying members reported to the last convention, as well as a large number of members who do not pay dues.

With regard to the secessionists in the committee for industrial organization, recent events in the political field where indorsement by the CIO of candidates in the primaries has been the "kiss of death" and indorsement by the American Federation of Labor has brought victory are definite indication of the suspicion with which the public regards the political activities of John L. Lewis and his satellites. In the organization field, the dissension that is taking place in the CIO ranks compared with the unity that animates the unions in the American Federation of Labor is an added proof that the position of the A. F. of L. in its controversy with the CIO is solidly based on reason and justice.

Turning to the legislative field, the Executive Council will make definite recommendations toward changing the provisions of the social security act so that its benefits will apply to some economic groups now barred, including agricultural workers and all employes in workshops, mills, mines and factories. In addition, greater simplification and elimination of red tape in connection with the various social security measures will be sought.

With regard to the federal wages and hours law, the Executive Council will outline the amendments the American Federation of Labor supports to bring it up to the standards fixed by the federation, with emphasis laid upon the elimination of geographical differentials.

Finally, the council will take definite action to recommend changes in the national labor relations act to limit the powers of the national labor relations board so that it will be an impartial tribunal instead of a body biased against the American Federation of Labor and in favor of the committee for industrial organization.

The Executive Council consists of President William Green, Secretary-Treasurer Frank Morrison, and the following vice-presidents: Frank Duffy, T. A. Rickert, Matthew Woll, John Coefield, Arthur C. Wharton, Joseph N. Weber, G. M. Bugniazet, George M. Harrison, Daniel T. Tobin, Harry C. Bates, Edward J. Gainor, W. D. Mahon, Felix H. Knight, George E. Browne and Edward W. Flore.

Food Merchants Boost Prices, Perkins Says

Washington.—The power of merchants, landlords and other owners of the necessaries of life to reduce the living standards of working men and women by boosting the prices of goods required in order to live is strikingly revealed in the report by Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins showing that living costs for families of wage-earners and low salaried workers in thirty-two large cities were increased 0.4 per cent during the quarter ended June 15.

The food merchants were especially successful in price boosting. In fifty-one cities they advanced the average price of food products as a whole 2 per cent from March 15 to June 15. In the fields of fresh fruits and vegetables they hit the top by raising prices 15.3 per cent during the three-months' period.

George Berry Says WPA Was Used to Defeat Him In Tennessee Primary

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The Works Progress Administration was used to defeat him in the recent Tennessee Democratic senatorial primary, Senator George L. Berry, on effort, asserted in charges filed with Chairman Sheppard of the Senate committee investigating campaign expenditures.

Tennessee WPA employes were assessed $125,000 in the campaign, Senator Berry declared, asserting that the Tennessee primary involved the "worst kind of gutter politics."

Berry was defeated by Tom Stewart, supported by the Shelby (Memphis) county machine of E. H. Crump.

Berry charged that "thousands of men and women . . . presented themselves to the primary booths, prepared to give vote to support the candidates as requested under the law, but were denied this privilege" and refused permission to vote.

He named Col. Harry S. Berry, state WPA administrator, and Ramsay Ulp, assistant administrator of being in the "the campaign headquarters of the machine bosses in Memphis, in which Stewart was a participant."

Coercion in Washington Charged

Berry suggested that Colonel Berry and Ulp be placed under oath and asked about the $125,000. He directed attention of the committee to the fact that solicitations and purchases were made in the city of Washington among Tennessee employed in the federal service both in and out of the civil service category."

"Visits were made by persons to these workers and the threat of coercion and intimidation was employed in order to secure money, all of which were used in the Democratic primary in behalf of the Crump ticket among which one was a candidate for the Democratic nomination for the senatorship of the United States," Berry said.

He accused the WPA in Tennessee of "selecting persons to accept positions with the WPA who were not in need of employment and who were not subject to relief, but who possessed certain political influences."

"The primary purpose," Berry asserted, "was to gather the influential having political status in Tennessee into a conspiracy to abridge the free and unhampered expression of the people . . . all at the expense of the taxpayers . . ."

WPA Lists Expanded

Berry said that in July "many thousands of men were placed on relief and among them great numbers were placed upon the lists of persons."

"This was when the WPA adjusted wages and expanded its activities in a dozen southern states," he said.

"We could perhaps understand this if the gigantic expansion of WPA projects in Tennessee occurred in the frigid winter months of the year," Berry said. "But it so happened that the expansion of the relief personnel and the reliefers occurred in the month of July during the heat of a so-called democratic primary. . . ."

"Immediately prior to the primary . . . WPA checks were sent to Tennessee and received by persons who had not contributed nor had been previously employed in WPA duties and activities. . . ."

How about a family picnic in the country? There's such a spirit of high adventure to be had in the open spaces . . . Following the banks of a wandering stream; loafing along some half-hidden bypath. Or searching for one of the "Indian trails" you favored as a boy.

Besides the fun in such a frolic for the whole family, the fresh air and exercise likely will give you an appetite you'd forgotten could exist . . . By lunch time the entire party will be ready to light into the basket that only Mother can fill . . . Naming of Negroes To Wage-Hour Act Boards Is Urged

New York City.—Appointment of colored people to the national and local administrative boards which will be set up to administer the federal wages and hours bill was urged upon Administrator Elmer F. Andrews, administrator of the law, by the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

In a letter addressed to Andrews, William Pickens, director of branches for the association, said:

"If these colored workers are to be included, for the sake of the entire program, some special attention will have to be given to the local administration of that law in the ex-slave states."

Asserting that "wages and hours discrimination" against colored workers will, in the final analysis, stop effective operation of the law, Pickens said that the only effective guarantee against discrimination is "that colored men should be members of the local committees which administer this law."

"We should start," he advised the administrator, "by setting them a good example: by putting Negroes in positions in the national administration of this law. Then we should require that local administration include Negro workers on the basis of their percentage of the whole number of workers."

PHOTO-ENGRAVERS UNION PAYS MILLION DOLLARS ANNUALLY TO IDLE MEMBERS

Houston, Tex.—The importance which national and international unions affiliated with the American Federation of Labor attach to protecting their members from suffering because of lack of employment is revealed in the report of the officers of the International Photo-Engravers Union to its 39th annual convention here that the union pays its out-of-work members approximately $1,000,000 per year in unemployment benefits, the significance of which is recognized when considering that photo engraving is a small industry, and that although more than 95 per cent organized, the union is composed of but 10,000 members.

In addition to unemployment benefits the union carries on a considerable number of other welfare activities, including sickness and death benefits.

Reports of the officers indicated that approximately 25 per cent of the members are at present employed on a 35-hour week standard, 45 per cent on a 37½-hour week, and the balance on a 40-hour basis. Approximately 90 per cent have secured a five-day week.

Dr. Jerome Davis Again Heads Teachers' Union

The federation elected the New York organizer by 92 votes over Lucile Horsch, of Chicago. A Chicago man, backing Miss Horsch, had sought to defeat Davis and his slate. The vote was Davis, 366; Horsch, 274.

The delegates adopted resolutions supporting the Loyalist cause in Spain, asking the Pennsylvania legislature to kill a bill for immediate dismissal of married women teachers and urging the Committee for Industrial Organization and the American Federation of Labor to settle their differences.

More than 500 delegates, from 250 communities, attended the convention. Membership has more than doubled in the last two years officers reported.

Speakers included Mrs. Elsie B. Parker, president of the National Teachers' Union of Great Britain, who was a fraternal delegate representing the 150,000 members of her union.

A. F. of L. Finds Employment Gaining

Washington, D. C.—Latest unemployment reports of the American Federation of Labor estimates June unemployment at 11,445,454, highest since January, 1935, but reports from trade unions since June indicate an increase in employment. Trade union members have reported increasing employment ever since March this year, although in industry as a whole definite jobs increases have not yet appeared, the Federation says.

"Although it is still too early to say that business has definitely turned upward, the increasing reports of growing business confidence, larger sales, and price improvement all add to the evidence shown by the rising trade union employment," the federation comments.

"Barring some unexpected reversal, business should be better by fall. Employment gains are awaited by industrial buyers, who will not place advance orders until they are sure consumer income is high enough to buy the goods."

Convict Held Entitled to Out of Work Benefits Prior to Incarceration

Albany, N. Y.—To John J. Haley, Jr. convict at Attica prison, New York state, will pay any unemployment insurance benefits to which he may be entitled for unemployment prior to his arrest and jailing.

Haley may not claim benefits, however, for his "unemployment" while in custody.

This question, clarified by officials of the division of placement and unemployment insurance, state department of labor, was raised in Binghampton in connection with Haley's claim to benefits in spite of his incarceration. A former tailor's helper, Haley was sentenced June 1 to serve from 15 years ot life. He was convicted as a fourth offender on a third degree burglary indictment, after he and two companions broke into a Binghampton store.

At the time of his arrest, Haley claims, unemployment insurance benefits for previous weeks were due him. This case is similar to a number that have arisen since the first of the year, it was said. In each case, the test of an eligible applicant's right to benefits for any particular week is whether during that week he was (a) totally unemployed, and (b) capable of and available for employment.

"Haley cannot under any circumstances receive benefits for any of the weeks he has been in custody," it was said, "because he has not been 'available for employment.' However, he may, while incustody, receive overdue benefits for weeks prior to his incarceration."

July Job Placements In Gain Over June

Washington.—Public employment officesmade 226,855 job placements in July, of which 156,042 were with private employers, Secretary of Labor Perkins announces.

She said the daily rate of private placements was 1.7 per cent higher than in June, and that this was the first time since 1935 when an increase in the daily rate has been noted from June to July.

Gains in the rate of private placements were reported in thirty-one states.

Take It or Leave It

Points of View Picked Up From Various Sources
CY KOLOGY, EDITOR

To the ordinary man on the street, "revolution" is a scare-word. To the more radically minded it is one of the holy words without which he cannot do his regular thinking.

The form of the word comes from the mechanical world, where it just refers to and describes the familiar motion of wheels—turning over, again and again. Since we are not well supplied with words for all sorts of thinking, we take these mechanical words and apply them to psychological, social, political conceptions. The results are, of course, somewhat misleading.

Americans ought to be used to revolutions by this time. We even have the Daughters of the Revolution, one of the spiffiest and stiffest of our high-brow sets, to whom any suggestion of social or political change is anathema.

We could not very well help starting our history with a revolution, but the "Daughters" have transmogrified all that into something sweetly traditional, ladylike and holy.

Oh, well, we shall be having some more of them, but they probably will not be of the old European type, with barricades in the streets, and the like.

When we have folks shot down in the streets nowadays, it is usually just a bunch of gunmen broken loose, either on their own job of sticking up a bank, or in the employ of some steel or other corporation trying to scare off wives and children of strikers.

Socialists, and now the communists, used to have the idea of a world-revolution, which was quite the biggest thing you could think of up to that time. Anything they could conjure up was probably not to be compared with the present horrible mess in China.

But the general idea, based upon the thought that economic freedom was impossible in any one country unless all other countries had the same, has pretty well broken down now, especially in Russia—supposedly the headquarters now of all laboratory practice in that direction.

But some of our statesmen are still watching the bogeyman of this ghost, and seem not to understand the impossibility of starting any revolutions in this country over something which happened in Russia in 1917 and the years following.

Still others, notably some of our single-track minded industrial managers, seem not to understand that they have been furnishing the makings of a real uprising, aiming at changing some of their practices.

Liberty is not just the French lady wearing a red beret. It is something which comes to people's minds under many circumstances. In this country just now, liberty for the mass of the working people represents the right to organize their own unions without any butting in from the boss or his stooges.

Whenever people have thought it necessary to have the barricade and battle program in their struggles for liberty, always it became necessary afterwards to sit down in cool blood around a table, or something, and work out the details of how it would work.

In this country, we have been trying to do the round-table stuff before the barricades became necessary. That is the meaning of the Wagner labor act.

And just as soon as the Girdlers and Fords and their like get it through their heads that the revolution has already taken place and they will have to catch up with the procession, we shall go on quietly, practicing the motions which are necessary to the realization of our little revolutionary idea of the freedom of labor.

OVER 40,000,000 SEEK TO REGISTER FOR OLD-AGE INSURANCE BENEFITS

Washington.—With 40,097,446 applicants for old-age insurance account numbers on file as of July 31, the social security board reports that it certified for payment during twenty-five working days of July, 14,990 old-age insurance claims amounting to $785,662.

In order to pass the 40,000,000 application mark, the board received a total of 532,289 new requests for account numbers in July. The July, 1938, account card total is an increase of 8,236,378 applications over the 31,861,068 total as of July 31, 1937.

More than half of the claims certified in July—8,893—were filed by the heirs or representatives of the estates of wage-earners who hav died; single cash payments to these claimants averaged $50.39. The remainder of the claims came from wage-earners who had reached the age of 65.

More than 184,600 claims for single cash benefits, with a value of about $6,700,000, have been certified since the federal old-age insurance program became effective on Jan. 1, 1937.

Atlantic City, N. J.—The American Federation of Labor will have nothing to do with the "Latin-American Trade Union Congress" opening at Mexico City on Sept. 5, President William Green, of the federation, declared here in denouncing the "congress" as communistic.

He said that he had refused an invitation to attend "because I hear that the CIO will be represented there and, it is reported to me that those at the conference are extreme leftists. I regard it as a meeting of leftists and communists."

The meeting, he said, had been called to set up a new Pan-American labor organization in competition with the Pan-American Federation of Labor established 20 years ago by Samuel Gompers. He said a meeting of the A. F. of L.'s Pan-American organization probably would be called soon.

Green said he had advised the federation's executive council, meeting here in quarterly session, that he was declining the invitation sent by Vincente Lombardo Toledano, secretary of the Confederation of Mexican Workers.

Green said the International Federation of Trade Unions had shown little sympathy with the Mexico City meeting. He added that the entire executive committee of the I. F. T. U. had been invited to attend, but that only two members accepted.

Wisdom

I want the people to come and take possession of their own premises; for I hold that the government belongs to the people, and that they have a right to that intimate access to it which will determine every turn of its policy.—Woodrow Wilson

If the energy wasted in grumbling were spent in action, man's service to the world would be greatly increased.

The Challenge of Labor Day

Organized Labor, Looking Back on Glorious Heritage, Stands Poised for Flight Even to Higher Eminence in National Life.

By W. I. NEWMAN

[illegible] Monday of September [illegible] Labor day, and as a [illegible] holiday. The first enactment of this sort was by the congress but it applied only to the District of Columbia. Following [illegible] and beginning at the extreme west coast in Oregon, the states gradually fell in line, until by the first decade in the new century every state in the Union had made it official holiday of the day of rest.

Day for Review of Past.

[illegible] not merely the universal recognition that it may some day [illegible] have — Americans are [illegible] about anyway about [illegible] but day is important to organized labor for the purpose of presenting the traditions of the American labor movement.

It is a day for the review of history; for looking back to the traditions of early leaders; for the rehearsing of the principles of thought and action which have come to be regarded as part of the heritage of the American labor movement.

Labor in America has something to celebrate.

It has its records of patient, intelligent and dogged struggle against odds. It has its record of victories, against armed forces hired by employers, or those illegally diverted from purposes of government to the suppression of free speech and free organization.

High Position Achieved.

It has written its name high in the schools of legislation. It has seen the courts, up to the highest of the land, change their point of view with respect to the place of the workers in the economy of the national industrial life. And it has achieved a point of eminence in the political powers of the nation.

It harks back to the dogma of Samuel Gompers, when he said: "Labor is not a commodity." And it has made that dogma effective, not by the mere words written into legislative enactments — for these proved to be of little value, but by the stern determination of its solid ranks and its vigilant leaders in meeting the narrow-minded and unscrupulous attacks of unintelligent managers of industry.

Objective Not Yet Won

But we must not spend this day in mere glorification of the past. It must serve us this year as a place from which to take off for higher flights. Labor has not reached the end of its purposes. It may be said to have entered the second phase of its existence. The first phase was that in which it struggled painfully but stubbornly for the mere right to organize. This right has now been engraved upon the law of the land, and validated by the highest courts.

The next phase is evidently one in which orpanized labor takes its place consciously among the effective factors of national social control. From now on, if organized labor maintains its present place, it will be having its word to say and its will to put into effect, with reference to all important matters which affect the national life. It cannot be otherwise; for the workers of the nation make up the great majority of its citizens, with the power of the ballot in their hands; and they also make up the vast majority of those whose consuming power, measured by their buying capacity, make possible the even flow of the processes of production in the wealthiest nation on earth.

Higher Place to Be Won.

We have traditions, of which we are to be proud. We have records which must be preserved. We have accomplishments, which are the measure of our present place in the nation.

But we have also objectives which reach away into the future, and which rise through mists of uncertainty, into the sunshine above our coming life. These objectives we shall come to understand more thoroughly, in proportion as we use the powers handed down to us by our early leaders, and those more recently gained by our own clean and intelligent cooperation.

One of the stock arguments against efforts of the government to improve economic conditions is: "You can't make water run up hill." When the first inventor started working on a pump, the ancestor of the present-day economic expert came around to tell him, "You can't make water run up hill." If the inventor had listened to that sage advice, there would have been no pump.

Water can be made to run uphill. The government, by taxation, supervision of money and credit conditions, and judicious spending, draws money from stagnant pools and makes it run up hill into the springs that feed the fresh clear streams of business, industry and economic prosperity. "Priming the pump" is nothing new; we have been doing it ever since we invented modern banking and currency mediums. The question is: How far have we gone and how far will we eventually go?

Model Accounting System for County Published by U.T.

KNOXVILLE.—A model accounting system "made-to-order" for Tennessee counties is published in the current issue of the University of Tennessee Record, written by a U. T. professor of accounting after a six months' investigation of systems used in the various counties. It is being sent to selected county officials, and is available to others upon request.

The accounting manual is the result of a project launched last year by the U. T. Research Council, and assigned to Prof. W. Harold Read. In studying the financial structure of the counties, Mr. Read's purpose was to provide a modern uniform system of accounting and budgetary control applicable under present Tennessee laws, without change of the county organization.

"In no case was it found that Tennessee counties were making the best use of a modern and up-to-date accounting system," said Mr. Read in the preface to the new manual. Though the state and many Tennessee municipalities have improved their accounting systems during recent years, counties continue recording financial transactions by the same methods used in the "horse and buggy days," he added.

"It is hoped that this manual will serve as a basis for establishing a centralized system of uniform accounts throughout Tennessee counties. It is believed that county officials will welcome the chance to improve their accounting methods and thus render better service to their county."

In the manual Mr. Read explains in detail, with many illustrations, the essential financial organization, financial statements and reports, accounting records, and the procedures for budgetary control, purchasing, issuing the payroll, and auditing under a "model" system.

"At all times, an effort has been made to secure the utmost simplicity in method that is possible considering the desired results," he explained. "However, under the complicated system of decentralized county government which exists in Tennessee, it has been somewhat difficult to retain simplicity and still provide a centralized system for the government as a whole."

Mr. Read accomplishes centralization in his system by setting up a method of strict budgetary control, naming the county judge chief executive. "It is not proposed that any of the offices now existing be abolished or that their work be curtailed and transferred. The system merely brings together in one place the mass of financial information concerning county affairs that has formerly been scattered through several offices," he explained.

CARDUI

In this modern time something wonderfully worth while can be done for practically every woman who suffers from functional pains of menstruation. Certain cases can be relieved by taking Cardui. Others may need a physician's treatment.

Cardui has two widely demonstrated uses: (1) To ease the immediate pain and nervousness of the monthly period; and (2) to aid in building up the whole system by helping women to get more strength from their food.

CORDIAL LABOR DAY Greetings!

FOR 34 years our East Chattanooga store has enjoyed the friendship and continued patronage of union workers, and we have come to value this friendship greatly. We have endeavored to earn it. We give preference to union labels because we are in sympathy with efforts to gain better pay and hours for workers.

In taking over the former Roberts store at 812 Market street, we acquired still more union label lines. We hope union workers will extend to this new store the fine relations we have enjoyed in East Chattanooga.

"THE WORKING MAN'S FRIEND"

THAT'S NOT a mere slogan with us—it's the guiding principle of our business, the main-spring of our forward progress to leadership in Chattanooga. No business has a more important part in the task of creating human happiness than the furniture store — for happiness begins and remains in the home life of our nation.

In order that people of moderate means may enjoy the maximum of comforts in the home, the furniture dealer must watch many expense factors in providing them. Extravagant merchandising limits the purchases of people who earn moderate incomes — the working man. Our two great stores represent modest rentals, though they are conveniently located. Our system of buying gets for you the best merchandise at the lowest cost. Our credit system is so liberal and helpful that you can furnish your home completely on payments so small that you find it no burden to have the best in your home. The savings we make are passed on to our customers. Really, you can do better at CLARK BROS. than anywhere else.

We cordially wish for our friends an enjoyable and memorable LABOR DAY celebration.

SAVE THE CHILDREN!

By DR. CHARLES STELZLE

Executor Director, Good Neiihbor League.

Nature starts all her children, rich and poor, physically equal. This, broadly speaking, is the opinion of many leading physicians. If the number of children born healthy and strong is not greater among the well-to-do classes than among the poorest, then it presents to us a very significant fact which completely revolutionizes many notions as to the great disadvantage of being born in the tenement.

What happens to the tenement child after its birth is quite another story. Nature is not responsible for that. She has done her best. If poverty and indifference or ignorance of sin blight her fair work, she stands uncondemned. But nature is not content to accept a position in which she is simply exonerated. The violation of her law is followed by an unforgiving pursuit, until the full penalty has been inflicted, for with nature there is no forgiveness of sin. And nature makes no class distinctions.

This equality at birth does not favor the child of the slum and the tenement. Vital statistics quickly prove this statement, for the burden and the penalty of poverty and its accompanying evils fall most heavily upon the child. The lack of proper nourishment, of healthy sanitary conditions, of adequate medical care, make life precarious for the babe who must suffer on account of their absence.

When such a state becomes chronic, the chances for life are exceedingly small. Death's scythe sweeps relentlessly through the ranks of little children, whose cries and pain and discomfort chill a thousand mothers' hearts. Then are nursed a thousand babies' voices, who suffered long because there was no skillful hand to relieve, and no healing draught to cure. And in these suffocating days in our big cities, hundreds pass out because of the inability of the poor to buy a chunk of ice which would cool the fevered bodies of little children, or keep fresh and wholesome the food and drink upon which their lives depend.

There is no battle more royal than the saving of the child. To bring color to the wan cheek, to bring brightness to the dulled eye, to so much as bring a smile to the face that already bears the mark of pain and suffering this is a task worthy of the best there is in any man.

To organized labor has this task been given. The "wages and hours bill" will do much to save the lives of little children, but it covers only those children engaged in "interstate commerce." Children employed in local trades and services who constitute nearly three-fourths of the total number of minors employed in the United States are not covered by the law. It is in these areas that organized labor may function.

Depends.

Dad—It all depends on how close he comes to me, my boy.

YOUR DOLLAR

YOUR DOLLAR will be a regular monthly feature. The facts and opinions given are based on the monthly reports of Consumers' Union, 55 Vandam Street, New York City, a non-profit membership organization [illegible] goods. Note especially the information on labor conditions under which products are manufactured.

Sneakers

Consumers Union subjected sneakers to a series of tests of soles, uppers, toe guards and insoles, to see which sneakers would last longest in normal wear. All samples were torn apart and the construction carefully examined. The following findings emerged:

Uncolored gum rubber soles give better wear than brown and black molded soles. Sponge rubber insoles are preferable to thin cotton lined ones, and toe guards must be prodded, not merely looked at, to make sure they are thick enough to give protection. Firmly woven, well constructed uppers are more durable, but may not be as cool as cheaper, loosely woven grades.

Penco Air Cooled sneakers, sold for 98c, will give longer service than the widely advertised Keds Speedway at $1.49, the tests indicate. The entire list of 12 tested sneakers, with brand name ratings, appears in the August Consumers Union Reports.

Tobacco "Cures"

No magic formula will reform the heavy smoker, CU's medical advisors find. "Cures" now on the market are of two main types—silver nitrate solution like Kill-Tobac which makes the taste of smoke unbearable, and nicotine substitutes such as lobeline sulfate. Either type is dangerous and is effective, if at all, only during the actual period of use. Like most patent medicines they are sold by means of false claims, in fancy packages, at many times the cost of manufacture.

The only way to stop smoking is to stop smoking—increase the time between smokes and gradually discontinue the habit.

Union-Made Cigarettes

How to stay on relief though working is the problem solved by many tobacco workers of Virginia and North Carolina. Nearly half of those on the relief rolls during 1934 received such low wages that they had to draw relief even while on the tobacco payroll. One hundred and forty-four dollars was the average yearly earning of the group studied, for the 91 days during the year they could get work.

Wages throughout the industry averaged $705 that year, a labor department survey showed. That's far below a decent living standard. Yet the tobacco monopolists, meeting last month at White Sulphur Springs, must have thought it high, for they're mapping a campaign to evade even the $10 weekly minimum wage required under the Wages and Hours Law.

A number of the smaller companies are unionized. The following cigarettes carry the Tobacco Workers International Union (A. F. of L.) and Printers Union labels:

"I can't smoke 10c brands," many smokers object. Don't let advertising fool you. Consumers Union's blindfold tests have proved that the average smoker not only can't tell the difference between 10c and 15c brands, but can't even pick the same brand twice running in a test of five cigarettes. Union-made cigarettes include both 10c and 15c brands, in a variety of blends and flavors. You can save money and support labor by choosing a 10c union brand every time you buy.

San Francisco. The 29th general convention of the Hotel and Restaurant Employes' International Alliance and the Bartenders' International League of America was adjourned on Aug. 20 following the re-election of General President Edward Flore, of Buffalo, N. Y.

Robert B. Hesketh was re-elected secretary-treasurer, a position he has held for ten years, by acclamation.

In a three-way contest for two places on the general executive board designated for women, Kitty Amsler, of St. Louis, an incumbent, was defeated by Bee Tumbler, of Santa Barbara, Cal., and Oliza Moore, of Tacoma, Wash.

Steel Co. Accused Of Unfair Labor Practices

Washington.—The Steel Workers' organizing committee has filed with the national labor relations board renewed charges of unfair labor practices against the Youngstown Sheet & Tube company. The company is accused of maintaining company unions in its plants, of blacklisting 225 workers after the Little Steel strike, of discrimination against other union workers, of the use of threats, espionage and violence against union members, of refusal to bargain collectively, and of conspiring with public officials and vigilantes to break the SWOC.

The NLRB is asked to order the dissolution of company unions, and the reinstatement of blacklisted workers with pay.

SILAS WILLIAMS ADAMANT AS HE BLUNTLY REFUSES TO DISCUSS PEACE TERMS

Evidently Determined to Batter Down Employes the "1917 Way" — Union's Peace Offer Rejected.

Although striking members of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, numbering more than 500, have offered to return to work immediately upon assent of the Tennessee Electric Power company to a conference to discuss an agreement for the membership, Mr. Silas Williams, attorney for the company, grimly refuses to discuss anything less than abject surrender.

Many months ago the power company signed an agreement with a CIO unit at Hale's Bar, affecting approximately 70 employes. Today, the IBEW, an AFL organization, has a membership of over 500, but TEPCO refuses to enter into negotiation.

Despite the fact that the union is asking for an agreement for its members only, the company, through Mr. Williams, maintains that it has nothing to discuss.

The strike, now in its third week, finds most of the linemen in the system holding firm, with the state being overrun with armed and imported "guards," according to reports. In some instances strikers have been shanghaied without warrants and held incommunicado for many hours for "questioning."

Service in many parts of the state has broken down. In Chattanooga this week two husky nonstrikers were reported as being beaten up by two small strikers with corn cobs. "Pooey faces" were not used in the fray, which probably accounted for lack of fatality.

A special meeting of the Chattanooga Central Labor union was held last Thursday evening for the purpose of hearing a complete story of the situation. The delegates resolved to back the linemen to the fullest extent and condemned the attitude of Mr. Silas Williams.

At its meeting last Sunday, the Typographical union sent the following letter to the linemen:

> At our regular meeting Sunday afternoon Chattanooga Typographical union instructed me to convey to your organization assurances of our deep sympathy with the electrical workers in their efforts to secure a contract with the Tennessee Electric Power company.
>
> Our members will gladly co-operate with you in any way possible and will not, of course, purchase any equipment from the power company until this strike has been properly settled.
>
> If we can be of service to you it will afford us great pleasure to help in any way possible.
>
> With best wishes for a successful conclusion of the present difficulty, we are,
>
> Fraternally,

CLU President Arrested By Private "Dick"

Charged With "Trespassing" on Property Next to Struck Bakery.

Late Wednesday evening two men, said to be employes of the Boedecker Detective agency, assaulted Curtis R. Sims, president of Central Body and business agent for Local 25, Bakery Workers.

The two gun-bearers are said to be Joe Paradiso and a fellow named Rich. Paradiso is a former city detective, retired because of health.

The outrage was committeed as Sims was on railroad property, without objection from the railroad. The property adjoins the non-union Chattanooga Bakery. While Sims was walking peacefully by the two men stuck guns in his ribs and kicked him. Thereupon they took him to city jail and booked him for "trespassing." It is reported that the two guards were hired by the bakery.

Sims' trial was set for Tuesday, Sept. 13.

No one at police headquarters seemed to know if the two detectives had commissions or permission to carry guns.

SEARS ROEBUCK OFFICIAL HEADS TEXTILE PAY UNIT

Washington.—Elmer F. Andrews, administrator of the fair standards labor act, named Donald Nelson, vice-president of Sears Roebuck & Co., Chicago, chairman of an industry committee to study wages in the textile industry and recommend to the administrator the highest minimum wage, within the boundaries set by the act, which the committee finds the industry can pay without substantially decreasing unemployment.

The act stipulates that each industry committee shall consist of an equal number, respectively, of representatives of the public, the employers, and the employes. The chairman of the committee is one of the three representatives of the public.

Bakery Injunction Hearing Postponed

Typographical Union Donates to Strikers and Offers Sympathy.

At its meeting last Sunday, Chattanooga Typographical Union sent a message of cheer to the striking bakery workers in the Chattanooga Bakery, accompanied by a check for $25 to assist them.

The strike was caused by refusal of the management to negotiate an agreement with its employes who had organized a union. Wages in this plant are said to be lower than anywhere in the south.

Hearing on a temporary injunction before Chancellor J. Lon Foust was postponed to an indefinite date. It is believed that there is a possibility that the company will negotiate with the union in the next few days.

The letter from the Typographical union follows:

> Chattanooga Typographical union instructed me, as secretary, to thank you for appearing before our local Sunday and explaining the details of the strike of members of your union now in progress at the plants of the Chattanooga Bakery.
>
> You may rest assured that you have the unqualified support of the Typographical union in this battle for decent wages and working conditions.
>
> The Typographical union is enclosing its check for $25 in the hope that this small sum will help in caring for those on strike.
>
> With best wishes for a speedy termination of the strike and the establishment of decent wages and working conditions at the Chattanooga Bakery plants, we are,

Mr. Horner has a background of many years in active service of the organization, having held numerous offices in Local No. 5, N. F. P. O. C., of Nashville and in the Tennessee State Federation of Post Office Clerks, which he was instrumental in organizing. Since 1935 he has been a national vice-president and member of the executive committee. He is a graduate lawyer and a member of the Tennessee bar.

UNIONS PUSHING MOVEMENT FOR ROOSEVELT THIRD TERM

Daytona Beach, Fla.—John Latour, president of the Daytona Beach Central Labor union, has left for Washington to confer with Chairman Farley, of the Democratic national committee, on the union's drive for a third term for President Roosevelt. Latour said he expected to discuss the movement with New York and Philadelphia labor leaders before returning.

FREY DECLARES A. F. OF L. STRONGER THAN EVER BEFORE IN LABOR DAY SPEECH HERE

Climaxing a full program lasting all day, John P. Frey, president of the Metal Trades department of the American Federation of Labor, and a member of the executive council of the AFL, proclaimed that the American Federation of Labor today is stronger than ever before.

Mr. Frey's speech follows:

JOHN P. FREY

The privilege of addressing you today carries with it a deep sense of responsibility. There never has been a time when it was more necessary for labor to know the truth, and intelligently understand the problems which face it.

The world is in turmoil; issues which did not exist a generation ago have created division between the nations; free institutions have been challenged by dictatorships.

Even in our country there are those who scoff at government of the people, for the people, by the people. The ferment in men's minds as a result of the World war, the clash of new ideas and of new policies, have made themselves felt in all human activities.

In the same manner as we have seen one nation conquered by another without a formal declaration of war, we are seeing efforts made to reconstruct our trade union movement, and to invade and attack it.

In much the same manner as we have seen the democracies of the world attacked by the dictator-controlled countries, we have seen our American trade union movement attacked from within as well as from without.

The principal attack upon the American trade union movement has come within the last three years. It was a movement launched by officers of some ten international unions who had been affiliated with the American Federation of Labor for many years.

It was assisted from without by governmental agencies, one of these being the national labor relations board.

It was supported until a year ago by a large portion of the American press, and by many of those whose knowledge of the trade union movement was from what they had read and heard, instead of from what they had learned through personal contact and personal experiences.

It is important to know how the American Federation of Labor has stood up under the attacks. Is it stronger than ever before, or has it lost ground?

It must be a matter of pride for American trade unionists to realize that the American Federation of Labor was never in a stronger position than at present; that its membership is larger; its standing with employers better, or its approval by the American public more general.

It is not the first time that we have been forced to defend the form of organization, and the principles and the policies which have been our guide.

It is the first time we have been attacked from within.

What is our form of organization?

From the beginning of the American Federation of Labor it

Judd Company Signs Contract

Men Return to Work Tuesday—Closed Shop Retained.

The H. L. Judd company last Saturday signed an agreement which terminated the one-week strike called by Local 1882, United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners.

The controversy developed after many months failure to renew an existing agreement which had expired. The closed shop continues in the contract, with other improvements of working conditions.

Newcomb Barco, federal conciliator, served actively in his official capacity and was instrumental in getting both parties together.

One hundred and forty men were involved.

Freedom for Mooney Predicted Soon

SAN FRANCISCO. — Freedom within six months for Tom Mooney, convicted on what is said to have been perjured evidence of complicity in the San Francisco Preparedness Day parade bombing of 1916, was predicted here by Representative J. J. O'Connell of Montana and George Davis, attorney for Mooney.

Release will come either by action of the United States Supreme Court or through a gubernatorial pardon, declared the pair, who spoke at the twenty-second annual Mooney-Billings protest meeting.

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 9, 1938

What Could Be Clearer?

Every week since the strike of the membership of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers in the Tennessee Electric Power company system, The Labor World has clearly defined the reasons for the strike, and the simple procedure necessary to end the strike.

Similar statements have been given several times each week in all of the daily papers.

The strike was not caused by failure of the union and the company to come to an agreement on certain clauses or parts of negotiations.

The strike was caused by refusal of the company to even consider an agreement at all. Yet, a short time previous the company did sign an agreement with the CIO at Hales Bar, involving approximately 70 men. The IBEW has over 500 membership.

The IBEW is not asking for a closed shop. They simply ask for an agreement involving its members only

Such an agreement would not force any non-member to join the IBEW. It would not involve the CIO.

Although wages paid here are much too low, the strike was not called because of wages—the union was not given opportunity of a conference to discuss wages

How can the strike be settled?

Every striker will go back to his job within two hours' time if

The company will merely set a date in the near future for a conference to discuss some sort of an agreement with the IBEW membership.

Nothing complicated about this, is there? Nothing unreasonable? Nothing more than the federal government has admitted as a right of every American worker? Nothing more than TEPCO has already granted to CIO?

Now let there be peace. But not the Herr Hitler type of peace.

Following Wrong Track

Everything comes to him who waits. But labor is getting a little tired waiting for little business to snap out of its trance.

Here are the business men who depend upon the pocketbook capacity of the workers for their potential profits, if not for their very existence.

But you find them too often running with the bankers and big employers.

The Commerce Department of the government has been publishing a lot of statistics lately, the substance of which is, that people who have no money cannot buy anything. (It is almost funny to see the way they put that down in long columns of figures.)

The kind of goods which are bought by those having incomes of $1,000 a year are quite different from the purchases of those receiving $2,500 a year. (You would think that needed no arithmetic to support the statement.)

And when you get up to the $5,000 a year folks, why they begin buying so-called "durable" goods—which means automobiles (new ones), lectric refrigerators, house conditioning for heat and cold, etc.

If, in the face of these figures, little business men continue and persist in sticking up for the policy of "cutting wages to make business better," they deserve to be financially hung, drawn and quartered, as they have always been by the big business guys.

"Wages" In New Jersey

At least 100,000 women and minors "gainfully" employed in New Jersey are getting less than a bare subsistence wages. The total number of women and minors employed in that state is estimated at from 170,000 to 200,000. And 35,000 of them are earning less than $5 a week.

This is a report of a survey of conditions by John J. Toohey, state labor commissioner. To carry down to still blacker depths, there are payrolls filed at the U. S. Department of Labor showing women and girls working for 5 cents an hour in New Jersey. Sometimes for even less; one girl was engaged at the almost microscopic pay of one and one-quarter cents per hour.

New Jersey has had a minimum wage law for women for five years; but it is not enforced. Appropriations are kept so small that it cannot be enforced.

It is quite evident that New Jerseys unorganized women workers, like those of many other states, need the protection of the new federal wages and hours law. Also, they need enforcement of state laws to protect workers in local industries not under jurisdiction of the federal law.

Interstate Fair Opens Sept. 19

Six big days that promise to be both educational and entertaining are in store for Chattanoogans when the Interstate fair opens its gates at Warner park on Sept. 19.

With the launching of this year's exhibition, President Joe Engel will be making his debut as head of the fair association and the program and entertainment bear the mark of Engel's showmanship.

A well-balanced program has been arranged for the 1938 fair with many innovations and new departments not seen here before. Increasing of the premium list to $7,160 in cash prizes and purses, along with bumper crops in the tri-states area, is expected to result in one of the most outstanding agricultural displays ever. There will also be departments for 4-H club boys and girls and future farmers of America. A poultry show will bring to Chattanooga some of the finest birds in this vicinity and entries for this year's rabbit show will come from Connecticut, Indiana and Oklahoma, as well as locally produced breeds.

In the woman's department cash prizes will be offered for the best cooking exhibits, canning, preserving and pickles, as well as the best articles of handcraft. A flower show open to all will be another feature of the woman's department.

New departments planned for this year's fair will include a candid camera department open to both novice and advanced amateur photographers, a racing pigeon show and plaque exhibit.

On the entertainment side President Engel has arranged four big days of horse racing that will bring to Chattanooga some of the fastest horses in the circuit. A total of $2,400 in purses has been put up and the Warner park track is in the best condition ever.

The Johnny J. Jones shows, with new shows and thrilling rides, will furnish the midway attractions. There will be two free acts daily featuring the four sensational Wishards, somersaulting aerialists, and "Elmer's Comic Cow," comedy act.

A spectacular display of fireworks have been arranged for every night which with the fireworks planned by the "Drums of Dixie" celebration will give to Chattanoogans one of the biggest displays ever.

The fair will be going at the same time as the "Drums of Dixie" celebration and a ticket to the celebration will admit one to the fair.

The vigilantes, company cops and others trying to squirm their way through Senator La Follette's cross examination might, if they knew enough, be reciting two lines from Old Walter Scott:

"O, what a tangled web we weave
When first we practice to deceive!"

NEW YORK NAMES WAGE BOARD FOR CONFECTIONERY INDUSTRY

New York City. — Industrial Commissioner Elmer F. Andrews has announced the appointment of a wage board for the confectionery industry, consisting of nine members representing the employers, the employes and the general public.

The employe members of the board are Miss Edith Christensen, New York City, a member of the Women's Trade Union league, and two candy workers, Miss Agnes Duncan, Oswego, and Miss Anna Rizzo, New York City.

It is estimated that 6,397 candy workers employed in 257 plants in the state will be affected by the deliberations of the board.

This is the third wage board to be appointed since the enactment of the new minimum wage law in 1937. The first was for the laundry industry and the second for the beauty shops. The recommendations of the laundry wage board resulted in the issuance of a minimum wage order for the laundry industry last March. The beauty shop wage board recommended a weekly minimum wage of $16.50 for 45 hours, which went into effect on Aug. 1.

St. Louis Traction Workers Get Pay Raise and Pension

ST. LOUIS.—Negotiations between the Amalgamated Association of Street, Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employes of America and the Public Service Company resulted in an agreement providing wage increases and a pension plan for St. Louis traction workers. Terms of the settlement are subject to ratification by Federal Judge David, who is conducting a reorganization of the Public Service Company. The workers voted to accept the agreement.

Of chief interest in the agreement is the provision for a pension plan, under which all employes more than 70 years old will be retired on $40 a month for life. This plan, new to the company, also applies to workers more than 65 years old who become disabled.

The wage clause provides for an increase of 2 cents an hour for most workers. Some trackmen and shopmen are to receive raises of from 5 to 7 cents an hour.

Wage Board Appointed For Textile Industry

Washington.—The wage board for the textile industry has been named, after consultations between Administrator Elmer F. Andrews, of the wages and hours act; Sidney Hillman and Dr. Claudius T. Murchison, president of the Cotton Textile institute.

It seem fairly certain that a minimum of 30 cents per hour—5 cents an hour above the limit fixed by the law—will be fixed. It is known that Dr. Murchison said during the congressional debates on this measure that this would be "reasonable."

About 600,000 workers will be affected.

A Good Find.

Laura Bierman, who is employed by a New York hotel, was idly shuffling through an old telephone directory when a dollar bill floated out. She then set to work in earnest, leafing through 200 discarded directories of the hotel. She found a dozen love letters, twice as many odds and ends, and $40.20 in cash.

A. F. of L. Miners Charter District of Independent Union in Kentucky

CHICAGO. — The Progressive Mine Workers of America, an American Federation of Labor affiliate, has chartered the entire district of the Independent Miners Union in Western Kentucky and its twenty locals with a membership of approximately 4,000, President Joe Ozanic, of the Prgressive Miners, announced here.

Ozanic also announced that a new local union, with 260 members, has been established and chartered by the P.M.W.A. at Sharon, W. Va.

Ozanic said the members of the Independent Mine Workers of Western Kentucky formerly were members of the United Mine Workers of America, but seceded from the latter organization three years ago because of "the dictatorial and iron-rule methods of John L. Lewis and his autocratic associates . . ."

The newly chartered territory, Ozanic said, will be known as District No. 5, P. N. W. A., and "will assume full jurisdiction over all mine workers employed in and around the coal mines, coal washeries, coke ovens and re-screening plants within the boundaries of what was heretofore known as District No. 23, when it was United Mine Workers territory, or, over such other mines as may be later assigned to District No. 5."

Ozanic said that District No. 4, P. N. W. A., will assume full jurisdiction over all mines "within the boundaries of what was heretofore known as District No. 30, eastern Kentucky of the United Mine Workers" and that the same jurisdiction will apply to District No. 3, P. N. W. A., in Kansas.

Workers Acclaim Governor Leche As Strike Is Settled

This is a picture of Gov. Richard W. Leche, of Louisiana, and a group of strikers and their wives at Hammond, La., celebrating the end of a long strike through an agreement negotiated by the governor. Increased pay, recognition of the union and return to work without discrimination are some of the highlights in the agreement. The governor had operated a free lunch stand, at his own expense, for the strikers throughout its weeks of duration, and then appeared as attorney for the strikers in a hearing before the labor board. The governor is in the center of the group. Picture was taken just at daylight last Wednesday morning, the governor having held company and union officials in conference throughout the night, the agreement being signed at dawn.

Hammond, La.—Gov. Richard W. Leche, of Louisiana, made history here not only for his state but for the whole of the nation. He is, without question, the most idolized governor in any of the forty-eight states of the Union, and he has won his popularity and the devotion of his people by the simple process of being a real, active, sincere, righteous, courageous governor of his state.

Several weeks ago the employes in the Hammond and the Roseland box factories in Tangipahoa parish, who were receiving wages ranging from 9 to 15 cents an hour, organized local unions chartered by the Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners. An increase in pay was asked, the request was refused, and the men walked out of the plants. Picket lines were thrown about the factories, fist-fights followed, and request was made to Gov. Leche for troops to quell the strikers. The governor went to the scene, and when he found out that the men had been getting 9 to 15 cents an hour in wages, he issued a statement, saying:

So the governor, instead of sending troops, furnished the money and personally supervised the establishment of a sandwich and coffee shop on the picket lines. Furthermore, he employed wives of the men on picket duty to serve the sandwiches and coffee, and paid them $3.00 a day each for their services. The governor continued this service to the strikers throughout several weeks, from the beginning of the trouble until it was ended here today by an agreement between the companyofficials and the union—an agreement negotiated by the governor.

The labor board had been called in regarding twenty-nine men, leaders in the strike, who had been discharged outright by the Roseland company. The board was to have started its hearings yesterday, but a continuance was obtained for a day because of its being the birthday anniversary of the late Huey P. Long. All day yesterday, and until 4 o'clock this morning, Gov. Leche kept representatives of the box plants and representatives of the strikers in conference, negotiating the agreement which was signed just as the dawn announced the birth of a new day.

The striking workers waited in a nearby building throughout the night, and when Holt Ross, representing the American Federation of Labor, appeared and presented the agreement, it was ratified midst enthusiastic applause. Tears of joy and relief streamed from the eyes of many, and a chorus of "Thank God" went up to Him who notices the falling of a sparrow.

"Where is the governor?" "We want Gov. Leche!" the relieved workers chorused. The governor was sent for and upon his arrival was received with wild acclaim. The crowd was shouting, applauding, and each one seemed determined to shake the governor's hand.

The agreement was signed by Holt Ross, representing the American Federation of Labor; H. J. Wilson and O. W. Haring, representing the two groups of workers, and Gov. Leche.

Terms of the strike settlement provided that all discharged workers be reinstated and immediately re-employed at wages higher than those prevailing at the time the strike was called. Workers who received from 9 to 15 cents an hour (described previously as a "starvation wage" by the governor when he sided with the union demands) were to get a minimum of 20 cents an hour with increases to 22½ cents an hour on Oct. 1 and 25 cents on Oct. 15. The governor, who has fought the union battle and fed the strikers from soup kitchens, said complaints against working conditions likewise would receive the proper attention and recognition of the union was accorded. The two plants, scenes of violence early in the strike, are located in the heart of the vast Louisiana strawberry belt and manufacture crates for the crop.

"I am grateful at the outcome of our efforts to help the working men of Roseland and Hammond, and I rejoice with you," the governor said, as he climbed into his automobile to drive to Baton Rouge.

"And we are grateful to you," said a spokesman for the workers, "and may God bless you every day of your life."

This is but one of many instances wherein Gov. Leche has manifested his state's determination to provide a righteous government for the people of the state. The workers, reluctant to leave the scene which had been changed from one of dark desolation and distress to new hope and a more abundant life, watched the governor's car until it was hidden from view by a bend in the highway, listened with rapt attention as one member of the group said, in prophetic voice:

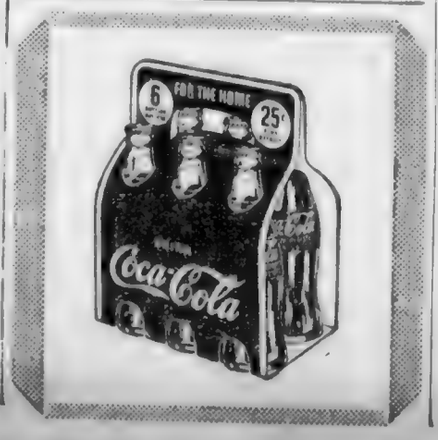
WALTER F. GEORGE

Senator Walter F. George, of Georgia, very much in the news as No. 1 man on President Roosevelt's "purge list," is 60 years old and has served 16 years in the senate. His hair and eyes are gray, his shoulders broad and he walks with an air of assurance.

George is a quiet spoken man, but can speak with plenty of vigor on occasion, as the senate well knows. Now he is doing some vigorous speaking as he pushes his primary campaign against his three opponents. He is stressing his votes for labor, farm and veterans acts.

The president thinks George is a "dyed-in-the-wool" conservative but the American Federation of Labor and Georgia labor are giving him strong support. Labor says his record is "100 per cent favorable" on all legislation affecting labor or sponsored by labor. The senator "has given whole-hearted and most valuable support to the legislative program of the American Federation of Labor" William Green testifies, and Charles B. Gramling, president of the Georgia State Federation of Labor, has taken an equally positive stand in support of George. The Journal of Labor, Atlanta, Georgia's leading labor paper, has come out very strongly for George, citing his record, quoting from his speeches and declaring he should be returned to the senate.

The primary election is on September 14.



LABOR DAY ADDRESS AT LINCOLN PARK

By ROBT. B. BUCKNER

of Local 460, Journeymen Barbers International Union of America.

For more than fifty years the American Federation of Labor has steadily marched forward. The accomplishments gained during this time has been made in the interest of all the people; and is the proud heritage of the American laboring man today. And if you as a laborer would share and participate in the great benefits of labor, such as better wages, shorter working hours and letter working conditions, political freedom and other human benefits, you should not only work with your fellow-workers, but you should put every effort behind every move to improve yourself through organization and operation of your local union. You should not let an opportunity pass without urging your fellow-workers to come into the fold, in order that we may grow stronger and secure greater gains.

You must select capable and honest leadership; do not for any reason select a man to lead you on account of personal friendship, but always make your selection on the basis of ability and honesty.

May I urge that you cultivate the friendship and co-operation of your fellow white worker. It is my observation that there has been a very decided change in attitude in recent years on the part of the white worker toward the negro worker; and every negro, whether he is a union or non-union man, should know and understand this change in attitude and adjust himself accordingly.

My friends, I think that every negro who styles himself a leader of today should acquaint himself with every phase of the labor question of today, and then lend aid to his toiling brother in the rightful solution of his labor problems for the general benefit of all.

Telling the negro to stay out of a labor union because you happen to be personally opposed or prejudiced against the union is absolutely wrong; and I trust that those who are, or have been guilty of doing so, will either seek the truth or remain silent. When that is done the negro labor of the south will take on new hope, new aspiration and new activity, and the whole labor movement will prosper. And may God help us to do this.

Workers and Manufacturers Urge Higher Duties On Imported Glassware

Atlantic City, N. J.—Organized manufacturers and union workers in the flint glass industry, who met here to negotiate new agreements, joined in asking the federal government to take steps toward imposing higher tariff duties on imported glassware.

In a resolution sent to Secretary of Commerce Roper, the National Association of Manufacturers of Pressed and Blown Glassware and the American Flint Glass Workers' union urged an immediate study of the situation.

They contended "devastating competition of foreign manufacturers is made possible by low wages paid in foreign countries."

Imports have grown at a far greater rate than domestic production during recent years, they asserted.

Their statement came after a month of negotiations for a new wage and hour contract, effective Sept. 1. They agreed to keep wages and working conditions unchanged for another year except in the "miscellaneous" department, which will be discussed at a later conference.

Atlanta, Ga.—The Atlanta Federation of Trades has demanded that A. F. of L. President Green withdraw indorsement of Senator George, who is opposed for the democratic senatorial nomination by President Roosevelt.

The Allied Printing Trades council of Atlanta inserted an advertisement in Atlanta newspapers urging labor to support Lawrence Camp.

"The Georgia federation has indorsed no candidate, but Atlanta members of the Allied Trades council are supporting President Roosevelt, the new deal and Lawrence Camp," the advertisement said.

CONTEST FOR FIRST "UNION LABEL BABY" EXCITES ORGANIGED LABOR IN SAN DIEGO

Washington.—The fight is on! Vying for the honor of the first "union label baby" in San Diego, Cal., members of organized labor in that city are agog over varying prospects at being the parents of the first baby entering the "vale of tears" under supervision of a member of Practical Nurses' union, Local 21549, according to the Union Label Trades Department of the American Federation of Labor.

Competition was heightened, the department said, when the Nurses' union announced a prize for the first baby born under "union conditions."

Delegates from the Practical Nurses' union told the San Diego County Federated Trades and Labor Council that the first baby to see the light of day with the help of a union nurse would also be given a "certificate in commemoration of the event."

"The parents will be given the prize," nurses' delegates said.

This immediately threw the council into an uproar, as men and women delegates quibbled over their respective rights to the prize.

"It's class legislation," said Bill Coeffy, perennial bachelor, "I ain't even married!"

MORE ABOUT FREY'S ADDRESS

has been the federation of national and international unions, each with complete authority for its own self-government; each free to choose whatever form of organization seemed most advantageous to its membership.

There has been but one restriction upon form of organization—so-called craft or so-called industrial—the restriction being that form of organization did not in any manner give one organization the right to invade the jurisdiction of another.

Under this form of organization we have overcome every method of attack which hostile employers and their attorneys could devise.

We have struggled under the handicap of labor injunctions which restrained us from the use of free speech, from going on strike, from picketing, and from endeavoring to organize the employes of the corporation securing the injunction.

We have triumphed over all of these.

When ten international unions under the leadership of John L. Lewis, Sidney Hillman, David Dubinsky and others launched the CIO, we faced a vital test.

We had adopted a program for organizing the mass production industries in 1934 to which John L. Lewis and his CIO associates gave unanimous approval.

Under the unanimous agreement on organizing policy for the mass production workers, adopted in 1934, international charters had been issued to the automobile workers and to the rubber workers.

The problem of organizing the mass production was in full swing. Lewis and his associates changed their minds and threatened the American Federation of Labor with division in its ranks, unless we would agree to further changes in organization policy.

In 1935 we were informed that unless we would yield to a minority, division would be created in our ranks. The threat was carried out and the CIO was organized.

What is the CIO? Does it differ from theAmerican Federation of Labor in anything essential in addition to form of organization?

The answer is as clear as it is definite.

The CIO has been in existence for almost three years. It has had one national conference, but as yet has held no convention.

It has no constitution adopted by a convention or approved by the votes of the membership.

Although it has received and expended millions of dollars, it has failed to make a financial report to the membership.

Its form of government up to the present time has been control in the hands of a few men. It has been government by a militant minority, instead of government by the membership. It has had up to the present a form of government largely similar to a dictatorship, a form of government which American workers will not approve or tolerate, a form of government which is certain to sow the seeds of dissension—dissension which has already indicated itself in the ranks of more than one CIO union.

The CIO has aimed to become a political as well as an industrial power. Its industrial and political activities have brought a new and sinister force within the American labor movement.

There is nothing in common between the American Federation of Labor and the principles, policies and methods of communism. There can be no compromise between the two. There can be no co-operation in any field of effort.

The difference between the American Federation of Labor and communism are as great as those between a dictatorship and a democracy.

From the beginning the American Federation of Labor vigorously protected itself from the efforts of communists to have a hand in shaping its policies, or in holding official position.

We knew from every experience in other lands that the main objective of communism was, first, to secure control of a national trade union movement as the only means by which it could entrench itself.

For this reason communism made no headway until the CIO was organized.

In 1935 the communist party in the United States scrapped its previous tactics to secure control within the trade union movement. It adjusted both its tactics and its policy so that it could take full advantage of the dual movement which John L. Lewis and his associates had launched.

As a result of this new policy communists were elected to high office in many of the new national unions organized by the CIO. They were as successful in securing the election of communists as officers of newly organized local unions.

The communist party officially indorsed John L. Lewis and the CIO, and pledged every support to their industrial program.

When the CIO began to develop its political policy, the communist party changed their own so that they could take full advantage of the opportunity.

Where it seemed advantageous they placed no candidate for public office in the field, but urged their membership and their followers to vote for the candidates indorsed by the CIO. The primaries held so far this year indicate the political failure of this combination.

Although over half a million dollars was spent to secure the nomination of Mr. Thomas Kennedy for governor in the Pennsylvania primaries, the combined vote of the communists and the CIO proved insufficient.

The political policy of the CIO is as dual to the nonpartisan political policy of the American Federation of Labor as the CIO is dual to the American Federation of Labor.

This partisan political activity by the CIO has created a new situation. In most legislative bodies there are a certain number who, partly concerned about their re-election, endeavored to discover what would meet with majority approval, instead of carrying out their obligation as legislators.

Some of this type have supported the CIO, though they were opposed to its general purpose and its methods, because they feared the threat of the CIO displeasure. They thought that, perhaps, the CIO would be the controlling industrial factor, and they hoped to keep their feet in both camps so that whether the CIO or the American Federation of Labor ultimately demonstrated leadership, they would be safe politically.

In its efforts to secure legislation it desired, the leadership of the CIO applied threats in the same manner as it threatened the 1935 convention of the A. F. of L. if the delegates failed to give the threateners what they desired.

Perhaps nothing in our political history is more revealing than the use of the speaker's office in the Capitol in Washington as the place from which to send for congressmen, while John L. Lewis and his associates threatened them with political death if they failed to vote as he instructed them.

In the election this fall there are a number of public representatives who have been threatened with political death by the CIO.

I know that the intelligence and integrity of southern workmen is such that they need no advice from me under the circumstances. They will not vote to strengthen the purpose of the CIO. They will not vote to give communism any assistance to infiltrate into our political parties in the same manner as it has infiltrated into the CIO.

Trade unionism is a voluntary organization in the industrial field, which seeks to accomplish its purpose through the co-operative strength of its membership applied through collective bargaining and joint action.

Politically, trade unionism is definitely nonpartisan, its political activities being applied solely to secure legislation which will protect labor from unjust handicaps and advance its interests.

Trade unionism is an evolutionary instead of a revolutionary movement. It is a constructive movement aiming to accomplish its objectives through education, the use of reason, accompanied by a recognition of the rights of others as well as its own. It seeks to accomplish its progressive policies through education instead of through revolution.

The majority of the membership of the CIO are Americans and wholly opposed to communism and the communistic control of their organizations.

It has become a part of our responsibilities to inform members of the CIO concerning the principles and policies of the American Federation of Labor, to assist them to understand the dangers which are inherent in the leadership which they now follow.

Our progress between now and Labor day next year will depend largely upon the educational efforts of our membership in every community.

We have successfully met every attack from whatever source which has been made against us. The result has been to give us a more effective trade union movement than ever before.

We have every reason ot look into the future with confidence. The organization with which we are affiliated has proved its principles, its policies, its methods to be more sound and more effective than any which have been preached by others.

TRUCK DRIVERS IN 11 STATES WIN BETTER CONDITIONS BY NEGOTIATED AGREEMENT

Chicago.—Union truck drivers in eleven states won better conditions by a preliminary agreement signed between a joint conference committee of midwestern truck operators and the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, Chauffeurs, Stablemen and Helpers of America. The agreement affects 250,000 highway truck drivers employed by some 2,000 companies.

The agreement was signed by a committee representing seventeen major highway operators and the representatives of the union, an A. F. of L. affiliate.

Both groups declined to disclose specific terms of the agreement and said a full meeting of truck operators will be asked to ratify the agreement at a meeting at Chicago and that it will be submitted to representatives of all union locals at Indianapolis Sept. 7.

It was reported that the agreement provides for minimum runs of 150 miles round trip, a maximum of 60 hours a week, two and three-quarter cents a mile base pay and 75 cents an hour for loading and unloading during trips.

The joint committee said the agreement covered companies and operators in Michigan, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa, Missouri, the Dakotas, Nebraska and territory contiguous to the south bank of the Ohio river between Portsmouth, O., and Paducah, Ky.

J. L. Keeshin, Chicago, president of the Keeshin Motor Express, acted as chairman for eight members of the employers' group, and Joseph F. Scislowski was chairman for four union negotiators.

"The terms of the settlement are the result of more than 300 hours of committee discussion," their announcement said. "Every phase of the problems of operation in the industry were examined and provisions for labor conditions adopted which will permit the best possible labor conditions consistent with a proper functioning of the industry."

MASSACHUSETTS STATE LABOR BODY BRANDS ALL DONNELLEY PRINTING PRODUCTS UNFAIR

Many State Federations of Labor to Have Similar Resolutions on Notorious Anti-Union Concern—Farm Organizations Also Act on Catalogues.

Chicago. — The Massachusetts State Federation of Labor at its annual convention went on record unanimously to place all products of the anti-union R. R. Donnelley & Sons company, of this city, on the unfair list. Delegates from the printing trades unions spoke on the question and recited the long history of the Donnelley management as the spearhead of every assault on organized labor in Chicago and vicinity.

In every important center throughout the country reports come into the headquarters of the organization committee of Chicago Printing Trades unions describing the activity of label committees and special Donnelley committees in that part of the drive that has to do with the circulation of Time, Life, Current History and other periodicals printed by the Donnelley enterprises. Hundreds of thousands of former subscribers to these publications have pledged themselves to refrain from renewal of their subscriptions until these publications are printed under union conditions.

Within the next few weeks many state federations of labor will act upon resolutions urging that all Donnelley products be declared unfair. Scores of local unions representing diversified industries in the state of California have pledged support to such a resolution at their state convention to be held early in September.

The Illinois State Federation of Labor also meets early in September and will unquestionably take action similar to that of the Massachusetts State Federation of Labor. A dozen other state organizations will have Donnelley resolutions up for consideration.

Special appeals have been made to organizations of farmers throughout the country and many of them have responded with action against the mail order houses, such as the mail order house of Sears Roebuck, and others, that have their catalogues printed on Donnelley presses. In Minnesota and other farm states the representatives of the Donnelley committees have talked to farm organizations and pointed out that it is to the interest of farmers to support the unions in industry because if union men and women get decent wages and work under decent conditions the market for farm products will expand. Otherwise, if the anti-union elements hold sway over industry, the result is low wages and impoverishment for inrustrial workers and consequent shrinking of the market for farm produce. Arrangements have been made for representatives of the organization committee of the Chicago Printing Trades unions to appear before the various conventions of farm organizations this fall, especially to carry further the campaign against the mail order houses that persist in aiding the anti-union Donnelley concern.

Other publications emanating from the Donnelley concern, besides those mentioned above, are: Science Digest, Farm Journal, Hunting and Fishing, Young Catholic Messenger, The National Provisioner, Encyclopedia Brittanica, Funk & Wagnalls Encyclopaedia, Butler Brothers Catalogue, Thomas Cook & Sons tourist literature and children's Sunday School publications, Pioneer Forward and Queen's Garden.

Try to Gain Monopoly.

For years it has been the aim of the Donnelley concern to scheme to get a monopoly of directory printing. The unions are combatting this very effectively and have definitely stopped Donnelley on this sector of the drive. The union committee simply tell the buyers of space in these telephone directories that they are encouraging an out-of-town enterprise operating under anti-union conditions, thereby injuring members of the printing trades unions in their own cities. This is especially effective inasmuch as most of the merchants and professionals in smaller cities are always prating about patronizing home industry. In Toledo, O., and many other places merchants who advertise in the telephone directories printed at Donnelley's have been told they simply waste their money, inasmuch as union men and women and their friends do not use such 'phone directories.

For further information on the Donnelley drive all unions that are not yet involved are asked to write to Organization Committee Chicago Printing Trades Unions, Suite 1519, 130 North Wells street, Chicago, Ill.

Residential Building This Year To Surpass Record of 1937, FHA Officials Predict

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Residential building this year will surpass that of last year—the best since 1931—Federal Housing Administration officials predict. Their prediction is based on present residential building trends.

In 1937 the residential construction peak was reached in April and was followed by a sharp decline beginning with July and continuing throughout the remaining months.

In contrast, however, 1938 has shown a steadily increasing trend, beginning last March, the first full operative period under the February amendments broadening and liberalizing the National Housing Act. Each month has shown gains over the preceding months.

In some localities, private residential construction during the first half year has surpassed such construction in the similar period of 1937. The Bureau of Labor Statistics, for instance, lists seventeen states in this group, namely, New Hampshire, New York, Iowa, Minnesota, North Dakota, South Dakota, Georgia, Maryland, North Carolina, Virginia, Kentucky, Louisiana, Oklahoma, Texas, Nevada, Wyoming and Washington.

The volume trend of new construction is further portrayed by F. W. Dodge Corporation statistics just released, which show an 8.7 per cent increase in the value of contracts signed in July as compared with the same month last year, and an increase of 21.5 per cent in the value of one and two-family dwellings for which contracts were awarded.

Gross business of the Federal Housing Administration has shown a percentage increase each month since the signinng of the amendments to the National Housing Act in February. In July small home mortgages selected for appraisal actually showed a 100 per cent increase over July, 1937.

Repairs, additions and alterations to home, business structures and other buildings has paced this trend under the Property Improvement Credit Plan of the Federal Housing Administration, with many thousands of dollars in such small installment notes finding their way into business and employment channels in varying amounts.

Capper to Reintroduce War Referendum Bill

Washington.—Asserting that "a demand for the right to vote on sending our boys into foreign slaughter pens is ringing through every state in North America," Senator Arthur Capper, of Kanhas, in a statement issued through the National Council for Prevention of War, announced that he will reintroduce in the next session of congress his referendum bill giving the American people the final say-so on war.

"Neither congress nor the president should have the right to declare war until the people have considered the question and by their votes have consented to it," Capper said. "Those who will have to do the dying and the suffering and have to bear the unspeakable burdens and griefs of war should have something to say about it when the war lords of Europe undertake to drag our American boys into a foreign war."

Senator Capper added that "in the United States public sentiment is virtually unanimous against being drawn into a foreign war. If this fact were brought out in a national referendum it would have a powerful effect in maintaining this country's stand for neutrality and peace and would have a powerful effect throughout the world."

He also made clear that his proposed measure would not prevent the president from using the army and navy to repel invasion or deal with insurrection.

Union Printing Shops to Get All A. & P. Jobs

Great Store Chain Agreement Covers Entire Nation

John B. Haggerty, Allied Printing Trades President, Says Pact Is of Tremendous Importance, Affecting Enormous Volume of Work.

Washington. — Agreement by the Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea company, that its printing, from coast to coast, will be done hereafter only in printing establishments entitled to use the union label, was announced here by President John B. Haggerty, of the International Allied Printing Trades association.

"This agreement, over the signature of Mr. Ralph Berger, representating the company, is the result of conversations running over several weeks," said Mr. Haggerty.

Best of Good Will Shown

"It is of tremendous importance and significance. It involves an enormous volume of printing and consequently an enormous amount of work. It will affect printing establishments in every area where the A. & P. has food stores.

"I want to pay high tribute to this great food chain. We put no pressure on the company, beyond calling to the attention of its representatives the fact that some of their printing had been done in non-union plants. Agreement was entered into with the best of good will that no further printing would be done in printing plants not entitled to use the union label.

Big Forward Step

"Of course only closed shop, thoroughly union plants are entitled to use the label.

"The agreement in this case is one of the finest forward steps recorded this year and it is made the more remarkable because of the good will with which this company has taken this progressive step. We shall at once inform all local unions of the development."

CIO STRIKE SETTLEMENT BRINGS WAGE CUT

Philadelphia.—The Philadelphia Storage Battery company and three locals of the CIO union, the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers, have signed an agreement ending a strike which has kept the plant closed since May 1.

Few workers get much satisfaction out of the settlement, though the cuts are smaller than the company tried to put into effect. Basic wages are cut from 61 cents an hour to 52 cents for men, and from 49 cents to 42 for women. There is to be a preferential shop but not a closed shop.

The storage battery company has been an extremely irregular employer. The peak employment is 13,000 persons, and the plant employed 1,500 when the strike came.

LOCAL MANAGEMENT A. & P. STORES USE NONUNION BREAD

Although the A. & P. national management has signed an agreement with the printing trades to do all its printing in union shops, the Chattanooga bakery union reports that the local A. & P. management is pushing the sale of Orient flour, which is nonunion.

In addition, Business Agent Curtis Sims says that all the A. & P. bread is nonunion made, and all efforts to unionize it has failed.

Anti-Labor Activities Of Jersey City Officialdom Criticized

Washington, D. C.—Recommending that Garden State Lines, Inc., be ordered to reinstate 75 striking bus drivers, a National Labor Relations Board trial examiner sharply criticized anti-labor activities of subordinate officials of Mayor Frank Hague of Jersey iCty.

The bus company, which operates two lines from outlying Jersey towns to Jersey City and to New York City, was ordered to grant exclusive bargaining rights for 70 drivers on the Bergen Division and 28 drivers on the Passaic Division to the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen.

The examiner, Henry J. Kent, said that three prominent Jersey City officials interfered in railroad trainmen affairs and that municipal bus supervisor Bernard Johnson opened a strike conference in 1936 by saying:

"I am merely a mouthpiece of Mayor Hague. . . . Mayor Hague will not allow any national unions in Jersey City."

Wisdom

Whatsoever we beg of God, let us also work for it.—Jeremy Taylor.

Strike Ties Up Baltimore Trucking Companies

Baltimore.—Operations of every major truck company in Baltimore were paralyzed on September 1 as more than 3,000 truck drivers struck for wage increases approximating 20 per cent.

Virtually all 'of the smaller trucking concerns also were tied up as union drivers walked off the job.

The strike was called by the Freight Drivers' and Helpers' Union, a subsidiary of the A. F. of L.'s Teamsters' and Chauffeurs' Union.

Woll Advocates Labor-Capital Co-operation

New York City.—A strong plea for co-operation between employers and employes to promote the general welfare, was made by Matthew Woll, vice president of the American Federation of Labor in a Labor Day address over Station WOR. He also warned of the dangers of growing government interference with industry.

Woll expressed the opinion that the nation is moving toward a new understanding in the realm of industry and went on to say:

"We seem rapidly to be embracing the spirit that prevails and dominates industrial relations in England and so well referred to in the report just presented by the President's Commission having inquired into industrial relations in England," he continued.

Teamwork Favored

"We, too, seem to be reaching the conclusion that substitution of teamwork for antagonism will produce greater and better results both in industrial production and in the social order. The degree of our success in operating on this plan will detemmine the extent to which we will need recourse to the law.

"Associated employers and organized workers should find it possible, aye, extremely desirable, today voluntarily to agree on a basis of mutual recognition and through this formula set up a program for voluntary industrial relations and mutual cooperation, requiring a minimum of interference on the part of government.

Would Avert Danger

"In that way and by that method we shall free both industry and labor from the dangers that beset both in the rapidly growing power of the state and in the usurping of rights and privileges essential to individual freedom, determination and judgment. Then, too, by that formula we shall avoid the trends and tendencies so noticeable in the Old World where freedom and democracy are merely a fancied dream, where repression is the lot of the many and dictatorship the fortune of a few."

Union Label Exhibit At State Convention

Santa Barbara, Calif.—Exhibits of union label merchandise and union services will be a feature of the annual convention of the California State Federation of Labor here the week beginning September 19.

Arrangement has been made by the local committee for space in a large room immediately off the lobby in the convention headquarters hotel, where manufacturers of union label merchandise will be afforded opportunity to exhibit their products to delegates and visitors. Work clothing and other arrticles of wearing apparel, as well as various other products and union emblems, are understood to be scheduled for display.

The strike of the AFL linemen in the Tennessee Electric Power company system is in its fourth week with the company refusing to discuss any possibility of peace. Although the union has told the company that every man will return to work immediately if the company will simply agree to discuss a settlement, Tepco refuses to discuss any possibility of peace with anyone.

Nearly one year ago the CIO organized approximately sixty-five employes at Hale's Bar. The CIO asked for a contract for those members, and the company almost immediately signed such a contract.

The IBEW, affiliated with the AFL, had been active before the CIO entered the picture. When the AFL had over 500 members, they asked for an agreement for its membership only.

The company not only refused to discuss the matter, but they started firing active leaders and intimidating others. Company unions were formed at several points. A strike vote was taken and a strike was called.

For various reasons, the services of the company have suffered. Armed gunmen have been imported, it is reported. Arrests have been made. Strikers have been arrested without warrants and "third-degreed." No one has been convicted.

The union has told the public and the company that all strikers will return to work in two hours time if the company will simply agree to set a date for a conference to discuss possible peace.

The company does not want peace, apparently, because all overtures from public-spirited citizens and the union have been met with cold rebuffs.

RAILWAY UNIONS ORDER STRIKE VOTE AS MEDIATION ATTEMPT TO SETTLE WAGE CUT CONTROVERSY

Washington, D. C. — General chairmen of 18 railroad labor unions, after collapse of an attempt by the National Mediation Board to settle a controversy over the demand of the railroads for a 15 per cent wage cut, ordered an immediate, nation-wide strike vote.

George M. Harrison, chairman of the Railway Labor Executives Association, representing approximately 750,000 railway workers, described the strike vote call as labor's answer to the carriers' "insistence" on the wage cut.

He said the vote was unanimous among the 1,000 general chairmen representing the 18 organizations.

Trainmen in Same Stand

Chairman Harrison's stand was concurred in by President A. F. Whitney of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen who have been conducting negotiations apart from the executives' association from which they withdrew a year ago. Whitney said an immediate strike vote would also be taken among the approximately 150,000 members of his union.

The railroads were represented by a committee of fifteen.

Decision to take a strike vote followed announcement by Dr. William M. Leiserson, chairman of the National Mediation Board, that efforts to settle the wage cut dispute had failed. The railroads agreed to arbitration, he said, but the unions refused. The board, of which the other two members are Otto S. Beyer and George A. Cook, has been trying to bring agreement since Aug. 11.

Notice Must Be Given

Under the provisions of the Railway Labor Act, the unions are required to give the railroads formal notice as to the date on which they propose to strike. The President then appoints a fact-finding commission. The commission must investigate and make a recommendation within 30 days from the time it begins to function.

During the period the commission is meeting and for 30 days after it has made a recommendation there can be no action by either side. At the end of the 30 day period, each side may act as it sees fit.

LABEL LEADERS

By BROWNIE HOPPER

We have just returned from a visit to the International Typographical union's convention in Birmingham and the entire column will be devoted to

TATTLING ON THE TYPOS . . .

Thirty-one Chattanoogans visited the Magic City last week-end to help start the Typo convention off with a bang. We began to wonder whether the News would be able to get out a paper when we learned that fourteen of their compositors had left the Dynamo of Dixie to come to Birmingham.

* * *

Milt Cooke and Finney Carter were the oficial Chattanooga delegates. Milt is a busy man down there, but did take time out to attend the floor show and dance Saturday night. He insisted that he was going to dance even if he couldn't get around the next morning. Somehow or other, he acquired a new nick-name during the evening . . . he acquired the title of "Jitter Bug" Milt.

* * *

Stevenson, Carter and Cooke got a room together the first night, but moved out the next morning. Each accused the others of snoring too much. Finney says that Milt snores louder than anybody he had ever heard. (You should hear his brother, Bob Cooke.—Ed.)

All the taxicabs in Birmingham had little stickers on the windows, with "UNION DRIVER" in big letters. We talked to some of the taxi drivers and they say every cab in Birmingham is union . . . page Chattanooga's Local 594.

* * *

We understand that the Birmingham Typos run a sort of a co-op restaurant over near the papers. It is one of the five union restaurants in the city.

* * *

Clay Timmons hadn't planned to attend the convention, but when he heard that there was to be golf on the entertainment he just couldn't resist. The folks driving with him laughed when he said he would go to Birmingham in three hours. They were crying when he did do it in 3 hours.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. Hugh White joined the crowd and led the Chattanooga delegation in the dancing and swimming.

* * *

Martin Peyer kept insisting that he ciuldn't go down to Birmingham this time, but he rushed in Saturday afternoon late to register. He just couldn't stay away at the last minute. Mrs. Peyer and son, Wiley, accompanied him.

* * *

The Birmingham local union really entertained the delegates and visitors. On Sunday there was a big barbecue at the Club Rex and 5,000 people were served an excellent dinner.

* * *

The custom of delegates and visitors having cards printed and exchanging with their brother delegates is an interesting one. Some of the older members have a long list of conventions they have attended as delegates or visitors through the years. Being printers, they like to spring unusual cards. One of the nicest, I thought, was presented by a member of Local 11, in Memphis, Tenn. It brought out the fact that he was from the land of "Hambone and King Cotton."

* * *

The auxiliary to the Typos always holds its meetings during the convention. The sessions were interesting and the Typo ladies are well up on their union labels.

* * *

Incidentally, in all the immense crowds I did not see a single non-union cigarette. That would have been beyond understanding, of course, since all union-made cigarettes not only carry the tobacco workers' label, but also carry the allied printing trades label.

* * *

The Chicago Typos brought their band with them and it is inspiring to hear that band open the convention with the "Typographical March" that was composed by the band leader and dedicated to the International Typographical union.

* * *

The Typographical conventions are a credit to the entire labor movement—they represent every state in the Union, as well as having representatives from Canada.

* * *

Delegates from No. 89 were Finney T. Carter and Milt Cooke. The list of Chattanooga visitors include: Mr. and Mrs. Arch Underwood and Betty Jane Underwood, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh White, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Kelly, Mr. and Mrs. Cathy, Mr. and Mrs. T. R. Cuthbert, Mr. and Mrs. Clay Timmons, Mr. and Mrs. Martin Peyer and Wiley Peyer, Mr. and Mrs. Julian Timmons, Mr. and Mrs. John Crump, Roddy McGhee, Harris Hix, Harry Maupin, Mr. Stevenson, Walter Gardner, Earl Powell, Cy Jones.

* * *

P. S. There was only one minor casualty reported by the Chattanooga—Arch Underwood forgot to bring his sleeve-holder-uppers along; but he worked the problem out satisfactorily

Interstate Fair All Set To Go

With buildings and booths all ready and with entries pouring in, Warner park was all set this week for the first edition of the Chattanooga Interstate fair under the guidance of Joe Engel.

Increased premium lists and renewal of interest in the annual agricultural show promise one of the biggest and most successful fairs in the history of this section. Chairmen of the livestock, agricultural and handwork departments report that more entries will be placed this year than in the past five and good growing seasons promise some of the finest farm products ever shown.

Joe Engel, who put baseball on the map in Dixie, has taken over the Interstate fair and with his resources and showmanship, plans to return it to its former favor in the states of Tennessee, Alabama and Georgia.

Held at the same time as the mammoth "Drums of Dixie" celebration, which will consist of historical pageants, air show, regarta, fireworks and other events, including a visit by President Roosevelt, the visitor to this year's Interstate fair at Warner park will find everything one could desire in the way of educational and entertaining programs.

In addition to the livestock, agricultural and poultry exhibits a number of new departments have been added for this year's fair. These included photography for candid camera fiends and a pigeon show.

In the woman's building will be the cooking exhibits, canning displays and handiwork exhibits. A flower show, open to the public, will also be held.

For the lovers of horse racing President Engel has arranged four big days of racing in which horses from this section will be competing against some of the fastest horses in the circuit for the $2,400 in cash prizes and purses. The racing will open Tuesday and continue though Friday. Friday morning bicycle races for boys and girls will be held on the Warner park track.

The Johnny J. Jones Exposition with its interesting side-shows and new and thrilling rides will furnish the midway attraction. There will be two free acts daily featuring the Four Sensational Wishards and "Elmer's Crazy Cow," comedy act. Spectacular fireworks have been arranged for every night.

The following daily program is announced for fair week:

Tuesday, Sept. 20—President's day.

Wednesday, Sept. 21—Sequatchie Valley day.

Thursday, Sept. 22—Georgia-Alabama day.

Friday, Sept. 24 — Hamilton County day.

Saturday, Sept. 25—Everybody's day.

AFofL Pushes Organization In Big Coated Paper Plant

BY JOSEPH A. WISE

HAMILTON, O.—This typical midwestern industrial center has enjoyed industrial peace for several years, according to a statement made to me by John F. Mayer and Edward E. Weiss, publishers of the Butler County Press, official labor publication of this vicinity.

I made a courtesy call upon Messrs. Mayer and Weiss inasmuch as they long have been identified with the International Labor Press of America and the International Labor News Service.

"We have had no serious labor controversies in Hamilton for several years," said Mr. Mayer. "We have peace in the metal trades, the building trades and in the printing trades.

"Right now there are three American Federation of Labor organizers doing work among the Hamilton employes of the Champion Paper and Fibre Company, which operates one of the world's largest coated paper mills in this city.

"The Herring-Hall-Marvin Safe Company and the Mosler Safe Company were operated on a company union basis for many years," continued Mr. Mayer. "Recently, however, the Committee for Industrial Organization gained a foothold among the employes of these two safe manufacturing concerns.

"For all practical purposes, from a trade union standpoint, the Herring-Hall-Marvin Safe Company and the Mosler Safe Company are still operating on a company union basis, because the CIO has made no worthwhile change in the labor policy of the two companies," said Mr. Mayer.

The activity and atmosphere around the plant of the Butler County Press indicated that the publication and its job printing adjunct are enjoying prosperity.

GAIN IN CHILD LABOR REGULATIONS

Washington.—The labor department's children's bureau reports improvements in child labor regulations and school attendance requirements in more than half the states during 1937, with marked advances in North and South Carolina.

The two southern states were cited especially for adopting a basic minimum work age of 16. Their action raises to ten the number of states with a 16-year minimum work standard. The others are Connecticut, Montana, New York, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island,

Hyde Park, N. Y.—President Roosevelt agrees with the American Federation of Labor on the necessity of changes in the national labor relations act, William Green said following a conference here with the president.

The A. F. of L. president said that he "advised changes in the law" and explained that while nothing specific was agreed on both were in accord on the necessity of certain changes in the law that would overcome the objections against administration by the board.

He suggested reduction of the power of the board or amplification of the law to make clear the authority of the board. Asked to cite a specific complaint, Green said that he informed the president of a ruling affecting the National Electric Products Corporation of Ambridge, Pa.

"There," he explained, "the board intervened on complaint of the CIO and ordered a contract between the company and the Electrical Workers' union set aside. The management took the case to the federal district court and the court held the contract valid. Notwithstanding the court decision the board refused to abide by the decision and ordered an election held. The A. F. of L. won and, of course, the contract applied."

Green said that he referred to certain other specific cases which were in his mind not handled in accordance with the law and that President Roosevelt remarked:

A. A. A. LENDS $7,500,000 TO HOLD UP BUTTER PRICE

Washington.—The approval of additional loans up to $7,500,000 to the Dairy Products Marketing association at Chicago for buying up 25,000,000 pounds of butter to help stabilize dairy prices was announced by the agricultural adjustment administration. In June the government lent $14,000,000 to the association to purchase 50,000,000 pounds of butter. The purchases authorized by the two loans remove 75,000,000 pounds of butter from an over supplied market.

The Dairy Products Marketing association is a non-profit organization of producer-owned and producer-controlled dairy co-operative marketing associations.

I pity no man because he has to work. If he is worth his salt he will work. I envy the man who has a work worth doing and does it well.—Theodore Roosevelt.

THACL'S UNION LABEL COUNCIL CHATTANOOGA

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 16, 1938

Fifty-six Years of Progress

Benefits of labor organization are set forth in convincing fashion by I. M. Ornburn in a brief summary of 56 years of labor progress, since the organization of the American Federation of Labor. To unorganized workers, his words constitute a strong argument for joining a union; to organized workers, they are a reminder of what organization has done for them in the past and can do in the future.

"In 56 years, organized workers have gained twenty-two and a half hours of leisure per week and increased their wages by three hundred per cent," said Mr. Ornburn.

"Hours of work," he went on to say, "decreased from sixty-three a week in 1881 to an average of forty and a half hours a week in 1938. Wages per hour increased from nineteen cents in 1881 to seventy-five cents in 1937. These wages are in actual money for full-time work. They are 'real wages' expressed in terms of buying power.

"These are the achievements organized labor has made in increasing wages in dollars and cents, and decreasing working hours. This progress has been reflected in the pay envelopes and on the time-clock of all American workers. Is it any wonder that unorganized toilers are joining labor unions at the rate of nearly a million annually?"

A Fine Support of Tolerance

The Advance, official publication of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America, a CIO organization, prints in the September issue an article from a labor paper which circulates among West Virginia miners. This article urges its readers not to buy under the union labels of the A. F. of L. The Advance quotes the article complete, and then goes on to say, editorially:

"It is perhaps understandable that the West Virginia miners are bitter against the A. F. of L., which has chartered a rival miners' union in that state. But . . . a refusal to patronize A. F. of L. union labels would inflict needless suffering on members of the bakers, carpenters, printers and many other unions. . . . They are, as workers, entitled to the support of the labor movement in their efforts to make their living under union conditions.

"It has been a great gratification to the Amalgamated to observe hat the present unfortunate split in labor has not touched the deep bed-rock of loyalty to the labor movement. . . . The labor movement cannot afford to let a division over policies destroy that spirit of co-operation which is labor's major strength."

It would be pretty hard to state better the case for staunch upholding of the principles of organized labor until reunion comes.

Substantial Production Gains Reported

Washington, D. C.—The monthly survey of business by the American Federation of Labor reports substantial production gains from the end of July to August 20 by five basic industries: Steel, lumber, automobiles, electric power and cotton textiles. This must be added to an 8 per cent gain in July, showing that recovery while slow is fairly steady.

The increased business in July added $31,000,000 to payrolls, and slight declines in cost of living raised this increase of buying power to at least $37,000,000, the survey said. It calls this "probably the most significane business news of the month."

More capital is being invested in industry; and the heavy industries are showing gains as well as industries which make consumers good.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Opened for occupancy a year ago, Will Rogers Courts, the Government's $2,000,000 low-rent housing project in Oklahoma City, Oklahoma, entered upon its second year today 100 per cent tenanted, the United States Housing Authority announces.

Dedicated to the memory of Oklahoma's beloved cowboy humorist and philosopher, Will Rogers Courts is one of two Government low-rent housing projects built in Oklahoma under the pioneering housing program started by the Housing Division of the Public Works Administration in 1934. The other project is Cherokee Terrace, in Enid, which was built at a cost of $557,000 and provides 80 decent homes for low-income families at base rents which average $5.85 per room per month.

Will Rogers Courts provides decent, safe and sanitary living quarters for 354 families formerly residing in the squalor of Oklahoma City's slums. They now pay shelter rentals averaging $5.73 per room per month with a small added charge for household utilities for heating, cooking, light and refrigeration.

Eighty-five buildings of brick and tile construction make up the project, which consists of 1 and 2-story group houses. The site covers nearly 38 acres, which leaves generous space for playgrounds, lawns, gardens, walks and drives. Clubrooms and laundries are among the facilities provided for the tenants.

Will Rogers Courts is now under the supervision of the United States Housing Authority, having been transferred from the Public Works Adminisration by President Roosevelt upon the creation of the USHA.

Slums Declared Breeding Crime, Illness, Death

Speaker Stresses Danger at Dedication of Toledo Low-Rent Housing Project

Toledo, O.—Slums are a danger to all, R. M. Little, consultant in the United States Housing Authority, emphasized in speaking at the dedication of Brand Whitlock Homes, the Government's slum-clearance and low-rent housing project constructed by PWA funds.

"Recent studies," Little said, "have repeatedly shown that slums are not only a serious, and to a large extent unnecessary, drain upon our municipal budgets; they are also a serious threat to our civic well-being.

"The worst health conditions in our cities are found in insanitary and congested slum districts. Overcrowded homes lead to the spread of contagious diseases. A study by the U. S. Children's Bureau has shown that the infant mortality rate in congested homes is twice as high as in home with sufficient space. Lack of sunlight in substandard homes often causes rickets in children.

"Most of our juvenile delinquents come from the slums. Social maladjustment and criminal tendencies grow out of the slum shacks and tenements. And these are costly not only to society in thefts and disturbances and violence, but to the individuals in terms of broken lives."

Mr. Little represented the Federal Government at the dedication of the housing project, named in honor of the late Brand Whitlock, American ambassador to Belgium during the German occupation. The project has 264 low-rental dwellings ranging from two to five-room units and now 100 per cent rented.

The dwellings are restricted to families of low income who have been living under substandard conditions in the city's slums and whose pocketbooks would not permit better living quarters. Limitations on tenants, eligible to reside in Government projects also provide that their income shall not exceed five times the monthly rental, except for families with three or more minor dependents, when the income ratio to rent may be six to one.

Brand Whitlock Homes stands on a 15-7-acre site which once was a slum area exacting a heavy toll in disease and crime. Nineteen 3-story apartments, 2-story row houses and 2-story flats make up the development, covering 15 per cent of the site, thus leaving more than 13 acres for play areas, lawns, walks and drives.

for Women only

CARDUI is a special medicine for the relief of some of the suffering which results from a woman's weakened condition. It has been found to make monthly periods less disagreeable, and, when its use has been kept up awhile, has helped many poorly nourished women to get more strength from their food. This medicine (pronounced "Card-u-i") has been used and recommended by women for many, many years. Find out whether it will help you by giving it a fair trial. Of course, if not benefited, consult a physician.

AFL and CIO in Big Labor Day Parade

San Francisco.—A. F. of L. and CIO joined forces here to make an inspiring Labor Day demonstration of labor strength, and probably well overr 50,000 union members marched in a 5-hour parade through cheering lanes of citizens that lined Market street.

John F. Shelley, president of the San Francisco Labor Council, led the A. F. of L. unions; and Harry Bridges, with nearly 10,000 longshoremen and warehousemen behind him, led for the CIO. All observers agree that the Federation outnumbered the CIO by at least 40 per cent; but not a particle of friction was noted.

Union labor in this area numbers 100,000 members in a total population of 750,000.

Communisism and Organized Labor

By DR. CHARLES STELZLE
Executive Director, Good Neighbor League.

The communist party is a real menace to the trade union movement. This has been frequently and amply demonstrated. Every labor organization in this country has felt the harmful effects of its political operations, although it cannot be denied that there have been occasions when the communists have stood by the bona fide trade unionists in their struggle to secure better conditions.

But weighed in the balance, there is no doubt the scales would show that their influence for evil has been greater than it has been for the good of the organized labor movement. There is no need to enumerate the particular occasions or the devious ways through which communism has been a distinct detriment to labor, because these are well-known to the workers, who are familiar with the political manipulations of the communist party.

But having thus declared ourselves, there are some other considerations to which we should all agree. In the first place, many of the workers sincerely believe in the principles of communism. They believe that in this system lies the salvation of the people.

Furthermore, under our democratic form of government, they have an absolute right to work for the introduction of the communist philosophy, even to the point of having it replace our present form of government—provided that they do not resort to violence. This is fundamental in our constitution, and there is no use denying it. Also, they have an incontrovertible right to free speech—again according to the constitution, provided they do not advocate violence.

Whatever changes are to be made must come through legal methods which are clearly stated in our laws, and which definitely declare that these changes must take place through orderly procedure, by vote of the people, and not through revolution led by a dictator.

All of this means that those who are opposed to communism must vigorously promote educational campaigns showing the advantages of the democratic form of government, and, equally important, they must wipe out the unfair social and economic conditions which give rise to communism. In other words, we have got to prove that democracy is better than communism.

However, as trade unionists we have the right to insist that the first loyalty of the communist who becomes a member of the trades union is to the organized labor movement is such, rather than to the communist party. A worker may be both a communist and a trade unionist. This is his inalienable right. But he must not forget that the trade union is a voluntary organization of workers formed for their mutual protection, and if the communist is disloyal to his obligation as a trade unionist, there is no place for him in the trade union movement.

A. F. of L. Success Due to Policies Meeting Practical Requirements, Frank Morrison Points Out

Pittsburgh, Pa.—The democratic and voluntary character of the American Federation of Labor was stressed by Frank Morrison, veteran secretary-treasurer of the Federation in speaking at a Labor Day celebration held in Soldiers Park by the Pittsburgh Central Labor Union. The address was broadcast over the NBS Blue network.

"The American Federation of Labor," said Secretary Morrison, "has never advocated that workers should be forced by law to join a labor union. We have emphasized the voluntary character of our movement and consistent to our policies to educate workers upon the constructive aim of our movement, looking for next to their intelligence and common sense; we insist that the voluntary character of the labor movement be maintained, realizing that the application of force will defeat the principle of freedom espoused by our organization."

CIO Idea Held Failure

The American Federation of Labor has opposed insistence to policies now voiced. Morrison continued, in discussing the controversy with the Committee for Industrial Organization. He declared:

"The CIO is a new name for an old idea of a one big union which has been tried out under other names. Knights of Labor; American Railway Union, organized by Eugene V. Debs; Western Federation of Miners; Western Labor Union; American Labor Union; I. W. W.; and One Big Union. Each in turn had its day of opportunity. Each carried on for a limited period and as we all know now have no existence except in the memory of those who may recall their activities. They failed because they did not meet practical requirements.

"The policies of the American Federation of Labor are practical and it is this character in its make-up that has enabled the organized labor movement of this country to live and carry on the struggle for improved conditions of labor for the workers in industry."

Big Membership Gain

Outlining at length the legislative and other achievements of the A. F. of L., from its foundation in 1881 to the present, Morrison said that the policies of A. F. of L. unions have won the respect and co-operation of an ever growing number of workers. He stated:

"The membership of the affiliated national and international and the state and federal labor unions of the A. F. of L. shows an increase of more than 1,130,000 members since September 5, 1936.

"We are not satisfied that there are millions of workers in industry who are not organized and are not protected by union agreements with their employers. Nevertheless, the courage and perseverance of wage workers, who joined and maintained their fealty to our trade unions, made it possible for these organizations to be the leaven by which standards of wages and working conditions in American industry have been raised."

A. F. of L. Objective Won

In ending his address, Morrison said:

"The objective of the American Federation of Labor throughout the years in its political and legislative campaigns has been to secure the enactment of labor legislation which would require law-making and law-enforcing bodies to protect workers in the exercise of the right to join unions of their own choosing.

"It is directly attributed to the American Federation of Labor and its affiliated organizations that this principle has been reiterated time and again in Federal enactments and is now well defined in the Federal Bankruptcy Act, Railway Labor Act, Norris-La Guardia Injunction Act and the National Labor Relations Act.

Government Spending Not Enough and Real Remedy for Unemployment Must Be Applied by Co-Operative Effort, Says A. F. of L. President—Sees CIO Torn With Dissension.

Providence, R. I.—An obligation rests upon all to "establish industrial equilibrium" to provide jobs for the unemployed, President William Green of the American Federation of Labor declared in discussing the unemployment problem in a Labor Day address here. He spoke before a big mass meeting in Roger Williams Park and his address was broadcast over a national hook-up.

"The causes of unemployment should be defined and determined and a real remedy should be applied," Green said. "We have learned through experimentation that government spending for relief purposes and in public construction affords but temporary relief.

"In my opinion our economic difficulties can be traced to an unfavorable state of mind, a psychological condition which should have no place in our national economy. What is needed is renewed faith, a new vision, a spirit of adventure and the destruction of fear.

"Common Effort"

President Green urged that "whatever action may be necessary to remove the causes which create a bad national psychology ought to be taken by those who are in a position to employ the remedy. . . . The realities of six years of widespread unemployment should be dealt with courageously."

Other main subjects discussed by the speaker included labor industrial relations, the National Labor Relations Act and dual unionism.

Green recommended that action be taken to "unite industry, management and labor in a common effort to promote business activities and stabilize labor relations." The old relationship of master and servant must give way, he said, to the more equitable principle of collective bargaining.

Law Seen Mal-Administered

If employers had accepted trade unions and recognized the right of workers to organize free from intimidation twenty years ago, Green said there would have been no need for the National Labor Relations Act.

Discussing the labor act, Mr. Green emphasized that the American Federation of Labor's complaint is directed against the administration of the law.

"We are convinced," he added, "that dominating influences in the National Labor Relations Board have aplied the law contrary to both its spirit and its letter."

He charged that the board had set aside contracts honestly entered into by employers and A. F. of L. unions and declared that the A. F. of L. "can not and will not acquiesce in the procedure followed by members of the board."

To Work for Changes

"We shall go to Congress seeking such changes in the act as may seem necessary in order to prevent further mal-administration of the act," he declared.

Discussing dual unionism, Green said developments of the past year emphasize the value of labor unity. He pictured the Committee for Industrial Unionism "torn with internal dissention" and as leaders of CIO unions "disillusioned and disappointed." He charged that those who support the CIO are giving aid and assistance to division in the ranks of labor and working against the best interests of the workers.

In ending his speech, Mr. Green denounced Communism and pledged the determination of the American Federation of Labor to oppose Communism and Communistic influences to the extent of its strength and ability.

WHY "PURGE?"

(From Editor and Publiser)

Images of Germany in 1934, Russia in 1937, are conjured by the frequency with which the verb and noun "purge" are appearing in current American political news. Der Fuehrer had his foes pistoled without trial, and then announced to the world with the felicity for which the German is famous that the country and party had been "purged" of their noxious presences. The Man of Steel went through legal forms, but the result was similar. Most of the opposition died of lead poison.

The similitude between these drastic manifestations of dictatorship and Mr. Roosevelt's gentle advice to the primary electors seems pretty farfetched to us.

Whether you agree or disagree with the president's tactics doesn't matter in this instance, for we're not thinking of politics. As a wordsmith, we are just wondering what word will be available if we ever do come to situations like those of Germany and Russia.

There must be a cooler, calmer, substitute in the English language for this blood-stained word to describe the relatively mild goings-on in the present political scene.

Joseph Duncan, president of the International Land Workers of Scotland, says that the British simply cannot understand why so many Amedican employers put their reliance on strike breakers and labor spies. It is rather hard for a sane man to understand lunacy.

Human Erosion

BY. DR. CHARLES STELZLE

Executive Director, Good Neighbor League.

One of the most commendable services being rendered by the Department of Agriculture of the government is its heroic effort to save our country from the devastating effects of soil erosion. It is almost sickening to see the great gullies in land which at one time bore abundant harvests. Fifty million acres is close to being submarginal. This means that unless measures are taken to redeem this land, it will become a desert as great as the combined area of the States of New York, Iowa and Georgia.

While farmers of the present generation will profit by what the Department is doing, it is a striking fact that much of it will be beneficial only to future citizens of the United States. This is a piece of statesmanship and patriotism which should have the hearty approval of every American who is concerned about the future of his country.

But "erosion" is not limited to farm and grazing areas. It is found in great cities—among people. And the situation created by human erosion is as grave a problem as soil erosion. In some respects it is even more harmful.

It is seen in the long bread-lines composed of the wreckage of manhood, during every depression period, and in the cheap lodging houses on the edge of the city's criminal sections.

It is seen in low incomes and marginal standards of living, which are responsible for lack of nourishment, lack of clothing, lack of housing, and lack of those things which bring joy and happiness to the poor.

It is seen in the spectre of unemployment which drives men to desperation, lowers their morale and their efficiency, causes them to listen to the plausible arguments of the agitator who advocates "isms" which are foreign to the spirit of the real America.

These are some of the factors which create human erosions—erosions of the mind, the body, the spirit of men. Fortunately, the government is not neglectful of these. Through other departments it is filling the fissures and enriching the waste places of humanity.

One of the great things about America is that its government really cares about such matters, and to the extent of its ability and with the co-operation of those who are in a position to help, it is not only healing human erosion, but, better still perhaps, it is preventing the recurrence of future calamity in these respects.

The Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, fighting the rail management's proposal to cut their wages, says that the railroads in the last ten years have lost more than a billion dollars by following the counsels of Wall Street, which led the roads into graft and speculation. True—only the figure isn't high enough. And graft money and speculation money seldom if ever find their way to the pay envelope.

Third of Nation's Families Have Less Than $500 Average Annual Income, President Is Told

Washington.—The poorest one-third of the population of the United States in the fiscal year ending June 30, 1936, had an average income of $471 per family group.

This is the most striking single fact of the report which the national resources committee had laid before President Roosevelt. "Family group" means anything from one person to one more, living as a family. But the report contains other comparisons perhaps even more revealing. Taking the 29,400,300 families composed of two or more persons sharing a common income, the report says:

"Fourteen per cent of all families received less than $500 during the year studied; 42 per cent received less than $1,000; 65 per cent less than $1,500; and 87 per cent less than $2,500. . . . The incomes of the top 1 per cent of these families accounted for a little more than 13 per cent of the aggregate."

Taking up next the 10,000,000 sinble persons living in lodgings or as servants, the report says:

"Sixty-one per cent received incomes of less than $1,000 . . . Ninety-five per cent received less than $2,500, and a little more than 1 per cent received $5,000 or more."

From here on, the word "families" means consumer's units, whether one person or more. There are 39,458,300 such families in the country; and their total income for the fiscal year in question was $59,259,0 0,000, using round figures. Taking these families in three groups, the report shows that:

The average income of a family in the lowest group was $471, and the top income in this group was $780.

The average income of a family in the middle group was $1,076, and the incomes ranged from $780 to $1,450.

The average income of a family in the top group, ranging from $1,450 up to more than a million, was $3,000 a year, scant. Their total income was two-thirds of that of the whole nation.

Again, the report classifies the families—that is, consumer's units—according to income, and divides them into ten groups of equal numbers.

The top 10 per cent of the population, those with $2,600 a year and up, get 3 6per cent of the total national income.

The 7C per cent of the population, counting up from the bottom, get 37 per cent.

The median income of all families, that is, the sum which has the same number belof and above it, varies widely according to geography. On the Pacific coast, it is $1,335 per family; in the south, $905 per family, and other sections range between.

"Any attempt on the part of the government or business," says the report, "to grapple with basic economic problems must rely heavily on what can be learned of the distribution of income among the various groups of the nation's consumers."

Buffalo Labor Marches—

Buffalo, N. Y.—"Buffalo's greatest labor demonstration in sixteen years" in the form of an evening parade heralded the opening of the 75th convention of the New York State Federation of Labor here.

The turnout, which exceeded the most optimistic anticipation in both numbers and enthusiasm, was conservatively estimated at 30,000 marchers. In addition, the police department calculated the number of spectators who stood during the more than three hours duration at approximately 150,000.

Every union in the Buffalo district was in the march. Some, notably the Brewery and Beverage Workers, the Building Trades, the Metal Trades and the Railroad Shop Crafts, were represented by delegations numbering up to 2,000.

In addition to these were numerous floats contributed by the different unions or by union employers. It was planned that prizes for the best float, the largest delegation, the best appearing section, etc., would be awarded at the conclusion of the parade, but these features were so unexpectedly numerous and of such excellent quality that the judges begged for more time in which to canvass sentiment.

In the reviewing stand were all the city notables, headed by Mayor Thomas L. Holling; Congressmen James M. Mead, Al. Beiter, officers of the state federation and international unions, etc.

Mayor Holling, an active member of Typographical Union No. 9, marched the full distance with his union before returning to the reviewing stand.

Another notable feature was the number and excellence of the union bands. "Every individual capable of tooting a horn or pounding a drum and with a Musicians' union card, was out on the pavement," said Norbert Berger, president of the Buffalo Labor council and chairman of the committee in charge.

A. F. of L. Acts for Closer Co-operation With European Labor to Promote Peace and Prevent War

Atlantic City, N. J.—The American Federation of Labor will cooperate to the utmost with European labor to promote peace and avert war, the Federation's Executive Council in quarterly session here decided.

Following a report from Matthew Woll on the European situation, the council voted to establish closer ties between European labor and the federation in formlating peace policies and applying "moral and economic" pressure to prevent war.

The federation will go to "the extreme limit" in working to end the armament race and promote peace, but it was made plain by President William Green that it will not support a general strike to stop war. Such a move has long been advocated by European radicals.

Harlan Pact Assailed.

Convinced by Mr. Woll's account that the situation in Europe is very grave, the council took steps to work actively with the organized workers of the European democracies to win reductions in armaments and "establish co-operative relations between the governments of the world."

Announcement that the United Mine Workers of America, CIO affiliate, had made an agreement with Harlan county, Ky., mine operators touched off a new flare of controversy between the A. F. of L. and the CIO leaders. President Green denounced the agreement as forcing the miners to join the CIO organization and promised to begin proceedings to have it declared invalid. John L. Lewis attacked Green's statement and said the United Mine Workers was completely within its rights in negotiating the contract.

Smith Appointment Opposed.

Controversy also flared over the reappointment of Donald W Smith to the national labor relations board. Before the appointment was announced, the Executive Council formally asked President Roosevelt not to name Smith and to fill the vacancy with a more "judicial-minded" administrator. It was indicated that the A. F. of L. will oppose senate confirmation of the appointment. Definite decision on this matter will be made by the forthcoming A. F. of L. convention at Houston, Tex.

Union Attorneys Protest Fee Aimed at Picketing

RIDGEWOOD, N. J.—Union attorneys protested that a proposed ordinance levying a $50 weekly fee for the privilege of carrying a sign on the streets was unconstitutional, and that it was designed to prevent picketing. Mayor Frank D. Livermore introduced the ordinance at a commission meeting. It comes up for passage Sept. 13. Harold Krieger, attorney for the Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butcher Workmen of North America, which had been on strike for two weeks, said he would ask civil liberties groups to help fight it.

REPORTS DEFINITE GAIN IN EMPLOYMENT

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Factory employment increased 40,000 in July and weekly factory payrolls gained by nearly $500,000, Secretary of Labor Perkins reports.

Miss Perkins said that the report marked a definite improvement in the employment situation and that it was the first employmennt gain shown in any month since September, 1937.

"Gains of 0.7 per cent in factory employment and of 0.4 per cent in payrolls were reported, although factory employment normally declines by about 1 per cent and payrolls by about 4 per cent in July," the secretary said. "Non-agricultural employment usually declines by about 140,000 workers in July."

"This year," Miss Perkins said, "it is estimated that there was practically no change. Railroads took on 14,000 more men in July and the seasonal curtailment in retail stores was smaller than usual."

She said that employment still was about one fourth less than in July, 1937, and that payrolls were one-third smaller.

She said the principal increases in factory forces were in the nondurable goods industries "in which employment expanded by more than 3 per cent, principally because of re-employment in the woolen and cotton goods industries, in men's clothing and shoes, and in the seasonal food industries such as canning."

IN THE NEWS

JAMES J. DAVIS

James J. Davis has been in the public eye a long time, but he's still going strong and just now is putting up a vigorous fight for re-election as United States senator from Pennsylvania.

Davis, our second secretary of labor, succeeding William B. Wilson, was born in Wales but came with his parents to Pittsburgh in 1881. He began working when 11 and learned the trade of iron puddler at Sharon, Pa.; hence his nickname of "Puddler Jim." He has nearly half a century of membership in the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers.

Davis is a stocky individual, a good mixer and with a liking for public speaking. He has addressed innumerable meetings, including American Federation of Labor conventions and other union gatherings, and always gets a good hand from his labor audiences.

Famous for his advocacy of the "saving wage" when he was secretary of labor, Senator Davis hammered away on the need of high wages in a day when so much was heard on the subject in government circles as now. Appointed to the senate late in 1930, he favored a big public works program to cope with the depression and voted for the $5,000,000 public works bill, beaten by a vote of 56 to 28. His labor record is approved by the A. F. of L.

Senator Davis has the support of the A. F. of L. in his election fight and his campaign managers are confident he will defeat Gov. Earle, candidate for senator on the democratic ticket.

Railway Audit and Inspection Co. Branded Strikebreaking Agency At New York License Hearing

NEW YORK CITY.—Vigorous opposition to renewal of the Railway Audit and Inspection Company's license as a private detective agency was expressed here at a public hearing conducted by the division of licenses of the New York Department of State.

The Civil Liberties Union, contesting the company's application for a license, charged that the concern has been engaged in spying on labor unions, provoking industrial riots, and supplying anti-union employers with tear gas and arms.

Representing the union at the hearing, Samuel Slaff, legislative representative of the New York Civil Liberties Committee, assailed the company for refusing to obey a subpoena by the La Follette Senate Committee on Civil Liberties. Slaff said records revealing "continuous violation of workers' rights" had been destroyed by the R. A. & I. Co. in efforts to hide the facts.

Use of Stool Pigeons Charged

Listing the grounds for complaint, the union, through Slaff contended:

"The Railway Audit and Inspection Co., in collaboration with Federal Laboratories, Inc., and other munition manufacturers, has been furnishing employers with arms, munitions and tear gas for industrial warfare. It has paid stool pigeons for reports of activities of employe organizations and offered trusted positions in trade unions for the purpose of revealing the identity of members, plans of action and similar information.

"Illegal methods are used by the agency to interfere with peaceful picketing and to break up lawful strikes. Disturbances have been instigated by the agency in order to encourage employers to retain its services. Lists of members of labor unions have been peddled by the agency to employers to serve as a basis for blacklists and discharges. Armed guards have been furnished by the agency for use in anticipation of or during a strike.

"In the face of these facts, the existence and operation of the Railway Audit and Inspection Company represents a menace to industrial peace in the state and a constant threat to the right of workers to organize and bargain collectively without interference."

Thirteen major corporations in the state were listed by the union as having retained or continuing to retain the services of the agency.

Hearings will be continued on September 28.

PASSING OF NEWS-BEE TRAGEDY FOR WORKERS

(From The Union Leader, Toledo, Ohio)

The news of the passing out of the Toledo News-Bee came as a distinct shock to thousands of citizens. We might say truthfully that this applies not only to Toledo but to all of the surrounding territory. Not only does Toledo lose a fine daily newspaper, but the loss of jobs to the large force of workers who had earned their daily wage as employes of the paper will be and is a distinct blow to our fair city. Just when, how or where these craftsmen and workers will once more find a place where they may earn their daily bread is something no one can answer.

It is just another evidence that there is something radically wrong with our system when working people willing and anxious to work are denied the right because there is no job open to them.

In the passing of The News-Bee, Toledo suffers a severe blow and the workers a tragedy.

Southern Labor "Spots"

Atlanta, Ga. — Dave Lasser's "Workers' Alliance" membership of which is recruited largely from among WPA workers, and workers on other government projects, is making a concerted drive in the south, judging from reports coming into the Atlanta office of the A. F. of L. Because of the huge building programs and construction projects in the southern states, the Dorkers' Alliance is centering its activities in the south.

The "Workers' Alliance" is affiliated with nothing. Of course, the A. F. of L. wouldn't have anything ot do with the so-called organization. Even the CIO, apparently, won't have it as an affiliate, as it is said the Workers' Alliance has applied for a charter from the CIO and to date no announcement of such affiliation has been made public.

State Federation of Labor officials, Building Trade councils, Central Labor union officials and all people interested in labor are urged to be on the alert and see to it that the Workers' Alliance is met with determined opposition in every locality in the south.

Building craftsmen especially should be interested in the movements of the Workers' Alliance, as that group takes in all skilled crafts with common labor, and no distinction made whatever between the skilled, the unskilled, the trained, the untrained.

Spokesmen for the Workers' Alliance issue statements for publication in some cities that the Workers' Alliance can do the work more efficiently and at less cost than can be done with the craft unions in the building trades. Of course, such statements are rdiculous, yet these foolish statements must be met with intelligent and determined efforts on the part of the organized groups.

The Hod Carriers, Common and Construction Laborers' union, affiliated with the A. F. of L., takes in all WPA workers except those who rightly belong to one of the building trades. All skilled workers on the WPA projects should be contacted, and if they are not members of the unions of their craft, then their application for membership should be obtained.

Business agents for the several building trades are uged to watch carefully all WPA projects and all other building and construction work that the efforts of the Workers' Alliance to fool the people may be nullified. In placing all workers, skilled and unskilled, into one group, as the Workers' Alliance does, would soon tear down every standard which the A. F. of L. unions have spent more than a half century in building up.

Mobile, Ala.—V. E. Townsend, international representative of the I. L. A., is busily engaged with his associates and the officers of the several Longshoremen's local unions on the South Atlantic and Gulf coasts, preparing for renewal of agreements with their employers. The existing agreements expire on Sept. 30, and negotiations for new agreements have been under way for some time.

One of the outstanding achiements of the International Longshohemen's association last year was in perfecting a program whereby agreements with all shipping companies expire at the same time. This is the first time that the longshoremen have had the economic advantage of all agreements expiring upon the same day and date.

Under the agreements negotiated last year by the I. L. A., the longshoremen were given splendid advance in pay. In the Port of New Orleans the increase was 20 cents an hour. In the new agreement being negotiated still further advance in pay is asked. The longshoremen are now, as a result of the work of the I. L. A., receiving $1.00 an hour, the highest pay ever received by longshoremen on the South Atlantic and Gulf coasts.

The I. L. A.'s agreements now cover the longshoremen from Wilmington, N. C., to Corpus Christi, Tex. It is believed that all agreements will be signed in ample time to begin the new year, Oct. 1, with a solidified group of I. L. A. agreements throughout the territory.

Retail Clerks Strike In 27 San Francisco Department Stores

San Francisco.—The strike of retail clerks in this city got away to a flying start with the walkout of several thousand clerks from 27 department stores with eight branches, picket lines everywhere, with the handsomest girls among the strikers taking a prominent part, and the usual rumors of coming events casting their fog over the situation.

The stores were not closed tight by the strike, but they were badly crippled. Union leaders claimed that 75 per cent of the clerks walked out. Outside observers put the walkout at above 50 per cent of the clerking force.

The walkout was claimed to be the first time that a mass strike has hit the department stores of any city. While the strike of the clerks was purely an A. F. of L. affair, it had strong support and approval from the CIO, whose members were locked out of 121 wholesale warehouses. The close connection between wholesale warehouses and department stores is too plain to need explanation, but the link is made tighter by the fact that the proprietors and managers of both belong to the same employers' association.

There is no secrecy about the fact that the organized employers of San Francisco are making a drive to bring back the "open shop." They lost the complete control which the "open shop" gives —with a certain amount of help from company spies, private detectives and such like things—in 1934 —and now they mean to get it back. Indeed, that drive extends through all California, including the proprietors of big fruit ranches, who are the most ruthless of all in crushing any move toward unionism.

The police insisted on free passage to and from the struck stores. But in one store, the police disarmed eight private guards, probably hired from one of the west coast strike-breaking agencies, who were armed with pistols. Teamsters stopped deliveries to and from the stores, and warehousemen in store shipping departments stopped work.

Take It or Leave It

Points of View Picked Up From Various Sources
CY KOLOGY, EDITOR

Do Americans really know how well off they are?

Old question, usually answered in the negative.

Spectacle of a large part of the nation at rest and play, on Labor day, gives rise to the question. A good time was the prevailing note of the holiday, lasting three or more days for many. There was knowledge of events in Europe, perhaps some uneasiness among some, but no sense of fear hovered over the nation to chill the merrymaking.

* * *

Across our borders no great masses of armed men stood waiting the command of megolamaniacal dictators to launch death and destruction on our people.

Light-hearted "swing," not the heavy and portentious beat of martial music, ruled the American scene.

Did Americans think of this and give a thought to how fortunate they were in comparison with Europeans? A few did, most didn't, in all probability.

* * *

Americans took the holiday as a matter of course, never thinking how different it might have been No "fuehrers" were in evidence to spread gloom.

Labor marched in great parades or gathered in big meetings to hear words of peace, not war.

True, there was some mention of internal dissension, with an occasional belligerent expression. Peace and co-operation, however, were the dominating notes.

Labor executives stressed co-operation of employes, employers and government to solve our problems. William Green, Frank Morrison, Matthew Woll, I. M. Ornburn and others urged co-operation, in words of labor statesmanship.

The co-operative idea is gaining fast and much will be heard of it from now on. Labor is ready to help, as always.

* * *

Big special editions of the labor papers are an important constructive feature of the Labor day celebration.

The papers this year were chockful of good stuff and carried a vast amount of advertising from progressive business enterprises of many kinds.

Much space was devoted to labor news of the day and to recalling organized labor's achievements.

Good will and understanding of the labor movement were promoted and the effects of this educational work will carry through the months to come.

Labor day, 1938, is gone but the spirit of the day's activities will live until another first Monday in September rolls around.

* * *

Labor made a great and permanent gain when the Norris-LaGuardia anti-injunction bill took the federal courts out of the strike-breaking business. But one sizable offset to this gain might have been foreseen from the first, and is showing up now.

Corporations which want to keep their autocratic control of labor are turning more and more to state courts and state governments.

It might have been expected, of course. One way to cure it is for labor to make itself more important in state elections. There is not much fear that labor will overlook this remedy very long.

President Urges Unity of Labor And Farmers

Washington, D. C. — Speaking Labor Day at Denton, Maryland, to an open-air audience, President Roosevelt gave a strong indorsement to Congressman David J. Lewis, New Deal candidate for the Democratic nomination for the Senate. He listed among many other good deeds done by Lewis in public life the fact that as a young man in the Maryland legislature, Lewis had introduced and put through the first workmen's compensation law ever passed in the United States.

President Roosevelt emphasized particularly the fact that farmers and wage earners of the cities have the same interests as well as the same ancestry. Efforts are being made, said the President, to break up this natural common feeling, and set farmers against workers, and vice versa.

"America always has had—and America still has," said the president, "a small minority who assume that there are not enough good things to give the minority all it wants and at the same time to give the rest of America—the overwhelming majority of America—a humane and modern standard of living . . .

"But at the same time, all over this country, the unity of interest of all common men and women —warmhearted, simple men and women, willing to live and let live, whether in factorry or on farm, grows steadily clearer and more evident."

Big Gains for Machinists' Union—

Year Since Labor Day of 1937 Marked by Signing of 2,319 Agreements, Making Total of Over 4,000 Now in Effect.

Washington. — The International Association of Machinists celebrated Labor day this year by reporting an imposing record of accomplishment since Labor day of a year ago.

During the year, this organization negotiated 2,319 new and renewed agreements with employers n various sections of the country. Of this number, 251 were made during August, this year.

The total number of such agreements now in effect in the United States and Canada exceeds 4,000, according to information recently made public by officials of the association.

Of the 2,319 pacts signed, not one provided for wage reductions, while in many instances substantial increases were goined. The association also reports that the entire total of agreements include provisions for time and half for overtime, and double time for Sundays and holidays. It is further reported that more and more firms are conceding one and two weeks' vacation with pay.

Federal agreements, which are increasing and proving both practicable and beneficial, officials report, are formed by having individual craft unions working for an individual plant, unite to form a federated agreement. Each craft union selects three delegates who meet in joint conference to prepare an agreement. From this delegation is selected a negotiating committee composed of one member of each craft union, which carries on negotiations with the employer.

Buffalo, N. Y.—Addresses by Senator Wagner and Gov. Lehman headlined the opening session here of the 75th annual convention of the New York Federation of Labor. Both received ovations upon their appearance in the hall and were given rousing demonstrations during their addresses.

In introducing Gov. Lehman, President George Meany stated that the governor had adopted the legislative program of the state federation as his own and that, as a result of this attitude on his part, the last session of the New York legislature had been one of the most successful with respect to remedial legislation.

Gov. Lehman stated that our whole present problem might be condensed into that of bringing distribution to an equality with production. "Legitimate and reasonable returns for capital and labor, including fair wages to workers and increased opportunities to participate in the benefits of mounting industrial efficiency" were given by the governor as necessary factors in this program.

Among recent achievements by the state administration were insurance and the social security law; outlawing of yellow-dog contracts, five-day week and eight-hour day for state employes, three-platoon system for New York City firefighters, 10-hour day for auto truck drivers, prohibition of coercion, espionage and spy systems by employers, and many others.

In all of these, the governor said, the fullest and most effective cooperation had been extended by the State Federation of Labor.

Senator Wagner declared, in connection with the two main themes of his address, a national health policy and slum clearance through a national housing program, that organized labor in New York and through the nation had been in the vanguard of the fight. Recognition of the duty of caring for the health of the underprivileged is, the senator said, a necessary rounding out of the social security act.

Labor Co-operation Cited.

Slum clearance through a great national housing program is, he declared, another equally pressing public responsibility. Such a program should be carried out through contracts let to private concerns, paying the prevailing wage rates and furnishing full-time employment under union conditions.

Illustrating the great contribution of organized labor to industrial peace, the senator stated that in more than fifty cities agreements had been entered into in connection with housing activities, by which strikes, jurisdiction disputes and other industrial interruptions had been outlawed.

"Labor is enlisted in the war on slums and has and will contribute a mighty force to that end," he said.

Kentucky Low Wages Mildly Described in Labor Department Report—Virginia Finally Gets Old Age Relief Grant.

By GEORGE L. KNAPP

Washington, D. C.—"The general level of Kentucky wages cannot be considered encouraging," says the report on women's wages in that state, made by the Women's Bureau of the Department of Labor under the direction of Mary Anderson. Coming in a report which finds the average wage of women in Kentucky laundries to be less than 21 cents an hour, that is a distinctly mild statement.

In fact, it is about the mildest statement I have read since Franklin K. Lane for the ICC described the trick by which Harriman, George Gould and others sold bonds of the Alton railroad and paid themselves 30 per cent dividends out of the proceeds. He said this was an instance of "indefensible financing."

The minimum fixed by the new Federal wage-hour law is 25 cents an hour. The Women's Bureau finds that in Kentucky, two-thirds of the women workers in the wooden boxand basket industry get less than this sum. In hosiery and candy, more than 40 per cent of the women workers get less than this sum; in cotton garments, 30 per cent; and in men's furnishings and bakery products, the number getting less than this new minimum standard ranged from 25 to 33 per cent.

According to the census of 1930, 146,000 women were "gainfully employed" in Kentucky. The wage-hour law will help a very considerable proportion of them. It should be said to Kentucky's credit that the League of Women Voters in Louisville asked for this report.

* * *

The Social Security Board has approved the Virginia plan for old age relief. This makes it unanimous. Virginia held back on this matter longer than any other state. Even now, the state has asked a grant for old age relief only for the month of September.

Probably, however, that is because the third quarter of the year ends with September; and Virginia asked the grant for the blind for that whole quarter. Anyway, better late than never.

* * *

Labor Day is one of the most popular holidays; but it is also coming to be a rival to the Fourth of July as a day of sudden death. At the prresent writing, not less than 225 people in the United States were killed in highway accidents—which are 99.64 per cent auto accidents—in the three-day vacation which ended with Labor Day.

Illinois topped the record with 22 such deaths; Michigan and Pennsylvania followed with 20 each, and Indiana with 19.

The United States Civil Service Bureau in Philadelphia had six unskilled labor jobs to give and gave two days' notice of them. They got more than 3,000 applications. Just how, in the face of a happening like that, the reactionary blather that the "jobless don't want to work" can continue is rather more than a puzzle.

Q.—Will a child become infected with roundworms by eating a great deal of candy?

A.—No. That is a false belief. The only way the child becomes infected is by eating the eggs of the roundworms. This infection can be prevented by proper sanitation.

Atty.-Gen. John J. Bennett opened his address by a forceful announcement of his candidacy for governor. Paying a warm tribute to the intelligent co-operation of organized labor in New York during his four terms as attorney-general, he pledged a continuation of these cordial relations.

ROBERT WATT RETURNS FROM EUROPE LOADED WITH FACTS ABOUT LABOR

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Robert J. Watt, Director of Social Security, American Federation of Labor, returned to the United States from a four month's sojourn in Europe equipped with a vast fund of reliable information regarding labor conditions abroad and their relationship to American working men and women.

Mr. Watt, who is one of the eight members of the Workers Group of the governing body of the International Labor Organization, left Washington on April 14 to attend the Eighty-third Session of the governing body which was held in Geneva the week of April 25. He also attended the recent International Labor Conference at Geneva as the Labor Delegate from the United States.

In accordance with a decision of the governing body taken at its eightieth session, he attended as a delegate representing the governing body the Preparatory Technical Meeting on the Coal Mining Industry, held in Geneva from May 2 to May 10.

During the interval between the Preparatory Coal Conference and the International Labor Conference he spent several weeks in Czechoslovakia as the guest of the Czechoslovakian labor movement.

While in Geneva, Mr. Watt was appointed by President Roosevelt as the labor member of the committee which surveyed labor relations and the administration of labor legislation in Great Britain and Sweden.

On returning to his office in the American Federation of Labor Building he compiled a complete report on his activities abroad for submission to William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, and the A. F. of L. Executive Council for use in preparing its report to the forthcoming annual convention of the Federation in Houston, Texas.

North Carolina Labor Commissioner Appointed to Enforce Compliance With Wages and Hours Law

Washington, D. C.—Arthur L. Fletcher, Commissioner of Labor of North Carolina, has been appointed assistant administrator in charge of enforcement, Administrator Elmer F. Andrews of the Federal wages and hours act announced.

The southerner, praised by Andrews as an opponent of "gypsy plants seeking to exploit local communities for short times and moving on," will come to Washington to begin work about Sept. 15. He will be responsible for obtaining compliance with the Fair Labor Standards Act throughout the nation, and will cooperate with state agencies wherever possible.

"I am delighted that Mr. Fletcher has consented to accept the appointment," Andrews said. "As Commissioner of Labor in North Carolina, he made a brilliant record for progressive and efficient administration.

Backs Aims of Act

"He has a close practical knowledge of industrial conditions and problems confronting employers and wage earners. He thoroughly understands and realizes the results of industrial instability and wage earners' insecurity.

"As Commissioner of Labor in North Carolina, he spoke out against the illusory promises made by gypsy plants seeking to exploit local communities for short times and moving on.

"He is thoroughly in sympathy with the aims and methods of the Fair Labor Standards Act."

Help Draft Model Laws

Fletcher, who has been State Labor Commissioner since 1933, has been active in the national labor conferences inaugurated by Secretary of Labor Perkins and was chairman of the committee which drafted a "model child labor law" for states to adopt.

He also has been named to a committee to draft a morel state wage-hour law regulating intrastate business to supplement the Federal statute which he will enforce.

40-Cent Minimum Urged

Francis J. Gorman, president of the United Textile Workers of America, said that this organization would insist upon a 40-cent minimum wage under the law. He said that at meetings recently in North and South Carolina he had been informed by workers that the employers had circulated information that it had been agreed that 30 cents would be the minimum wage.

"A 30-cent minimum wage," Gorman asserted, "based on the average amount of working time which the Southern textile workers get, would mean an average weekly wage over a period of time of about $8. The Act of Congress was designed to correct this condition—not perpetuate it."

Comment On World Events

With war a constant threat to the world and even a nation like Sweden thinking it necessary to increase her armed forces, it may be well to see what we can learn from the two undeclared wars now going on in China and Japan. We have been told by experts for some years that war now will be short and terrible, because of the new mechanical devices and improvements. The terribleness is admitted; but what about the shortness?

It is clear that Japan bit off more than she could chew; but in spite of immense superiority in all machinery of war, no speed limits have been broken. When fighting began in Shanghai, Japanese spokesmen said it would be all over in three or four weeks. Then they extended the time to six weeks, then to three months, and six months. Now, after more than a year of fighting, the most optimistic statement coming from Japan is that the war will be finished "soon."

In Spain, the first success of Gen. Franco's treacherous assault was rapid, and all his partisans were saying that he would rule all Spain in a few months. That first assault was made on July 19, 1936; and more than two years afterward, Franco doesn't rule Spain yet. Like Japan, he had and still has a great superiority in war machinery of all kinds.

His army is composed largely of Italians, and Germany has furnished his best artillery.

Without this foreign help, the war would indeed have been brief. As it is, in spite of the interference of the fascist powers, the issue is still doubtful.

If these two experiments mean anything, they mean that modern war machinery does not shorten war, unless the odds are simply overwhelming, as in Ethiopia. Even there, guerilla war is still going on, and the Italian army is still a garrison in a hostile country. The three dictators have tried to make a quick killing on a large nation; once directly in China, once indirectly in Spain. And they have failed both times.

* * *

Railroad workers who say that they will not stand another wage cut, because as a group they have been cut more than enough already, have some rather startling facts to support them.

The railroad working force dropped from 1,694,000 in 1929 to 1,137,000 in 1937, a loss of 557,000 jobs.

The railroad payroll fell from $2,940,206,000 in 1929 to $2,018,677,000 in 1937, a loss of $926,529,000.

Both rolls and payrolls are going down. Employment on railroads is now only a little above 900,000. Why should further sacrifices be asked from the workers? They are not responsible for railroad policies.

And, speaking of those who are or pretend to be responsible, quite a number of railroad presidents are getting from $50,000 to $60,000 a year.

Question Box

A—No. This belief arose from the fact that needles are made of steel and pins are usually made of brass. It is not the needle or pin itself which causes infection, but the contaminating germs on the pin or needle point.

Evidently, Japan didn't know it was loaded.

Purchase of Cheap Labor Goods Made Abroad Dooms U.S. to Catastrophe, Ornburn Declares

Washington, D. C.—A convincing plea for the buying of union-made products, coupled with a warning against the disastrous results of purchasing cheap labor goods from abroad, featured a Labor Day radio address by I. M. Ornburn, secretary-treasurer of the Union Label Trades Department, American Federation of Labor.

Another feature was a warning against the growth of paternalistic control of industry and labor by government agencies.

"Millions of dollars in wages," said Ornburn, "are lost to American workers as the result of purchases of unfair and foreign-made merchandise. The union label is the best guarantee that products are made by unionized firms in the United States and Canada. Patronize unionized American industries. Buy American! Demand the union label on all goods and the shop card and button for all services.

Warns of "Tailspin"

"If, on the other hand the American consumer fails to buy union label products, and instead purchases merchandise made by cheap labor in Europe and the Orient, America will take another tailspin, spiralling into the depths of a depression from which we shall never recover."

The speaker emphasized the value of union label buying in promoting the organization of labor, saying:

"Every union-earned dollar spent for union label goods and union services is a vote for collective bargaining agreements. Promises of political candidates cannot bring you the practical results that can be obtained through the collective purchasing of union label and union-made American products and the united patronage of union firms that employ service trades.

Danger of Too Much Control

"The buying of union label and union-made products and the patronage of union services are a continual boycott against foreign and unfair products. They are a perpetual strike against non-union working conditions."

Ornburn pointed out that it is the purpose of collective bargaining to make it possible for organized workers, through representatives of their own choosing, to take up their grievances and to better their conditions. He went on to say:

"It is when organized workers and organized employers cannot settle their differences that it is necessary for the government to take a hand. However, there is a limit to the extent that government should assume control of activities which fundamentally belong to a labor union, itself. Too much dictatorial control and regulation would destroy organized labor as a free agency of the workers.

"This nation is dedicated to the greatest principle of all—human freedom. Freedom of speech, freedom of the press and personal liberty were conceived and written into the Constitution by our forefathers.

Unions Must Be Free

"In the same degree that individual citizens enjoy freedom, so also must an organization of individuals retain its freedom. The Federal government is now undertaking the regulation of hours and wages. They are not and never will be as good as those standards established by labor unions.

"There may be a point in government regulation where a paternalistic bureau will control and regiment workers. Labor unions must safeguard their freedom just as individuals do. If the state takes over the entire control of hours, wages and conditions as has been done by dictators in Germany and Italy then independent labor unions will be destroyed and standards will be reduced by the will and whim of some bureaucrat. The American Federation of Labor is the most powerful bulwark for democracy and against dictatorships. For this reason alone all citizens should be grateful for this great American institution."

The Label, here shown, is the Label of the International Brotherhood of Bookbinders. The Label is used both as a stamp on outside of book to be either in black or gold and also a paper Label to be used on the inside of back cover of books bound under Union conditions.

This Label is used on blank books which contain no printing whatever, such as records, cash books, ledgers, desk pads, etc. It is also used in rebinding of magazines and other books of a like character. Florida Plan to Aid Dependent Children Given Appropal

Washington, D. C.—Approval of Florida's plan for aid to dependent children has been announced by the Social Security Board. Approximately 3,800 dependent children will be aided under this plan, according to estimates made by the state.

Florida already has approved plans for aiding the needy aged and blind, and with the approval of its plan for aid to dependent children, it becomes the thirty-seventh state, including Hawaii and the District of Columbia, participating in all three types of public assistance established by the Social Security Act. Approximately 29,700 old people and 1,800 blind persons are being aided in Florida.

The approval of the Florida plan brings to a total of 41 the number of approved plans for giving assistance to needy dependent children. Estimates for September indicate that approximately 610,700 children are being aided under these plans.

Union Label Is Mark of Quality

(From The Brewery Worker)

The American people must learn, if they do not already know, that the union label on a product they buy means it has been made in America. It means that the article has been made with the skill of union labor. It means that the manufacturer is not a chiseler. It means that the article was produced in a decent place of business under favorable sanitary conditions, and not in the forbidding environment of a sweatshop. It means that the company which made the article and is offering it for sale is willing to pay a living wage and help our country regain the road to recovery.

And if it's the "Red Label" of the International Union of Brewery Workmen, it means that the beer they are drinking was made by brewery workmen, men who know their business and have helped make the reputations of the finest beers in the country.

Prowling Gunmen Shoot Up Citizens As TEPCO Car Stands Nearby

Narrowly Escape Death in Wayne County From Officers "Guarding" Lines, No Warning Given

Investigations were under way today of the shooting incident on the Natural Bridge road in Wayne county about 10:45 p.m. Wednesday, September 14, in which C. F. Goodman, Columbia barber, and others in his car report a narrow escape from death from shots which Goodman says were fired by a Wayne county officer named Alexander, who purportedly was one of the officers guarding Tennessee Electric Power company lines and halting autos on the roads in the vicinity of the dynamiting of a pole near Waynesboro.

With Goodman were Gene Fraser, also of Columbia, and a Miss Lois Matthews, of Waynesboro, Goodman reporting that he and Fraser had gone to Waynesboro to see some young ladies.

The three were on the front seat and had driven out the Waynesboro-Lawrenceburg highway until they found the road rough and turned back, Goodman said.

Goodman stated that when they went out the Natural Bridge road, they were traveling at a rate of about 20 miles an hour, but on their return to the highway, which was not more than five minutes, they were traveling at about 30 miles per hour. He said he heard a whistle and slowed up, but that before he could stop, there was a terrific discharge and the shot passed through his car from the driver's side and out through the glass on the other side.

"The window was down on my side," Goodman said, "but the window on the other side was up and a hole about a half foot square was blown through the glass with buckshot. The shot passed right in front of us and if I had been going two miles an hour faster we would have caught the full discharge of the gun, or if he had shot a few inches further back.

"The shots scorched my hand on the wheel, and they deafened my left ear, and almost scared us all to death," said Goodman. "I stopped the car immediately and called to the man and asked him what he meant and told him to come out of hiding, but he refused to come, so I got out of the car and talked to him. I said: 'Do you know you came near killing us?' and I said 'You had better be more careful or you will kill somebody.' He said he didn't care if he did, that he had been instructed to catch whoever blew up the electric light wires and poles, and that he had been instructed to stop all cars.

"I recognized the man to be either Constable, Deputy Sheriff or Night Police Alexander, of Waynesboro, as I had seen him a number of times on my visits down to Waynesboro, and all the time I was talking to him he had me covered with his gun. There was another man with him, 'Pop Corn' Brady.

"I was driving my 1937 Ford V-8, and they offered to repair my car, but I told them that I would look after that later on. I asked Brady if he was armed and he was, although I did not see any gun.

"We also saw a Tennessee Electric Power company truck sitting not far away.

"While we were in Waynesboro, I noticed the lights flicker and go out, but I thought they could come back again, and we went on to the place where Fraser's girl worked, to get her, but she said she was tired and thought she had better get some sleep. We three then went on out to get another girl, but failed, and then started to Natural Bridge."

Goodman said that the shooting occurred about three and a half miles from Waynesboro and was after the lights went out some time.

When asked what he expected to do about the matter, Mr. Goodman stated that he had not made up his mind as to swearing out a warrant.

C. E. Perkins, district manager for the Tennessee Electric Power company, when asked what he knew of the circumstances of the shooting, stated that he only had unofficial information and that the constables and deputies sheriff had been used to guard company property and patrol their lines in that section, but he could not give any information as to the circumstances.

Green Tells ITU Hours of Work Must Be Cut

Birmingham, Ala. — President Green, of the A. F. of L., told the 82nd convention of the International Typographical union that the A. F. of L. will seek for a 30-hour work week as a means of combatting the economic depression.

"The old 8-hour day is a thing of the past," said Mr. Green. "We have moved beyond that. The work day must be shortened and the work week reduced."

He proposed a six-hour day and a five-day week, wth a maintenance of present wages.

If politicians can set your wages high and your hours low it must not be forgotten that they can also set your wages low and your hours high.—James A. Taylor, president Washington State Federation of Labor.

Railroad Unions Meet September 26 To Map Fight on Wage Cut Proposal

Cincinnati. — George M. Harrison, chairman of the Railway Labor Executives' association and president of the Brotherhood of Railway and Steamship Clerks, announced that representatives of the rail unions will meet in Chicago Sept. 26, and take such action as may be necessary to defeat the 15 per cent cut in wages, scheduled by the railroads to go into effect Oct. 1.

"The announced intention of the railroads will be met with determined resistance by the organized rail workers," said Mr. Harrison. "The unions are preparing to proceed in a manner that will compel the abandonment of this program."

Figures on the strike vote now being taken among the rail unions are expected to be in by that date.

Chicago. — The carriers joint conference committee, representing 142 Class 1 railroads, moved a step toward a showdown in its controversy with 916,000 rail workers over a proposed 15 per cent wage reduction.

The committee issued a formal announcement that the cut, originally ordered last May, will become effective at 12:01 a.m. Oct. 1, the earliest possible date permitted under the railway labor act. Nineteen operating and non-operating brotherhoods are polling their memberships to determine whether a nationwide strike should be called against the cut.

The reduction will be postponed if, as expected, President Roosevelt appoints a fact-finding commission to investigate the dispute.

Davy John Lewis did not win the democratic nomination for the senate. But he has done more good deeds for labor, for Maryland and for the United States than Senator Tydings could even understand.

Housing Contracts Pass $200,000,000 Mark

USHA Says New Dwellings Will House 160,000 Now Living in Slum Sections

Washington. — Actual contracts for United States Housing Authority loans to local authorities for slum clearance and low-rent rehousing have passed the $200,000,000 mark.

These contracts provide for the construction of dwelling units for 40,636 families and more than 160,000 persons now dwelling in slnms. The last group of approvals alone call for 10,140 family dwelling units.

In addition to these approved contracts, Administrator Straus, of the USHA, has earmarked $316,466,000 for other cities. Mr. Straus reports that, directly and indirectly, 75.5 per cent of any appropriation for housing will go in wages.

"The U. S. housing act," said Straus, "requires the elimination of one slum dwelling unit for every new family dwelling unit built with a USHA loan. . . . We must do this, whether we build directly in slum areas or on vacant sites."

Spurling Printery Signs Agreement

Butcher Workmen Sign Agreement With Packers

Chicago. — The Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butcher Workmen of North America has entered into a blanket union shop agreement in Chicago with all of the members of the Chicago Packers and Sausage Manufacturers' association.

The agreement covers all of the workers employed in the twenty-seven plants of the association members located in Chicago.

Negotiations on this far-reaching contract began in March, 1937, and continued for more than a yer. One section of the agreement, which delayed its signing, was the question of a strictly closed shop, but this was finally agreed to by the association.

Actors' Union Presents State History on Parade Floats

Boston.—The most striking entity in the 1938 Labor day parade here was that presented by the Actors' union, with 300 in the line of march. Many floats were built and used on trucks to trace the history of the stage from the Indians to the current age. Noted stage figures of the past were impersonated, and dress fashions of the stage, feminine and masculine, were also depicted. It was the first time the history of a unionized profession had been depicted so graphically in a labor demonstration.

PLUMBERS SEE BUILDING BOOM

Atlantic City, N. J.—"Early beginning of the greatest boom in history" was predicted in reports of officers of the United Association of Journeymen-Plumbers and Steamfitters of the United States and Canada, submitted to the association's convention here. No quick increase in employment was foreseen, however.

Three thousand delegates, representing 53,986 members, heard the joint report of the officers and general executive board in which the prediction was made. The forecast was based upon the assumptions that the necessity for a shorter work week and work day and highest salaries possible would be recognized by the nation and that capital and labor would work together for self-government in industry.

The basis for the boom forecast included "extension and replacement so necessary in the great industries, need for 700,000 family units each year for our growing population, necessary alterations and improvements in present buildings to protect the investments, a rising percentage of marriages and a clamor on every tongue for a higher and better life because of our widespread educational system."

"The day of the large building era is over for some time," the report said. "We must confine ourselves to securing the small building work such as homes and apartment buildings."

The convention is the association's first in ten years.

TRADES UNION LABEL COUNCIL

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 23, 1938

A Good Sign

Yesterday while watching the military parade we noticed one thing which we thought was a good sign regarding the attitude of the public on war.

While the soldiers were passing there was no cheering. When the flag passed hats were lifted, but the usual warlike hysteria that greets the neat uniforms and polished guns was lacking.

[illegible] to the men in the uniforms. It meant no lack of loyalty to our country. It simply meant, we hope, that the public is deeply impressed with warlike rumblings in Europe, and possibly the fear that maybe we would be propagandized into getting into it dampened the exuberance that usually greets all military parades.

We hope that our people will regard our army as a fine and necessary part of our national defense, but a part which must not be used except for defense of home soil.

A Little Study in Voting

There is a movement among certain upper income circles to get some property qualifications for voting. It takes several forms, but the chief drive at present is to disfranchise persons on relief, even on work relief of the WPA. It is as selfish and as silly as the drive which big employers made some years ago to get back their "right" to import contract labor. Silly as that was, it had to be dealt with—and so has this.

Democratic governments succeed quite largely in proportion to the ratio of their citizens that vote. This is not the only test, but it is a pretty good one. There are eight states with poll taxes which must be paid to vote. These states and their votes at the 1936 election are given below, and against each poll tax state is set down a state with as nearly the same population as possible and no poll tax, and its vote. Here you are:

Alabama	274,000
Minnesota	1,049,000
Arkansas	179,000
West Virginia	828,000
Georgia	295,000
Wisconsin	1,184,000
Mississippi	162,000
Kansas	862,000
South Carolina	115,000
Maryland	621,000
Tennessee	474,000
Kentucky	962,000
Texas	838,000
California	2,603,000
Virginia	333,000
Iowa	1,109,000

There you have it. The states without poll tax range from three to five times as many votes as states with poll tax and substantially the same population. There are other factors, of course; the one most often given is the large colored population in the south. But while South Carolina has two and a half times the colored population of Maryland, the latter state cast five times as many votes as South Carolina.

Go back far enough, and only the king voted. Then his counsellors were allowed to vote, then the barons, then the burghers. The ideal now in this country is that every adult citizen not in prison or an insane asylum shall have a vote.

Union Work Must Go On

Union men and women have no reason to flatter themselves that their work is done because their trade and the trades of many others are organized. As long as there are workers unorganized (and there are millions of them in the United States), organized labor cannot cease its fight to increase union membership. As William Green said:

"Ours is a constant, never-ending fight for a full and complete recognition on the part of all employers of labor of the principles of collective bargaining, for justice, decent wages and tolerable and humane conditions of employment. Our task will never be completed so long as any part of this undeclared goal remains unrealized."

Hitler-Tepco Brand of Peace

Herr Hitler moves into territory not his own, plants his army down, and then tells the world he wants peace. England and France said "Yes, we must have peace. There must be peace when we press the button." Therefore Hitler was told to do as he pleased with Czechoslovakia.

The Tennessee Electric Power company moved its lawyers in, and planted its strikebreakers and "guards" throughout Tennessee in defiance of the laws of the land and says it wants peace. The newspaper guardian of the public said, "We want peace. The juice must be at the button when we press it. Damn the welfare of the families of the strikers. Give us the juice."

Therefore the power company is given rein to sit in its might.

So many coupons to the ounce and there isn't a mistake in a million, say officials of the Brown and Williamson Tobacco company. The company is 100 per cent union, including the girls who weigh the coupons and send out the premiums. And the ladies' home that are listed in the premium list are union-made, too.

RAILROAD EMPLOYMENT IN SMALL ADVANCE

Washington.—Railroad employment at the middle of August showed 1.05 per cent over that of the middle of July, but 19.22 per cent lower than the figures for the same month in 1937.

The month covered has shown a slight upturn in the two railroad occupations which fare the worst, even in good times. Maintenance of way and structures men were 2.31 per cent more numerous than the month before; and maintenance equipment and stores workers were 1.91 per cent thicker. Even so, the way men were 24.36 per cent and the equipment and stores people were 26.55 per cent fewer than a year ago.

GOVERNMENT WORKERS' UNION TO ASK CONGRESS FOR FIVE-DAY WEEK

Chicago.—The American Federation of Government Employes in annual convention here has given unanimous approval to a moderate but far-reaching plan for government workers, which will be lead before congress at the next session. Here are the principal items in that program:

A $1,500 annual minimum wage for all full time employes, with statutory automatic increases in salary.

A five-day, 35-hour work week, with no increase in pay.

Extension of the merit system to all branches of the civil government now excluded by law.

Optional retirement after thirty years' service.

Salary or leave for overtime and higher pay for night work.

For Prevailing Wage.

Payment of not less than the prevailing wage to craft employes in agencies not affected by wage boards or other machinery.

Due consideration to length of service, experience and general fitness in giving promotional examinations.

Establishment of a board of appeals independent of all departments, so organized as to protect the rights of employes fully.

Shorter hours and more reasonable pay for employes in veterans administration facilities, for custodial employes and employes in federal penal institutions.

Spoils System Scored.

Senator Walsh, of Massachusetts, spoke, declaring that the spoils system is the most destructive thing in the country, and that our American civil service is a "hodgepodge and a patch quilt compared to England's complete and fixed merit system."

"I insist that the time has come for an accurate and understandable system of civil service in the United States," he said. "Our fight is for an honest-to-God merit system, up and down the line."

President William Green, of the American Federation of Labor, attacked the Committee for Industrial Organization in a speech before the convention and declared that the defeat of Representative David J. Lewis in the Maryland primary was traceable to his support by the CIO.

Green was applauded when he declared:

Green promised renewed opposition to any move to do away with the civil service commission, and said the A. F. of L. "is not opposed to a practical, constructive reorganization measure, because we believe there is need for improvements in the administrative set-up of our government."

W. Jett Lauck will undoubtedly be the economic counsel for the railroad workers in the hearings which lie close ahead; and in a way, it will be old stuff to him. He has been at that—and similar things—for 27 years. He was economic counsel, probably under another name, for the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen way back in 1911; and a little later, he won their case for a raise of pay.

The inside story of that rise is little known. Asked by the board of arbitration what he expected to show, he answered that he meant to show that the waste and graft of certain railroads would much more than cover the desired raise. He happened to mention the New Haven. J. P. Morgan, then still controlling the New Haven, wanted nothing on that score; he was having trouble enough with that pestilential Boston lawyer, Louis D. Brandeis. He sent his orders to the railroad folks to compromise.

Lauck was economic counsel for the shop crafts before the strike of 1922; and his assembly of figures was devastating. He has had a dozen similar jobs, before and since. He served variously in the World war, statistician of U. S. shipbuilding labor adjustment board, secretary of national war labor board, and the like. But probably the thing in which he takes the most satisfaction is that he and Jerome Frank worked Section 7a, labor's charter of liberty, into the national recovery act.

He was born in West Virginia in 1879, graduated from Washington and Lee university in 1903, won a fellowship that took him to the University of Chicago, taught in Washington and Lee, had been summoned to Cornell when tangled up in railroad arbitration cases. He is about 5 feet 4 inches above sea level, dark, with thinning black hair, and a remarkably pleasant smile.

Hitler smashed the German labor unions, murdered or imprisoned their leaders, confiscated their treasuries. He is still conducting the most appalling persecution of the Jews that has been seen in Europe since the Middle Ages. And now he accuses other nations of "oppression!"

POVERTY BREEDS WAR, NATION TOLD

WASHINGTON, D. C.—"Modern war destroys what it touches beyond the hope of rehabilitation," declared Representative Thomas R. Amlie, Progressive of Wisconsin, in calling on the American people to consider ways and means of staying out of war.

Representative Amlie maintains that strengthening democratic processes of government is fundamental to the prevention of war.

"The aggression of the Fascist countries has shown that war is today, even more openly than it has always been, generated out of domestic economic problems left too long unsolved," he went on to say, and "mass unemployment, unrest, grinding poverty — these things turn a once democratic country into a breeding ground for dictatorship. The dictator, faced by the same economic problems that put him into power, turns to war as his way of turning poverty into a patriotic virtue, and makes soldiers out of the unemployed."

The Wisconsin legislator voiced his belief that "our economic problems can be solved democratically and with the preservation of peace," but he cautioned that "if they are to be solved democratically, it will only be allowing the Federal government to take the lead in planning an expansion of industrial production to absorb our unemployed in useful, productive labor, and in so doing raise the standard of living of all our people."

U. S. and Canadian Unions In Joint Labor Day Parades

Portland, Me.—Labor day demonstrations held this year included two international programs, at Edmundston, New Brunswick, and Woodland, Me. At Edmundston, labor unions from Madawaska, Me., across the St. John river from Edmundston, participated in the parade, and at Woodland, labor unions from St. Stephen and Milltown, New Brunswick, across the St. Croix river, attended. There were eight bands in this procession. Both international demonstrations were under the auspices of the American Federation of Labor.

Virginia Physicians Demand Let Up To A. M. A. Attacks on Plans For Better Medical Care

Washington.—The Medical Society of Virginia has instructed its delegates to the coming meeting of the House of Delegates of the American Medical association to demand a "let up" in the attacks of the A. M. A. and its editor, Dr. Morris Fishbein, on "groups interested in improving medical care in America."

The Virginia doctors, it was reliably reported, felt that some improvement in the medical care furnished the poor is bound to come, and that things like Dr. Fishbein's attack on the National Health conference is likely to cause needless trouble.

They did not pass formally on Group Health, Inc., of this city, nor on the boycott on the doctors of that association which has been declared by the hospitals of Washington. But they did call for government help in caring for the sick of the lower income brackets.

Cleveland.—The economics committee of the Academy of Medicine has proposed hospital insurance for the general public at $9 yearly it what was believed to be the first support by the medical profession itself on a universal hospitalization plan.

It was believed that with the problems of socialized medicine stirring widespread debate the plan would attract national attention from both the profession and laymen.

Dr. Milton B. Cohen, chairman of the committee, said that the plan had been approved in principle by the academy's board of directors. He said that the committee would work out details then put it to a vote of the academy's membership.

If approved, he said it probably would go into effect shortly after Jan. 1.

Chicago Union Circles Show Interest In Bar Association 'Labor Committee'

By JOSEPH A. WISE

Chicago.—Considerable interest was aroused in Chicago organized labor circles over the announcement by Frank J. Hogan, president of the American Bar Association, that his organization had appointed a five-man committee on "labor, employment and social security."

There was curiosity as to the background and probable mental reaction of the five men toward labor problems. With a view of obtaining some information along this line, the headquarters of the American Bar Association, 1140 North Dearborn Street, Chicago, were visited. The information vouchsafed there was that President Hogan and the executive secretary were both out of the city and would be gone for another week.

Ekern "Passes Buck."

An attempt was then made to reach Herman L. Ekern, Chicago lawyer, who was named as a member of the committee. Mr. Ekern artfully dodged and "passed the buck" to his brother George, who gave a half promise that a statement would be mailed, but no statement came.

No information could be gleaned about two members of the committee—Clif Langsdale, of Kansas City, Mo., and Hedley V. Richardson, of Detroit, Mich.

Delegated to Settle Dispute

Herman L. Ekern, the Chicago member, is a former attorney general of Wisconsin. The Martindale-Hubbell Law - Directory describes him as "specializing in insurance law, subrogation, taxation and insurance company problems."

Mr. Ekern is the man who was delegated by the LaFollette National Committee to settle an argument between the International Typographical Union and W. T. Rawleigh, multicillionaire non-union manufacturer of Freeport, Ill., during the 1924 national political campaign. Rawleigh was the LaFollette financial angel. The printers got the short end of the deal, and have been getting that from Rawleigh ever since.

Veteran Labor Editor Celebrates Golden Wedding Anniversary

Worcester, Mass.—Freeman M. Saltus, editor and publisher of the Worcester Labor News and other labor papers, and Mrs. Saltus celebrated their golden wedding anniversary on Sept. 18 at the Hotel Bancroft, Worcester. Mr. and Mrs. Saltus have thirteen married children, who, with their wives and husbands and 19 grandchildren, were present at the anniversary celebration.

Mr. Saltus, who is one of the best known labor editors and publishers in the United States, was born at Burlington, Vt., in 1866. Mrs. Saltus was born at Sorel, P. Q., in 1867.

After working as a printer in Burlington and Springfield, Mass., Mr. Saltus came to Worcester in 1904, worked on the Worcester in 1904, worked on the Telegram for two years and started the Worcester Labor News in 1906. In addition to the Worcester Labor News, he is now publishing the Rhode Island Labor, Maine State Labor News, New Hampshire Labor News and New England Journal of Labor. He has been prominent in the Worcester labor movement, having been president of the Central Labor union and the Worcester Typographical union. He is a member of the International Labor Press and was a vice-president for several years.

Unemployment to Last Until Hours Are Cut, Says Green

Atlantic City, N. J.—Unemployment will not end until American industry adopts the six-hour day and 30-hour week, President William Green, of the American Federation of Labor, said.

Addressing the United Association of Journeymen Plumbers and Steamfitters of the United States and Canada, in convention here, Green said the "only remedy for unemployment is to absorb the idle workers in private industry."

"The government cannot go on appropriating PWA and WPA funds above its annual income," he said. "It can do this only temporarily in the hope that private industry will take up the burden, and that process has been very slow.

"The American Federation of Labor has called upon the employers, the government administrators and congress to immediately put into effect the sixhour day and 30-hour week . . . and until we meet that issue we will have unemployment. It means a more equitable distribution of the available work and I maintain that every citizen is entitled to share in that work."

Reaping the Whirlwind

(From the Washington Post.)

The death of Jean Longuet, French socialist leader and grandson of Karl Marx, brings vividly to mind the vast, if tragically belated, change that has come about in French thinking on the German problems in the twenty years since the end of the World war.

Longuet was one of a distinctly small minority of Frenchmen, most of them belonging to the left, who fought with might and main against a punitive peace. They were ruled out. The spirit of Clemenceau, "the Tiger," and of Poincare, "the vindictive man of Lorraine," was then in the ascendant. Indeed a vast number of individuals not only in France, but also in Great Britain and this country as well, regarded the Versailles treaty as being too lenient. For years all suggestions of extending a friendly hand to the struggling German republic were denounced as treasonable.

Had Longuet and men of his point of view been listened to in those distant days, of 1919, the world today might be a far different, and, probably, an infinitely more peaceful place. Revenge breeds revenge. And while Hitler might have become prominent even had the Versailles treaty been more lenient, the harshness of its provisions and the way they were sometimes carried out gave him an invaluable talking point.

Illinois Reactionaries Denounced As Blocking Most of State's U.-S.-Financed Housing Projects

Washington.—"Illinois loves its slums," said U. S. Housing Administrator Nathan Straus to a newspaper conference, as he finished his statement about the reactionary real estate dealers of Chicago who have blocked about seven-eighths of the housing program for the state.

The situation is this: The state, to get federal help, must remit taxes on housing projects to lower the rent. A bill to cover this was brought up in the last session of the Illinois legislature; and was fought by what Straus well calls the "reactionary interests." It was put through in such fashion that only one project can be started in Illinois under that law.

This is a $10,000,000 project for negro housing on the South Side of Chicago, on land which the PWA bought for a project that was abandoned. Illinois, under the terms of the Wagner housing act, is entitled to $80,000,000 of the $800,000,000 authorized by congress.

Only Hope Seen in Labor.

Straus declared that the Illinois situation "is dominated by reactionary business and real estate interests," who are keeping 12,000 to 14,000 families in "vile housing conditions," and depriving Illinois of $70,000,000 of federal money which she might have.

> "I have only one hope for Illinois," said Straus, "and that is the leadership of organized labor." He sent Walter V. Price, special assistant on labor relations of the United States Housing Authority, to the state federation of labor meeting at Peoria, to speak on the housing program.

It is estimated that with its full allotment of $80,000,000, nearly $26,000,000 would be paid out for labor on the job, and more than $40,000,000 paid indirectly to labor for materials, etc.

Newspapers Also Blamed.

He said also that all slum-clearance projects would be covered by a "no strike, no paycut" contract; and he declared that housing was bound to become a continuing governmental function. As an average, he said that more than 75 per cent of the money spent on these projects goes for wages.

PWA Building Thousands of Schools

Washington.—A quarter of a million of the 30,000,000 children returning to school in September will go to 1,000 school buildings completed in the last year under the public works administration building program.

The PWA announced that 44 per cent of the 5,000 projects approved in its new emergency construction program were educational buildings.

In addition to the 2,100 school buildings approved this summer, 7,900 were built under earlier PWA Programs.

HORSEPOWER PLUS

Washington.—The use of machines in the United States has increased twelve and one-half times during the past fifty years, a manufacturing survey says. Horsepower installed in factories has gained from approximately 3,500,000 to more than 42,000,000.

Points of View Picked Up From Various Sources
CY KOLOGY, EDITOR

Shadow of European war covers the earth.

What does it mean for American workers? Many wage-earners old enough to remember 1914-1918 must be wondering.

Industrial conditions have been improving. Now, no one knows what will happen, as no one can tell what the effect of war, actual or long threatened, will be.

Workers' best protection, as always, is in organization.

If industrial improvement continues, union members will be in best position of all workers to share fairly in the gains.

If war gives industry a sock, union workers will be in the best position to maintain wage scales and resist cuts.

* * *

War-produced poverty and misery bred the state of mind that produced fascism, nazism, communism.

Instead of making the world safe for democracy, the war had the opposite effect.

Where there was a measure of democracy and freedom, as in Germany and Italy before the war, there is none now.

Another war mightly easily have the same effect in Europe's remaining democracies.

Peoples made desperate by war's sufferings and horrors are likely to do anything.

America is the hope of democracy, IF WE STAY OUT OF WAR. If we go in, anything might happen here, as in Europe. Much of democracy would go by the board and might never be restored.

Modern war, with its necessity for lightning quick decision and action, is incompatible with democratic processes, which are often slow and halting.

If America stays at peace, it can make its democratic system work and be a beacon light of hope to the world. Even in peace, however, making the American system work will require the co-operation of all elements of the population.

"It is ours either to be a grave in which the hopes of the world shall be entombed or a pillar of fire that shall pilot the race onward to its millennial glory," said Alexander Hamilton long ago.

Many believe Hamilton's words even truer today than when first said.

Russian weakness may account for some of Hitler's brashness.

One account is that more than half of the army officers have been "purged" out of the service by executions, prison sentences and dismissals.

It is quite likely that Hitler and his aides think there is something seriously wrong in a nation that conducts a "purge" lasting many months, as soviet Russia has done. Britain and France may have the same thought and so fear that Russian aid will prove of small value in the event of war with Germany.

There is ground for thinking that the "purge," in effect, has strengthened Hitler, weakened France and Great Britain.

MOLDERS' UNION ASKS COURT TO ENJOIN LABOR BOARD

Philadelphia.—The International Molders' Union of America, an A. F. of L. affiliate, has filed suit in the federal district court here to enjoin the national labor relations board on four points in the dispute between A. F. of L. and CIO at the plants of the Hatboro Foundry company and the Roberts and Manders Stove company at Hatboro, near here. It particularly asks the court to set aside the board's dismissal of a request by the molders for a hearing.

"Your complainant (the molders' union) is in the dark as to the motives by which the board was actuated and the reasons which influenced its dismissal," says the petition for an injunction. "Your complainant is confident that it could demonstrate to the satisfaction of the board that it is warranted in seeking recognition, and that it would be mandatory on the board to certify it as the exclusive bargaining agent for the molders employed by the aforesaid company."

The petition also attacks the CIO union—the Steel Workers' Organizing Committee—as "incompetent to represent the employes," "not familiar with their needs and does not understand their problems as skilled workmen."

John W Edelman, regional director of the CIO, criticized the petition, and said that when the election was held last year by the NLRB "there wasn't an A. F. of L. member in the plant."

Southern Labor "Spots"

Ducktown, Tenn. — Application to the American Federation of Labor for a charter was made here last Saturday by a group of employes of the Tennessee Copper company who had recently organized a local A. F. of L. union. Most of the workers in the Ducktown section of the copper basin are employed in and about the mines of the T. C. company. Employes of this company in the Copperhill section have had a local union chartered by the American Federation of Labor for some time, and the organization of an A. F. of L. local at Ducktown will greatly aid the A. F. of L. members in the Copperhill section.

The Ducktown men joined the union of Mill, Mine and Smelter Workers when that international was an affiliate of the A. F. of L., as did the men in the Copperhill and Isabella sections. The in[illegible] when the CIO was formed, and the Copperhill group was the first to [illegible] CIO-con[illegible] A. F. of L. [illegible] to [illegible] an A. F. of L. [illegible] Tennessee Copper [illegible] "And I am coming back to my own," said one of the men who signed the application for an A. F. of L. charter.

Copperhill, Tenn. Federal Labor Union No. 21164, A. F. of L., elected officers at the regular meeting last Saturday, and J. W. Henry was advanced to the presidency of the local. This local is made up of employes of the Tennessee Copper company, and formerly belonged to the Mill, Mine and Smelter Workers' International union. When the international deserted the A. F. of L. and went off with John L. Lewis' crowd of CIOers and communists, these men determined to renounce the CIO and return to the American Federation of Labor. It was the first group to break away from the CIO, and a year ago organized their local union affiliated with the A. F. of L.

Other officers elected were: J. M. Davenport, vice-president; Luke Hyde, warden; I. L. Coffey, conductor; D. L. Plemmons, chaplain; J. R. Massengell, H. M. Ware, H. C. Collins, board of trustees. J. P. Chastain was re-elected secretary-treasurer.

Savannah, Ga.—Charter has been installed here for the newly organized union of firefighters, of[illegible] and the [illegible] one hundred [illegible] p. William [illegible] Moving Picture Op[illegible]; D. F. Allen, of the [illegible] Workers, and W. B. [illegible] Trades and [illegible] assisted the members of the fire department in perfecting their organization and were present at the installation of the officers.

Knoxville, Tenn.—Charter was applied for last Thursday night at a newly organized local union of the employes of the Fulton Sylphon Company. Assurance has been given that the charter will reach Knoxville in time for installation at the meeting Thursday night of this week. Officers will be named and the charter members obligated, and the new local union will be launched. Those in position to know have expressed belief that this soon will become one of the strongest local unions in the city.

W. Clay McKenzie and Arthur R. Cook, of the A. F. of L. organizing staff, assisted these workers in organizing the union. The Knoxville Fulton Sylphon company is a subsidiary of the Reynolds Metal corporation, and there are about 450 employes eligible for membership in the local. In past months the CIO attempted to get these employes into that group, and failed. A company union has been in existence for some time, made up largely, it is said, of office workers and foremen. The workers want a real union and genuine affiliation, they say, and have come to the only place where such can be found—into the American Federation of Labor.

The Knoxville Central Labor union is planning to give formal and enthusiastic welcome to the new local union as soon as the charter is installed and officers named.

Bastrop, La.—Charter for the newly organized Central Trades and Labor council was installed here last Monday night by E. H. Williams, of the A. F. of L. Officers were named and obligated and the central body officially added to the family of labor in Louisiana. The labor movement in this community will be greatly benefited by the formation of this central body, through which all labor under its jurisdiction will have additional strength and influence.

High Point, N. C.—The Central Labor union of this city is preparing a program for an open meeting to be held on Sept. 30, in furtherance of the organization program. George L. Googe and Paul J. Aymon are expected to be the principal speakers at the mass meeting, which is to be attended by delegations from Salisbury, Winston-Salem and Greensboro. All crafts of the city have joined the movement and will assist in completing final arrangements for the occasion.

The A. F. of L. movement in High Point is making real progress since the organization of the central labor union some weeks ago, and it is believed that this city will be one of the best organized in the state when the 1939 convention meets.

Sterlington, La.—The newly organized local union of employes of the Imperial Oil and Gas company met here last Wednesday night. The first business transacted was the appointment of a committee to call upon the employers and negotiate an agreement. Another committee was appointed to contact the few workers who have not joined the union and get them into the fold.

Charleston, S. C.—Representatives of the Harze Engineering company, having a contract to build the office building for the Santee-Cooper dam project, came here recently and attempted to employ carpenters at 35 cents an hour. The carpenters' scale has been set at $1.12½ an hour, under agreement with the S. C. authority, for the first unit of work to be done on the project, and it is understood that the T. V. A. wage scale will apply on the job throughout its construction.

Stanly Rounds, of the Iron Workers; Alec McDonald, of the Engineers, and E. E. McDaniels, of the Building and Construction Laborers, together with local labor leaders, called upon the representatives of the company, protesting the effort to work carpenters at such ridiculous rates of pay. It is believed the matter will be adjusted.

Sterlington, La.—A local union of automobile mechanics was formed here last Wednesday, with twenty charter members, and application for a charter was made. E. H. Williams, president of the State Federation of Labor and representative of the A. F. of L., assisted the workers in forming the local union.

Meridian, Miss.—Charter for Local Union No. 591, Teamsters and Chauffeurs, was installed here last Wednesday night, with Edd. Long, A. F. of L. representative, [illegible] ciating. Officers were elected [illegible] installed, and the new organizati[illegible] officially placed in the labor mo[illegible] ment of Meridian.

Refugee Scholars To Lecture at Rand School

New York City.—Refugee scholars forced out of Germany by the nazi dictatorship will give lectures at the Rand School of Social Science this fall, the school announces. Thousands of these unfortunate professors, teachers and writers, whose plight grows more desperate every day, are beseeching universities, colleges and schools for lecture and teaching posts.

The Rand school, as a result of numerous invitations sent to Europe inviting some of the oppressed scholars to lecture at the school, has been successful in its negotiations to bring to this country the following world-renowned refugee scholars, who have consented to give lecture courses at the school the coming fall term:

Prof. Geza Roheim, Ph.D., philosophy, anthropology, psychology; Prof. Maxmilian Beck, Ph.D., psychologist, publicist and expert on racial problems.

Dates and subjects of lectures for the above and other refugee scholars will be announced by the Rand school at a later date.

American Tobacco Head Again Rings Bell as Big Salary Getter—Labor Against Senator Glass on Poll Tax Issue.

By GEORGE L. KNAPP

Washington. — George Washington Hill, of the American Tobacco company, is one of the great go-getters of big business. He has, in his time, raked in more thousand dollar bills than the first George Washington raked in of British soldiers at Yorktown. Here is his score for 1937, as filed with the SEC, at the head of the American Tobacco list:

G. W. Hill, President....	$380,976.17
Paul M. Hahn, v. p.....	206,685.69
Charles Neilley, v. p.....	206,585.69
Vincent Riggio, bonus..	156,585.69

A total of $2,360,697.08 paid to 22 men. The latest report I have puts the average wage in the tobacco industry at a little less than $16 a week. Assuming steady work all the year—which they don't have, the sum paid to these 22 men would pay the wages of 2,836 tobacco workers.

* * *

Also note that—

G. W. Hill gets five times the salary of the president of the United States;

Hahn and Neilley get a trifle less than three times the president's salary, each;

The seventeen unnamed ones get an average of $83,000 a year, or $8,000 more than the president's salary.

Do we need an investigation of monopolies and near-monopolies? One guess.

In the difference between President Roosevelt and Senator Glass on the poll tax, labor will side with the president. To make a citizen pay in order to vote is a restriction of suffrage that is absolutely certain to weaken labor and strengthen those who would exploit labor. Labor, as a mere matter of self-defense, could be expected to turn thumbs down on that scheme—and this is one place where expectations will be fulfilled.

Senator Glass says that many who pay poll tax do not vote. That is not the test. States with restrictions on voting, poll tax or otherwise, cast a much smaller share of their vote than states with no such restrictions. Just as samples, the poll tax walls from the ballot box the share croppers of the south and persons on relief. Yet certainly, no people have no greater need of having their voices heard by government than these.

Johnstown Mayor Cleared.

Edensburg, Pa.—Mayor Daniel J. Shields, of Johnstown, stands legally cleared of charges of bribery, extortion and malfeasance in office. The Cambria county grand jury refused to indict him for alleged misconduct during the Bethlehem steel strike in June, 1937. The jury returned non-true bills in the case against Mayor Shields and Fulton I. Connor, Johnstown councilman. The charges were made against both as the outgrowth of alleged activities in breaking of picket lines the Steel Workers' organizing committee threw around Bethlehem's Cambria plant during the strike.

ILO Is Agency of Peace, Says New York State Labor Commissioner

New York City.—The International Labor Organization (ILO) is constantly working to eliminate the seeds of international war, Frieda S. Miller, recently appointed New York state industrial commissioner, said in speaking on "Labor Standards Through International Co-operation."

The ILO, with the co-operation of governments, employers and workers of all countries, in joint action, is striving to build up uniform standards of well-being for wage-earners regardless of where they live. "Its ceaseless efforts to draw the nations of the world more closely together through the extension of social justice makes the ILO," she said, "in a very vital sense, an agency for peace."

"Today the ledger of war is written not only in the blood of helpless men and women, but in the red ink of financial losses so overwhelming as to engulf the mightiest economic enterprise," Miss Miller declared. "While armament factories around the world are feverishly pouring out instruments of death and newspaper headlines carry new threats of war, the people everywhere want peace."

Miss Miller urged every man and woman interested in the advancement of world economic cooperation and the preservation of peace to support wholeheartedly the work of the ILO. It is the foremost agency, she said, in the field of raising the standard of living of the great masses of people by improving conditions of labor throughout the world.

"By leveling up the standard of living throughout the world," Miss Miller said, "the ILO not only would diminish social unrest within the nations, but remove a serious cause of conflict between the nations."

STATE ATTORNEY-GENERAL HITS MOVE TO DISFRANCHISE PERSONS ON RELIEF

Trenton, N. J.—"The Women's Rebellion," an anti-new deal organization which is trying to disfranchise all persons on relief or even on WPA work as "paupers," has received a hard jolt from this state. Answering a demand from Mrs. Charles L. Hulswit, head of that organization, Atty.-Gen. D. T. Wilentz said that what the Women's Rebellion asked was contrary to the constitution of New Jersey.

"Your request is against our citizens on relief and WPA," he wrote. "Before anyone can be considered a pauper, appropriate legal proceedings must be held by a judicial officer adjudging him a pauper.

"It is inconceivable that any such adjudication could properly be made against those who, because of unusual economic conditions, are receiving assistance from the federal government."

Survey Shows Women Miserably Paid In New York Confectionery Industry

NEW YORK CITY.—The recently appointed wage board for the confectionery industry has been sworn in, and provided with a New York Labor Department survey of the industry nothing less than appalling. The survey covered wages, hours and working conditions.

Of the 3,968 women included in the survey, only 1,949, or 49 per cent, worked 26 weeks in the year or more. These made an average annual income of $654. Those working less than 26 weeks made yearly earnings of only $216.30. And the recent study of living costs shows that adequate maintenance for a woman living with her family is $1,058.31.

The median week's wage in the industry worked out at $15.73. Fourteen per cent of the women received $20 or more per week, and 16 per cent received less than $10.

Except for the making of hard candies and chewing gum, the report states, the work is concentrated into three or four months before Christmas and 8 or 10 weeks before Easter. About three-quarters of the women who were asked the question said that they had been unable to find any suplementary work.

Living Costs in 1937 Down From 1929, In Most Nations, ILO Report Says

Geneva.—Cost of living statistics, compiled by the International Labor Office and published in the new edition of its Year Book of Labor Statistics, disclose that in 25 out of 31 countries for which complete figures are available, living costs in 1937 were from 3 to 44 per cent cheaper than in 1929.

In one other country—Norway—the statistics show, living costs averaged the same as in 1929; while, in the remaining five, they were from 4 to 62 per cent higher than in 1929.

The greatest rise occurred in Chile, where, owing largely to depreciation of the peso to only 26.0 per cent of its 1929 gold valve, the cost of living was up 62 per cent.

The greatest decline occurred in Lithuania, and amounted to 44 per cent.

In the United States, the Year Book shows, living costs declined 15 per cent. Food costs were down 19 per cent; heating and light, 12 per cent; clothing, 11 per cent; and rent, 29 per cent.

Q—I have a German bill of 50,000 marks, dated and marked as follows: Berlin 19 Nov. 1922 No. H01258981. What is its value?

A—The bill is worthless. Germany repudiated all old currency in 1924. It might be of some value to a collector of old money, but there are many such bills available and there is little or no demand.

agreement with the Truck Drivers' union. John Conners, commissioner of conciliation in the U. S. department of labor, came here Thursday and outlined a plan of settlement between the company and the Building Trades council whichk was adopted Saturday. It guarantees no further stoppage of work on the charity hospital job. Othe jobs affected also resumed work Monday morning, pending a settlement within a given length of time.

While all building crafts ceased work, the strike was not against the jobs affected, but caused by the men refusing to work with material delivered to the job by the Jancke company, charged with violating an agreement with the truck drivers. Because of the violation by Jancke company, work was temporarily halted ten days ago on the big charity hospital job, the Baptist hospital job, the Tate infirmary job, the Irondale school job, and other buildings under construction. The Jancke company has the contract of furnishing and delivering the material to the above jobs, the total cost of which run well over $25,000,000. The material company persisted in violating terms of an agreement with the teamsters' union, and the building craftsmen engaged upon the jobs refused to work with the material delivered by Jancke company.

The building craftsmen stated their willingness to work with material delivered by any company other than the Jancke concern. Theirs was not a strike against the hospitals, school, or any other building project, but a refusal to work with material delivered by the Jancke concern.

Frank Prohl, international representative of the teamsters' union, and Leo B. Carter, of the A. F. of L., have had charge of negotiations for the union. A committee was named by the building trades council to assist in the negotiations. There was absolute solidarity among all building trades engaged upon the several jobs involved and the tie-up was complete.

Representative Prohl and the committee representing the Building Trades council erpressed satisfaction that a way had been found which guarantees justice to the truck drivers, and no further stoppage of work on the charity hospital job. The laboring people of New Orleans are keenly interested in this great institution which means so much to the masses of the people of the city and state.

"Nothing but to remedy such rank injustice as that done the truck drivers would cause us to stop work on as fine a job as the charity hospital," one union representative said, "and we are happy indeed that a plan of operation has been adopted which precludes the possibility of any further trouble on the charity hospital job."

Wilmington, N. C.—The Curtis Construction company, erecting large additions to the chemical plants here, has made the job a 100 per cent union building trades job. Supt. Teeter, in charge of the work for the Austin company, is well known to the building trades throughout the country, and his fairness at all times is highly appreciated by the members of the building crafts.

Tuscaloosa, Ala. — The Tuscaloosa labor movement has again made history for labor in the south, the striking clerks at the McClellan Five and Ten Cent store having won a complete victory. This is to be the first victory for the retail clerks employed in the chain stores of the south.

The clerks in the McClellan store went on strike during the latter part of August. There is a strong local union of retail clerks here, and the McClellan strikers were given 100 per cent support by the local. There is an unusually strong central labor union here, and that body threw the entire support and influence of the Tuscaloosa labor movement to the striking clerks. The public was given full information about the strike, its causes and the things for which the clerks were striking, and the public gave solidified support to the striking clerks. Picket lines were maintained at all times, and but few people passed through the lines to trade in the store.

Ed Shaner, southern representative of the Retail Clerks' International, was in charge of the strike. President Murphy, of the Central Labor union, has devoted his personal attention to the strike, as have the officers and members of all crafts here. The wives of the members of all labor unions here have exerted powerful influence for the striking clerks by refusing to trade at the store, and in waging a campaign among all women of the city to stay away from the store until the strike was settled. Support from the public has been perfect, Representative Shaner says.

An agreement was signed last Saturday morning at 6:05 o'clock between the store management and the union, Mr. Shaner announced. The contract calls for increased wages, improved working conditions and regulation of hours. Announcement was made of the settlement and at 8:30 o'clock that morning every girl on strike returned to work. In the settlement a compromise was reached, the clerks giving up some of the things contained in their first demands, but the objectives gained constitute a complete and outstanding victory, and one which will have decided bearing upon the retail clerks throughout the south.

Winnfield, La.—A union of automobile mechanics was organized here last Friday, with E. H. Williams, president of the State Federation of Labor, assisting the workers in organizing the union. A charter has been applied for and will be installed upon its receipt. Fifteen applicants signed the application for the charter.

Green Indorses Senator Davis For Re-election

Washington. — Vigorous support of Senator James J. Davis, of Pennsylvania, for re-election was announced here by William Green in making public a letter to Leo Abernathy, president of the Pittsburgh Central Labor council.

Green declared that Davis has a "100 per cent" labor record and appealed to all officers and members of the A. F. of L. and their friends to rally to the support of Davis. His letter said, in part:

"I am writing to advise you that our official records show that Senator James J. Davis voted for and supported all measures sponsored and approved by the American Federation of Labor during the period he has served as U. S. senator from Pennsylvania.

"For this special reason the American Federation of Labor most heartily indorses the candidacy of Senator Davis for re-election to the U. S. senate.

"Senator Davis has proved himself to be a real friend of labor. I appeal to the officers and members of the American Federation of Labor in Pennsylvania and all their friends to rally to the support of Senator Davis and to render all assistance possible in bringing about his re-election to the United States senate by a most decisive majority."

Senator Davis is opposed in the November election by Gov. George Earle, democrat. Davis, who was made senator in 1930, was secretary of labor from March 5, 1921, to Dec. 2, 1930.

Winston-Salem, N. C. — Charter for the newly organized union of Common and Construction Laborers was installed here Saturday night, with a large membership taking the obligation. Officers were named and the new local added to the Winston-Salem Central Labor union. E. L. Crouch, Frank Baxley, Van R. Poindexter, Jack Sexton, Sam C. Scott and other labor officials and leaders assisted the workers in forming and setting up this new local union.

Fort Smith, Ark.—Much constructive work was accomplished by the Arkansas State Federation of Labor's annual convention, held here last week, and the growth of the movement in this state was reflected in the large number of delegates, there being a great increase in affiliations with the state body since the last convention was held.

Lewis G. Hines, director of organization for the American Federation of Labor, delivered an inspiring message and enthused the delegates and visitors with his report of the unprecedented growth of the A. F. of L.

Ed I. McKinley, state labor commissioner; Walter McClure, legislative representative of the Order of Railway Conductors, and Paul S. Bliss, of the social security board, were other invited and interesting convention speakers.

The convention demands include: Abolition of payment of poll tax as a requisite of franchise; school books to be printed in the state by union members; strengthen firemen's pension law; minimum wage law for firemen; to organize laundry workers of the state; more efforts by the internationals and A. F. of L. to organize the workers in Arkansas; and numerous other matters of great interest to labor in the state.

Unionists Can Be Buried in Caskets Made By Union Closed Shop Plants

Machinists of Galion, Ohio, Appeal to Tennessee's Labor Movement to Patronize Their Products--- Building Machinery Also Manufactured

Several weeks ago The Labor World printed a story that a nurses' local had been formed in California, thus allowing new unionists to come into this world under the supervision of union nurses.

Now The Labor World prints a story that gives trades unionists the information that they may leave this world and go into the next in union-made and union-labeled caskets.

The information comes from Local 1151, Machinists, in Galion, Ohio, which asks the labor movement to recognize its products and patronize the Hercules Steel Products company.

The letter, addressed to the Tennessee Federation of Labor, follows:

T. R. Cuthbert, Secretary,
Tennessee State Federation of Labor,
310 West Eighth Street,
Chattanooga, Tenn.

Dear Sir and Brother:

We, the employes of the Galion Metallic Vault company and its subsidiary, Hercules Products company, all being members of Local 1151, I. A. M., Galion, Ohio, take this means of announcing a recent development in our shop.

To begin with, we have been 100 per cent organized for the past two years and have enjoyed a closed shop and a working agreement. We have recently obtained permission to place the union label on our products and on Aug. 8 the first labels were applied.

Our firm manufactures Armco ingot iron, steel and solid copper burial vaults, steel truck bodies and hydraulic hoists. The line of steel bodies consists of all types and includes all sizes of regular dump bodies, military bodies, garbage bodies, platform bodies, covered bodies, pick-up bodies, and special steel bodies built to order; also stone spreaders and split drive power take-off assemblies for operating all kinds of portable equipment such as air compressors, etc.

The company we work for has been fair to organized labor and is a pioneer in labor problems in this locality. The vaults made by the Galion Metallic Vault company are known as the "Galion Cryptorium" and the "Galion Peerless" and are the only burial vaults in the world bearing the American Federation of Labor union labels, and the Hercules steel body is the only body carrying such a label. The prices are comparable to the best and the members of Local 1151 are responsible for the workmanship on our products.

We, the members of Local 1151 who are employed at this factory are working part time due to the efforts of several other body and vault manufacturers to discredit our organization by cut-throat competition and price-slashing tactics, together with unfair labor practices. Since there are more than fifty manufacturers of metal burial vaults and eleven other manufacturers of hoists and bodies with whom we must compete, it is obvious that to meet competition we need the support of every union organization.

May we suggest that your influence and the prestige of your state federation of labor be lent us in behalf of the advancement of our products. Or if you obtain knowledge from time to time pertaining to the purchase of truck equipment by state, county or municipal authorities kindly inform Local 1151 so that our company may submit bids.

The foregoing letter is intended to help our members to a full work week and increased wages. Trusting that your aid may help in bringing this about, we remain,

Fraternally yours,

GALION LOCAL 1151, I. A. M.

Mills & Lupton Goes Closed Shop With Its Clerks

The Chattanooga Retail Clerks' union reported this week that Mills & Lupton supply house had signed a closed shop agreement with them, making the second such business in Chattanooga to co-operate with organized labor.

Mr. John Crimmins, in charge of Mills & Lupton, showed the best of friendliness in the negotiations, and The Labor World has the highest praise for him and recommends Mills & Lupton, along with the James Supply company, to all users of building supplies and fixtures.

Taxicabs Must Show Insurance Stickers

Washington.—The District of Columbia public utilities commission has issued a rule requiring windshield stickers for all taxicabs whose owners have complied with the new mandatory liability insurance law enacted last summer by congress to cover all taxis operated in the District of Columbia.

Taxicabs will be required to display the stickers before they can be operated. A new colored sticker will be issued each week.

PAINTERS' UNION EXPRESSES GRIEF IN DEATH OF WITT

'Skinny' Witt Passes Away Last Week --- Member of Local Since 1900 Steady

George Stamper ("Skinny") Witt passed away on Friday, Sept. 16, after an illness of approximately one year. Brother Witt was initiated into Local 226, Painters and Decorators, on Oct. 6, 1900, and remained in good standing continuously until the time of his death.

This is the second death in the Witt family this year, Ezra K. Witt passing away on March 20, 1938, who was also a member of Local 226. Another brother, W. A. ("Zeke") Witt, is the only brother left in Local 226. Another brother is living, in addition to "Zeke," who is "Peck" Witt, a member of a railroad local.

"Skinny" is survived by his wife, but no children. He was always known as a loyal and faithful union man, and in all battles on the trades-union front, "Skinny" was prominent.

In its regular session last Thursday night, Local 226 formally drew up the following resolution to express its regard for the deceased brother:

"Whereas, on Sept. 16, 1938, our good brother, George Stamper Witt, was called by Almighty God to come home to rest after a full life of fifty-eight years; and,

"Whereas, Brother Witt, known to us in a loving way as 'Skinny,' remained a faithful and loyal member of this local every day since he was initiated on Oct. 6, 1900; and,

"Whereas, 'Skinny's' leave-of-absence from this world will be keenly felt by every member of our local, as well as in the labor movement in Chattanooga; therefore, be it

"Resolved, by Local 226, Painters, Decorators and Paperhangers of America, in regular session this 22nd day of September, 1938, formally express our grief and loss of our good brother; be it further

"Resolved, That our sympathy be conveyed to the deceased's family, a copy be spread on our minutes, and a copy be sent to The Labor World for publication.

"J. PAUL SANDERS,
"C. H. THURSTON,

Taxi Owners Get Hearing Delayed

Hearing of charges against "sit-down" taxi owners in police court last Wednesday was postponed until Oct. 15. About three weeks ago every taxi owner in Chattanooga, with a driver each, was arrested by Chief Ray Bryan on a charge of failure to provide liability insurance according to a city ordinance passed over one year ago.

To date the taxi operators have successfully thumbed their respective noses at the law, and it is reported that the conventional 8-to-5 odds are being offered by the operators that they will never observe the law.

Electrical Workers Expose Insidious Power Company's Propagandist Efforts

Strike Does Not Involve CIO, Bargaining Rights For Membership Is Real Issue, 1917 Policy Still Kept by TEPCO

The fifth week of the strike of the IBEW linemen against the Tennessee Electric Power company ended with the company, through its lawyer, Silas Williams, bluntly refusing to deal with its employes, or to meet with anybody. The strike has been marred by the same tactics used in the 1917 street car strike, in which imported gunmen murdered a citizen and in which paid detectives and armed guards were used without regard to expense.

The power company has steadily attempted to throw up a smoke screen by declaring that the strike involves the CIO, which was given a contract in the Hale's Bar plant, involving sixty-eight members. The IBEW has in every way tried to present its story to the public and inform the citizens of the state that the IBEW is simply asking for an agreement for its own membership, totaling close to the 600 mark.

Such an agreement would not force any non-member to join the union, nor would it affect the contract given by TEPCO to the CIO.

Hourly rates in Tepco are much lower than other units of the Commonwealth and Southern system. Tepco is the most profitable and one of the largest utility of the C. & S. properties. Several of the C. & S. utilities do have agreements with IBEW. Seniority rights and classification merits are not recognized by Tepco, while in the other systems such rights are followed.

During the week more instances of "atrocities" were announced by the company, in which lines were "almost" put out of operation. Until armed men were brought in by the company, styled as "guards," instances of sabotage had not occurred. Many people believe that professional trouble-makers usually find trouble and such instances of trouble always continue so long as profitable pay is forthcoming. Twenty-four-hour police service is being given by the police commissioner, particularly at spots where no sign of disorder has occurred.

The labor movement is wholeheartedly behind the electrical workers, and once more O. A. Walker, representative for the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, makes his position clear.

"We stand ready to meet with the company on a moment's notice to discuss settlement. Within reasonable time of the setting of a date for such a meeting every man will be back on the job. We ask for an agreement for our membership only. We do not ask for sole bargaining rights in the system.

"The company has flatly refused to meet with us to see what we have to offer. The company has intimidated our membership. Many of our members have been discharged for union affiliation. Company unions have sprung up over the state. We only ask for our rights given by law and recognized by a great many utilities in the south as well as the nation.

"We are not responsible for sabotage. We disclaim any sabotage that may have occurred. We have from the beginning warned our members not to take part in any illegal act. Since we do not have the law-enforcing agencies on our side we cannot stop sabotage done by people we have no control over and who are unknown to us.

"If common sense and simple justice exists in the power company management, this strike can be settled within 24 hours."

Q.—What was the date of Antoni Stradivarius' death?

A.—December 18, 1737.

Chatta. Bakery Situation

Negotiations which have been carried on for the past two weeks in an effort to settle the eight weeks old strike of Bakery and Confectionery Workers at the Chattanooga Bakery, were at a stand-still as The Labor World went to press.

Although it was reported settlement had been hindered by most unusual tactics of the bakery management through their attorney, John S. Fletcher, hope was still held out that a conference this Thursday morning might result in an agreement. It was said that efforts of persons not directly interested, including Eugene Curtis, of the United States Department of Labor, Commissioner Stiles, of the National Labor Relations Board, Mayor E. D. Bass and Commissioner R. M. Cooke were thought to have been effective, but negotiators for the bakery management have repeatedly agreed on certain proposals only to have them vetoed by Attorney Fletcher, which resulted in more or less of a deadlock.

However, it was hoped that a conference scheduled for today might possibly result in an agreement in the matter.

Closed Shop Agreement Won by A. F. of L. Union

Contract Negotiated by Chemical Workers With Martin Dennis Compan, Kearney, N. J., Also Includes Paid Vacations, 40-Hour Week and Strike Ban.

Kearney, N. J.—The renewed closed shop agreement between Chemical Workers Union Local No. 22288 of the American Federation of Labor and Plant No. 2 of the Martin Dennis company in Kearney provides a 40 hour week for all departments excepting the continuous process departments, in which the work is limited to 42 hours, with time and a half for overtime. There is the added stipulation that "every employe shall be off at least one day out of every seven days."

In addition to recognizing the union as the collective bargaining agency for all the chemical process workers of the plant, with the stipulation that all men employed must be members of the union or become members within one month from date of employment, there is a provision that the shop steward representing these workers shall be paid $2 per week above the scale.

Vacations With Pay.

Other sections of the agreement provide for the application of seniority at all times; a week's notice or one week's pay in case of dismissal owing to layoff; prohibition of lay-offs to equalize overtime work; one week's vacation with pay in each year; reference of disputes which the shop steward and plant superintendent cannot settle to officials of the union and officials of the company; prohibition of strikes during any labor dispute arising under the agreement.

"The business agent or representative of the bargaining agency," the contract provides, "shall have admission to the employes' premises at any time during working hours for the purpose of ascertaining whether or not the agreement is being carried out by the employer and employes in accordance wth the terms of this agreement, and for the purpose of adjusting grievances, provided he shall first report to the superintendent who shall accompany him at all times when on the employer's premises."

Help Rushed to Stricken New England Example of Government's Speedy Relief Policy—Airplane Development Shrinking Oceans.

BY GEORGE L. KNAPP

WASHINGTON, D. C. — The unanimous way in which people in trouble anywhere in this land look to Uncle Sam for relief—and the speed and infallibility with which they get it—are strikingly shown by the New England hurricane.

New England governors are asking Washington for $75,000,000 of Federal money to finance relief and rehabilitation. The sum may be raised or lowered, probably not lowered, by further study; but there was no hesitation on anyone's part. Harry L. Hopkins went up there by plane; and the WPA will be in the repair work, up to its neck.

There are said to be 1,500 youngsters in Connecticut who are enrolled in the National Youth movement. Eight hundred of them got into the clean-up game immediately after the storm, and the rest of them are at it now. And it's doing them good.

How fast is the Atlantic ocean shrinking? And for that matter, how speedily is the time-distance dwindling between Hawaii and the Pacific Coast?

Some new light comes in that is making several persons in Washington ask themselves these questions. Tests have shown the giant Douglas DC-4 airliner surpassing all expectations. It was guaranteed to make 240 miles an hour, and the report says that it exceeded the figure "by a comfortable margin." It climbed to 25,000 feet a minute with a full load, and one-third of the way up, was climbing more than 1,000 feet a minute. That was with all four engines going; but with two of them cut off, and with a load of more than 60,000 pounds, it climbed to 11,000 feet.

The Atlantic was a wide ocean when Columbus crossed it; the trip took him more than two months. It shrunk vastly when Lindbergh went from New York to Paris in about 33 hours. The DC-4 could make the trip in 14 hours, and carry 50 persons—42 passengers and a crew of 8—instead of one. And it would take quite a lot of bombs to make 60,000 pounds.

Some people in Washington are wondering just what the chaps who build and run such things are doing to isolation. And the rascals aren't half through.

Practically none of the comments on the President's "purges" say that the President gained one of the two cases in which he was most deeply interested. He wanted Davy Lewis to come to the senate, and he was right in the action and greatly disappointed. But he also wanted most potently to tie a can to Congressman John O'Connor, and that was done with neatness, completeness, and despatch.

O'Conner may possibly come back to the House on the republican ticket; for he got the republican nomination. But that is not the point. What every New Dealer wanted was to get him out of his strategic post as chairman of the Rules Committee—and that is done.

Congressman Adolph J. Sabath succeeds to that post. By birth, he is a Czecho-Slovak Jew; by election, he has been representative from the Fifth District of Chicago for 34 years.

Sixteen southern utility companies are asking the supreme court to take the TVA out of the power business, after a three-judge court had refused to do it. This is the utility idea of a modest request.

Statewide Prevailing Pay Rates Asked on Louisiana Federal Work

New Orleans.—Representatives of the Louisiana Federation of Labor met in Baton Rouge with WPA and PWA officials in an effort to establish prevailing wage scales on federal projects on a statewide basis. The group, composed of representatives of the building trades from all sections of the state, voted to appoint a committee of three to work with PWA and WPA officials in determining and establishing prevailing wages on projects sponsored by the two government groups. In addition, federation representatives in all sections of the state will attempt to ferret out inequalities in wage scales, report them to the committee and attempt to have the situation corrected. E. H. Williams, president of the federation, presided at the meeting.

A MESSAGE TO ORGANIZED LABOR

What YOU BUY and WHERE You Buy It

MAKES

The LABOR WORLD

GREATER

BUSINESS MEN who advertise regularly in THE LABOR WORLD are responsible for the recent enlargement of the paper. A larger paper gives new strength and prestige to the labor movement in Chattanooga.

BEING BUSINESS MEN, if their advertising does not bring results which they can trace to THE LABOR WORLD, these advertisers will not continue to use the paper.

THE LABOR WORLD is the only voice of organized labor in Chattanooga. It is YOUR voice—you who read the paper. In helping THE LABOR WORLD to grow YOU are creating an agency of great value to YOU—personally.

PERSONAL PRIDE, personal interest and organization expediency demand that union people buy from business men who advertise regularly in THE LABOR WORLD.

WHEN YOU NEED SOMETHING, first try to buy it from some of the regular advertisers in THE LABOR WORLD. If each of our readers will adopt this policy, and stick to it, we will build one of the nation's greatest labor organs here in Chattanooga—and very quickly . . . and it will help the unions of Chattanooga to secure improvement in conditions affecting our working people.

THE LABOR WORLD is already something to be very proud of, and if readers stick to the cause it will surprise all of you.

LET'S GO! Buy from advertisers in THE LABOR WORLD—and tell them WHY you are buying from them. Tell business men who are not advertising that they must get in THE LABOR WORLD if they want a share of Chattanooga's great union trade.

AND FINALLY, if you hear any news about any of our people, yourself included, call us up and tell us about it. Call us when you have talked to some advertiser, and think we can get him to advertise in THE LABOR WORLD.

Two Strikes Are Won By Brooklyn Painters

Brooklyn, N. Y.—The winning of two strikes in this area by the Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators and Paperhangers of America brought higher living standards and better work conditions for the union members.

District Council No. 18 of the brotherhood announced the negotiation of an agreement with the Associated Painting Employers of Brooklyn settling the seven-day strike which involved 2,500 members of the union. Isaac Agush, secretary-treasurer of the union, declared the agreement was an outstanding victory for the strikers. He said it provided for a daily wage of $11.20 for painters and $12 for graiders and decorators, a five-day, 35-hour week, and union inspection of employers' payrolls to guard against evasion of workmen's compensation and unemployment insurance contributions.

Following the settlement of the first strike, District Council No. 9, with a membership of 16,000 in Manhattan and the Bronx, called a strike against twenty-five shops controlled by independent contractors who were disinclined to recognize the painters union. After the walkout, involving more than 1,500 men, had lasted three days the contractors signed a union agreement. Louis Weinstock, spokesman for the union, said the contract provided for a five-day, 35-hour week, a $10.50 daily wage, jurisdiction over spraying machines, and the establishment of a control board for the industry.

4,000 Employers Use Wage Substitute Schemes

Chicago, Ill.—The special committee of the United States senate which is making a study of profit-sharing schemes reports that 4,000 corporations are applying various forms of profit-sharing, bonus or pension plans to their so-called "rank-and-file" employes.

The senate, last summer, adopted the resolution presented by Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg, of Michigan, authorizing the investigation. He is a member of the three-man committee. The others are Senator Clyde L. Herring, of Iowa, chairman, and Senator Edwin C. Johnson, of Colorado.

Donald Despain, director of the survey, said that hundreds of business men are co-operating in the work of the committee.

FREY HITS FEDERAL CONTROL OF INDUSTRIAL RELATIONS

Labor Relations Board and Wage and Hour Act Are Also Criticized by Metal Trades Department President.

Houston, Tex., Sept. 28.—A demand for less government interference in regulating wages and industrial relations generally and more co-operation between industry and labor featured the report of John P. Frey, president of the Metal Trades Department of the American Federation of Labor, to the annual convention of the department here.

Declaring that the trade union movement was founded on "self-government in industry instead of government by bureaus and administrators," Mr. Frey said that congress might establish the "proper and adequate rules under which business is to be conducted," and that "business and organized labor through the conference room and collective bargaining must then work out the problem of stable production and the economically sound division of the wealth created."

Although not specifically suggesting any amendments to the national labor relations act, Mr. Frey said the administration of the act was a "disrupting" factor in American industry.

"Both the law and the personnel must be changed before the board under the Wagner act can constructively and sanely apply its authority to protect the right of wage-earners to be represented by organizations of their own choosing," he declared.

Charges Bureaucratic Authority.

Turning to the wages and hours act, Mr. Frey said it conferred extremely large authority on the administrator, amounting to "bureaucratic or commissar control."

While voicing no complaint against Elmer F. Andrews, the present administrator of the act, nor against the minimum wages or maximum hours provisions of the statute, Mr. Frey criticized some of the discretionary powers vested in an administrator.

He opposed those sections giving the administrator exclusive power over apprentices and learners without regard to agreements between employers and employes covering the matter or to the standards developed by the federal apprentice training committee.

Mr. Frey also objected to the provisions of the act which, he said, gave the administrator too much power in selecting the industry committee to determine minimum wages, and to accept or reject the wage recommendations made by the industry committee, and the provision for the classification of labor according to the degree of skill.

A new tooth brush has synthetic bristles, which are made of a plastic material extruded through holes of the desired size. The bristles can be made of virtually any length. It is said they are not softened by water or saliva and stiffness can be accurately controlled.

Q.—What produces cobwebs? Is it a result of atmospheric conditions or the product of a living animal?

A.—All the common cobwebs are produced by spiders, though the design, size, etc., differs among the many species of spiders. Some insect larvae also spin a thread which is called a cobweb.

Swedish Employers Recognize Unions

Roosevelt Commission Says Collective Bargaining Is Generally Accepted, With Both Sides Well Organized.

Washington. — The commission appointed last summer by President Roosevelt to investigate labor relations abroad has submitted its report on Sweden following its report on Great Britain made a number of weeks ago

The commission found that in Sweden, as in Great Britain, collective bargaining by organized labor and organized employers is the general rule, with the result that mutual respect between both groups had tended to reduce labor controversies to a minimum.

The commission emphasized the fact that both employers and workers are strongly organized, which of itself gives added strength to collective bargaining and requires the parties to agreements to live up to their provisions. Some of the agreements, the report said, are negotiated on the basis of an entire industry, while others are negotiated by craft unions.

In discussing the absence of provision for the closed shop in the Swedish agreements, the commission said this is not an issue because of the large membership of the trade unions and the disinclination of employers to fight them. In this connection the report said discrimination for union activities is very rare, but when it does occur redress is provided in a labor court which has power to require an employer to reinstate with back pay a worker discharged for such reasons.

Unlike the practice in the United Stats, union contracts in Sweden are enforceable by law, the commission said. In addition, there are no laws dealing with picketing, strikebreakers have not been used since a disastrous experience in 1931, and compulsory arbitration of industrial disputes has been abandoned after a brief trial.

Robert J. Watt, American workers' delegate to the international labor organization, was the labor member of the commission. The other members were W. Ellison Chalmers, William H. Davis, Marian Dickerman, Lloyd K. Garrison, Henry I. Harriman, Charles R. Hook, Anna Marie Rosenberg and Gerard Swope.

Pay Cut Hit by Childs Restaurant Employes

New York, N. Y.—A number of hundred Childs restaurant employes, organized in the Chain Service Employes' union, an American Federation of Labor affiliate, voted at a meeting here to reject a demand of the Childs management for a 10 per cent decrease in wages.

The proposal of the management for the wage cut followed the workers demand for improvements over the provisions of the agreement which expires Sept. 30. The employes asked for an increase of 5 cents an hour for kitchen workers, which would bring the pay up to a minimum of $18 weekly, and 4 cents increase for dining room employes, which would bring their wages up to 25 cents an hour. There was also a demand for seniority and an eight-hour day within a nine-hour period, which would end the prevailing practice of splitting the work day with a long gap between shifts.

Jobber Charged With Representing Toys Bought in Japan as Made in America

WASHINGTON, D. C.—That the words "Made in U. S. A." on manufactured goods is not necessarily proof that the goods are American-made is indicated by a complaint issued by the Federal Trade Commission against a New York toy manufacturer.

Violation of the Federal Trade Commission act through use of unfair methods of competition in the sale of toys is alleged by the commission in a complaint issued against Adolph Wein, trading as American Toy Works, 3724 24th St., Long Island City, N. Y.

Through the use of such a phrase as "made in U. S. A., American Toy Works, New York, N. Y.", and others of similar import, the respondent allegedly represents that he manufactures the products he sells, when, according to the complaint, a substantial number of the units making up the toys are not made in this country, but are purchased by him from agents of the producers located in Japan.

The respondent is merely an assembler of the products he sells and is in no sense a manufacturer, the complaint charges.

Canton Theatre Union Wins Three Contracts

Canton, O.—Local No. 671, International Alliance of Theatrical Stage employes and Moving Picture Machine Operators of the United States and Canada, has negotiated contracts with the three first-run houses here: Loew's, Warner Brothers Ohio, and the Palace.

These contracts run for a period of three years, with the prevailing 1937-38 weekly wage scale extended to Sept. 1, 1939, and increases each year thereafter approximating 6½ per cent. There is also an increase in the scale for midnight and other special shows.

Contracts in six second-run theters do not expire for two years, and call for an increase of $2.50 weekly per man each year. Canton has four-man operation in all houses, with the exception of two suburban houses which have two-man operation.

Los Angeles Labor Plans Picketing Law Test Case

Los Angeles, Cal.—Organized labor in Los Angeles will fight to the limit the picketing ordinance recently adopted here by a vote of 198,507 to 152,065. This was made clear by a delegation composed of labor officials and liberals, who made their position known to Judge Fletcher Bowron, the new mayor, who defeated Mayor Frank L. Shaw in the recall election.

Judge Bowron said the picketing ordinance would be strictly enforced. The labor delegation countered with the statement that test cases were already being planned to bring the ordinance before the courts.

The ordinance prescribes that pickets must be employes of the firm against which the strike is directed, and may be used only when there is a bona fide labor dispute. Pickets are limited to one for each entrance, or a minimum of two, and otherwise must remain 25 feet apart.

LONGSHOREMEN WILL DEFY NLRB UNTIL BOARD IS INVESTIGATED

Buffalo, N. Y.—The International Longshoremen's union will refuse to abide by decisions of the national labor relations board until the board is investigated, President Joseph P. Ryan, of the longshoremen, told the 75th annual convention of the New York State Federation of Labor.

Ryan made the assertion while defending a resolution condemning administration of the labor relations act. It was introduced by his organization and approved by the convention

"We (the Longshoremen union members) will refuse to abide by decisions of the national labor relations board until it is investigated to see if the board is allied with communists."

Miss Dodd had charged that passage of the resolution would align the state federation with "reactionary wings of the republican and democratic parties, the National Manufacturers' association and similar organizations."

War to Make World Safe for Revolution

(By Raymond Clapper in Washington News.)

Much is being said in America, chiefly by typewriter statesmen and armchair strategists, about what the United States ought to do. They have produced highly logical theses about how the United States can step in and make the world safe for democracy. The only trouble with that is that the next war, instead of making the world safe for democracy, is likely only to make it safe for revolution.

It is all very well for the United States to picture itself as leading another great crusade to save Europe from itself. But the most useful crusade that the United States could engage in would be to protect itself thoroughly and to make secure on the Western hemisphere a mode of life based on orderly freedom that will stand as an example and give encouragement to the rest of the world after it had come out of its present delirium.

We have a system in America, which if it can survive the present period, must inevitably make fascism, bolshevism, nazism and all other current atrocities of government seem as undesirable to other peoples as their former tyrants were.

Where do you think millions of people in any of those countries would go tomorrow if they had the opportunity? Of course, they would beat it to America on the first boat.

First Committee to Set Wages Under Federal Pay-Hour Act Named by Administrator

Washington.—Administrator Elmer F. Andrews, of the new federal wage-hour law, has taken the first definite step to fix wage standards under the act by appointment of Industry Committee No. 1. It will be charged with the task of establishing a minimum wage of not less than 25 cents per hour for branches of the textile industry employing more than 1,300,000 persons.

Andrews named Donald M. Nelson, of Chicago, as chairman of the 21-member committee equally composed of representatives of the public, textile employers and labor.

The seven employe members were divided with five CIO representatives and two A. F. of L. members.

Committee members are:

Public: Nelson, vice-president of Sears, Roebuck & Co.; Grace Abbott, former chief of the labor department's children's bureau and now a faculty member at the University of Chicago; P. O. Davis, extension director of Alabama Polytechnic Institute, Auburn, Ala.; F. L. Foshee, Sherman, Tex., oil operator; Louis Kirstein, president of Filene & Co., Boston, Mass.; George Fort Milton, publisher, Chattanooga News, Chattanooga, Tenn.; George W. Taylor, economist, University of Pennsylvania.

Labor Members.

Employer Members—G. Edward Buxton, Androscoggin Mills, Providence, R. I.; Charles A. Cannon, Cannon Mills, Kannapolis, N. C.; Albert Chapman, Inman Mills, Spartanburg, S. C.; John R. Cheatham, Georgia Kinkead Mills, Griffin, Ga.; John Nickerson, Cheney Bros. Co., New York; Seabury Stanton, Hathaway Manufacturing company, New Bedford, Mass., and R. R. West, Riverside and Dan River Cotton Mills, Danville, Va.

Administrator Andrews said the bureau of labor statistics now is collecting facts concerning wage conditions in the industry and will present them to the committee soon.

Industry Already Surveyed.

The textile committee will fix a wage of not less than 25 cents nor more than 40 cents for workers engaged in manufacture and finishing of yarns and fabrics other than wool and hosiery. Wool, hosiery and worsted woven goods were omitted from the committee's jurisdiction because a wage determination for these branches did not appear to be necessary immediately.

Andrews said a bureau of labor statistics survey of 383,000 employes in the cotton textile branches last year showed that 26.7 per cent of employes received less than 40 cents an hour and 4.6 per cent received less than 25 cents an hour.

When the committee completes its work it will present a recommendation to Andrews. If he rejects it, he can not change the recommendation, but must refer the matter back to the same committee or appoint a new one.

New Jersey Homestead Homes To Be Rented

Hightstown, N. J.—Seventy-five of the 200 one and two-story family dwellings at Jersey Homesteads, the co-operative factory and farm colony of the federal farm security administration near here, will be offered for rental, according to an announcement by Walter A. Simon, project manager.

The colony was established for garment workers from New York City, but operations have not come up to expectations. The clothing factory turns out men's and women's clothing, which is sold through the Consumers' Wholesale Clothiers, a corporation composed of consumer co-operative associations.

The houses will be rented to outsiders living in the vicinity whose annual incomes are between $1,000 and $2,150. Rentals will average about $20 a month.

Some of the houses are of the bungalow type and others have two stories. All have five rooms, are semi-detached and have one-car garages and about one acre of ground.

What Would America Do?

(From the Milwaukee Journal.)

The Czechoslovakian settlement will be realistic because European nations have to be realistic. Even so, is it any good?

Is it any good to give in, and give in, and give in, as the nations have done to post-war Germany? If they don't meet Hitler's armies on the Czechoslovak frontier will they not have to meet them on the Rhine, or on the Marne? Is not this the story of all blackmail, whether between persons or between nations?

If we judge this an abandonment of moral standards on the part of France and Britain, we must ask what Americans are prepared ot do in the support of this morality between nations. The answer must be that we are prepared to cheer on the hero—with words, but not with lives or arms or loans.

North Carolina Labor Asks Change In Membership of Labor Board

Wilmington, N. C.—The North Carolina State Federation of Labor, in 32nd annual convention here, adopted a resolution declaring the national labor relations board the "organizational arm" of the CIO and demanding a change in board personnel.

The resolution was adopted after Louis G. Hines, director of organization for the A. F. of L., criticized the board.

The resolution accused the board of collusion with the CIO and declared that John L. Lewis' organization had "communistic affiliations."

The convention adopted a broad educational program.

Delegates authorized the committee on education to submit a program to the 1939 legislature calling for better pay for school teachers, free textbooks, and general improvement in scholastic and health standards at North Carolina public schools.

C. A. Fink, of Spencer, was re-elected president. The convention voted to meet in Raleigh next year.

TAXES FOR MILADY

Trenton, N. J.—Approximately 42 cents of the price of a $5 cotton dress goes for hidden taxes, according to a study made by the Emergency Consumers' Tax council of New Jersey. The study shows that the garment bears a total of 72 concealed levies.

Tuesday night is our regular meeting night. Every member is urged and requested to be present. Be there so that you will not have to go about asking your fellow-brother what happened at the meeting.

* * *

We went down and had a nice, long visit with Fred Clift, new owner of the Frosty Mug. Fred is operating a union house. He was a member of organized labor long before we ever thought of it. He advised us that his dues were paid up until next Saturday. You ought to go down and pay him a visit. You should see how he has the place fixed up. What with those booths painted red—bright red—Chinese red.

Miss Helen Dawn has been ill.

* * *

Miss Elba Morgan has had as her guest her brother from T. P. I., who came over to participate in the football game between his school and the University of Chattanooga.

Carter Parham, of the staff of WDOD, paid a visit to the Glasgow Tavern this week, which is being picketed.

Lyman Boleman is ill.

Ralph Nelms is new employed at Bob Green's, on Chestnut Street.

* * *

You should hear some of the excuses we hear for folks patronizing the Glasgow Tavern. Everything from bad stomachs to the plea that grandma ate there during her lifetime. Things like that may work for and with some people, but to us it means just one thing and that is the fact that some folk don't want to help this particular organization. If you don't co-operate with one local in organized labor then you truly will not co-operate with any other; that is, unless you are forced to do so.

Our international has written us to report back in Knoxville the first of the month so at the closing of our meeting on Tuesday night we are going over to the city known as the Gateway to the Smokies for a few weeks' stay.

Miss Sue Keef is at George's Place.

Have you heard about the breakage Pot that can be found in one of the non-union restaurants? No? Well, we have and it works like this. The management has no desire whatsoever to charge her girls for the dishes they break—and why should she when they are one big, happy family—but this pot is provided for the staff of this restaurant so that when they accidently break a dish they can deposit the price of said dish in this pot. If the party breaking a dish doesn't feel honor bound to put the price of a broken dish in the pot put there for that particular reason then he or she isn't forced to do so. So says this restauranteur.

We're mad again about some of our union people smoking non-union cigarets. Have you heard about the people who couldn't smoke any kind other than a non-union brand because some other brand (union made) made them cough? Too, some union-made cigarets leave a bad taste in the mouth and all those kind of excuses. I wonder have these good people ever stopped to think where people who tell little white lies go, huh?

Strike Voted by Truck Drivers in N. Y. City

New York, N. Y.—By a vote of 4,071 to 365 the truck drivers in three locals of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, Chauffeurs, Stablemen and Helpers of America voted to resume their strike following a four-day truce which ended in failure to reach an agreement with the trucking firms.

The strikers' main demand was that their present wage rate of $56.50 be continued on the basis of a five-day, 40-hour week, instead of the present work week of 47 hours. The strikers also asked for an annual one-week vacation with pay.

The strike was originally an "outlaw" movement not authorized by the union officials who were in charge of negotiating a new agreement with the trucking concerns. The meeting at which the strike vote was finally taken, however, was duly authorized and the vote was recognized by Michael J. Cashal, vice-president of the Teamsters' Brotherhood, as official. The leaders of the unauthorized strike also pledged full support to the union officials in the fight for better work conditions.

It was voted to exempt from strike activities foodstuffs, medicinal supplies, newsprint and other items to be authorized at the discretion of the executive committee elected to conduct the walkout.

A. F. OF L. CEMENT WORKERS UNIONS HAVE 42 PACTS WITH CEMENT FIRMS

The important achievement of thoroughgoing organization of the workers in American Federation of Labor unions were strikingly illustrated in the annual report of William Schoenberg, president of the A. F. of L. National Council of United Cement Workers, to the recent annual convention of the council, which revealed that "of the sixty-six cement workers' unions in the American Federation of Labor fifty-six contractual relationship with thirty-seven operating companies." In addition, three local unions have agreements with three lime manufacturing companies and two local unions have agreements with two gypsum manufacturing companies.

Medusa Cement Plans Organized.

Mr. Schoenberg also reported that three strong local unions have plants of the Dedusa Portland organized in three of the eight Cement company, long regarded as not in sympathy with organization of its workers. The organized plants include: Manitowoc, Wis., Local No. 21144; Dixon, Ill., Local No. 21517, and York, Pa., Local No. 21208.

Organization of these three locals was effected after the 1937 convention referred the matter to the officers and executive board of the national council, with the co-operation of the American Federation of Labor and the several A. F. of L. local organizations in the respective communities concerned.

Aided by A. F. of L. Organizers.

The A. F. of L. maintains two salaried organizers, working under direction of the national council. During the year covered by Mr. Schoenberg's report, Samuel J. Diskan, general organizer of the A. F. of L., was very successful in organizing new unions and negotiating agreements with employing companies. He also had supervision of the handling and final adjusting of the victorious Martins Creek and Catskill strikes, as well as many other adjustments of grievances.

List of Union Companies.

Mr. Schoenberg submitted the following list of cement, lime and gypsum companies having union agreements with A. F. of L. locals, represented by the National Council of United Cement Workers:

Allentown Portland Cement company, Alpha Portland Cement company, Ambiers Shingle company, Calaveras Portland Cement company, California Portland Cement company, Coplay Portland Cement company, Dewey Portland Cement company, Edison Portland Cement company, Giant Portland Cement company, Hercules Portland Cement company, Keystone Portland Cement company, Lawrence Portland Cement company, Lehigh Portland Cement company, Lehigh Lime company, Lone Star Cement corporation.

Marquette Cement Manufacturing company, Missouri Portland Cement company, Monolith Portland Cement company, National Cement company, National Portland Cement company, Nazareth Portland Cement company, North American Portland Cement company, Northwestern Portland Cement company, Olympic Portland Cement company, Pacific Portland Cement company, Penn-Dixie Cement corporation, Columbia Portland Cement company (subsidiary of Pittsburgh Plate Glass company), Riverside Portland Cement company, Roche Harbor Lime company, Santa Cruz Portland Cement company.

Signal Mountain Portland Cement company, Southwestern Portland Cement company, Southern States Lime company, Spokane Portland Cement company, Superior Portland Cement company, United States Gypsum company, Utica Hydraulic Cement company, Valley Forge Cement company, Washington-Idaho Lime and Cement company, Whitehall Portland Cement company, Yosemite Portland Cement company.

20,800,000 Received Public Aid in July

Washington.—The appalling extent of destitution in the United States, caused mainly by the existence of an unemployed army numbering around 11,000,000, is emphasized by the report of the social security board that 6,500,000 households comprising 20,800,000 persons, were given some sort of federal, state or local relief during the month of July, the amount paid out of these agencies totaling $258,748,000.

Lawyers to Discuss Reform of State's Civil Court System

Knoxville.—The need for reform of Tennessee's civil court system will be discussed by the lawyers of the state at the two-day law institute to be held at the University of Tennessee Law College Oct. 28-29. Though the purpose of the institute will be to study the new federal court rules of civil procedure, one session will be devoted to a discussion of the adaptability of the new federal rules to Tennessee courts.

Walter P. Armstrong, Memphis attorney, will be the key speaker on Tennessee court reform, and Prof. Robert M. Jones, of the U. T. Law college, will lead an open discussion. At the same session, Judge Edward R. Finch, of the New York court of appeals, will explain the program of the American Bar association to improve the court systems in the various states.

The state reform movement has taken its cue from the federal court rules, which are designed to speed up trials and reduce court costs.

"The lawyers and judges in Tennessee are today attempting to practice law and thereby obtain justice with a system of procedural law which belongs to the horse and buggy era," said Dean Henry B. Witham, of the U. T. Law college. "Innumerable delays in trials and the great expense attached to the trial of cases could be eradicated if a number of out-moded practices were done away with.

"Today the trial of a lawsuit is oftentimes more in the nature of a battle of wits between the opposing counsel with the judge as referee," the dean continued. "The objective seems to be to win a lawsuit instead of to win justice. Much of the trouble lies in the fact that methods of procedure in courts have become crystalized and technical to such an extent that real justice is overlooked in the sport of winning the case."

William H. Wicker, another U. T. law professor, who will be a discussion leader for the institute, also declared the state court system "is archaic and is incrusted with barnacles." It is hoped that the new federal rules will serve as a model for a new system of procedure, he said.

"The American Bar association is now advicating that the individual states authorize their own courts to make new court rules for civil practice and to conform these new rules as far as possible to the new federal system," said Mr. Wicker.

The two-day institute, sponsored by the American Bar association, comes a short time after the new rules go into effect, and will bring the lawyers together to consider the changes and examine any problems, explained Dean Witham.

Visiting speakers, all of whom have part in preparing the new rules, are: Judge Finch, Chief Justice Marvin B. Rosenberry, of the Wisconsin supreme court, and Dean Charles E. Clark, of the Yale University College of Law.

Illegal Use of Printers' Label Draws Fines

Warning Given That Future Violations Will Be Given to Grand Jury.

A warning was sounded in Squire Bruce Freeman's court last week that future instances of illegal use of the union label of the Allied Printing Trades' council will result in grand jury action which the council will prosecute to the full extent of the law.

The warning was sounded by H. G. B. King, attorney for the council, who agreed to a plea of guilty from J. Frank Costello and William V. Costello, proprietors of the Costello Printing company on Post road, Rossville.

Admitting their guilt as charged—that they unlawfully and fraudulently used and displayed the union printing label—the brothers threw themselves on the mercy of the court and were fined, with the agreement of the council, $10 and costs each, making a total bill of approximately $35.

In 1935 the Costello brothers were members of the International Typographical Union and the Printing Pressmans' and Assistants' union. They dropped their membership in that year and the Allied Printing Trades' council brought the action before Squire Freeman last week on a complaint that the Costello Printing company used the union label illegally on a job done for an insurance company in a small, red covered note book used as advertising matter and distributed to railway employes.

The charge upon which the Georgia printers paid their fine was a misdemeanor, but they were also in court on a felony charge—that of imitating or counterfeiting the union label. This charge was stricken from the warrants by the council through its attorney, who said "We do not want to be hard in this instance, but we are serving notice that we know of a number of other similar cases in and around Chattanooga. We wish to warn these operators here and now that the next case we bring into court will be dealt with to the full extent of the law. We will not again assent to a plea of guilty, but will insist on going to the grand jury with these cases to demand the full protection afforded the union label or trade mark under the statutes of the state."

Squire Freeman, at the opening of court, said: "It is necessary to protect these union labels in order to maintain wage standards and good working conditions they represent."

William Costello, spokesman for the brothers, told the court that he had not knowingly violated the law. He claimed that the label was installed in his shop by Phil Mandre, a member of the council, and that he had received no notice by letter or otherwise that his right to use the "bug" was withdrawn.

This remark brought an immediate reply from J. H. Frawley, a member of the committee from the council: "You knew that you were no longer a member and that that automatically cancelled your right to use the label."

The only testimony aside from that of the printing house executive was that of White Abel, secretary-treasurer of the council and president of the Printing Pressmans' and Assistants' union local here. Abel identified the union label, and said that he had found the label on the booklet printed by the company for the life insurance company. He testified that the label had been illegally used.

Typos Re-Name Most Officers For New Term

At its regular meeting last Sunday, Chattanooga re-elected for the coming year most of its incumbent officers. W. W. Worthington was re-elected president for his second term, and Finney Carter, secretary-treasurer, and M. S. Cooke, recording secretary, succeed themselves.

Once more the auditing committee will be composed of L. O. Beaumont, H. J. Cathey and Wallace Miller.

Arch Underwood was re-named chairman of the Apprentice committee.

List of Central Body delegates will be R. M. Cooke, Arch Underwood, Harris Hix, Walter Gardner, William Keels, Wiley Underwood, Horace Carpenter and T. R. Cuthbert.

Allied Printing Trades Council will be the same this year, composed of Mandre, Frawley and Harding. The executive committee will consist of Arch Underwood, L. O. Beaumont, W. L. Gardner, H. S Stevenson and T. R. Cuthbert.

J. O. Schorn was elected sergeant-at-arms.

British Laborite Asks World Conference To Revise Treaties

London (ILNS).—George Lansbury, former labor leader, headed a peace pledge union delegation in asking the government to invite all world powers to a conference for revision of treaties.

The union manifesto, delivered to No. 10 Downing street, said that the Czech crisis required a world conference.

Treaty revision, it said, "will only succeed if the British government is prepared to regard the question of colonial possessions and our economic policy open for drastic revision."

TEPCO Strike Rocking Along To Seventh Week

Company Estimated Spending at Least $10,000 Daily for "Assistance."

The seventh week of the Tennessee Electric Power company strike, caused by apparent continued policy of the utility to wipe out trades unions, is still in full force today, with strikers holding firm in their desire to force the company to deal with them collectively.

From available figures and estimates, it is believed the company is spending at least $10,000 daily to pay for automobiles, operation thereof, and wages to well-paid "guards" and other "assistants" who are using every method known to beat down its employes, approximately 600 in number.

Where this money is coming from is not definitely known, but it is a well known fact that utility power rates are based on operating costs. While Chattanoogans will not be forced to pay this bill, due to availability in the near future of public power, it is believed that other sections of Tennessee not availing themselves of public power will find the Tepco policy staring them in the face with each month's light bill.

Last week two Chattanooga strikers were arrested in Cleveland on the usual charge, and likewise three in Blue Ridge, Ga. The Cleveland "suspects" are out on bond, and latest reports say that one of the Blue Ridge strikers is out on bond. Until yesterday it was reported that the prisoners were not allowed to see visitors—not even lawyers. It was said the company desired to "question" them.

All in all, it looks like a finish fight is in prospect, with strikers in excellent spirits and determination to stick it out.

Bakery Strike Is Settled!

The nine-week strike at the Chattanooga Baking company was settled today. The following statement was issued jointly by C. R. Sims, business agent Local 25, and Sam Hutchinson, owner of the plant:

"After many conferences, extending over the past few weeks, between the officials of the Chattanooga Bakery and the representatives of Bakers' Union No. 25, including Mr. E. C. Curtis, federal commissioner of conciliation, and Mr. Paul Stiles, representative of the national labor relations board, an agreement was reached between the parties and a contract agreed upon, under the terms of which all striking employes will return to work, with the exception of three who were charged with assault on fellow-employes. The management of the bakery and the men who were assaulted have joined in a request that the prosecution of all criminal charges growing out of the assault be dismissed.

"Under the terms of the agreement, Bakers' Union No. 25 is the sole collective bargaining agency for all employes, but the agreement is not a closed shop agreement, but contains the provision that all employes of the union shall remain such during the life of the contract.

"The contract contains clauses providing for seniority of employes, no reduction in wages during the life of the contract, and arbitration of any disagreements. It also provides for the standard work week of 44 hours per week, eight hours per day, with time and a half for overtime.

"The parties finally reached an agreement in all matters, with the best of good will. The management of the bakery expects to open at the earliest practicable date, not later than the middle of the coming week, and with the feeling of all parties that there is to be full co-operation and harmony between the management of the bakery and its employes."

Molders Fight Washing Machine Made "Unfair"

Local Union No. 27, and the Cleveland and Vicinity Conference Board of the International Molders Union of North America announce they have placed all Apex Electric Manufacturing Co. and Holland-Rieger Co. products on the unfair list, and request all union members to refrain from purchasing any of their products.

The Apex Electric Manufacturing Co. manufactures electric washers, ironers, sweepers, and refrigerators, trade name "Apex". The Holland-Rieger Co. (which is a branch of the Apex Electric Co.) manufactures washing machines, and ironers, trade name "Faultless".

The above companies use many grey Iron and aluminum castings, none of which are made under union conditions, and the company refuses to place any of it in union shops claiming the right to purchase castings where they can get them the cheapest.

Everhart Goes To TVA Wage Parleys Held in Knoxville

Tennessee Valley Trades and Labor Council To Negotiate Rates for Crafts.

W. J. Everhart, president of Chattanooga Building Trades council, has been named to represent Chattanooga in the Tennessee Valley Trades and Labor council, which is a group set up by crafts employed by the TVA.

Annually a conference is held with TVA to discuss wages and working conditions. In these conferences the various crafts are represented by international representatives.

This year the conference will be held on October 12, in Knoxville, Tenn. While four or five Chattanooga crafts have not affiliated, the local council will ask the authority to allow Brother Everhart to represent them.

Road Laborers Get Contract Closed Shop

Local 1266, Hodcarriers of Trenton, Ga., won a long drawn-out battle of four months against T. M. Stryder, general contractor, who had the road construction job between Chattanooga and Trenton, Ga. Mr. Stryder firmly refused to deal with the union, and the men struck on April 15.

The contract was taken away from Mr. Stryder and given to the Blythe Bros. Construction company of Charlotte, N. C., which signed this week a one hundred per cent union closed job agreement.

Former wages were 20 cents an hour for unskilled labor and 30 cents for semi-skilled. The union demand for 30 cents for unskilled and 45 cents for semi-skilled was agreed to. The job is now going ahead full blast with 135 men at work.

Two Furniture Houses Here Dress Themselves Up, Using Organized Labor Throughout

Two of Chattanooga's best furniture houses have put on some nifty improvements in the last few weeks by remodeling throughout. Sterchi Stores have moved to their new location on Market street, and Rhodes-Jones has done a thorough job of improvement.

Members of organized labor feel a spirit of partnership in these improvements because every lick of work done was by members of the building trades unions. Congratulations to Manager Moore of Sterchi and Managers Ray and Jones of Rhodes-Jones!

Labor Protest Saves Part of Railroad

Washington, D. C. (INLS). — Protests of the railroad unions and of the twons affected by the proposal of the Quincy, Omaha & Kansas City railroad to abandon its entire 250 miles of line seem to have had some effect. The road has announced that it will file a new petition to abandon only a part of the line, and to sell the rest to the Burlington.

Hospitalization Plans Worked Out By Provident Co.

A majority of Provident Life and Accident Insurance company employes have joined the new Hospitalization plan being underwritten by the company, and which became effective October 1, it is announced by President Robert J. Maclellan.

Under this plan, participating employes are covered for certain prescribed hospital expenses as well as surgeon's operating fees arranged upon a schedule that provides varying amounts for major, intermediate and minor operations. Fees for operating room and other miscellaneous expenses are also covered. The plan does not cover hospitalization resulting from accidents caused during working hours, which would be handled under the regular Workmen's Compensation Law, it is stated.

Provident employes are permitted to join the cooperative plan in one of three classifications—with benefits for employe only, for employe and one dependent, and for employe and entire dependent family. The hospital board period covered extends for 28 days for any one continuous confinement. Operation fee allowances for dependents are one-half those granted the employe.

This plan, aside from company participation, is substantially the same as that now being offered business firms throughout Provident territory in those states where such hospitalization plans are permitted by law.

Officials call attention to the fact that under this plan any incorporated hospital approved by the American Medical association or the American College of Surgeons may be selected by the insured and the employe also has the right to select the attending surgeon at will.

Strike Settlement Gives Shorter Workday to New York Truck Drivers

New York City (Ilns.)—The truckmen's strike is practically settled, in spite of some points still to be ironed out with the "old guard" of truck owners. The credit for the settlement may be divided between Mayor La Guardia, who devised the compromise and backed it with all the picturesque force of his nature; and the International Brotherhood of Teamsters and its New York chief, Michael J. Cashal.

La Guardia's compromise calls for a 44-hour week with wages unchanged from the present 47 hours. The strikers approved it almost at once. Both organizations of employers at first rejected. La Guardia called out more than 800 city trucks, drawn, of course, from other uses—and offered them to striking truck drivers to use in carrying merchandise in defiance of their employers.

That caved in the opposition. The Merchant Truckmen's Bureau, representing local operators, in spite of bitter criticisms made by some of its recalcitrants, voted to accept the compromise. They did this after scores of individual firms had walked up and signed the agreement—and after their joint wage scale committee had been reduced from 19 members to four, by disaffections. The Highway Transportation Association, representing the long-distance haulers, first voted to reject the compromise, then voted to send a delegation to the mayor. But by that time, it made very little difference. The mayor and the drivers had won.

Outside the city limits, in New Jersey and Westchester county, N. Y., two truck strikes for the same terms were settled on the same basis; though here, too, there were some odds and ends to pickup.

Watch Out for Adver. Racketeer

Greenville, S. C.—State and city central labor union officials throughout the south are warned to be on the lookout for one R. J. Newell, or J. R. Newell, and his solicitors who use any of a dozen aliases.

Newell's game is to solicit merchants, manufacturers, banks and every line of business for advering in a labor paper that does not exist. Newell came here recently with an assistant solicitor by the name of F. W. Thomas, alias F. W. Waggoner, alias F. W. Wilson, and solicited advertising for "The South Carolina Labor Journal."

J. L. Sowers, alert vice-president of the South Carolina State Federation of Labor, knew there was no "South Carolina Labor Journal," so he had warrants issued for Newell and Thomas and their several and various aliases. Thomas was arrested, but Newell made his escape. Thomas was tried last week for soliciting advertising in the name of the State Federation of Labor and the American Federation of Labor, when he had no connection with either organization and no authority to represent either. He was found guilty, and given two years on the chaingang, fined $500 and taxed with the costs, amounting to about $200.

Thomas resented it because Newell "walked out" on him and left him with the bag to hold. He told the whole story as to how Newell operates his racket. The prison sentence was suspended on condition that Thomas pay the fine and the costs. He has not been able to do so, and is still in prison.

Just a few weeks ago Newell tried the same stunt in North Carolina. He was soliciting ads for "The North Carolina Labor Journal," which had no indorsement from any labor organization. He was arrested in Wilmington, tried and found guilty and sentenced. His wife appeared in court, an expectant mother, she said, and won the sympathy of the court and the prosecutors. Newell was let off at that time with payment of the costs, a refund of the money he had collected on advertisements and payment of the expenses which the North Carolina State Federation of Labor had incurred in prosecuting him.

Then he came into South Carolina with the same racket. Thomas says Newell is now in Georgia. Labor officials are asked to watch out for him or any one else soliciting advertisements in the name of labor, making certain that such solicitors bear credentials from proper state lamor officials.

South Carolina has its own official labor publication. It is "The South Carolina Federationist," and bears upon its masthead the names of the president, secretary-treasurer and vice-presidents of the South Carolina State Federation of Labor as the editorial board. Vice-President J. L. Sowers is one of the editors of the South Carolina Federationist, and this accounts for the readiness with which he detected Newell's solicitation of advertisements for a phoney paper.

Improved Employment Conditions Held Indicated by Drop in Claims for Out of Work Benefits

Washington, D. C.—Unemployment benefit payments totaling $47,042,428 and a decline of more than 30 per cent in the number of initial claims for benefits filed in August were announced by the social security board here. Continuance, in all but a few states, of the improved employment condition noted in connection with unemployment compensation operations during July was indicated by this sharp drop in the number of initial claims received from workers.

The amount of benefits paid in August increased by some $9,047,188 over the previous month, but aproximately $8,100,000 of this amount was paid by Iowa, Michigan and South Carolina, in which August was the first full month of benefit payments. Special reports to the social security board indicate that the remaining increase in payments was due largely to administrative factors. In many instances, the increase represented payments on a backlog of claims which were finally cleared during the month, rather than payments for current weeks of unemployment.

Of the twenty-five states in which payments were in full swing in July, as well as August, total payments were only 2.5 per cent higher in August, with eleven states reporting increases and fourteen reporting decreases, the majority of them exceeding 10 per cent.

Why Do They Fall for It?

In this week's Labor World is a warning to the public to be on guard for an advertising racketeer who was chased out of South Carolina after his partner was caught and imprisoned. It seems that a certain gentleman of ingenuity proceeded to sell advertising for a labor paper. The only drawback was that the labor paper did not exist.

We have pondered long over the gullibility of merchants and business men who fall for these glib high-pressure salesmen, who wander from place to place "selling" advertising and leaving behind them wrecked good will, while they themselves skip out with the money.

Reputable advertising mediums, such as The Labor World, established here for nearly a quarter century, with good credit standing and civic pride, many times are bluntly refused business by merchants who are approached on a business-like proposition. These same merchants can be sold tickeets, advertising, or what have you, in a few seconds over the telephone by outside high-pressure crews, who never attempt to discuss merit, but imply that dire consequences might result if "the boys" become displeased.

The Labor World is hardly courteous to these high-pressure gentry when approached with a proposition of conducting a telephone campaign for a special edition—any kind of edition—Easter, New Years, Labor Day, Yom Kippur, July 4th, 5th or 6th. They usually ask for 60 per cent of the proceeds. After expenses are paid the paper would get the rest, maybe.

Representatives of The Labor World can walk into any business man's office today and be courteously received. We have never sold one bit of advertising except on the proposition that the merchant is convinced he will receive legitimate returns therefrom.

We do not accept "A Friend" advertisements We have been turned down by business men more times than we have been accepted. No ill will has resulted. We simply failed in our salesmanship. Yet this same merchant will tell the unknown voice, "Yes, I will give the messenger twenty-five dollars for the Sons and Daughters of I Will Arise."

The Health Care of 52,000,000

A grim confirmation of the truth that health and life itself depend very largely on economic conditions was given by a resolution just passed by the convention of the American Hospital Association at Dallas, Texas. The resolution urged the expansion of plans for non-profit hospital insurance until medical treatment in hospital is available "to the 25,000,000 Americans with incomes above the relief line but below the comfort line."

That there should be 25,000,000 Americans in that plight is preetty close to being a national disgrace; but the recognition of the facts by a conservative organization like this is encouraging. Even two members of official bodies of the American Medical Association have indorsed it. But they have not yet indorsed the only way in which most of the millions wom they wish to help can pay for hospital care, even can without profits.

The group association plan, by which bodies of workers pay for medical care in monthly installments and get it from an organized staff of doctors, is the only plan yet offered that has worked.

The Oil Question

Dr. Samuel Guy Inman, executive secretary of the Committee on Co-operation in Latin America, has returned from a stay of several months of study and observation in Meexico with a report which seems to clarify the oil situation and to support the traditional friendly attitude of American labor toward Mexico.

Briefly, he says that Mexico is entirely willing to pay for the expropriated oil lands, but must have time to do it, and is entitled to the patience which foreign nations would have with any debtor. She will not return those properties without being compelled to do so by force—which nobody but a few oil owners want to see used. He sums up as follows:

"We can go along with Mexico, and the Mexicans will remain good friends, and pay us, and continue to buy our products. Or else, we'll shut off our market, and get nothing without a war."

Secretary Hull has made it clear that there will not be a war, but Dr. Inman wants to continue the good neighbor policy—even if the neighbor is temporarily hard up—that we have followed through out the present administration. It is at least a contribution worth studying.

Hitting the Sawdust Trail

The National Battery Manufacturers' Association has asked Administrator Andrews of the Fair Labor Standards Act to set 40 cents an hour as the minimum for their factories. That is the highest he can go: the Association claims that the average wage in their factories is 73 cents an hour; and they want to be rid of the competition of the chisellers who pay less.

This, of course, is very welcome to Mr. Andrews, who is reported to have wished aloud that more employers would "hit the sawdust trail" to ask for the highest minimum wage he can fix. There may be some groups of employers who will accomodate him. So far, however, no sign of such conversion has come from the textile industry, or the Big Four tobacco companies, or the lumber industry of the south, where wages go as low as 10 or 15 cents an hour.

Metal Trades Head Backs Navy Second to None

Houston, Tex. (ILNS).—A navy full adequate to protect the United States was urged by President John P. Frey of the A. F. of L. Metal Trades Department, as the resolution committee of the department's 30th annual convention reported recommendations that the administration speed up its "second to none" navy building program and isolate aliens now holding jobs on the Panama Canal and Panama railrod.

The crisis in Europe, President Frey said, fully justifies the position of the Metal Trades Department that this government must not only build a navy second to none, in relation to foreign powers, but must maintain it at this level. Such a fleet, he said, is invaluable as a "trading point" in future disarmament conferences.

Praising President Roosevelt's appeal to foreign powers to preserve the peace of the world as a "splendid act," Frey emphasized that his unionists always have been opposed to the settlement of international disputes through force.

"It is equally true, however, that we have given practical consideration to the international gangsterism which has marked the policy of dictator-controlled countries abroad," he said.

Former 'Noogan Unionist Gets GOP Nomination

Was Member of Movie Operators Here Twenty Years Ago—Now in New York.

Members of the Chattanooga labor movement this week were thrilled to learn that a former resident and member of Local 259, Movie Operators, had been signally honored in his adopted state, New York.

Raymond S. Fanning has been named the republican nominee for congressman in the Eighteenth district of the state of New York. Brother Fanning used to work in Chattanooga some eighteen years ago when the movie operators were struggling to establish their union on firm ground. He graduated later from the Harvard Law school and took up residence in New York to practice law. The district he is seeking to represent is Manhattan.

If pulling and wishing is of any help, Brother Fanning will surely be elected by the Chattanooga vote.

Tennessee Gets New Central Body

Copperhill, Tenn., Oct. 5.—Charter for the Central Labor union, to be composed of delegates from unions employed on the Hiawassee dam of the Tennessee Valley Authority and the A. F. of L. unions at Ducktown and Copperhill, has been received in Knoxville and is to be installed with formal ceremonies at an early date.

Local unions interested in the formation of this new C. L. U. have indicated a preference to delay the ceremonies until William M. Buchanan, president of the Knoxville Central Labor union, can be present. Mr. Buchanan was keenly interested in the original plans to organize the Hiwassee unions into a central body for clearing their problems, and it was while on a mission to the project in August that he was severely injured in an automobile accident.

Members of the Machinists' and Carpenters' local unions at Hiwassee took the lead in launching the the new central group, and as a member of the former organization Mr. Buchanan had expressed a lively desire to be present when the organizing campaign was climaxed with presentation of the charter.

Renewed Emphasis on Economic Action To Win Labor's Demands Forecast By A. F. of L. Department Meetings

Keynote of Three Conventions Is Opposition to Further Paternalistic Legislation and Return to Faith in Voluntary and Democratic Bargaining as Basis of Union Progress.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—So far in the hearings on the proposed railroad wage cut before the president's emergency fact-finding board, the workers fighting that cut have had all the human interest, all the history, and at least 80 per cent of the arithmetic.

The management side says in substance that the railroads are losing money, and therefore must cut wages. They lay their loss of money to three things: bad times, competition of the auto, and the policy of the government which by building power plants leaves the railroads less coal to haul.

Much Part Time Work

Hay gave some figures on railroad wages and work that are nothing less than astounding. He showed from the records of the Railroad Retirement Board that of the 1,740,799 workers and officials employed on Class I roads last cent, were employed in all the 12 months of the year, while 822,899 or 47.27 per cent were employed during 11 months or less. The average wage of the part-time 822,899 workers was $367 a year, or $30.69 a month.

Until Hay spoke, probably not a thousand persons in the United States outside of railroad forces knew how irregular is railroad employment, and how petty the part-time pay.

More Work, Less Pay

Hay went on with his deadly figures. Railroad workers are doing more work and getting less pay. Railroads now get almost 92 per cent more work per dollar of pay than they did in 1920. Railroad wages per hour have increased 1 cent—1.4 per cent, while wages per hour in manufacturing industry had increased 18 per cent. Unskilled labor in the auto industry gets more pay per hour than the average railroad pay, skilled and unskilled together.

And then came Davis to rub it in. Early in his opening statement, Mr. Davis quoted the words of Judge Caldwell, of the Federal District of Nebraska, in answering the plea of the receiver of the Union Pacific that wages be cut so that interest and dividends could be paid. Judge Caldwell said, in part:

"The employes, with families to support, are seldom more than a few days' wages in advance of want. . . . They must be paid fair wages, though no dividends are paid on the stock and no interest paid on the bonds."

To Show Banker Control

Those words were uttered by Judge Caldwell in 1895, 45 years ago, but it is doubtful any words which fit the case better have been uttered since.

Davis promised that:

"We will show you the devious trail of banker control of the railroads, and will show you the looting of American railroad systems by the financial houses of Morgan & Co., Kuhn, Loeb & Co., and other investment bankers."

Wages Cut, Salaries Boosted

Contrasting wage cuts with salary boosts, Mr. Davis said:

"The record of the Pennsylvania shows that 72 officials of this powerful railroad have received increased salaries. All but one of them received increases of 15 per cent or more; many of the increases being 27 to 44 per cent and one of them 66 2/3 per cent.

"This was the president of the railroad, who was receiving $60,000 a year, and whose salary was increased $40,000 to a total of $100,000."

Mediation and Conciliation Road to Industrial Peace, Edward F. McGrady Says

New York City (Ilns.)—Edward F. McGrady, now vice president of the Radio Corporation of America but whose fate rests on the fact, proved scores of times, that he was one of the greatest settlers and conciliators of labor disputes in the world, showed by an address before the American Arbitration Association that his views haven't changed with his job.

"I like the word 'voluntary,'" said Mr. McGrady. "It has a sound of freedom, which we value so highly in this democratic country of ours. It has been my experience that when men are given the opportunity for voluntary action, their efforts are usually met by success.

"Just the opposite is true when compulsion is employed. The use of force will never prevail over justice. Force has never conclusively and finally settled any issue between men."

Social Planning Lags.

He went on to say:

"That our machine age has produced an involved and highly complex economic structure is admitted by all. Interlacing ties have created a condition under which no single group can become entirely independent of all others. Unfortunately, our social planning has not kept pace with our technological improvements. There have been increasing hardships and injustices in our social and economic system.

"These maladjustments must be corrected not only for the welfare of industry and labor but for the peace and well-being of the nation I firmly believe that there is a solution for all human problems. The problems of industry and labor are essentially human and can, therefore, be solved. Patience, reason and complete cooperation is the answer. Industrial peace is not a God-given product. It must be cultivated and worked for constantly.

Peace Is Mark of Civilization.

"Let me put it this way: conciliation, mediation and voluntary arbitration are the marks of civilization. They are the enemies of distrust and force. They do away with the fang and the claw.

"In the American Arbitration Association and its Voluntary Industrial Arbitration Tribunal this country has one of the finest possible agencies to promote industrial peace and good-will."

Mr. McGrady spoke at a dinner in his honor. He was given a gold medal in recognition of his service in the cause of industrial peace. Sponsors of the dinner included many leaders of finance and industry and prominent labor executives.

Durkee Foods Pact Bans Strikes, Lockouts

Hours Limitation and Overtime Pay Are Also Provided in A. F. of L. Artificial Butter and Spice Workers Union Agreement With Norwalk (Ohio) Firm.

Norwalk, Ohio.—The terms of the agreement with Durkee Famous Foods, Division of the Glidden Company, under which members of the Artificial Butter and Spice Workers Local Union No. 20355, affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, have been working for more than three months contains a number of provisions designed to establish and maintain harmonious relationships and promote closer co-operation between the company and its employes.

The company is pledged to negotiate with representatives of the union on all matters pertaining to wages, hours of employment and other conditions covered by the agreement.

If employes believe they have been unjustly discharged, the grievance is submitted to the union committee, which takes the matter to the representatives of the company. If the company representatives are convinced that the employes were unjustly discharged, they are reinstated to their former positions and paid for time lost.

Eight-Hour Day Established.

The 45-hour week for all employes covered by the agreement is stipulated on the basis of an 8-hour day. Time and one-half is paid for overtime after nine hours of work on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of each week and after six hours of work on Saturday, with the provision that overtime shall not be deducted in determining the 45-hour week.

Time and one-half is also paid for work performed on Sundays, New Year's Day, Decoration Day, Fourth of July, Labor Day, Thanksgiving Day and Christmas Day. In case any of these holidays fall on Sunday it is provided that the day designated by the nation or state shall be considered a holiday and paid for at the time and one-half overtime rate.

Employes who are compelled to wait for work beyond the time ordered to report are paid for such waiting time at the regular rate. Employes reporting to work who have not been notified not to report are paid a minimum of two hours at the regular rates. Both of these provisions are modified by the stipulation that the payments are not required if the waiting time i occasioned by circumstances beyond the control of the company.

Grievances, excepting those arising over pay increases of a closed shop, which are not settled between the union committee and the company are referred to the conciliation division of the U. S. Department of Labor.

Seniority governs the reduction, restoration, and advancement of employes.

One week's vacation with pay is granted all employes who have worked for the company more than six months.

Strikes and Lockouts Banned.

In view of the provisions for the settlement of disputes it is provided that there shall be no strike or lockout during the negotiations for the adjustment of any differences that may arise under the operation of the agreement.

The agreement pledges both parties to cooperate in carrying out its provisions, with the stipulation that "the union agrees not to carry on union activities at said plant on the employers time and the employer agrees not to discriminate against any employes because of membership in the union or because of union activities outside of working hours."

The agreement covers all the employes at the Norwalk plant of the company excepting executives, office help, clerks, chemists, firemen, maintenance men, repairmen, watchmen, janitors, foremen and supervisors of the ingredient, exerusion, milk, prainting and shipping departments.

The agreement expires June 16, 1939.

Union Label Trades Department Reports Progress in Many Fields Since 1937 Conventions

HOUSTON, Tex.—The Union Label Trade Department of the American Federation of Labor has had a most successful year, with marked gains in membership and influence, the department's executive board reported to the 31st convention, held here prior to the A. F. of L. convention.

Increased demand for the union label, shop card and service button due to the volunteer work of trade unionists and trade union organizations of many kinds was reported. Considerable space was devoted to the first annual A. F. of L. Union Label and Industrial Exhibition, the outstanding label promotion event of the year, held in Cincinnati in May. The exhibition, the report said, "placed union label merchandise and union services on the economic may of America."

Labor Press Praised.

Progress in many fields, including radio, co-operation with organized farmers and formation of union labe leagues was described. The report praised the labor press for its "wholehearted and intelligent" co-operation in every plan to publicize the union label. International Labor News Service was also praised, the report saying:

"The International Labor News Service and the American Federation of Labor News Service have never hesitated to run notices, news stories or editorials for the Union Label Trades Department. These services cover the entire labor press and it is a great saving in time and money to be able to take advantage of them."

Radio Used Effectively.

Discussing radio broadcasts, the report said:

"A general demand for union label products and union services has been created by the use of the radio. Coast to coast broadcasts have aroused unusual interest on the part of the consumer public."

On co-operation with farmers, the report said:

"It is estimated that over a million farmers have become interested and are now demanding the union label on their wearing apparel and other purchases. This has been accomplished by a reciprocal agreement through which members of labor unions buy Farmers' Union products wherever possible and in turn members of the Farmers' Union buy union label goods and patronize union services."

The report said there had been a healthy growth of union label leagues which include in their membership the women buyers for the families of union members."

Railroad Workers Score Heavily In Fighting Proposed Pay Cut At Emergency Board Hearing

BY GILBERT E. HYATT

HOUSTON, Tex.—The keynote of the fifty-eighth annual convention of the American Federation of Labor will be opposition to further legislation of pateralistic character. Legislation already enacted must be amended, in some cases drastically so, for the protection of democratic and voluntary functions of collective bargaining.

This was the unanimous tone of the three big department conventions, those of the Building, Metal and Label Trades. It was the dominant note in the speeches of President Green and of department Presidents Joseph A. McInerney, Building Trades; John P. Frey, Metal Trades, and Matthew Woll, Label Trades.

Behind th is is the practically unanimous action of every state federation of labor convention.

Labor will turn its efforts away from legislation, except so far as amendment of existing laws is necessary, to the fundamental and traditional A. F. of L. policies of shorter hours and higher wages as the only solution of unemployment, whether the result of technological advances or of industrial depression.

The major objective for this end will be the 30-hour week and the five-hour day "and at once."

"Maladministration" Of Labor Act Scored

Speaking before the Building and Label Trades conventions, President Green praised the National Labor Relations Act, but emphatically condemned the "maladministration" of the law. The law, he said, provided for collective bargaining but the manner in which this mandate had been administered struck at the fundamentals of the American Federation of Labor.

"We cannot accept that sort of administration of this very splendid labor act," he declared. "We will go to congress for amendments which will make impossible the assumption of power to invalidate agreements and assume the functions belonging to established unions with existing contractual relations."

With respect to the Housing Act, President Green stated that it needed amendment in the direction of greater flexibility in order to facilitate the resumption of building construction.

Walsh-Healey Act Broadening Is Asked

About the only piece of legislation to escape criticism was the Walsh-Healey Act providing prevailing wages and working conditions on government contracts. The department conventions went on record as approving this law but as advocating the broadening of its base to include the contracts as low as $2,000.

Significant of the temper of the A. F. of L. convention is the fact that Nathan Straus, Director, U. S. Housing Authority, was an invited guest while President Green assured the departmental conventions by advance wire from Washington, that no representative of the NLRB would be so honored.

Also, the Building Trades convention unanimously passed a slashing resolution condemning Donald Wakefield Smith's reappointment to the NLRB and calling upon the A. F. of L. to make known its objection by wire to Senators now seeking re-election and to all members of the Senate. Blocking Smith's confirmation by the Senate is, of course, the object.

Green Says Causes Of Fear Might Be Removed

On the general attitude toward legislation, President Green stated that "we have an abundance of capital; we have millions of trained workers eager for employment in private industry; we have trained and experienced management. What then is our trouble? If it is fear, then the cause of that fear should be removed. We must recapture the spirit of adventure which has characterized American business and the American people.

In his stirring declaration for shorter hours and higher wages, President Green used, among other illustrations, that of two pictures of a telephone exchange. One, before a complete mechanization, showed hundreds of girls at work. The other, after such mechanization, did not reveal a single worker.

President Woll, of the Label Trades, urged a return to the traditional policies of the A. F. of L. as expounded by Samuel Gompers. "Labor cannot trust its future to political control. For myself, I have always felt that there is an extreme danger in a great deal of the legislation that labor is unconsciously backing," he said.

"Developments abroad clearly indicate the fallacy of trusting everything to political control."

Study Before Action Is Urged

Some types of legislation are necessary, President Woll stated, but these should be carefully scrutinized to make sure that they did not infringe on fundamental rights.

Judge Joseph Padway, council of the A. F. of L., summarized the action of the three conventions and the addresses of the officials as follows:

"It was the clear thought that whatever advantages might have come from paternalistic legislation are dearly bought at the expense of fundamental constitutional rights. If legislation must be had for the enforcement of rights, that is one thing. But to barter the rights and privileges of voluntary and democratic bargaining for the shelter of government protection is to invite that same government, under whatever administration , to encroach upon the liberties and perrogatives which must, in a democracy, be preserved for the citizen, as an individual or in association through trade unions, with his fellows."

Conventions Report Big Gains

In another respect, the three departmental conventions followed the pattern of the state federation conventions. All were larger than before. All were enthusiastic. All were characterized by reports of the subordinate unions of increased membership. For example, Secretary Andrew Myrup, og the Bakers, proudly stated a tripled membership. This was countered by the Retail Clerks by a boast of quintupled growth.

Those unions which did not announce membership gains all reported improved conditions. This applied even to the Building Trades, hardest hit of all by unemployment. Another example was the musicians, under the lash of mechanization and "canned music." The report of President Weber, of the Musicians, was that the highest wages in the history of the industry were now in force. Union regulations have, to a great extent, mitigated the effects of "transcriptions programs" and other mechanical devices for the elimination of the human element in the profession.

Thousands of Sudeten Germans who are not nazis are fleeing to Prague to escape from Herr Hitler's "liberation."

NEW YORK LABOR OPPOSES JUDICIARY ARTICLE IN NEW STATE CONSTITUTION

Albany, N. Y.—The New York State Federation of Labor, representing 1,000,000 trade unionists affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, issued a statement urging the voters to reject, at the coming referendum, Proposed Amendment 5, which calls for a wholesale revision of the existing judiciary article in the state constitution.

Assailing the amendment as a "weasel proposal," the statement declared:

"This provision allowing for appeal for a judicial review of the administrative agency's decision, both as to law and fact, will prevent the prompt payment of awards in the compensation, unemployment, old-age pension and other welfare fields.

"The delay incurred as a result of these appeals can be looked to causing great hardship among those who are depending upon this relief.

"Appeals from the state labor relations board as to determinations as to fact and law will unquestionably cause chaos under this law as to the right of collective bargaining and the carrying on of unfair labor practices.

"The working people of New York state can look for nothing more from this amendment than a breaking down of the administration of the social welfare program which has been enacted at the behest of the New York State Federation of Lamor.

"We cannot too strongly recommend that this proposal be opposed."

The statement was signed by George Meany, president of the State Federation of Labor; John M. O'Hanlon, secretary-treasurer, and F. X. Sullivan, legal adviser.

McGrady Is Elected Director of Big Radio Cos.

New York City (ILNS). — Edward F. McGrady, vice president and director of labor relations for the Radio Corporation of America, has been elected a director of the corporation to fill the vacancy created by the recent death of James R. Sheffield, David Sarnoff, president, announced here. He said that Mr. McGrady had also been elected a director of RCA Communications, Inc., a subsidiary of Radio Corporation.

Mr. McGrady was formerly Assistant Secretary of Labor and for years was a member of the legislative committee of the American Federation of Labor. He left his Government post a year ago to handle labor relations for Radio Corporation.

Worker Killed in Quarrel With Fellow Worker Held Entitled to Compensation

Washington, D. C. (ILNS).—Upholding a decision of a lower court and the Workmen's Compensation Commission, the United States Court of Appeals has ruled that a workman killed in a quarrel with a fellow employe is entitled to compensation.

In a quarrel over their work, Buster Steadman, a bus boy in a restaurant, struck Gorman Jennings, an assistant cook, with a meat cleaver, which resulted in the death of Jennings. Steadman was tried for murder but was acquitted on the grounds of self-defense. Frank A. Cardillo, deputy compensation commissioner, ruled the widow and minor child were entitled to compensation because the death arose out of employment. The Maryland Casualty Co., which held insurance on the restaurant, appealed to the District Court to annul the ruling of the commission, but the court awarded compensation. The company then appealed to the higher court, which sustained the decision of the lower court.

This is said to be the first case of its kind in the District of Columbia, and the decision undoubtedly will be used as a precedent not only in the District but in states having workmen's compensation insurance laws.

How long will it take American financiers to learn that wage cuts are not a help to prosperity?

An Autumn Wardrobe for Your Home

WITH leaves turning scarlet and gold and the zestful tang of autumn in the air, it's time to think about a new wardrobe for the home. If you are clever you will budget your home's wardrobe just as you do your own. Divide a $100 budget wisely between your living room, dining room and bedroom and you will be able to work wonders in giving your rooms glamour and charm.

For the living room concentrate on new drapes and a new cover for your divan or favorite easy chair, a new coffee table and a mirror to give the room a feeling of spaciousness. For the dining room invest in something new for the table and give thought to your windows. In the bedroom make your bed cover and dressing table the first consideration.

If you are lucky enough to have one of the new plate glass picture windows in your living or dining room, dramatize it with curtains of one of the rough textured materials with a homespun feeling, eliminating glass curtains and thus bringing out-of-door vistas into your room, as illustrated in the large photograph. Chair and lounge stool have been treated to covers of a harmonizing material. Such covers can be made at home if you are clever with your sewing machine.

The smartest of the new coffee tables have mirror tops of plate glass, the one in the inset having the simple modified modern lines that grow increasingly popular with the cabinet makers.

For your dining room try a set of the new mirror mats, which are a glamour item that will brighten any table and still are within reach of the modest budget. Pictured is a place mat in the new peach colored mirror glass.

Ornburn Praises Steps Taken by Labor In South for Fair Tax Legislation

Washington, D. C. (INLS). — "Instead of remaining America's No. 1 economic problem, the South may have already started a move that will make it America's No. 1 economic blessing. Spirit and energy driving steps by organized workers in the south to help bring sanity into state and federal tax problems are already aroused. Practical steps and proposal for a working plan have been outlined. If the move begun in the southeast should spread as its merit deserves, only national good can result."

That was the comment of I. M. Ornburn, secretary-treasurer of the A. F. of L. Union Label Trades Department, on the special tax report just released by the Florida Federation of Labor, A. F. of L. affiliate, and subsequent proposal of state labor officials in the southeastern states to form a council of tax committees already authorized by state bodies in seven states in that area.

"When the Florida Federation points out in its committee report that the success of today's recovery program depends upon the fairness of tax plans enacted by the state legislatures meeting this winter and spring and also by the national congress, I believe the situation is rightly stated," Mr. Ornburn continued.

"Wage earners pay nearly all the taxes, in the last analysis. Florida tax students have not rested with a mere bearing of imminent dangers arising out of indefinite continuation of present top-heavy plans that draw too heavily upon the standard of living and discourage capital that ought to be providing more employment.

"Of all the tax protests and so-called remedies proclaimed by various groups and interests, this is the first one I have seen that also carried constructive suggestions for steps to be taken to safeguard the present economic tax balance while specified steps are taken which will eventually lead to less harmful levies, fewer attempts to misuse the taxing power as a method of inflicting punishment, better government, and more adequate collections."

SILK INDUSTRY

New York City.—Silk stocking boycotters are reported in action in a few cities, using their old-time tactics of dressing up a left-wing nucleus with a surrounding of "good names". Dealers are reporting no effect on sales. Reason generally assigned for weakness of the boycott effort is that there is a general realization of the fact that silk stockings are the product of an American industry.

TOBACCO-WRAPPING TITLE

Kentucky.—Brown and Williamson Tobacco corporation officials say there is not likely to be a challenger in these days and times for the world's plug-tobacco wrapping championship now claimed by 76-years young Andy Boehnlein, of Louisville. Andy says "It's all in the fingers." The retired tobacco worker declared his wrapping of 2,238 sixteen-ounce plugs in one day in 1899 never has been equaled. The present title-holder says his work was not connected with the paper and foil wrapped around the plugs, but with the fine leaf tobacco which went around the lump itself to make it more attractive. Brown and Williamson modern machines show marvelous speed today in turning out union made cigarets.

PROPOSED CHAIN STORE BILL ATTACKED

New York.—Labor, farmers and consumers throughout the country would suffer immediate hardship if chain stores were taxed out of existence, which the Wright-Patman proposed auti-chain store bill will accomplish if enacted into law, according to Carl Byoir, public relations counsel. Speaking to the National Association of Chain Drug Stores convention, Mr. Byoir branded the bill as "a threat to the American standard of living." He declared America's multiple-unit retail systems buys 30 per cent of the nation's farm products, provides jobs for almost 1,000,000 wage-earners and makes possible savings of from 8 to 25 per cent in retail prices to the consumer.

C. T. U. & THE N. L. R. B.

Washington, D. C.—N. L. R. B. has on its desk petitions for certification of C. T. U. (an A. F. of L. affiliate) as the sole bargaining agency of Postal Telegraph employees in approximately 60 cities, on which hearings have been held and on which a decision has been awaited by C. T. U. for sometimes. The A. C. A. (CIO affiliate) recently filed a petition for a national election in the Postal System. Consideration of this petition by the Board is holding up its decision on the cases that have already been heard.

F. T. C. TEXTILE RULES

Washington, D. C.—The Federal Trade Commission is busy preparing regulations for labelling of fabrics. Silk, hosiery, wool and linen rules are going through the mill. Rush of work has delayed the hearings on the wool regulations and it now looks as if it will be the latter part of October before these hearings will be held.

Los Angeles Approves Ordinance to Curb Strike Picketing

Los Angeles (ILNS). — In a referendum election on the mayorality in this city, Mayor Frank L. Shaw was recalled from office by a majority of about 108,000. Judge Fletcher Bowron of the Superior Court was elected in his place.

This was the first time a recall election in this city has accomplished its purpose; though it has been tried several times.

Other issues were present at the election. and the results are not so good from the viewpoint of labor. Two picketing ordinances were up; one proposed by Southern Californians, Inc., an organization just a little more liberal than the Liberty League, and one by the A. F. of L. Central Labor Councitl, as the only hope of averting more drastic restrictions.

The A. F. of L. measure was turned down by over 30,000 majority; and the other, though A. F. of L. and CIO joined in fighting it, carried by 46,000. Now, pickets must be employes of the firm against which the strike is dicected, they are limited to one per entrance, must keep 25 feet apart, and no picketing at all will be allowed unless there is a "bona fide" dispute. This, as workers here see it, means that a justice of the peace can declare that there is no bona fide dispute, and the strikers will not be allowed to picket at all.

Plumbers' Union Criticizes FHA Wage Policy

Atlantic City, N. J. (ILNS) — The United Association of Journeymen Plumbers and Steam Fitters of the United States and Canada, in closing sessions of its 23rd convention, asked that the prevailing wage be stipulated in all Federal Housing Administration projects. The convention declared the FHA had done "great damage" to the building industry by failure to insist on payment of "prevailing wages."

The convention called for extension of the Social Security Act to workers not now covered by the law. Despite opposition from New York delegates, local unions were voted the right to organize apprentices and limit their numbers.

John Coefield, veteran president of the union and vice president of the American Federation of Labor, was re-elected. The convention also re-elected Thomas E. Burke, of Washington, secretary-treasurer, and Frank J. Kennedy, of Chicago, assistant secretary. They created a new post of assistant to the president and elected George Masterson, Chicago, to fill it.

NLRB Certification Delay Menaces Long Established Position of CTU in Postal Telegraph Company

Washington.—The national labor relations board has on its desk petitions for certification of the Commercial Telegraphers' union (an A. F. of L. affiliate) as the sole bargaining agency for Postal Telegraph company employes in approximately sixty cities, on which hearings have been held and on which a decision has been awaited by the CTU for sometime.

The American Communications association (CIO affiliate) recently filed a petition for a national election in the Postal system. Consideration of this petition by the board is holding up its decision on the cases that have already been heard. Upon the showing of the CTU against the petitioner, the board is being asked by the CTU to order a national election. The CTU is confident that it can win such a vote, and has been assured by the CTU that it will abide by the results of any election conducted by the board in any city in which they show a majority of the employes as members, and have previously petitioned the board for certification, or in any city in which CTU has contracts pending or otherwise with the Postal Telegraph company.

It is asserted by the CTU that a nation-wide election, if held by the board, would destroy all but one union in the communications field and force all employes to belong to that one union, thereby destroying CTU's ability to hold its long established local majorities.

It is reported from reliable sources that the CTU will absolutely refuse to abide by the results of any election conducted by the board in any city in which they show a majority of the employes as members, and have previously petitioned the board for certification, or in any city in which CTU has contracts pending or otherwise with the Postal Telegraph company.

Agreement Protects Warehouse Employes

Contract Between A. F. of L. Union and American Stores Company (Washington, D. C.) Includes Minimum Wages, Hours Limitation, Paid Vacations, and Provision Covering Physically Handicapped Workers.

Washington, D. C.—In the general settlement effected sometime ago with the American Stores company, operating in Washington and vicinity, notable gains were achieved by one of Washington's newer unions, the A. F. of L. Warehouse Employees' Union, Local 21104. In fact, the contract was at the time and has since been regarded as a distinctive victory for this union.

The agreement recognizes the union as the exclusive bargaining agency for all the company's warehouse employes within a radius of 25 miles of Washington. The 48-hour week is in effect, with time and a half for overtime and double time for holidays.

Minimum wages established by the agreement range from $20 for janitor, $22 for elevator operator, $23.60 for egg candler, on up to $26 for receiving or shipping clerk and $32 for floor managers, per week, with the proviso that every employe must receive not less than $2 per week increase over previous pay. Forty cents an hour is the established minimum rate for extra men.

Wages for superannuated or physically handicapped employes are fixed between the company and the union. Vacations with pay, one week annually, are provided after one year's service.

Standard union working conditions are established by the contract, including recognition of Shop Steward, assurance against discrimination, and the establishment of a Grievance Committee for settlement of disputes, which eliminates necessity for any strike or lock-out while a union contract is in effect.

Union to Train Officers---

Study-Reading Courses Aim At More Effective Service

New York City.—The education committee of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' union has drawn up a course of study and reading which every paid official of the ILGWU must take after February, and apparently future candidates for union offices will be required to take a similar course.

It is for a drastic course, but it is a remarkably interesting and informative one. First come six periods on the history of the ILGWU. Here's what it's hoped to quote this section's course complete:

1. Early Attempts and the Birth the ILGWU.
2. The first ten years and the strikes of 1909 and 1910.
3. Protocol Problems and Wartime Growth.
4. Internal Difficulties and the Depression Years.
5. The NRA Period, 1933-1935.
6. Recent Developments and the Place of the ILGWU in the American Labor Movement.

Two alternative courses in the economics of the Women's garment industry are offered. They take up very much the same things, but one gives the history of development from home to factory production, with machine and electric power, first; and a survey of the industry second; while the other reverses this order. Both give studies of employers and employes; both deal with the runaway shop problem, the jobber-contract system, sweatshops, homework, and the "headaches" which lie in wait for the officers.

Each of these courses consume six weekly periods of an hour each. So does the course on the structure and function of the ILGWU. Only three weekly periods of an hour each are devoted to parliamentary procedure; but the trade union techniques take twelve weeks. The officer student gets instruction from experts in organizing, negotiating, the conduct of strikes and the enforcing of agreements, checking employers' accounts, keeping financial accounts, and many other things.

Reading of certain books is required in each course. A list of available teachers has been compiled for the New York area, and is being compiled for other regions.

The union's advisory committee members for the courses are Dr. Charles Beard, Dr. Paul Brissenden, Dr. Theresa Wolfson and David J. Saposs.

A MESSAGE TO ORGANIZED LABOR

What YOU BUY and WHERE You Buy It

MAKES . . .

The LABOR WORLD

. . . GREATER

BUSINESS MEN who advertise regularly in THE LABOR WORLD are responsible for the recent enlargement of the paper. A larger paper gives new strength and prestige to the labor movement in Chattanooga.

BEING BUSINESS MEN, if their advertising does not bring results which they car trace to THE LABOR WORLD, these advertisers will not continue to use the paper.

THE LABOR WORLD is the only voice of organized labor in Chattanooga. It is YOUR voice—you who read the paper. In helping THE LABOR WORLD to grow YOU are creating an agency of great value to YOU—personally.

PERSONAL PRIDE, personal interest and organization expediency demand that union people buy from business men who advertise regularly in THE LABOR WORLD.

WHEN YOU NEED SOMETHING, first try to buy it from some of the regular advertisers in THE LABOR WORLD. If each of our readers will adopt this policy, and stick to it, we will build one of the nation's greatest labor organs here in Chattanooga—and very quickly . . . and it will help the unions of Chattanooga to secure improvement in conditions affecting our working people.

THE LABOR WORLD is already something to be very proud of, and if readers stick to the cause it will surprise all of you.

LET'S GO! Buy from advertisers in THE LABOR WORLD—and tell them WHY you are buying from them. Tell business men who are not advertising that they must get in THE LABOR WORLD if they want a share of Chattanooga's great union trade.

AND FINALLY, if you hear any news about any of our people, yourself included, call us up and tell us about it. Call us when you have talked to some advertiser, and think we can get him to advertise in THE LABOR WORLD.

Storage Co. Pact Aids Baltimore Workers

Maximum Hours, Overtime Pay, Seniority Rights and Arbitration of Disputes Are Included in Agreement Now in Effect Between A. F. of L. Warehouse Employes Union and Davidson Transfer & Storage Company.

Baltimore, Md.—Warehouse Employees' Union No. 21102, A. F. of L., continued big gains made in allied warehouse lines by recently securing a closed-shop contract with the Davidson Transfer & Storage Company, covering all inside employes of the huge furniture warehouse of that concern. The agreement, which has brought improved working conditions for these workers, will continue in effect until June 28, 1940.

Warehousemen secured a 48-hour work week, with the provision that no one be required to work over 10 hours a day, Mondays to Fridays, nor over 6 hours on Saturdays.

Senior warehousemen may work as much as 54 hours a week, with not over 10 hours a day. Overtime work calls for pay at the rate of time and one-third, compensating "time off" not permitted. During the rush months of April, May, September and October, all have a maximum 54-hour work week. Work on Sundays and six specified holidays calls for payment of doubletime rate.

Seniority rights of the workers are recognized, shop stewards are provided for, while "dismissals for cause" are subject to scrutiny by union representatives.

Definite arbitration machinery is set up by the contract, for the orderly adjustment of any grievances or disputes that might arise, without stoppage of work. Terms and conditions of the contract prevail during periods of arbitration and will apply similarly during any period of negotiation for a new agreement.

TENANT FARMERS WIN HIGHER PAY

Sweden Achieves Industrial Peace Through General Acceptance of Collective Bargaining, Report Says

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The report of the President's commission on industrial relations in Sweden is easy reading and full of information—but it will rouse no cheers from the National Association of Manufacturers. With a population of about 6,250,000, even yet quite largely agricultural, Sweden has 850,000 members of labor unions. On the same basis, we should have nearly 19,000,000 union members here.

In Sweden, the report says, 90 per cent of manufacturing workers are organized; and their right to organize and to bargain collectively with their employers was recognized by the Employers' Association in 1906.

Any encouragement for reactionary employers found in a report like that should be viewed through a microscope. It isn't big enough for the naked eye. Even when you think you've found it, you're fooled. For instance, there is no closed shop in Sweden—but here is what the report says about it:

"The closed shop is not a significant issue in Sweden, because of the very large proportion of workers who are union members, and because the employers no longer try to break down union organization, preferring to deal with their workers through strong trade unions."

42 Union Groups.

Though an old country, the union movement is not so old. In 1888, a small federation of unions in the metal industry was established on a national basis. Ten years later, other unions joined to form the Swedish Confederation of Trade Unions. That Confederation now has 42 groups of unions, about 850,000 members, and a treasury fund of roughly $30,000,000.

Collective bargaining in Sweden is on the English plan; that is, a union deals usually with the entire association of employers in that industry, not with a single plant. The report gives, as a sample the Wood Workers agreement with the Associated Wood Industries of Sweden. The country is divided into eight districts. The minimum wage for skilled men in the lowest district is 21½ cents an hour; in the highest district, 31½ cents. The minimum wage for skilled women in this craft is 14¾ in the lowest district, and 21 cents in the highest. The basic hours are 48 a week, with 35 per cent boost in pay for the first 2 hours increase; 70 per cent after that, and 100 per cent for Sundays and holidays.

Strike-breakers Banned.

Most basic changes are made by consultations between unions of workers and unions of employers. If this fails, there are government conciliators, and a Labor Court. Like our own railroad workers, the Swedish workers who have a grievance may not strike till peaceful means of settlement are exhausted.

But perhaps the most illuminating thing is a direct quotation from the report:

"In 1931, there was a severe strike in the lumber region, where strikebreakers were introduced. The military was called in, and five deaths resulted. We were told by officers of the Employers Federation that this so shocked the people that no such attempt would again be made to use strike-breakers. Employers, representatives and union officials concurred in the opinion that unless there was a general strike against the government, the military would not again be called out."

No Strike Violence.

"In 1933, there was a strike called in the building industry which lasted for nine months, but it was not accompanied by the use of strike-breakers or by violence."

The acceptance by the whole nation, including the employers, of the right of workers to organize, and the giving up of all such strike-breaking, bullying, beating and killing as came in our Little Steel strike, are the central features of the report. Unluckily, it does not give authentic studies of living costs, especially rent; and without that, one doesn't know whether the wages are as low as they seem.

Higher Wages Secured By A. F. L. Agreement

Contract Negotiated With Josam Manufacturing Company (Michigan City, Ind.) Also Includes Short Work Week, Paid Vacations, and Ban on Strikes and Lockouts.

Michigan City, Ind.—The members of Federal Labor Union No. 20482, A. F. of L., are enjoying the substantial benefits obtained in their agreement with the Josam Manufacturing company here. The contract, which is effective until April 12, 1938, was secured with the assistance of Thomas Flynn, A. F. of L. representative, and H. E. Schek, a commissioner of conciliation of the U. S. Department of Labor.

The new agreement brought wage increases of 10 cents an hour or more over rates paid under the old agreement of April 12, 1937, subject to a warranting increase in business or improved competitive selling conditions, and definitely established a minimum wage rate of 53 cents an hour.

The 44-hour work week was established, with time and a half for overtime and double time for Sundays and six specified holidays.

Seniority rights have been fully established for all workers after being in the employ of the company for 60 days, and hourly rate workers get three days' annual vacation with pay.

The union won recognition as exclusive representative of the company's employes for collective bargaining, "in conformity with the National Labor Relations Act," so a closed shop is now in effect.

An arbitration board has been set up under the agreement, by reason of which strikes and lockouts are prohibited, and a cooperative, helpful spirit now apparently prevails between workers and employer alike, proving again that organization under the far-flung banner of the A. F. of L. brings worthwhile gains for workers and that genuine collective bargaining also brings distinct advantages for employers.

A company has applied to the federal power commission for leave to build and operate 1,500 miles of pipeline to take natural gas from Wyoming and Montana to towns and cities in the Dakotas and Minnesota. If railroad bankers run true to form, they will object because this may interfere with the railroad coal traffic.

Googe Calls Conference Here for Sunday, Oct. 16

TEACHER TALK

A vigorous, many-sided plan of action will be submitted by President Stanton Smith to the Federation at its first meeting of the school year, on Saturday. Following are the recommendations from the executive council, which in all probability will be adopted:

1. An intensive membership campaign will be launched, under the chairmanship of Stegar Hunt.

2. The City salary suit will be pushed to conclusion. (This is already going forward in the chancery court, but will go to the court of appeals and finally to the State Supreme Court.)

3. A drive will be made for resumption of the County salary schedule.

4. Active support will be given to the bill for Federal aid to schools.

5. The Federation will sponsor a series of lectures by nationally known speakers. It will be remembered that William E. Dodd was brought to Chattanooga last year by the teachers.

6. The adoption of a merit system law will be urged, with a view to obtaining the best possible teachers when new ones are added to the City or County forces. Politicians do not always regard candidates for positions in the light of their relative qualifications.

7. Adequate sick leave compensation will be sought.

8. In order to make the activity of the Union as comprehensive and effective as possible, a number of committees will be set up to work on various projects requiring study, with the goal of "Every member on a committee."

SAFETY FIRST

A remarkable record of safety in the CCC has been rolled up as a result of a campaign conducted by Director Robert Fechner.

"Bob," who is a vice president of the International Association of Machinists on leave, disclosed this week that a four-year drive had slashed the accident rate among CCC enrollees by 66 per cent.

In that period, the accident toll fell from 17 per thousand men to eight.

EVERY LOCAL AFL UNION EXECUTIVE BOARD IS INVITED

A special request for a meeting has been received by Secretary Erskine Mabee from George L. Googe, southern representative of the American Federation of Labor, for Sunday, Oct. 16.

Mr. Googe asks every local union in Chattanooga and adjacent territory to send its executive board members to this meeting, where most important and interesting matters will be discussed.

The meeting will be called to order at 2 o'clock promptly at the labor hall, 114½ West Seventh street.

Mr. Googe was most insistent that every local union be in attendance, and it is urged that co-operation be given him in this respect.

Sterchi Stores Hold Open House

Large crowds had an opportunity to see the new Sterchi store at 523 Market street Wednesday afternoon and evening when Manager A. Raymond Moore and his staff held open house from 2 to 5 o'clock in the afternoon and from 7 to 9 in the evening. Van Arsdale's 10-piece orchestra furnished a musical program during the evening.

The remodeling of the new store was recently completed at a cost of $30,000, and is now one of the largest and finest furniture stores of the state. The work was, of course, done entirely by union labor.

The new store fronts 75 feet on Market street, and is four stories in height. The front is modernistic and embodies many new and attractive features, including a new type foyer entrance. The windows are of a modern type which permits complete visibility. They are lighted by 15,000 watts of electricity.

"We have shown our faith in Chattanooga by expending $30,000 on this job," said Manager Moore, "and we demonstrated our belief in organized labor by making this a 100 per cent union job. As is known, our policy is to enlarge our lines of union label merchandise wherever possible. We invite union members and their families who did not get here Wednesday to come in and see our new store at any time."

Roosevelt Asks Labor Peace

Houston — President Roosevelt, in a letter to the A. F. of L. convention here, appealed to the factions of organized labor to make peace, warning that continued strife "is bound to injure the workers themselves."

In a message addressed to William Green, read at the second day's session of the convention, the president said he hoped that the A. F. of L. meeting "will leave open every possible door of access to peace and progress in the affairs of organized labor."

Without referring directly to the CIO, the message said:

"If leaders of organized labor can make and keep the peace between various opinions and factions within the labor group itself, it will vastly increase the prestige of labor with the country and prevent the reaction which otherwise bound to injure the workers themselves."

A. F. of L. Chemical Workers Union Gain

HOUSTON, Tex.—The organizing campaign of the American Federation of Labor was carried into the chemical industry during the past year with considerable success, the Executive Council of the Federation reported to the A. F. of L. annual convention here.

"Several former local unions have been re-established and a number of new ones installed in this industry as a result of our efforts among this group of workers," the report said.

SUPREME COURT REFUSES TO REVIEW DECISION KEEPING MOONEY IN PRISON

Washington.—The supreme court refused to review a decision of the California supreme court, denying freedom to Thomas J. Mooney for participating in the bomb throwing at the preparedness parade in San Francisco in 1916. Mr. Justice Black and Mr. Justice Reed filed their dissent to the ruling, but did not write dissenting opinions.

The refusal to review attracts much attention in Washington because it seems to contradict the custom of the court, as defined by Chief Justice Hughes in speaking before the American Law institute in May, last year. In such cases, the court grants or refuses a review by granting or withholding a writ of certiorari. Chief Justice Hughes said in that speech:

"As I have frequently stated, we are liberal in the application of our rules and certiorari is always granted if four justices think it should be, not infrequently, if three or even two justices urge the grant."

The Mooney case will not be dropped, but what the next move may be is not known. Mooney was convicted on testimony a large part of which was proved to be perjury.

There is a quite general belief that if Cuthbert Olson, democratic nominee, is elected governor of California he will pardon Mooney outright

Worker May Check On His Account In Social Security

Atlanta, Ga., Oct. 10.—President Wm. Green is emphasizing the fact that each person registered with the Social Security Board can now find out just what credits each one has on which to base claims for old age benefits. Organizers, State Federation of Labor officials, officers of Central Labor Unions and Local Labor Unions are urged to see to it that their membership is informed of this highly important opportunity. Following is President Green's letter on this matter:

"The Social Security Board is now in a position to give a statement to each registered person on the amount of his credits on which his old age benefit will be based. It is important that every wage-earner check up on his credits each year to make sure that his record is correct. It is much easier to get proof of mistakes now than it will be five, ten or twenty years from now.

"Secure a form card from the nearest field office of the Social Security Board, fill it in, requesting a report, and mail it either as a post-card or in a sealed envelope. The address of your nearest field office can be secured at your post office. To help members get this information, the secretary of every local union should secure enough of these post cards to distribute among the members of his union. Each member will then fill in his or her name, address, account number, and date of birth, for identification purposes.

"The card will be returned after the total wages for the year are inserted. Those workers who have kept records of weekly earnings can easily check the report. With the report will be instructions telling you what to do if you think the statement incorrect. In the October American Federationist will be published an article by the Director of the Bureau of Old Age Insurance giving additional information.

Cooke Baby Is Out of Danger

We are glad to report that the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Cooke is improving nicely at Erlanger Hospital. The baby boy, who is just six weeks old, underwent an abdominal operation last Friday.

Harry Cooke is a member of the Chattanooga Mailers' Union and helps mail out The Labor World each week.

The hoped for scandals at the TVA investigation has not materialized. Unless it be the $20,000 contribution which a big utility company gave to an anti-public ownership campaign.

NEWS FLASHES

THE LABOR PARADE

Washington. — "The Labor Parade" of the American Federation of Labor presents this month its fourth of a transcribed series of dramatic re-enactment of the outstanding labor news of the day. The program will be heard over 103 stations located throughout the country. This figure represents the largest number of simultaneous programs ever presented by any labor organization in the history of radio.

SILK INDUSTRY

Washington.—The first meeting of No. 1 industries committee, of the fair labor standards administration, "Textiles," will meet on Oct. 11 for organization purposes.

TOBACCO

Washington.—The present deluge of work in Administrator Andrews' office has, at least for the present, deferred appointment of the committee for the tobacco industry. This may in part be attributed to the fact that Administrator Andrews doesn't want too many industries milling around Washington at any one time, also to lack of enough funds.

TAXES

Washington.—President Louis P. Marciante, of the New Jersey State Federation of Labor, this week urged formation of a national council of the special tax study committees already authorized by 27 state labor bodies. Purpose, he said, would be to form unified basic program of practical steps to help labor legislative committees protect interests of worker-consumers against new, needless, disguised or inequitable tax proposals.

UNION RESISTANCE IN KROGER STRIKE GROWS

Detroit.—Satisfactory results in contract negotiations have been reached between the Bakery Workers' Local 326 and the Hostess Cake company. The agreement provides for complete union recognition and regulation of working conditions benefiting the members. This kind of success coming in the midst of its fight with Kroger stores, which taxes all of the power of a local union, has brought new and stronger confidence into the ranks of the membership and has served to increase the resistance of Local 326.

THE F. T. C. PUTS THE BEE ON DAN CUPID

Washington. — John L. Jones, Kansas City, Mo., a dealer in pamphlets concerning possible partners in matrimony, has entered into a stipulation with the FTC to discontinue certain misleading representations in the sale of his product. According to the stipulations, Jones advertised that "Hundreds of love-hungry men and women, lonesome like yourself, have enrolled with us and found friendship, hove and happiness. They are no longer unhappy, unloved and unappreciated, because the ideal that they have been longing for has actually come into their lives. Your ideal is also waiting."

Jones will also cease advertising his business as a "nationally known church organization."

Florists Union Pact Provides 8-Hour Day

A. F. of L. Agreement With Beall Greenhouse (Seattle) Also Includes Minimum Wage Rates and Provision for Handicapped Men.

Seattle, Wash. — Greenhouses whose employes are organized into a bona fide labor union are getting maximum production at fair rates of pay and elimination of labor troubles, due to orderly processes established by union contract.

This has been proven again by Greenhouse and Florist Union No. 20975, A. F. of L. members of which are employed by the Beall Greenhouse, Inc., located outside of Seattle, and are working under a union contract.

The contract provides that regular employes shall not be dismissed except for just cause, nor otherwise discriminated against, and sets up definite procedure for settlement of all disputes that might arise. Strikes and lock-outs are accordingly eliminated.

The Beall agreement also establishes the 8-hour day and 48-hour week for November, December, January and February, with the 9-hour day five days a week and 5 hours on Saturdays, or a 50-hour week, for the other eight months of the year.

Overtime is at the rate of time and a half, with two hours minimum pay for any work, even though less time many be required.

Minimum rates of 35 cents for labor, 40 cents for experienced labor and greenhouse helpers and 50 cents an hour for growers, have been established.

No workers receiving more pay than the minimums established are permitted to suffer a reduction and any employe working less than the maximum hours prescribed may not be required to work the full maximum.

The agreement covers all regular employes and all new employes are regarded as regular employes after two weeks and must then make application for admission to the union.

Where is it the practice to provide employes with meals or room and board, $30 a month is set as a maximum charge where two meals are provided and $40 a month as a maximum when full board and room are provided. However, the acceptance of room and board is optional with any employe.

A feature of the contract also provides that special arrangements may be made by mutual agreement to cover men who are unable to do general greenhouse work because of age or other infirmities.

The contract extends to November 1, 1938, with the usual continuation clause.

Supreme Court Consents to Review Lower Court Decisions on Three Important Labor Board Orders

Washington.—The supreme court at its first session for this October term consented to review three cases directly involving the national labor relations board, and therefore of great interest to labor. Two were brought up by the board itself, and one by the Ford Motor company.

The Ford case is of particular interest. After the supreme court decision in the Kansas City stockyards case, in which it enlarged the definitions of "full and fair hearing," the NLRB sought to withdraw its order to the Ford company, to remodel it to make sure that it complied with the new supreme court rule. The Sixth circuit issued an order permitting the withdrawal, and the Ford company appealed. The supreme court will hear arguments on the case Nov. 7.

Reinstatement Cases Up.

More important to labor but not of the keen interest relating to the Ford concern as a stronghold of anti-unionism, is whether a strike in violation of a labor contract deprives the strikers of the right of reinstatement.

The strike occurred at the Columbian Stamping and Enameling company, Terre Haute, Ind. The board, after an investigation and hearing, ordered the 250 strikers reinstated. The company refused and the Seventh circuit court sustained the company. The NLRB has appealed. The same point is involved in another case which has not yet got to the supreme court.

Vital Point at Issue.

The third case is also a reinstatement case, in which the Sands Manufacturing company, of Cleveland, refused to put back forty-eight men on NLRB order, and the Sixth circuit court backed the company. It is clear that employers are turning their heaviest batteries on the right of strikers to re-employment; and the NLRB means to have this matter threshed out.

Last term, the supreme court upheld the board's right to withdraw an order in the Republic Steel case, but there the transcript had not been filed in the circuit court, as it has in this.

Full Support Promised If Strike Is Necessary

Houston Convention Seats Typographical Union Delegation on "Probation"--President Green Warns Canadian Labor Movement to Oust CIO Unions--Governor Leche Gets Big Hand.

Houston, Tex.—Full support to railroad labor in its fight against the proposed 15 per cent wage cut was pledged by the American Federation of Labor, in 58th annual convention here.

The pledge was one of the highlights of action taken at the first week of the convention. Other highlights were seating of delegates of the International Typographical Union, vigorous denunciation by William Green of the Committee for Industrial Organization and warning to the Canadian labor movement that it must oust CIO unions if it wished to continue fraternal relations with the A. F. of L.

There was not a dissenting vote when the convention approved a message sent by President Green to George M. Harrison, chairman of the Railway Labor Executives' association, promising full assistance in the event of a rail strike.

Support of 5,000,000 Pledged.

"The membership of the A. F. of L. is firmly convinced that a reduction in wages of railroad workers would greatly injure business, labor and agriculture," the message said, "it would reduce purchasing power and thus add to our nation's economic distress.

"We pledge to the railroad workers the full support of 5,000,000 members of the Federation in the fight you and your associates are making against a wage reduction. We will stand with you. We will support you to the full extent of our resources in the event you are compelled to engage in a strike."

Delegates of the Typographical Union were seated on "probation" in the expectation that differences between it and the Federation will be adjusted.

I. T. U. to Take Vote.

The Typographical Union has been at odds with the parent organization over an assessment imposed at the A. F. of L. convention in Denver last year for organization purposes. The assessment was rejected in a referendum last spring on the ground that funds raised thereby were to be used to fight another union.

The credentials committee recommended that the typographical delegates headed by newly-elected President Claude M. Baker be seated on the basis of Baker's plea that a new referendum on the assessment issue will be held immediately and that rejection of the delegates credentials would not solve the problem.

In a letter to the Executive Council and in a speech before the convention, Baker forecast that the typographical workers would vote to pay the assessment and remain in the Federation. If the referendum fails, he said, "we will be out of the Federation until such time comes that we can come back in good standing."

Green Urges Seating.

He said that the Federation is "not exonerating" Baker's union for failing to pay the assessment, but cautioned that "our enemies would be only too pleased to see us bar these delegates."

"We are not going to be so foolish in these days when a dual movement is seeking to destroy our unions, to drive the I. T. U. out of the A. F. of L."

There was a roar of "aye" and only one or two weak "nays" when the question was put.

The warning to Canadian labor to cease harboring CIO unions was given by President Green, in responding to an address by William G. Russell, fraternal delegate of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada. Green sharply criticized the CIO and said:

"Either the CIO unions must get out (of the Canadian organization) or we will get out."

Must Take Stand.

"The Trades and Labor Congress cannot be for the A. F. of L. and against it."

The Canadian labor body has been working for unity between the A. F. of L. and CIO and at its recent convention instructed its executive officers to continue peace efforts.

Leche said Mr. Roosevelt was "100 per cent right" when he described the south as the nation's No. 1 economic problem. He went beyond the chief executive's description and said that "the Mason-Dixon line has been the Chinese wall which has prevented the south from coming into its own."

Champions Wage-Hour Law.

Leche said that since 1860 we have had white slavery in the south and said that Roosevelt's minimum wage and maximum hour law is the "second emancipation proclamation looking toward freeing white labor in the south." This law, he said, was made necessary by "chiseling business men."

The governor praised the A. F. of L. as the "bulwark against attacks by those who would oppress labor," and recounted how he once settled a railroad strike in his state by keeping leaders of both factions locked up in a hotel room for 16 hours, feeding them only soft drinks and hamburgers.

STARVATION INCOMES FOUND RIFE AMONG VERY BIG PROPORTION OF NATION'S POPULATION

Washington, D. C.—The October Survey of Business of the A. F. of L. is the peak issue for a year of a publication that never has a low level. It is always good; but this is so much better than good that it is hard to tell what to leave out.

The survey notes that "recovery has proceeded even at a slackened pace in spite of war scares, hurricanes, floods and other adverse events;" believes that these things indicate an upswing of business, and discusses this in careful detail. But the high excellence of the survey begins with its subtitle —"Starvation Incomes in World's Richest Nation—" and goes on with these paragraphs:

"The chart below shows that in 1935-6, after nearly three years of business recovery, the large majority of self-supporting American families were receiving income far from adequate to give them a health and efficiency living standard. The chart includes no families on relief.

Few Get Large Incomes.

"Nearly half of all American non-relief families (42%) receive less than $1,000 a year; nearly four-fifths of our families (79%) live on incomes of less than $2,000 a year. . . . Only 8% of American families receive more than $3,000 a year; but they receive 33% of the nation's income; . . . and 794,000 families receive more than $5,000, with an average of $12,510.

"The 3% of our families who receive more than $5,000 have 21% of our entire national income."

The survey states that the 1937 drive for higher wages was the main factor in adding $160 a year to the earnings of the average factory worker; but that this is not enough.

"It is clear that with nearly half our families receiving less than $1,000 in 1935-36 and four-fifths receiving less than $2,000, a very large proportion are without adequate food, clothing, housing or medical care."

Labor Costs Cut.

"Wage increases, due in large part to the 1937 drive of organized labor, have lifted the hourly wage rate so that in July, 1937, it was 17% above 1929. This gives the average employed worker a 1929 weekly wage if he works a full 40-hour week; at today's part time week, however, he earns less than in 1929. . . . The average weekly factory wage was $28.55 in 1929, and $23.92 in July, 1938."

"So great has been the increase of efficiency since 1929 that, although hours are shorter and wages higher, labor cost for each unit of product turned out by our factories in July, 1938, was 6% less than in 1929. . . . National City Bank figures for 1,720 leading industrial corporations show an average profit of 10.2% in 1936 and 10.7% in 1937."

Missing Fire.

The determined-looking lady was trying to fill out a money order application with the pen furnished by a British postoffice. She made several trials, but in vain, then gave up in disgust, and, turning to the man behind the grilled window, tried to freeze him with a glare as she demanded:

"Is this the pen King John used when signing the Magna Charta?"

UNION LABEL TRADES ASSEMBLY CHATTANOOGA

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 14, 1938

Should Not Abandon Gerlach

In industry much study and some remedies have been given to the problem of the faithful worker who has grown old and worn out attending to his duties. Humanity is repelled at the thought of the worker, becoming old or burned out on the job, being heartlessly thrown on the scrap pile.

One such case has come home to every union man in Chattanooga recently. Brother Matt Gerlach for over nineteen years had served long and faithfully the people of Hamilton county in the criminal court clerk's office. Members of the bar, the courts, and his friends, have known Matt's tedious and wearing attention to his job. It was his practice, rather than the unusual occurrence, to be in the office by 7 o'clock, working as late as midnight, Saturdays and Sundays.

Early in August of this year Brother Gerlach suffered a paralytic stroke in the criminal court clerk's office. Since that time he has been at home with his right side paralyzed. It appears that as Matt fell to the floor, his income also stopped. Nineteen years of faithful service for us, the people, counts for nothing.

When a politician dies, his widow is usually given the job, for a while, at least. When a politician becomes ill, he "rests" in Florida, the Lido, California, or elsewhere, and his pay goes on and on. When a politician feels the need of play, or is afflicted with spring fever, his employes, such as Matt, remain on the job, and the politician's pay keeps up with him in his playful leaps and antics.

Probably no one person is to blame for this condition. It may be true that the county has no provision for its worn-out employes. Regardless of lack of responsibility, we believe that the county court should study Mr. Gerlach's record and act accordingly.

For years he has been trying to pay for his home, and now, because of loss of his job, heavy medical expenses, and a family to support, he is harrassed with the thought of imminent loss of his home.

Verily, we are a thoughtless and heartless people.

What are you going to do about it?

A Challenge to All Labor

M. W. Clement, president of the Pennsylvania Railroad, came before the President's Emergency Board, supposedly to give evidence. Instead of giving evidence, he gave the board and any rail workers present an arrogant, hectoring lecture. He accused the railroad unions of trying to get an "unregulated monopoly." He declared that wages had to be cut in time of depression and he brushed aside the claims of railway workers with these words:

"Take it all in all, job for job, wherever railroad labor works, it works under the best conditions and pay of labor throughout the country. And the jobs are sought after."

The contention that railroad labor gets the best pay throughout the country is a fake which was exploded long ago. Maintenance of way men on the railroads get among the lowest wages paid in this country; and it was shown as long ago as the shopmen's strike in 1922 that railroad shops pay smaller wages than shops requiring equal skill in other industries.

Mr. Clement's tirade is a challenge not only to rail labor but to all labor. When he demanded that rail workers must "accept the principle that wage reductions were essential in times of depression," he proclaimed, in effect, that the rights of capital are superior to those of labor. And that is something which labor never will admit.

Somewhat Tardy Progress

The Medical Society of the District of Columbia is responding but O, how slowly!—to the suit against it in the Federal courts for monopolistic practices, and the example set to it by Group Health, Inc., of the Home Owners' Loan Corporation. It has come out with a "plan," which includes "domiciliary care of the indigent" at government expense; and proposing a system of prepaid medical service for people with income of $2,000 a year if single or $2,500 or less a year if married.

It shows progress of a lop-sided, hesitating kind: but still progress. But it does absolutely nothing to meet the suit filed against the society, nor to right the serious wrong of closing the hospitals to physicians who are furnishing prepaid medical care already. Group Health, Inc., was formed by the employes of the Home Owners' Loan Corporation. The doctors it engaged were men of first-class medical training, years of practice, and had access to all the hospitals in the nation's capital.

Now, they are barred from access to all hospitals in the nation's capital because the District Medical Society objects to "group practice." That is what the suit is about.

The doctrine of proper medical care for all is growing and spreading—but not so fast as it should.

Sunday's Meeting Important

Next Sunday's meeting, called on request of George L. Googe for executive board members of all local unions here, is most important. It is hoped that all real trades-unionists will make every effort to be in attendance. This meeting should have a real bearing on the future welfare of Chattanooga unionism.

Let's all be practical unionists and attend this meeting.

Visited over in Memphis last week-end and attended the annual entertainment of the Memphis Union Label league. It was a most enjoyable party, with a floor show, dance, and a bingo game. "Jiggs" Rosengren presided over the dance and George McNamara took in the nickels in the bingo room.

Saw a lot of the people we knew in the Memphis labor movement and met a lot of new ones.

Chattanooga is going to have to watch out or the Memphis Label League will walk away from us—and their league is hardly two years old.

The "Vic" Hallmarks are having their house all fixed up—new paper, paint and a little bit of everything. Union? Of course!

I attended a discussion group at the Pilgrim Congregational church Wednesday night, where the question being considered was "Labor Unions." It seems to me that the interest some of the churches are taking in present day problems is real advancement.

Gains in Convention Voting Strenght Reveal Growth of A. F. of L. Unions

Houston, Tex.—Out of 102 national and international unions, 63 come to this 58th convention of the American Federation of Labor with increased representation, based on per capita tax payments. The roster of delegates reveals interesting facts concerning the approximately 25 per cent growth set forth in the Executive Council report

The International Brotherhood of Teamsters, Chauffeurs and Stablemen is now entitled to 3,092 votes as compared with 2,109 at the last convention. In this, the teamsters have nosed out the carpenters as the biggest union inasmuch as the later union still holds to the 3,000 votes cast by it in the last two conventions.

Outstanding Gains.

Some of the other outstanding examples of increased representation are: the Bakery and Confectionery Workers, from 325 to 621 votes; Structural Iron Workers, from 227 to 413; Building Service Employes, from 420 to 658; Cleaning and Dye House Workers (first appearing last year as a national union), from 48 to 159; Retail Clerks, from 185 to 467; Flint Glass Workers, from 53 to 179; Machinists, from 1,380 to 1,901; Meat Cutters and Butcher Workmen, from 300 to 521; Papermakers, from 157 to 300; Teachers, from 154 to 221.

City central bodies now have 792 votes as compared with 735 last year. Directly affiliated local and federal unions show an increase from 1,925 to 2,314.

New Mine Union Present.

The only union to show marked decrease was the International Seamens' Union with only 22 votes now as compared with 142 last year. This is, of course, a reflection of the deplorable confusion in the entire maritime industry.

Another notable switch is the presence of the Progressive Mine Workers, with 350 votes for its first appearance in the A. F. of L. convention roster, as contrasted with the traditional 4,000 votes formerly swung by the United Mine Workers.

While the sweep of union growth embraces, with few exceptions, the entire range of A. F. of L. membership, probably the most notable gains were made in what can be called the "service industries," such as the Bakers, Teamsters, Meat Cutters, Retail Clerks, etc.

Metal Cap Workers Have 40-Hour Week

Equal Pay for Men and Women and Seniority Rules Are Also Included in Agreement of A. F. of L. Union With Anchor Cap and Closure Corporation.

Long Island City, N. Y.—The eight-hour day and forty-hour week, with time and a half for overtime on week days and double time for Sundays and holidays, are among the benefits enjoyed by members of the Automatic Metal Cap Production Workers Union, Local No. 19917 of the American Federation of Labor under the union's agreement with the Anchor Cap and Closure Corporation here

Full seniority rights are also established, along with a guarantee against discrimination and other standard union conditions.

According to the agreement rates of pay are established in the plant by the job. Men and women receive the same rate of pay, in accordance with the prevailing job rate. Also, when a man or woman transfers from one job to another in his or her department, they shall receive their rate of pay; and when a man or woman transfers from one department to another, he or she receives the rate of pay for that job.

The agreement provides that representatives of the Corporation shall meet with and treat with the properly accredited officers and committees of the union on all grievances and additional provision is made for the arbitration of any disputes that may arise, both strikes and lock-outs being prohibited.

Employes of the following departments are covered on a closed shop basis: litho, machine, tool, cap, stock, power, shipping, material (handling and receiving), rubber and miscellaneous help. All workers in these departments must belong to the union, except employes on a salary holding a supervisory position. New employes are allowed thirty days grace from date of employment in which to join the union. Under the seniority rule on a basis of departments, any workers laid off are rehired on the basis of their seniority with the company before any new help is taken on.

The contract, hailed as a distinct advance for the large group of workers covered, extends to December 31, 1938.

Still Holds Good!

Were it not for the labor press, the labor movement would not be what it is today, and any man who tries to injure a labor paper is a traitor to the cause.

—Samuel Gompers.

Chicago, ILNS).—The Associated Press has agreed with the Commercial Telegraphers' Union that any traffic employe who has signed with the CTU since Jan. 1, 1939, shall reaffiliate and continue membership. This will affect about 75 per cent of the AP traffic staff.

The CTU expects to secure a 100 per cent closed shop at the expiration of the present agreement, March 31, 1939, making every press service in the United States and Canada CTU.

WPA Employment At Record High

Washington, D. C. (ILNS). — Works Progress Administration employment reached a new all-time peak for the fourth consecutive week with 3,102,000 relief workers on the rolls Sept. 10, WPA announced here.

This was an increase of 16,300 from the previous week and more than double the 1,458,830 at work in the corresponding week last year.

The continued increase made it appear likely WPA's $1,425,000,000 emergency relief appropriation would not last through February as intended by Congress.

In two and a half months, more than one-third has been spent, and the normal peak relief months of winter are ahead.

Joplin Bakery Drivers Win Fine Agreement

Agreement With Marquardt's Bakery Also Includes Vacations With Pay and Bars Strikes and Lockouts.

Joplin, Mo.—Members of Bakery Drivers' Local Union No. 823 are working under an agreement with Marquardt's big bakery here, which provides a closed shop and standard union conditions for all bread and cake drivers.

All bread drivers are guaranteed a minimum of $25 a week, with seven per cent commission on all sales in excess of $300. Minimums are also provided for special deliverymen and extra drivers. A feature of the contract provides that all bread drivers shall receive a commission on all goods delivered on their route, at any time.

When a vacancy occurs in the sales force, first consideration must be given to any suitable member of Local No. 823 who may be available; in case an outsider is selected, he must become a member of the union within thirty days.

Provision is made for arbitration of grievances that may arise and strikes or lock-outs are forbidden. The contract also provides that all bread drivers and extra bread drivers get a week's annual vacation with pay.

The contract extends to March 1, 1939, and continues thereafter with the usual period allowed for negotiating proposed revision of the contract annually.

WAR DEATH TO DEMOCRACY

(From Washington Daily News.)

Recently a great hue and cry has been raised in this country and abroad to "save democracy" by going to war—as if democracy could be saved by war. A new world war at this time would doom democracy, win or lose. Out of the shambles would rise either Communism or Fascism, or both, but not democracy. The only thing that can "save democracy" is peace, at home and abroad—a peace made durable by the spirit of live-and-let-live; trade, jobs, individual and national security and some sort of international understanding based on fair dealing.

3,000 Attend Funeral Of Strike Victim

Hatboro, Pa. (ILNS).—The funeral of Raymond Cooke, shot by the chief of police on the picket lines a few days before, was as dramatic as his death. More than 3,000 people attended the ceremony. Among them were the highest officers of the American Federation of Hosiery Workers; Emil Rieve, national president and William Smith, national secretary-treasurer; hundreds of the same union, scores of officials of other unions.

In the funeral sermon, Father Gallen called Cooke a "martyr," a faithful follower of unionism who "died of his own zeal," a "champion of a living wage."

Cooke was killed by a shot fired by Norman J. Findlay, chief of police of Hatboro, while he and others were protesting against the removal of machinery from the textile mill there. Findlay is under $10,000 bonds to the grand jury.

JESUS—"UNION CARPENTER?"

By DR. CHARLES STELZLE

Executive Director, Good Neighbor League

Would Jesus become a member of the carpenters' union were He on earth today? Just what He would do in regard to organized labor in the twentieth century, no man dares prophesy. But I believe that Jesus was a member of the carpenters' guild of His day, which was the nearest approch to organized labor in that generation, because practically all workers of that day were members of the guilds representing various crafts. The fact is, many of these guilds formed the basis of the local churches later organized by His disciples.

It is also quite likely that were He to come again as a carpenter, with all that that implies—a workingman's trials as well as a workingman's sympathies—He would identify Himself with an organization which is doing so much to better conditions of all workingmen as is organized labor.

Those who assert that Jesus would in no case identify Himself with any organization that practiced slugging or that was unfair in any particular—of which things these persons insist organized labor is guilty—forget that He became a member of the very organization of His day, which was guilty of many of the things which are today charged against organized labor. When He addressed the leaders of the scribes and Pharisees, He reminded them that their fathers had scourged and persecuted the prophets, that they had killed those who had been sent unto them, and that they, themselves, were guilty of the most damnable sins—hypocrisy, graft, persecution.

Jesus was a member of that ancient organization, because—in spite of the fact that it had in its membership men of this type—it had within the elements of true piety and faithfulness toward God and toward man. Organized labor, too, contains the elements which make for a higher type of manhood and womanhood, even though there are within its ranks some men who dishonor the cause of labor.

Why not invite Jesus into the membership of organized labor today? Let organized labor take its stand behind Him. Permit Him to speak for it. Organized labor never need again quote the political economists. Quote Jesus. Invite Him to sit upon its platform. Take Him into its councils. If it will, it is sure to win, for Jesus is sure to win. If the workingmen of the world were to claim Jesus as their exponent, their Leader, with all that goes with this claim, no power on earth could withstand their onward march.

Does this seem visionary? But hasn't the church done this very thing? The church rests absolutely and specifically upon the person and the teachings of Jesus. All of its progress is due to this fact. He is claimed today by the church as a living, personal power. Labor, too, may have Him—in the broadest, fullest sense, for no one may have a monopoly on Jesus.

CY KOLOGY, EDITOR

Word has come out in Washington, not official, but bearing strong evidence of official consent to its publication, that President Roosevelt talked "like a Dutch uncle" to the representatives of railroad management in his last conference with them and the railroad labor leaders.

He said the wage cut proposed was utterly unsound and vicious, and would solve nothing if it went through. On the contrary, it was sure to be followed by a widespread slashing of wages in other industries; and that there could not be a surer way to start another recession, bound to affect the world as well as the United States.

"What you've got to do," says one report of the scathing lecture, "is to put your financial house in order. That will help you out of your trouble; this wage cut won't."

As a sample of bad financing, he said that his grandfather bought some railroad bonds 75 years ago—and they're still in the family deposit box.

Railroad financiers, he said, with the help, of course, of railroad lawyers, have been interested solely in draining off the profits of the steel highways. He demanded flatly to know whether the railroad managements were ready to give up their wage cut, and join labor and the government to work out a program of railroad rehabilitation.

Nothing was said by the President according to this account—that has not been said 50 times before, and nothing that can be contradicted. But statements like these are much more weighty when they come from the White House.

President Roosevelt further said, according to the ame account, that he is thinking seriously of asking the next Congress to establish a Department of Transportation to take the place of the Interstate Commerce Commission. Rumors that the President was far from satisfied with the work of the ICC have been going round Washington for years; suggestions have been made from outside sources that both transportation and communication should be represented in the President's Cabinet; but this tale as it comes is new.

Take a map of Europe and draw two lines across it. One runs from the English Channel at a point in France near the Belgian frontier to another point in France near the Italian frontier on the Mediterranean. The other runs from the Gulf of Riga—that southeast projection of the Baltic—to about the middle of the Black Sea. The countries between these lines are Netherlands, Belgium, a slice of France containing the French iron mines, Denmark, Germany, Switzerland, Italy, Hungary, all the Balkan states, Poland, and a slice of Russia including the Ukraine, one of the greatest grain fields of the world.

That is a rough outline of the "Mittel Europa" which Prussian enthusiasts hoped to bring under the dominion of Berlin before and during the World War. It is a rough outline, too, of the dominion which Hitler has told the world he was aiming at—and toward which he has just made a long stride in his grab of Czechoslovakian territory. Keep it in mind for further foreign news.

Comment On World Events

Heavy thinkers who write for the high-brow magazines have been enjoying themselves for months by prophesying the early decline and virtual death of the American Federation of Labor.

They have another guess coming. Their predictions must be revised. The "decline" and "death" must be set ahead quite a bit. A. F. of L. is very much alive. Reports of its early dissolution are much exaggerated. Might be better for the prophets to fix the date at home indefinite time in the distant future, after present generations are gone. That would be safter, as far as their reputations for prophecy is concerned.

* * *

Fact of the matter is, the A. F. of L. is stronger than ever, in membership, power and influence, as was convincingly set forth at the Houston convention.

Membership was reported at 5,000,000 and growing.

A great deal of the gain—762,-154 to be exact—took place in the year ending Aug. 31, 1938, which included months of the depression.

To increase union membership substantially in hard times has been thought to be difficult, if not impossible.

But the A. F. of L. did the "impossible." Organization was pushed in many fields.

"We have organized thousands of workers in industries where no semblance of organization had ever before existed," the Federation's Executive Council told the convention, naming industries and giving details.

* * *

This column has commented before on union progress, made despite unfavorable conditions of the last twelve months. New contracts, increasing or maintaining pay, membership gains, new headquarters buildings and other marks of progress were cited.

Reports made public at Houston confirm and amplify the gains. No organization in a comatose condition could have made them.

A. F. of L. is going places, doleful predictions of its enemies notwithstanding.

It is not perfect by any means. It has its faults and shortcomings. It is open to improvement. But it is alive and kicking and is driving ahead toward a better and better America.

* * *

United States has many "weeks" celebrating this and that such as "Child Health Week," "Fire Prevention Week," etc.

Latest is "Fish Week," celebrated for the first time this year.

Promoters of the event, the National Fish. committee, say fishing was the first American industry. They point to fishing activities of the first New England settlers as proof of the statement. For decades, fishing was a premier New England industry. In late years it has experienced difficulties.

Hence "Fish Week," in an endeavor to boom use of fish. Fish has food merit and is cheaper than most meat. Here's hoping the fish industry and its workers will be benefited from the "week."

Incidentally, the day may soon come when fish bear the union label. Fish workers of San Diego, Cal., are now labeling fish they handle.

Like the buffaloes which made similar attempts in the early days of western railroading, they find a locomotive is a tough critter, able to stand a lot of butting.

Motorists, however, continue to try conclusions with railroad trains. If tney live, which isn't often, they realize they have shown bad judgment.

EXTEND CO-OPERATION OF LABOR AND INDUSTRY, END UNFAIR TAXATION, WOLL URGES

Houston, Tex.—Hailing as a "splendid signal of constructive unionism" an agreement between the U. S. Housing Authority and building trades unions of the A. F. of L. forbidding strikes over jurisdictional issues and wage changes during life of contracts on Housing Authority projects, Matthew Woll, A. F. of L. vice president, in a radio speech here said "we want to extend that type of co-operation into all industry."

In another field industry and labor have mutual concern, Woll pointed out, in saying:

"We do not want a taxation that kills business, for where there is no business, there can be no private employment. To kill private employment means driving the government to assume those very functions that turn democracy into communism or fascism—into dictatorship either way."

Woll's talk put emphasis upon the power of America's right of free speech as a safeguard against collectivism and dictatorship in government. He denied that John L. Lewis is an issue at the present convention, saying "we have a battle on with the outlaw organization which he heads but that is a battle, not an issue. Mr. Lewis becomes increasingly less important. Not only that, but Mr. Lewis' outlaw movement is itself torn with internal dissention and is growing more and more vulnerable and helpless."

Too Much NLRB Power Charged.

Indicating he believed the Wagner Act and National Labor Relations Board might prove the paramount issue before the convention, which he previously declared was legislating indirectly for a total of 28,000,000 people, Mr. Woll said in part:

"That board has too much power, which it has been using to mould the labor movement according to the desires of the three men on the board, without much regard for what labor itself wants.

"Bluntly, labor is going to say in this convention that has got to stop. We shall propose amendments to the law.

To Fight For Amendment.

"For more than 50 years organized labor has fought to prevent theorists and uplifters from running the labor movement. Now we have official Washington theorists and uplifters trying it, cloaked with the authority of law. They have done labor incalculable damage. We intend to stop that procedure, somehow. We shall try first to amend the law and change the personnel of the board."

Pointing to a definite ground for early co-operation between industry and labor, Mr. Woll gained alert interest when he spoke as follows:

"Labor, as represented by the A. F. of L., stands for private ownership—for the right to make a fair profit,—for the essentials and the foundations of our present system of government and of living. Labor stands for building up private business—not state capitalism.

Urges Taxation Study.

"While the government is engaged in what it calls priming the pump, there is grave danger that the burden of raising the money to prime the pump may be a burden that will rebound to kill the very business it seeks to revive. This comes through the medium of taxation. And taxation, let me suggest, is a subject which we must study with more and more care.

"We must be on guard against excessive taxes, against tricky taxes, against hidden and death-dealing taxes. There is more than one way to kill democracy.

"There is every reason, then, why management and labor should work together to protect both industry and labor against assault by destructive forces, whether those forces be economic, political or whatnot. If we are to get help, we must give help. If we give help, we have a right to expect help.

Urges Way of Democracy.

"This is the way of democracy The way of democracy does not lie through an extension of governmental authority and power. Governmental power restricts our action and our very thought. Government has its great purposes and functions but when it comes to our daily tasks, to doing the things that constitute living and working out our social and economic destiny, we must preserve our freedom."

BILLION DOLLAR PAYROLL

New York City (ILNS).—Chain stores in the United States pay $1,200,000,000 annually in salaries, according to Business Organization, Inc., with the average wage for fulltime employes being $25.89 a week.

Chain Store Contract Benefits the Workers

Short Work Week, Seniority, Paid Holidays and Shop Steward System Are in Effect under Argeement Negotiated by A. F. of L. Warehouse Union With American Stores Company of Baltimore.

Baltimore, Md. (AFLWNS). — Collective bargaining is proving advantageous to workers and employers alike in the matter of warehousing the vast quantities of goods distributed by chain stores, as proven again by the experience of A. F. of L. Warehouse Employees' Union No. 21102, some of whose members are now working under a closed-shop contract with the American Stores company.

The union agreement was secured sometime ago, following effective organization of the warehouse employes of this concern, and has been functioning smoothly ever since, proving a boon to all concerned. The agreement extends to the 14th of next March.

The workers gained the 44-hour work week and 8-hour day, with four hours on Saturdays through the agreement.

The night shift is also limited to the 44-hour week, although 10 hours may be worked twice a week. Any overtime calls for payment of time and a half.

Holidays are allowed with pay, but if necessary to work on these holidays or on Sunday, double time must be paid. Straight warehouse seniority is recognized, including lay-offs, re-instatements or the filling of new types of jobs.

Workers who have been in the employ of the company a year or over get a week's annual vacation with pay.

A Shop Committee is the union's representative in the warehouse and the usual Shop Stewards are provided for.

Just caused for dismissal are enumerated, otherwise appeals may be filed, and the union must be notified of any proposed dismissal or lay-off in excess of three days, 24 hours in advance.

Definite provision is made for arbitration of disputes, strikes or lock-outs being prohibited.

It is provided that "all employes coming within the provisions of this agreement must be members of the union in good standing."

LABOR PRESS IS ONLY ASSURANCE OF FAIR DEAL FOR WORKER IN PRINT, HOUSTON CONVENTION TOLD

Houston, Tex., — Charles Wills, editor of the Chicago Federationist, made a stirring speech on the function and the duties of the labor press to the A. F. of L. convention here.

"I am here," he said, in part, "to submit a definite message on the importance of the labor press and its mission to this assemblage.

"In my opinion, there is only one reason why any publication has a right to exist as a regular medium. That reason is because it serves and advances the interests of the reader.

"All of us know that there exists today publications that were designed as conveyors for advertising, propaganda sheets which serve no purpose except to try to seduce the mind of the reader so that he will readily accept specious arguments as facts, and publications, yea, even chains of publications, that are big business and little else.

"As the labor paper is a most important link in the tying up of the loose ends of union connected whole, it is one of the most important factors in the continued progress of the labor movement.

"We must recognize this fact, and therefore realize that it is impossible for labor ever to get a fair shake in print, except from their own papers, which never have and never can afford to place the yoke of the advertiser about their necks."

SUGAR CANE HARVESTER WILL DESTROY 60 JOBS

AFL Unions Begin Long Campaign Promoting Use of Pabco Products

Paraffine Companies Only Firm in Industry to Believe in Union Principles; Officials Lead Move to Promote Union Products.

Every organized working man in the United States should buy Pabco products if he believes in the principles of organized labor. This is the object of a drive expected to sweep the nation

Every Union Man in U. S. to Be Contacted by Union.

In a move destined to reach William Green and the presidents and officers of all international unions, all state federations, local labor councils and local lodges, every worker will be urged to buy Pabco products—linoleums, paints, rugs and roofings made by the Paraffine Companies, Inc., Emeryville, Calif., and Somerville, N. J. Frank Moran, business representative of Corrugated Fibre Products and Waxed Paper Workers' Union, No. 382 and Harry C. Gilmore, secretary, head the drive which will be nationwide, according to union labor reports.

The Paraffine Companies, Inc., makers of Pabco Products, pays the highest wages in the world for the lines it makes. It has the only 100 per cent union made linoleum in the world. Most of its competitors are either unorganized or have company unions. Worse than this their wage rates in most cases are 20 to 30 per cent less than Pabco's; and sometimes 40 per cent less.

Best Working Conditions Mean Best Goods

At Paraffine the best working conditions govern. Vacations with pay and company-paid insurance are given the employes. The unions have a closed shop and seniority provisions with this fair concern

Paraffine was also the first major paint maker to recognize the paint makers' union.

If union men and women want to keep such high wages—base rate for common labor is $6 a day and steady work—it is up to them to see that Pabco products are bought. With low wage rates paid by Pabco's competitors it is up to the unions to protect these good conditions and good rates and to keep the standard of living up.

Price chiseling by Pabco's competitors is a serious problem which must be overcome by organized labor. These competing shops with their lower rates, have lower costs, and cut prices on Pabco wherever they can. Naturally with the good conditions and closed shop—Pabco's quality is the best whether it is linoleum, roofing or paints — because good union workmen well treated, take pride in their work and make it the best. One example of superiority worked out with union men is the new easy to lay features of linoleum.

Easy to Lay Linoleum Worked Out By Unions

The ease of laying Pabco linoleum is becoming more and more known to the members of the linoleum layers' union. Pabco linoleum lays much easier and therefore costs less to lay than other linoleum because of this, union linoleum mechanics say. That way, the linoleum layers get more jobs and make more money. The big international union is beginning to favor Pabco more and more because it is the only union made goods and because of the quality of the material and Pabco's good working conditions.

Special representations are going to be made to this international by union officials on the merits of Pabco linoleum and Pabco felt-base floor covering, and they should intensively support Pabco. At the next convention resolutions for nation-wide union support of Pabco's products will be presented.

The Pabco company is so friendly to labor that it is to be remembered its vice-president R. H. Shainwald said in the papers:

"Employer lauds unions as new agreements signed; says both anxious to cooperate with business."

Renewal of union contracts for another year has confirmed one employer's opinion that unions offer members many more benefits than just wage increases, and that unions want to cooperate with business, according to the much publicized experiences of the Pabco-Paraffine Compaines, Inc.

"Unions do more for employes than just get them higher wages, shorter hours and better working conditions," said Vice President R. H. Shainwald, who was given exclusive charge of labor negotiations. "They make managements alert to employe's rights and see to it that high sounding personnel policies are not just formulated, but are actually carried out.

"Employers who have breakdowns in the execution of their personnel policies called to their attention should be thankful to the unions for discovering them, because it gives them the opportunity to correct abuses and—more important than that—a chance to sell company policies in a straight forward way and without the use of so-called 'insidious propaganda'.

Unions Have Selling Job Ahead of Them

"Unions too have a selling job to do to their membership. Now they realize that they have much stronger appeals than just promises of increased wages.

"We have actually demonstrated at Emeryville that when unions and employers realize these things the finest kind of cooperation results.

Amazing Results With Workers

"It is amazing to see the kind of work you can get out of a man when he is well paid, well treated and understands a firm's policies and problems as well as stockholders and executives do—after all, their problems are common ones.

"The acid test came recently when contracts expired and twelve of the unions automatically renewed their agreements and the five others negotiated jointly for minor adjustments," Shainwald said.

Other Manufacturers Chiseling, Up to Unions to Stop This

Pabco is competing with some big international concerns who pay 45 to 50 cents an hour, whereas Pabco pays from 85c to $1.00 an hour for non-craft jobs. Work at Pabco is also steady. Old timers are kept on and on.

Pabco's personnel policies are the most liberal in the world and their contracts with the unions have all of organized labor's pet clauses.

It is up to organized labor to keep these fine conditions and high standards of living. It can only be done by buying Pabco products and favoring them against all chiselers.

To keep the American standard of living high, insist on Pabco products.

Report on Governmental Subsidies to All Transportation, Said to Be in Course of Preparation, Sure to Contain Startling Facts.

By GEORGE L. KNAPP

WASHINGTON, D. C. — The weekly advertisement of the Association of American Railroads, printed in a large number of publications with large circulations, says, among other things, that the railroad problem:

"Is due, at bottom, to the fact that railroads must operate under rigid regulations . . . and compete with three other forms of transportation subsidized or helped by tax money."

This gives added interest to the report that Joseph B. Eastman, of the Interstate Commerce Commission, has been working for five years to find out the subsidies, open and hidden, paid by national, state or local governments to all forms of transportation and that he is ready to publishe it before the end of the year.

If he does, we shall have for the first time an official statement as to what the public has paid to private transportation companies—shipping, railroads, motors and airplanes; and I fancy that a summary of such a statement will make the average taxpayer ask feebly for a glass of water—or something.

* * *

Public aid to water transportation was not so very heavy until the World War. Before that, the Federal government spent money on rivers and harbors; and not much more. After the war, things got going in a way that made most other graft look tame. Government ships, built for the war, were sold to private companies at about a tenth of their cost and a third of what they could be bought for in Europe, even in the post-war depression.

This was the time when R. Stanley Dollar, head of the line of that name, charged his company living expenses in Washington around $2,500 a week while negotiating for government ships—and then charged a commission of several hundred thousand dollars to his own company for buying them.

And when the graft was regularized, so to speak, in 1928, Senator Black, of Alabama, now justice of the Supreme Court, brought out that at least one shipping company had received $120,000 for carrying one pound of mail.

* * *

The air mail subsidies were terrific, too. Motors may be and probably not paying their share of taxes for the highways they use.

But I do not believe the railroads will get much satisfaction out of Eastman's report—not if he "tells all."

Ethel Janney—for a woman has made the best study of cash and bond subsidies to railroads to date—figured that up to 1870, national, state, city, county and townships payments to railroads came to more than $700,000,000.

The ICC itself gathered and printed many years ago that land grants to railroads came to about 242,000 square miles; not quite so big as Texas, but bigger than France, Belgium and the Netherlands put together.

The Bible is and must be the basis of our social life in these troubled times.—Albert Einstein.

Down through the centuries labor's great effort has been to establish freedom, so that slavery and serfdom and peonage could no longer exist; but freedom, unless it is made to serve its true purpose, unless it is continually applied, is of little value. It dies unless continually exercised. The American wage earners' hope for the present and for the future is in the strength, the organizd, determined, militant activity of American trade unionism.

Minimum Wage Gained By Warehouse Workers

Hours Limitation, Seniority Rights and Arbitration Machinery Are Also Established in Agreement Negotiated by A. F. of L. Union With H. L. Caplan & Company of Baltimore.

Baltimore, Md. (AFLWNS). — The closed-shop standard union contract under which warehousemen employed by H. L. Caplan & Company are now working is reported as helping to influence the further progress of A. F. of L. Warehouse Employees' Union No. 21102, due to the harmonious relations now established under union conditions.

The contract, which has been in effect four months, recognizes the union as the sole bargaining agent for all employed in manual labor positions of the company, establishes the 48-hour work week and minimum wages of $16 per week for all warehousemen. All formerly getting less than the minimum were immediately raised to the minimum and others got a 10 per cent wage increase. Overtime work, in excess of 48 hours a week, brings time and a half.

The contract recognizes seniority rights, provides for shop stewards, prohibits discrimination for union activity, establishes a system of union review of discharges and sets up adequate machinery for conciliation and arbitration of disputes.

With regard to holidays the agreement contains the following provisions:

"The company shall permit employes to take holidays on the following days and there shall be no deduction for reason thereof: Independence Day, Labor Day, Thanksgiving Day, Christmas Day, New Year's Day, or any day celebrated as such, and for employes of the Jewish faith, one day of Rosh Hashanah and one day of Yom Kippur. When the above mentioned holidays occur during any fiscal work week, overtime for such week shall be paid for after 40 hours of straight time have been worked.

"If the warehouse of the company remains closed on any or all of the above Jewish holidays, no employe shall receive any reduction in his weekly pay by reason thereof."

The contract runs to May 26, 1939, and, unless due notice of change desired is given in advance by either party, it will automatically become effective for another full year.

Wall Paper Workers In 8 States Win New Contract

Chicago.—Possibility of a strike of 6,000 wall paper factory employes in eight states has been averted with agreement between employers and employes on a three year contract, Joseph Jacobs, attorney for the workers' union, announced today.

The contract will be retroactive to Sept. 1. The employes were represented by the United Wall Paper Craftsmen and Workers of North America. Their employers, represented by the Wall Paper Institute of America, operate 30 factories in Massachusetts, Connecticut, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Illinois and Wisconsin.

The 20-page agreement provides for a union shop for skilled workers, a preferential shop for the unskilled workers, a 40-hour week, time-and-a-half for overtime with double time for Sunday work, an arbitration board to settle all disputes and vacations with pay.

Interest High As Exec. Boards Met Last Sunday

Enthusiasm Indicates Chattanooga to Go to New Peaks in Activity.

Chattanooga Central Labor union held a most enthusiastic and constructive meeting last Sunday. The meeting had been called by George L. Googe, southern representative of the American Federation of Labor, and the executive boards of most of the fifty-seven affiliated locals were present, and in addition many other trades unionists attended. President Gerald Foley, of the state federation of labor, and several representatives of international unions also attended and participated in the discussions.

Purpose of the meeting was to co-ordinate the efforts of all A. F. of L. local unions in the Chattanooga vicinity, ascertain the number of locals not affiliated with the central body, to the end that plans for bringing them into the organization might be adopted. Report of President Curtis Sims and Secretary Mabee of the Central Body showed that Chattanooga Central Labor union is one of the strongest central bodies in Tennessee. T. R. Cuthbert, editor of the Chattanooga Labor World, made report on the progress and service of the paper, which is owned by the Central Labor union.

Mr. Googe urged all delegates and all officers of affiliated unions to make frank statements and suggestions about the labor movement, declaring that it is the devout wish of all officials of the A. F. of L. to co-ordinate efforts of all affiliated local unions. Paul J. Aymon, assistant to Mr. Googe and a citizen of Chattanooga, made a strong plea for harmony and concerted action, and praised the trades unionists of Chattanooga for the great progress which has been made here.

J. R. Weyler, general representative of the Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners, greatly inspired the large crowd with one of the most eloquent labor speeches ever heard in this city. O. S. Tislow, of the Painters' and Decorators' international; Alex McDonald, of the Engineers, and other international representatives attended and addressed the meeting. Many officers of local unions added greatly to the program with intelligent suggestions for a greater program of activity. So successful was the meeting, it is probable another general meeting of like nature will be held three months hence.

Foley Visits On Return from TVA Wage Conference

State Federation Will Participate in Educational Campaign to Organize.

Gerald Foley, of Nashville, president of the Tennessee Federation of Labor, visited Chattanooga Sunday and Monday on his return home from the Tennessee Valley Trades and Labor council. This council is composed of international representatives of the various crafts employed by TVA. Mr. Foley was seated as a delegate in the council to represent the federation.

Brother Foley told The Labor World that the council is making plans for a wide poster campaign which will draw attention to TVA employes the benefits already gained from organization into AFL unions. Expenses of this campaign will be met by the council, and the federation contributed $25.

While here President Foley attended the successful meeting held Sunday afternoon which was composed of executive board members of local unions in Chattanooga.

WPA Supervisors Try a "Fast One" At Hixson, Tenn.

Uses Common Labor to Do Hazardous Steel Construction.

Quite a bit of stir in the ranks of building contractors, as well as organized labor, was occasioned this week because of the doubtful practice of WPA supervisors in employing workers, according to W. J. Everhart, president of Chattanooga Building Trades council.

There is a steel bridge being built at Hixson, Tenn., by the WPA. The supervisors on the job did not make provision for skilled labor on the steel work, but instead attempted to get by with the use of common labor on that hazardous work. The common laborers were paid the WPA rate of 28½ cents per hour, while the pay for the steel workers would have been $1.25.

The local building trades protested the supervision tactics to the WPA office, Mr. Everhart said, and a ruling has been handed down that the men doing the skilled work must receive the $1.25 per hour.

"Here's what the bridge supervision department has done with the taxpayers' money," Everhart said. "At first they tried to do the work with men who were not competent to do the job efficiently, thus giving Hixson a bridge which would more than likely not be satisfactory, while at the same time a low wage would be paid. Now, because the supervisor has not made request for competent steel workers in ample time to secure them, he must do the job with unskilled men, but will have to pay them $1.25.

"If the local supervisor had done the right thing at first, the bridge at Hixson would have been put up safely and in a workmanlike manner by men who could have put it up in the shortest and most inexpensive way.

"At the time the bridge was started there was a surplus of unemployed steel workers in Hixson, who would have been able to go to work. Now that condition does not exist."

Blame for this situation was placed on the supervision rather than on the WPA office.

NOTICE

Chattanooga Central Labor Union will meet Monday night in regular session, Central Labor Hall, West Seventh Street, at 7:30 p.m. All delegates are requested and expected to be present.

SODDY UNIONS ASK SUPPORT FOR FRIENDS

Department Store and Barber Shop Have Shown Fine Spirit.

Local 838, Hodcarriers, in Soddy, Tenn., believe that merchants who show co-operation to unionists are entitled to the patronage of working people, according to a notice received this week from James T. Dean, president of the local.

Brother Dean says that in a regular session of the union a barber shop in Soddy, known as Fred Mc. Shop, with a union shop card, merits patronage due to the help he has given to union pickets, especially Tepco strikers.

Miss Rosie Lee Denton, of the Newberry & Denton store in Soddy, also drew nice bouquets for her fine spirit of friendship toward organized labor. This store has a good line of union-labeled garments, and have promised to secure other merchandise with the label as fast as possible.

Bakers Settle Tracy City Row By Closed Shop

Local 25 Resumes Pickets at Krispy Kreme Donut Shop.

Curtis R. Sims, business agent for Local 25, Bakery and Confectionery Workers, announced this week that the five-months' strike at the Baggenstoss bakery in Tracy City had been settled and the men have returned to work.

Management of the bakery agreed to a closed shop and a guarantee of 40 hours per week. Eleven men were involved.

Mr. Sims also stated that a renewed fight had been started on the "unfair" Krisky Kreme doughnut shop on McCallie avenue. Appearance of the pickets have seriously affected sale of the non-union holes, Mr. Sims said.

Erskine bakery products are still "unfair," he also pointed out.

Union Contract Ends Strike in Daisy Tile Co.

Ten Per Cent. Increase, Preferential Shop Opens Plant After Year.

One of the most stubborn strikes in Chattanooga area industrial history has been settled. The Hood Brick company at Daisy, employing around 300 men at capacity operations, resumed operations Monday as a result of a settlement worked out by Sam J. McAllester, attorney for B. Mifflin Hood and H. G. B. King, representing the Brick and Clay Workers' union.

More than a year ago the three Hood plants were closed. The workers were in the process of forming a union. They charged that Hood had locked them out in an effort to defeat unionism.

Labor Board Case.

A Wagner act charge was filed against the company charging it had violated the law guaranteeing collective bargaining, that the company had locked them out to break the union. After an acrimonious hearing in federal courtroom the labor board examiner found for the union, ordered the men reinstated with back pay, amounting to about $15,000.

The basis of settlement eliminates the back pay, reinstates the men with a union preferential shop. Men will be rehired on the same basis as they were when the plant closed. That is, the union then had about 9 to 1. The union must retain that ratio and all new employes must be members. The men are relieved from paying rent, coal and other items they owe the company for and a wage increase of about 10 per cent is granted.

Taxi Insurance Goes On Up To Higher Courts

At the hearing before Judge Martin Fleming on Oct. 15, taxi owners cited to appear before the police judge for failure to secure taxi liability insurance made bond and appealed their case to Judge Lusk's court.

The city ordinance is over one year old, but the operators have bluntly refused to obey it. It is evident now that they intend to carry the test cases right on through the courts.

Sterchi Manager Praises Value Of Labor World

Says Owner-Readers Are Loyal to Advertisers in Their Paper.

A. Raymond Moore, manager of Sterchi furniture house, this week expressed his pleasure in the appreciation of the business members of organized labor have given his fine new store, just remodeled to the tune of $30,000 by union craftsmen.

Last week Mr. Moore put a full page advertisement in The Labor

Movie Ops Hold Annual Banquet At Patten Hotel

28th Birthday Suitably Observed With Googe as Guest.

Local 259, Movie Operators, celebrated another birthday last Sunday night, its twenty-eighth. As is the custom, the banquet started at midnight Sunday, and was held at the Patten hotel.

The main guest of honor this year was George L. Googe, southern representative for the AFL. Accompanying Mr. Googe was Paul Aymon. Other invited guests were the executive board of the Central Body, T. R. Cuthbert and Gerald Foley, officers of the state federation, and Sam Godfrey, representative of the Boilermakers' international.

In opening the banquet speeches, Toastmaster Felix Hamil made special mention of the death this week of Mr. Sam Borisky, one of the owners of a string of theaters in Chattanooga. Mr. Borisky's fine co-operation with Local 259 was noted, as well as his fine civic virtues. As the banquet closed, everyone stood for one minute with bowed head as a mark of respect, and a special resolution was drawn up to mark his passing. At the beginning of the meal, everyone stood as a mark of respect for the seven empty chairs at the center table which was a symbol of the seven brother members who have passed on ahead.

Although Commissioner Bob Cooke was unable to attend, due to illness, he was presented with a beautiful silver membership card in the local.

Brother Ed Healy, known as "Mother" Healy, was presented as the oldest charter member of the local. George Overend and Joe McDowell were also presented as charter members present and working at the trade.

Charles Curle, chairman of the arrangements, was commended for the splendid work his committee had done.

BARBERS CHANGE MEETING DATES

H. D. Beavers, president of Local 415, Barbers, announces this week that his local union will meet at 906½ Market street.

Instead of meeting on the first Monday in the month, Local 415 will meet in the future on the first Wednesday night in the month.

All members are requested to remember to attend the next meeting to be held Wednesday, Nov. 2, at the new meeting hall.

Tepco Strikers Released

Cleveland, Tenn. — The Bradley county grand jury today returned a "no true bill" in the case of 17 Tepco strikers who were charged by power company officials with "conspiracy." The case was heard in Cleveland recently.

All seventeen strikers have returned to their respective picket lines in an effort to force the company to deal collectively with its employes.

NEWS FLASHES

TOBACCO MARKETING AGREEMENT HELD VALID

Macon, Ga.—A three-judge federal court has upheld the constitutionality of the tobacco marketing agreement and ruled that "marketing of tobacco in excess of quotas may be validly penalized according to the act." In dismissing a petition brought by south Georgia tobacco growers seeking to have the tobacco marketing act declared unconstitutional, so as to avoid penalties for excess quotas, it was also decreed that fees impounded by the court be paid to the government.

WOOL GOODS CAN BE UNSHRINKABLE

New York.—Pointing out in an editorial the benefits to textile manufacturers, the consumer and the national defense forces in making available to the public at the earliest possible time a recent discovery by three war department chemists for making wool goods unshrinkable, the New York Times has sounded the starting-gun for consumer reaction that is likely to result in a stampede-demand for unshrinkables. Patents for the treatment may be claimed by the war department. Process is said to be fairly quick and cheap.

RAIL WAGE CUT VS. DEBTS, SAYS HARRISON

Washington. — Over-capitalization is the issue and the only issue in the conflict between labor and railroad management, according to a statement by George M. Harrison, chairman of the Railway Executives' Association, commenting on hearings before the president's fact-finding committee. "Railroads must not be permitted to maintain a suicidal system of public debts which exceed the valuation of property holdings. If the roads pursue their chartered course by taking $250,000,000 from the earnings of railroad labor they will not only fail to solve their problem, but, due to the effect this raid on purchasing power will have on the nation as a whole, will kick themselves downstairs," Harrison said.

RADIO MONOPOLY PROBE WILL START

Washington.—The federal communications commission has set Oct. 24 as the opening date for its long-promised investigation of monopoly in the broadcasting industry. Indications are that anyone who has ever been near a mike may be called to testify.

END OF THIRD SHIFT IN COTTON MILLS POSSIBLE

Washington.—Indication of one of the questions industry committees No. 1 (textile) will consider was revealed by Administrator Andrews in a recent speech made in North Carolina, when he expressed hope the committee would recommend elimination of the third shift in cotton mills. Although such action by the committee would be outside the law as it now stands, Mr. Andrews feels it would go a long way in educational value in the industry.

LINEN INDUSTRY WILL MEET

Washington. — A trade practice conference for the linen industry will be held under the auspices of the F. T. C. in the Hotel Astor, New York, Oct. 25. Rules providing for the identification and disclosure of the fiber content of fabrics and other products containing or stimulating linen will be discussed.

CLOTHING INDUSTRY COMMITTEE TO BE NAMED SOON

Washington. — Wage-hour Administrator Andrews has announced he shortly will name an industry committee ror the clothing industry. The clothing committee probably will be the only additional group named before the law governing wages and hours becomes effective on Oct. 24, Andrews said.

Striking Electric Railway Workers Defeat Pay Cut

Chicago.—Members of Division No. 900 of the Amalgamated Association of Street, Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employes of America, employes of the Chicago, North Shore & Milwaukee railroad, an electric line, have approved terms of a contract which calls for cancellation of a 15 per cent wage reduction which precipitated a "strike," termed by labor leaders a lockout because of the management's flat refusal, at first, to negotiate with the union.

The pact provides that the scale of wages in effect Aug. 15 shall be paid for 90 days. An amount up to 20 per cent of the scale may be paid in receiver's certificates for the first 60 days and for the last 30 days an amount up 15 per cent may be paid. Employes whose rate is 50 cents an hour or less are to receive full wages in cash.

Matters are to be turned over to a board of arbitration and, after the 90-day period, if no other agreement is reached, the present contract is to be continued.

The worth of a promise consists purely in the way in which the performance squares with it.—Theodore Roosevelt.

AFL Sidetracks Report Decrying Growth of Government Control

Delegates Refer Resolution To E. C. for Further Study

Present Governmental Trend Toward Philosophy of Socialism, Resolutions Committee Holds---Convention Declares for Strict Neutrality and Continuation of Japanese Boycott.

Houston, Tex.—The American Federation of Labor, in closing sessions of its 58th annual convention, referred to the Executive Council a statement of policy construed by many delegates as an attack on the Roosevelt administration. The statement, in the form of a report from the resolutions committee, decried further extension of state authority and described "the present trend" as a trend toward socialism.

The convention also ordered continuation of the boycott of Japanese manufactured goods, declared for strict neutrality, repeated opposition to dictatorships and revoked the charter of the International Seamen's union for the purpose of chartering a new seamen's union.

Delegates gave a warm greeting to Elmer F. Andrews, administrator of the new wages-hours law, who defended the law from certain criticisms and made a plea for unity in the labor movement.

Beginning of Program Recalled.

The report of the resolutions committee, presented by Matthew Woll, chairman, and John P. Frey, secretary, began by recalling that in the days which followed the closing of the banks in 1933, "when a people desperate for safety and recovery was willing to accept almost any proposal of government, we were given the first stages of the ensuing program of extension of governmental power and authority."

"The tendency today is for the state to take over more and more functions which we believe belong to labor itself, in and through its organization," said the report, which emphasized that it did not question the "sincerity of motive" involved.

"Without any intention of using a label as a means of conveying disparagement we must say that it should be clear to every American that the philosophy which is being developed in action, by which ever-increasing domain is being given to the state, is expressive of the philosophy and the practice of socialism," the report stated.

"Right Motives" Admitted.

"We give full credit for right motives," the report further said, "but we have been too willing to accept gains at the price of lost liberty and lost capacity for self-determination and self-action."

Sharp debate followed reading of the report.

George Lynch, head of the Patern Makers, demanded that the report be referred to the Executive Council. He charged that it would be construed as a sweeping attack on the new deal.

President Green expressed disapproval. He described the analysis as a "bit confusing."

Woll leaped to his feet and denied that the report was an attack on the new deal. "It is merely a warning of what may come," he said.

Edward J. Gainor, head of the Letter Carriers, made a speech in defense of "rugged individualism."

William J. McSorley, of Cleveland, representative of the Wood, Wire and Lathers, offered an amendment to refer the report to the council.

Attack on New Deal Disclaimed.

Woll protested the report carried no criticsm of what the new deal has done.

"There is a new philosophy in government today," he declared. "We are trying to show the delegates what they face in the future. There is no intention to attack the administration."

The debate was ended by adoption of McSorley's motion to refer the report to the Executive Council for further consideration.

Administrator Andrews urged prompt settlement of the strike between the A. F. of L. and committee for industrial organization.

"Look at the gains organized labor has made in this country in the last few years and think what it could do for itself and the nation if it were again one great united force," Andrews declared.

He touched upon a point troubling both him and the national labor relations board—that the split in labor's ranks complicates their work and brings charges from both sides that they are partial to the other.

United Action Opposed.

The federation reaffirmed its boycott of nazi products, condemned the "brutality of dictators" but opposed united action by the democracies to quarantine warmakers as "not the ways to peace."

The delegates branded as "unsound," "unworkable," and in some cases "undesirable," proposals made in two resolutions which would have placed the convention on record as favoring U. S. participation in any joint move by the democracies to quarantine aggressor nations.

Pointing to the recent European crisis, the committee on international labor relations, which recommended non-concurrence in the resolutions, said:

"Would the United States have joined other democracies in such a war? We cannot feel sure; and if we cannot feel sure about a past incident, how much more doubtful must we be about a future incident, the facts of which are as yet unformed? We regard the resolutions as unsound, unworkable and there may be causes in which it would be likewise undesirable. These ways are not, we feel, the ways to peace."

Secretary Perkins Suggests Mediation Committee to Bring Labor Peace

Columbus, O.—A plan to bring peace between the American Federation of Labor and the committee for industrial organization was proposed here by Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins.

Secretary Perkins proposed that the A. F. of L. and the CIO each appoint "five trusted and experienced representatives to a mediation committee and give them authority to bind their respective organizations to any agreement they may reach."

She suggested that these ten men select three impartial persons as additional members of the committee and that the chairman be chosen from these neutral members.

Miss Perkins' address was made before a joint celebration of the 70th anniversary of the Order of Railway Conductors and the 50th anniversary of its ladies' auxiliary.

Pointing out that labor accord is of interest to wage-earners, management and the general public, Miss Perkins said:

"Co-operation within the now divided movement is needed if labor is to achieve its proper place of responsibility in the United States before dissension and division inevitably lead to loss of influence and prestige of all those involved, particularly in matters where the public interest may be concerned."

Employes and Christianity

To the Editor:

In these days we hear much said by a certain class about organized labor and Bible quotations against all organized groups except their own. We have been called reds, communists and "those ungodly unions," all of which we deny, not that it is worth denying but because we will fight back when we are falsely accused.

One fellow from Cleveland in an article in the Chattanooga News referred to the Bible where it speaks about people working. Sure, the Bible says to work, but I challenge anyone to show a verse that says a working man or woman has not the right to have something to say about what they work for or the conditions they work under. I want to ask a question: "Why do not our foes ever refer to the manufacturers' association as 'that ungodly union?' They are organized and have a right to organize. But no, they think that the capitalists have the right to organize. But no, they think that the capitalists have the right to dictate and the worker must bow to their dictation or they are ungodly and not Christian. Now, let us look into the Bible and see what it says:

Exodus 20-10: "But the seventh day is the Sabbath of the Lord. In it ye shall do no work nor your man servant nor maid servant." Who breaks this commandment? It it the ones that their workers work on the Sabbath to gratify their greed for gold and the workers know if they refuse to work on Sunday they will have no job on Monday. Organized labor stands for a work-week that will stop all Sunday work possible.

Deuteronomy 24-14: "Thou shalt not oppress a hired servant that is poor and needy." Is it not oppressing them if their wages do not provide enough food and clothes for their family? I say yes to that and no fair-minded man can deny it.

Job 31: "If I despise the cause of my man servant or maid servant when they contend with me what shall I say when God riseth up or when he visiteth what shall I answer him; or if I have eaten my morsel alone and the fatherless hath not; if I have seen any perish for want of clothes or any poor with clothing, then let my arm fall from my shoulder blade and my arm be broken from the bone."

Colossians 4-1: "Masters, give your servants that what is just." The question is, is pay that will not meet actual necessities a just wage?

James 5-1: "Go to, now ye rich men weep and howl, for your miseries that shall come upon you."

Verse 4: "Behold the hire of the labourers which have reaped down your fields. Which of you are held back by fraud cryeth and the cry of them that reaped are entered into the ears of the Lord of Sabaoth."

I want every man that has invested his money in business to prosper and receive good returns for his investment, but we working people want a living for our dependents. Now back to the Bible: if everyone would follow the teaching of Jesus when He said:

"In all things whatsoever ye would that others do to you, do you also unto them," there would be peace among all and there would be none hungry or cold in this great country of ours. And to all who are so quick to refer to the Bible, do you ever think you are breaking the commandment that says, "Thou shalt not bear false witness against your neighbor."

Is it not false to say anyone is a red or ungodly that has always lived honest Christian lives and earned his living by honest toil? I leave it for all fair-minded people to answer and a just God to judge.

AFL Asks Changes in Labor and Wage-Hours Laws

Houston, Tex.—The American Federation of Labor in its 58th annual convention, asked changes in the national labor relations act and the new wages-hours law and vigorously condemned the committee for industrial organization in a resolution blaming John L. Lewis for blocking labor unity.

The convention unanimously asked nine changes in the Wagner act and declared its intention of fighting in the senate the reappointment of Donald Wakefield Smith to the NLRB.

The action came after President Green assailed the labor board's administration of the act, insisted upon changes in its personnel and demanded a "square deal" under the law.

Board Called "Biased."

The committee's report on the NLRB and its administration of the Wagner act accused the agency of being "biased" toward the CIO and of seeking to destroy A. F. of L. unions.

"Its primary consideration has been directed toward unwarranted assumption of great powers, reaching out and grasping for more and more jurisdiction, until the rights and privileges of free trade unions have been invaded, usurped and denied," the report stated.

The manner and method of administering the act has brought administrative justice "into disrepute," the committee said.

Union Rule Change Sought.

The committee recommended these changes, which, along with the report, were accepted without a dissenting vote:

1. A change in the unit rule to conform to that embraced by the railway labor act. This would make it obligatory on the board to grant a craft union the right to select its bargaining representative by majority vote.

2. "Definite" curtailment of the board's power to invalidate contracts.

3. Every known interested party to be served with due process and be afforded an opportunity to appear in any case.

4. Intervention by interested parties to be made a matter of right and not of discretion.

5. Definite qualifications to be set forth in respect to examiners.

6. Clarification of subpoena power.

7. Lifting of secrecy over board's files.

8. Elections to be conducted within 30 days from filing of petition therefor.

9. All cases to be decided within 45 days after the close of the taking of testimony.

Fight on Smith Ordered.

The committee's report on the Smith confirmation noted that President Roosevelt had reappointed Smith over the unanimous opposition of the federation's council and directed that all members of the senate and candidates to that body be asked to declare their stand on the issue before November elections.

The officers of the federation were instructed to "leave no stone unturned or any avenue unexplored" in the fight to block Smith's confirmation.

Green said "we will cooperate fully with President Roosevelt and hope that he will cooperate with us." He declared that "the employer classes cannot look to us, can get no sympathy from us in any movement which has as its objective destruction of the fundamental principles of the Wagner act."

Only Square Deal Wanted.

"I want to make it clear that the federation believes in the Wagner act," he cried. "We aided in its preparation and deserve a large share of the credit in its enactment. We do not want to destroy it and we will fight to the end against those who seek to.

"All we are asking is a square deal. We do not ask the board to be pro-A. F. of L. We do not expect to win every decision. But we expect and demand that a governmental agency in the administration of a law which touches on the economic and social lives of millions of workers, act fairly, squarely and honestly."

Wages-Hours Act Criticized.

A declaration on the wages-hours act condemned provisions of the law an "unwise," "disruptive" and "dangerous," and said that industry and committees to be set up under the act will be mere puppets."

A report by the resolutions committee approved by the convention recommended that the Executive Council prepare several amendments to the law and offer them when congress meets in January.

The committee centered its fire on provisions in the law which permits the administrator to determine the ratio of apprentices to skilled workers in an industry; which authorizes the isolation of workers into various classifications and which gives the administrator power to remove industry committees if he doesn't like their recommendations on proposed minimum wages and maximum hours in an individual industry.

Committee Made "Puppets."

The latter provision, the report said, "largely destroys the value of these committees; it makes puppets of them and subjugates them to the absolute wish and the will of the administrator."

On the subject of classification of workers, the report said:

"We do not believe that the day has come when labor will submit to being classified by law or by administration. Unquestionably this section of the act requires drastic amendment."

The resolutions committee, offering the resolution condemning the CIO, called for a vigorous fight against the Lewis organization, but asked that the Executive Council be instructed to "stand ready to respond to any genuine appeal for peace or any honorable and sincere opportunity to reunite the labor movement."

The resolution committee condemned John L. Lewis as a "dictator," and said that peace cannot be restored in the labor movement until he resigns or is ousted.

Peace Door "Slammed Shut."

The committee stated emphatically that the federation's door to peace "has been kept open," but that the door was slammed shut by the CIO when it moved to set itself up as a permanent dual organization even before the federation's convention in session here had on opportunity to consider President Roosevelt's plea that "labor make and keep the Peace."

The committee recommended a policy of watchful waiting, and after condemning the "communistic influences" in the CIO, it said:

"We cannot and will not make terms with dictatorship, or communistic leadership."

Tobin Asks Peace Move.

Reading of the report brought speeches from Edward Flore and Daniel J. Tobin in opposition to its denunciatory phrases. Tobin, president of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, and A. F. of L. vice-president, had previously made an emphatic demand that the convention instruct the Executive Council to open negotiations for peace with the CIO.

Tobin threatened to take his 300,000 members out of the federation unless it makes a new move for peace with the CIO.

Facing the convention, Tobin declared:

"You are not getting anywhere calling men 'dictators,' 'autocrats,' or 'Judas.' Who has been in the forefront of this fight? We have! Who has been rotting in Oregon jails? We have!

Peace Hope Seen Spoiled.

"This report has spoiled further our hopes for peace. Get this straight. The teamsters want peace! We intend to get it!

"If we cannot build within a united house of labor, we will build outside of the A. F. of L. and the CIO."

Edward Flore, head of the Hotel and Restaurant Employes, took the floor with an appeal that the door to peace be left open. He said he did not know how long his organization could continue in the face of the internal strife unless "it is healed immediately."

U. T. Students Want Course in Marriage

At a meeting of the U-T forum, student extra-curricular organization, the question was discussed both pro and con, and the students ended up by voting almost unanimously in favor of such a course.

Guest speaker at the meeting was Dr. Ralph E. Dunford, U-T psychologist, who gave the students facts both for and against a course in marriage at the university.

Dr. Dunford said he believed the course would be helpful, though it would be far from a panacea for marital ills.

"That we need such a course is well evidenced by the high divorce rate and by the marital strife we see in our everyday life about us," said Dr. Dunford. "There are many social factors tending to decentralize the home and the family, and only adequate prepartion for marriage can prevent disorganization."

Points of View Picked Up From Various Sources

CY KOLOGY, EDITOR

Russians don't like our Col. Lindbergh, all of a sudden. Too bad, but probably Lindbergh will survive.

It seems Stalin's stooges think Lindbergh has been boosting the Russian air fleet to the British. They offered no evidence that Lindbergh had peeped a word about Russia's airplanes.

Maybe Russia's aviators are very "edgy" and ready to believe anything. More likely, though, Boss Stalin passed the word for them to open a verbal assault on Lindbergh, perhaps as backhanded slap at the British for not fighting Herr Hitler over Czechoslovakia.

The opposite paces Russia's dictatorship in either interesting light. Pretty far-fetched to believe British attitude toward Hitler was influenced by anything Lindbergh said about the alleged weakness of the Russian air forces. British don't have to depend on the Colonel for their information on this matter. Their army heads undoubtedly know far more about it than Lindbergh does.

"Friendly" nations in Europe, you know, spy on each other as well as on "enemies."

If the Russian air force is all that it is cracked up to be, why do the Russians show so much heat over alleged criticism?

Their lack of poise gives rise to the lively suspicion that the criticism, if ever made, was justified. In other words, the Russians do "protest too much."

Now that the sound and fury from Europe have died down, Americans are devoting more time to domestic affairs. Which is all to the good.

America has plenty to do at home, without tearing its hair over foreign quarrels.

A writer in Current History says:

"For one thing, the American people still face the problem of recovery—of putting ten to eleven million people back to work; of bringing about peace between capital and labor; of restoring business confidence; of overcoming a continuous deficit in the federal budget and a continuous increase of the federal debt; of preparing themselves to vote intelligently in this fall's elections."

* * *

Writer might have included farm problem in his list. Much will be heard of this in coming months. Plain truth of the matter is, that all the mighty striving in the last five years has failed to solve the farm problem.

Prices of principle crops are now not much above those of 1933, when the Roosevelt administration took office and tackled the job of restoring farm prosperity. Huge surpluses seem to bar better prices. Farmers are rebellious and it is feared may listen to weird schemes of "relief" advocated by agricultural "medicine men."

"Medicine men" are reported furnishing their wardrobes and practicing a new and improved line of war whoops.

Thrills Aplenty for Women At New York Fair, 1939

NEW YORK (Special). — The thrill capital for women next year will be the New York World's Fair. Designers, merchants, manufacturers, artists, governments—all "the authorities"—have seen to that.

And yet, uniquely enough, there will be no "woman's building" at the $150,000,000 exposition. Fair officials at the outset decided against such "segregation." Grover A. Whalen, president of the Fair Corporation, said that "a woman's building at a modern-day exposition would not be in tune with the progress of womankind."

Now, in this last year of construction, it is already obvious that woman is going to have her due at the New York fair. Those fortunate enough to attend are going to know thrills that will live with them always. The following presents only a pot-shot at all there will be to interest and delight women in the 1216½ acres of fair grounds. It is one observer's idea of what to see where.

Some of the Wonders

House of Jewels — a $5,000,000 display, by gem mining concerns and leading jewelers, showing stones in the rough, precious gems in finest settings, famous gems and perfect examples of goldsmith's and silversmith's art.

Apparel and Accessories — in their own building along Petticoat Lane — a $750,000 exhibit of all dear to woman in her costuming and in furs, hats, handbags and similar wearables or gadgets.

Cosmetics Building — showing just about everything ever done since the history of beauty aides and preparations began a few thousand years ago—with accent on the cosmetics and perfumes of today and a look at those of tomorrow. (They put thousands of dollars' worth in the cornerstone alone.)

Hall of Textiles — showing how they (worms to machines) make woven fabrics—hand looms, demonstrations of needle arts, discourses on home furnishing materials—silks and woolen here, rayons in one wing, cottons in another, 68,098 square feet, to be exact, of allied exhibits.

Health and Science

Home Furnishings Building—"heart of the Community Interests Zone," with its focal display showing the meaning of "Home" in present and future phases and how to create one of your own—all in exhibits that thrill.

Medicine and Public Health and Science and Education Building—a "famous first" exhibit showing the wonders to be accomplished by due attention to the "body beautiful"—a must attraction that'll not leave one with a dull moment.

Gas Industries Building—everything from a laboratory to an all-gas house, a cooking school and a gas flame 50 feet high—spectacular but looking to comfort at home.

Food Buildings 1, 2 and 3—putting romance into the age-old task of fixing a meal, by and with the world's knowledge and products.

Horticultural Exhibit—acres of gardens, flowers and equipment (with a chance for a cup of tea).

Thrills in a Lifetime

FINAL ARGUMENTS MADE IN RAIL WAGE CASE; BOARD'S REPORT EXPECTED ON OCTOBER 27

Washington, D. C. — Hearings on the proposed railroad wage cut before the President's fact finding board came to a rather lop-sided finish. The fireworks were practically all on one side. Witnesses and attorneys for the rail workers gave chapter and verse and comparisons; witnesses and attorneys for the railroads simply repeated that a wage cut was the only way.

The interstate commerce committee of the senate, led by Senators Wheeler, of Montana, and Truman, of Missouri, have piled up one of the most damaging indictments of railroad finance ever penned. Naturally, both senators were summoned to testify before the board.

Senator Wheeler cited twenty-one specific examples of railroad waste uncovered by the committee's inquiry, declared that the railroads by eliminating that waste could save a million dollars a day, when the most they could save by a wage cut was $750,000 a day.

Men Not Overpaid, Board Told.

Truman was even harsher. "Railroad labor is the most efficient in the country," he said, "and I do not believe these men are overpaid.

"It has been the policy of the financial managers of the railroads to load them with all the debts they can possibly carry in times of prosperity and then run them through expensive reorganizations —out of which they usually come with debts bigger than before."

That really "roiled" the railroad lawyers. They declare acidly that the Wheeler investigation wasn't finished, that it only covered a small section of the railroads, that it was wicked to charge all the railroads with the sins of the Van Sweringens, and that a senate investigation had no business before the board, anyhow.

No Hint of Compromise.

Neither side offered the slightest hint of compromise. Railroad spokesmen repeated again and again that only a wage cut could save the railroads. Spokesmen for the workers argued that any slash in railroad wages would start a general wage cut, which would lower buying power and destroy another section of the markets for goods and services. And there the matter stands.

Walter P. Stacy, chairman of the emergency board and chief justice of North Carolina, indicated that the board would not file its report until Oct. 27, the last day allowed by the law. For thirty days after that report is made, there can be neither wage cut nor strike, which brings the strike deadline close to Dec. 1.

Speaking of preparing ourselves to vote intelligently in the fall election, Ohio senatorial candidates are to engage in joint debates on current issues.

This is a step toward intelligent voting and a step away from campaigns of recrimination and name calling, of which we have had too much in recent years.

We have no need to change human nature. We need only to give it a chance.—Rexford G. Tugwell.

USING FARM SURPLUS TO FEED "LOWER THIRD" IS PLANNED

Washington.—Plans for "dumping" the agricultural surplus of this country at home, rather than abroad, are being carefully considered by the department of agriculture, according to a public statement by Secretary Wallace.

Roughly, the idea is to sell the wheat crop at home. The mills will take by far the greater part of it for ultimate sale to the upper two-thirds of our population. The government will take the rest, to be turned over at a lower price for the one-third now ill-fed as well as ill-clad and ill-housed, Uncle Sam standing the loss.

Every plan for stabilizing farm prices comes against this irregular but periodic surplus. The supreme court knocked out the AAA plan, which included a certain control of production. The McNary-Haugen bills vetoed by President Coolidge provided for the sale of surpluses abroad, and for the American farmer, collectively speaking, carrying the cost himself through the equalization fee. It may come up again. The Wallace statement is frankly temporary.

It is also true that a surplus of wheat is more likely to be used in the near future than a surplus of cotton, which is another snag.

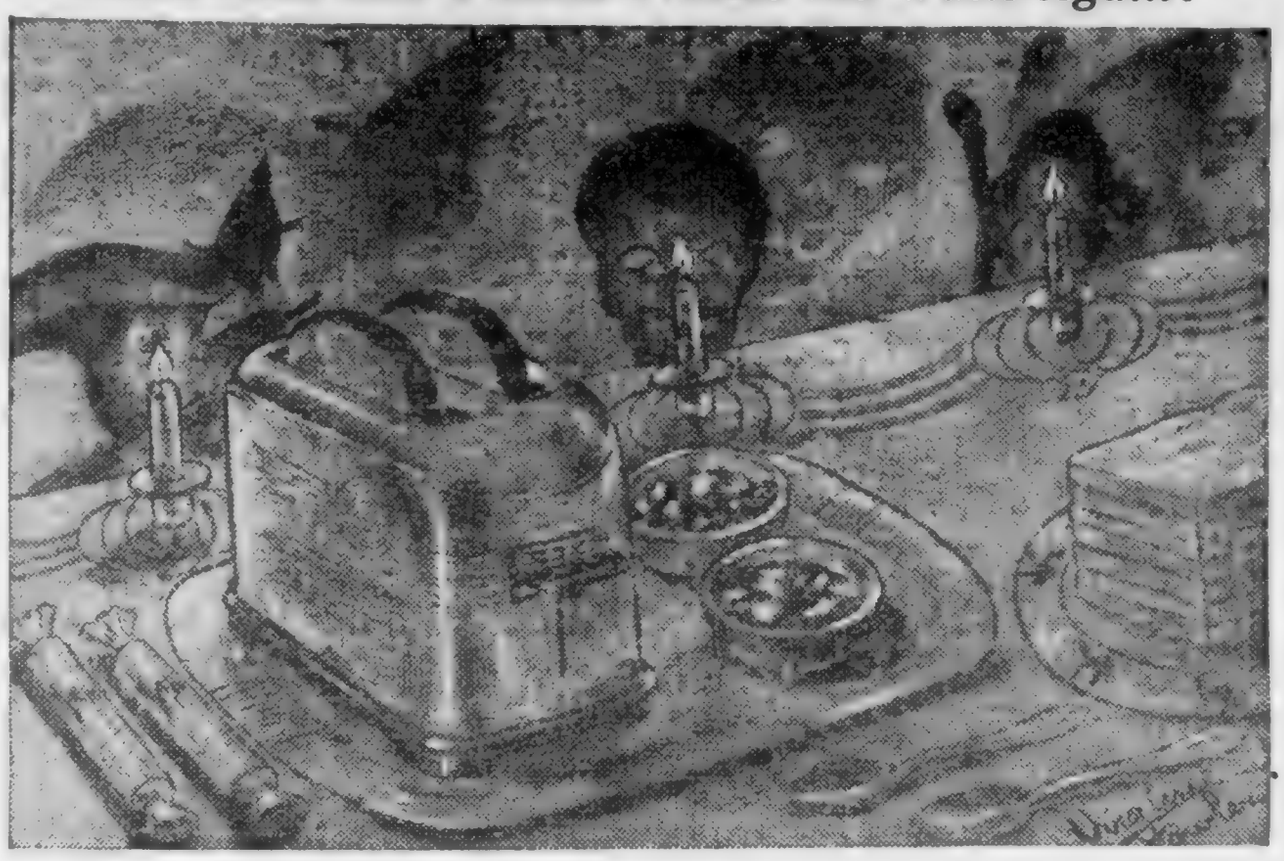
Black Cats and Witches Prance the Walls Again!



Artist Designs Ideal Table For Children's Hallowe'en Party

How Hallowe'en, October 31st, one of the four Witches' Sabbaths of the ancient Pagan world, has become the present delightful, fantasy-filled children's festival, opens up one of the most fascinating of folklore studies. Countless generations of children, throughout the Christian Era, have gradually changed the grim All Hallows Eve of early Christian times into the gleeful and fantastic children's celebration of today.

But before tracing the story of All Hallows Eve, let us describe the drawing above, in which Virginie Fowler, well known artist, has pictured the ideal table for a children's Hallowe'en party.

The table is decorated with eight-inch black paper cutouts of skulls, witches on broomsticks and black cats, repeated as many times as needed. The children sit along the outer edge of the table which is placed a few inches from the wall. Between the children and the cutouts are orange candles, in low candle holders covered with orange paper. The candles thus throw the shadows of the cutouts, large and black, against the wall.

Because the children have modernized Hallowe'en, the artist has introduced a modern note especially dear to children, a toast and jam set, so simple in operation that they can use it themselves. With its smooth, gleaming finish, the toaster seems a natural part of the ancient ritual, while the jam containers of orange and yellow fit exactly into the color scheme. Strips of orange and crepe paper are laid on the table between the candles. Orange "snappers" with black Hallowe'en stickers are used for trimming.

The Pagan festival from which Hallowe'en sprang is immensely older than Christianity; it actually antedates the beginnings of agriculture, and thus goes back into the very early history of the race. The Romans added to the ancient festival the traditions and observances in honor of Pomona, their goddess of fruits and fruit culture. At its best, it was what the children make of it today—a festival, a night of feasting, dancing and games to which, in ancient days, the whole countryside gathered. The festivities began in the early evening around blazing bonfires, and lasted until dawn. The feasting, and merry-making were probably intended to put to flight the evil spirits which on this night, of all the year, were considered most likely to walk abroad.

To the Christians, after the Church had spread over Europe, the evil spirits became witches and the ghosts of the departed, and black cats, grinning skulls and witches on broomsticks, became the symbols of All Hallows Eve. No one but the children could have leavened and mellowed the ancient festival into the celebration of today. Without any knowledge of its source, but with an unfailing instinct for dramatic fun, they have through the centuries preserved the joy of the ancient Pagan Festival, with just enough of mystery and mock chills from the early Christian Era, to make the modern Hallowe'en one of the most fascinating children's events of the year. Thus no festival more justly belongs to the children than Hallowe'en.

When the "Prodigal" Returns

By DR. CHARLES STELZLE

Executor Director, Good Neighbor League.

Peace in the ranks of labor seemed much nearer at the convention of the American Federation of Labor in Houston than at any time since the CIO broke away from the federation about three years ago.

President William Green spoke words of welcome to the CIO, using the language of the father in the parable of the Prodigal Son, inviting the "wandering boy" to return to his father's house.

But in the Bible story of the return of the prodigal son, as told in the Gospel of Luke, it is said that "when the son was yet a great w off, his father saw him, and ran to meet him, and fell on his neck and kissed him."

In other words, the father in the Bible story didn't wait for his son to come all the way alone, wondering how he would be received, but he met his son half-way, in order to show the boy that he was more than welcome, no matter what the neighbors might think or say.

If the CIO and the A. F. of L. are to get together, it will no doubt have to be upon a somewhat similar basis. Both will have to forget their pride and all that has happened in the past, holding no hard feelings.

The Bible story tells what happened after the prodigal's return. The father said to his servants: "Bring forth the best robe and put it on him; and put a ring on his hand, and shoes on his feet: And bring hither the fatted calf, and kill it; and let us eat and be merry."

But while the festivities were going on the elder son came in from the field, and heard music and dancing. And he asked the servants what had happened. And when they told him "he was angry, and would not go in." He was angry about the whole thing, because, he said, he had always been faithful and loyal to his father, and he hadn't even been given a kid, so that he might have a party with friends of his own. And that nearly broke up the festivities.

Let's hope that if and when the "CIO prodigal" returns to the "A. F. L. father's house," there won't be any sons who will be hanging around the woodshed, saying that they'll be darned if they'll come and join the party, because that would be just too bad all around.

A MESSAGE TO ORGANIZED LABOR

What YOU BUY and WHERE You Buy It

MAKES . . .

The LABOR WORLD

. . . GREATER

BUSINESS MEN who advertise regularly in THE LABOR WORLD are responsible for the recent enlargement of the paper. A larger paper gives new strength and prestige to the labor movement in Chattanooga.

BEING BUSINESS MEN, if their advertising does not bring results which they car trace to THE LABOR WORLD, these advertisers will not continue to use the paper.

THE LABOR WORLD is the only voice of organized labor in Chattanooga. It is YOUR voice—you who read the paper. In helping THE LABOR WORLD to grow YOU are creating an agency of great value to YOU—personally.

PERSONAL PRIDE, personal interest and organization expediency demand that union people buy from business men who advertise regularly in THE LABOR WORLD.

WHEN YOU NEED SOMETHING, first try to buy it from some of the regular advertisers in THE LABOR WORLD. If each of our readers will adopt this policy, and stick to it, we will build one of the nation's greatest labor organs here in Chattanooga—and very quickly . . . and it will help the unions of Chattanooga to secure improvement in conditions affecting our working people.

THE LABOR WORLD is already something to be very proud of, and if readers stick to the cause it will surprise all of you.

LET'S GO! Buy from advertisers in THE LABOR WORLD—and tell them WHY you are buying from them. Tell business men who are not advertising that they must get in THE LABOR WORLD if they want a share of Chattanooga's great union trade.

AND FINALLY, if you hear any news about any of our people, yourself included, call us up and tell us about it. Call us when you have talked to some advertiser, and think we can get him to advertise in THE LABOR WORLD.

Teacher Talk

Despite competition from the general county teachers' meeting of Saturday morning, the afternoon meeting of the federation mustered 150 teachers. The program reported in this space last week was adopted in full, as was the report of Mrs. George Barton and Sam Harris, of the auditing committee. This will be mailed to all members with the next bulletin.

Chairmen of standing committees were announced, as follows: Legislative, Miss Josephine Hamilton; membership, J. Steger Hunt (general), Miss Margaret O'Grady (city), Mrs. Ethel Stroud (county); Grievance, W. P. Bales, and publicity, Paul G. Long.

Incidentally, the meeting lasted only one hour, and no one was bored. The officers are wondering whether 2 o'clock is not a better meeting time than a morning hour. If you feel strongly either way, don't fail to tell them.

Union teachers have been criticized in times past by other unionists for buying non-union goods and for employing non-union workers, especially in construction and repair work. In several cases the teacher mentioned was non-union, and no doubt it's only a very few members who in this way fail to support fellow-unionists; but those few stand out like the proverbial sore thumb. Remember, we want the support of labor! One instance of co-operation: Several luncheon and other gatherings of the Southeastern Teachers' association had been originally scheduled for the Read House, which is non-union. Union teachers called attention to this, and without exception changes were made to other places.

Canadian Labor Leader Meets Tragic Death

Toronto.—James Simpson, for many years vice-president of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada and recognized as one of the foremost labor leaders of this country, met death in Toronto when the car which he was driving collided with a street car.

James Simpson was born in England and came to Canada when he was 14 years old. He worked at various trades and became associated with the organized labor movement when he joined the International Typographical union.

He was elected to the city council of Toronto in 1914 and served five terms. In 1935 he was elected mayor, a signal recognition of his ability.

Railroad Employment Rose in September

Washington. — The interstate commerce commission reports that railroad employment in September this year, while still 15-1 per cent below that of the same month in 1937, is 2.41 per cent above that of August It is the second month which has shown a slight rise.

Maintenance of way and structures men and maintenance of equipment and stores men, who have shown the heaviest loss, also showed the highest gain of the month. That, however, was around 3.5 per cent; and left the groups in the order named 16 and 21 per cent, respectively, behind their employment of 1937.

Newspapers have begun to run headlines about "suicides in Czechoslovakia." Which surprises no one who remembers what happened after Hitler "liberated" Austria.

Cement President Death

Brother Baker was a lifelong Christian, and a member of the Presbyterian church, a home-loving man and a staunch unionist, ever ready to call in his power to promote the principles of organized labor whenever and wherever possible.

He was one of the founders of the cement workers' organization, having helped to organize the first local union in the cement field, Local Union No. 18269, organized July 10, 1933, of which he became president Jan. 1, 1938, which office he held at his death. He has served two times on our contract committee, and was a delegate to the Tennessee Federation of Labor at their convention in Chattanooga.

Brother Baker was well liked by everyone who knew him, and will be sorely missed by his family and friends, and especially by the officers and members of Local Union No. 18269 of Cement Workers, with whom he was so closely associated.

The following poem entitled "Recollections," by Edgar A. Guest best expresses the feelings in the labor movement regarding the going away of Brother Baker:

RECOLLECTIONS

By Edgar A. Guest.

Is it my fancy that these walls retain
Imperishable memories of their friends,
That once a visit's made it never ends,
And loss can never take away the gain?

I feel that something of them must remain,
Since upon friendship home always depends—
That which the spirit of a comrade lends
Still lingers on, defying rust and stain.

That is the chair in which one loves to sit—
Another praised that picture on the wall—
Here is a book—I never turn to it,
But what the friend who gave it I recall.
Friends come and go. That, the common way!
But memory holds them fast and bids them stay.

At the called meeting of all executive board members of A. F. L. unions last Sunday, the large audience stood in silent prayer to mark the esteem and respect held toward Brother Baker.

Trade Union Benefits Total $27,111,225.46

HOUSTON, Tex.—The tremendous responsibility assumed by national and international unions in protecting their members against the hazards of industry and life is revealed in the report on trade union benefits made to the annual convention of the American Federation's Executive Council.

Pointing out that the sum for the year totaled $27,111,225.46 paid to union members in out-of-work, disability, pension, death, sick, and miscellaneous benefits, the Council said:

"This vast sum of benefits paid, however, does not cover the total amount paid by all national and international and local unions during the past year. It represents the amount paid by national and international organizations and other organizations and other organized units which reported to the American Federation of Labor. Many local unions chartered by organizations affiliated with the American Federation of Labor and federal labor unions chartered directly by the American Federation of Labor have established funds out of which benefits were paid locally. In addition, strike benefits were paid by local organizations which do not appear in this report.

"Thus, there should be added to the total amount set forth in this report of benefits paid to members of organized labor, many millions of dollars more paid by organizations not reporting and by local unions chartered by international unions which have established and maintained benefit funds for the protection of their membership."

The amounts of the various benefits listed in the Council's report were as follows:

Death Benefits	$13,390,755.36
Sick Benefits	2,277,903.00
Unemployment Benefits	1,671,139.36
Old Age Benefits	4,600,056.04
Disability Benefits	2,623,918.20
Miscellaneous	2,547,453.50
Total	$27,111,225.46

New Model City To Be Shown at New York Fair

NEW YORK (Special) — A magic carpet ride through space two miles above "Democracity," the perfectly integrated garden city of tomorrow, will feature the central theme exhibit of the New York World's Fair which opens April 30, 1939.

The exhibit, created by Henry Dreyfuss, industrial designer, will be dramatic in form. It will reach a stirring climax when, out of the distant skies above the floating audience, will troupe marching legions of workers, symbolizing the interdependence of man in modern civilization.

Nearer and nearer they will tramp, until the whole arch of heaven is filled with towering figures, arms upraised, singing the song of tomorrow. As the final strains of this marching air die away, great streamers of colored light shoot forth from the zenith, drenching the sky from horizon to horizon in all the hues of the rainbow.

A Dramatic Show

This dramatic show will be housed in the eighteen-story Perisphere, companion structure to the 700-foot Trylon, which constitute the architectural focus of the Fair.

An entirely new method of projection, utilizing slides instead of film, will be employed to throw the moving figures on the sky. New methods of fluorescent lighting will be used.

The garden city itself will be a model—one of the largest ever built and the first to portray a full-size metropolis catering to a million people and complete in every last detail. This city of tomorrow will serve 1,000,000 people, but no one will live in it. Homes will be in suburban developments. Factories also will be located in satellite towns, and broad green belt areas will circle both city and towns.

Model City Possible

City planners, engineers, architects, landscape architects, airport specialists and other experts collaborated on the design of "Democracity," and so accurate is the model that, according to Mr. Dreyfuss, it could be given concrete reality today were sufficient funds made available. Blueprint drawings have been made not only of street layouts, harbors, airports, athletic fields and civic centers but of traffic and pedestrian overpasses, theatres, hospitals, shops, bridges, dams and apartments.

The entrance to the theme exhibit will be high up on the side of the Perisphere fifty feet above the ground. Access will be by means of the two longest moving stairways ever built in this country. Visitors will enter on two levels and step on to two magic carpets or revolving platforms placed one above the other and moving in opposite directions.

$8.73 A WEEK FOR FOOD SET FOR POOR FAMILIES

New York, N. Y.—After a long investigation as to the smallest amount of food required to save families in the lowest income groups from starvation, the New York Budget council, composed of fourteen representatives of charitable, civic and industrial organizations, has reported that $8.73 will buy enough food to sustain such a family, including two adults and three children, for one week.

Ladies, Please!

When you spend your husband's union-earned money, TELL the merchant that you like to see his advertisement in The Labor World.

Merchants appreciate knowing that The Labor World's readers patronize Labor World advertisers.

YOUR DOLLAR

YOUR DOLLAR will be a regular monthly feature. The facts and opinions given are based on the monthly reports of Consumers' Union, 55 Vandam Street, New York City, a non-profit membership organization whose object is to safeguard buyers by testing and reporting on consumer goods. Note especially the information on labor conditions under which products are manufactured.

The wear a car owner gets from a set of tires depends on many factors—some of them entirely beyond his control. Hot weather can wear tires out three times as rapidly as cool. Improper front wheel alignment, found even in new cars, will wear out the tires unevenly and raise bumps where they were never intended to be. Maintenance of proper air pressure helps to get better wear, and tires driven at a moderate speed may last more than twice as long as at high speed.

Because of their greater resiliency, Consumers' Union considers 4-ply tires preferable to 6-ply for passenger cars driven on good roads. A complete retread job, properly done on an uninjured first-line tire, should give 70% to 80% as much mileage as the original tire—at about half the new tire mileage cost. It is not easy to get a good retreading job, however, and retreads will not stand up under high-speed driving as well as new tires.

The relative durability of 6-ply tires tested by a government agency was as follows: Best Buy: Goodrich (3.9c per 100 miles); also acceptable: Century General, U. S. Royal, Lee, Goodyear All Weather, Dayton, Diamond, McClaren, Kelly-Springfield, Firestone (5.5c per 100 miles). Four-ply tires of these brands should rank in about the same order. The cost per 100 miles is based on a price of $13 for a 6x16 6-ply first-line tire.

Union-Made Tires.

Do fair wages, short hours and decent working conditions penalize the consumer? Must you pay a high price for union-made products as open-shoppers claim? Not if you judge by the tire values presented above.

The United Rubber Workers, after a two-year struggle, have won a one-third wage increase and almost 50% hour reduction in unionized shops. Yet the union-made tires tested average as good wear per dollar as non-union brands. The following "Best Buy" and "Also Acceptable" brands are union-made: Goodrich, General, U. S. Royal, Diamond, Firestone.

How Monopoly Price-Fixing Works.

Possibly you noticed that canned peaches were unusually high all of last year. More than likely, you bought less peaches. As a result, California has a carryover of 5½ million cases, small canners face bankruptcy, farmers were offered $5 a ton for peaches that cost $20 a ton to produce, farm laborers and cannery workers are unemployed, and peaches rot on the ground.

Who planned this crime and who profited by it? That's a long story, part of it told in this month's CU reports, part still to be unearthed before a federal investigating committee. But all indications point to a clever price rigging scheme by which Del Monte and Libby profited, while farmers, consumers, workers and small canners held the bag.

Food Mixers.

Why do food mixers stay on the kitchen shelf? Largely, CU's technicians find, because a mixer isn't as convenient as it's cracked up to be for small household jobs. A housewife, dazzled by the ads, may get a mixer on the instalment plan or wangle it from her husband as a Christmas present. Oftentimes she finds, on getting it home, that squeezing an orange or mixing a muffin batter by hand is really less trouble than hovering over and washing the machine.

Large families doing plenty of cooking and baking at home may find it a good mixer a convenience. It should be easy to clean and repair, sturdy enough to stand up to heavy tasks, free from electric shock hazard. The following models, tested by CU, offered fair value in the order named: Hamilton Beach Model D ($21); Sunbeam Mixmaster Model 3A ($21); Universal Model E 891 ($18.95); General Electric Model 159 DM4 ($21); Westinghouse Cat. No. FP-3 ($26.95). The Sunbeam and Westinghouse showed excessive shock hazard and the Hamilton Beach presented some slight hazard. The Universal and General Electric were found satisfactory in this respect. Since mixers are used near the stove and kitchen sink, the frame should always be grounded while in use to a water or steam pipe. If this is done, shock hazard is eliminated.

Comment On World Events

The plight of German refugees in Prague is appalling. There are at least 60,000 of them who are all Germans or German Austrians. They are Germans but not nazis. Many of them are social democrats; the chief liberal and labor party of Germany before Hitler, and now dealt with there by murder and concentration camps, which are slow murder. And in addition to these Germans fleeing from the German government, the Czechoslovak government must care for a still larger number of Czechs drizen out by Hitler's overflow.

About 10,000 of these belong to the German-Austrian Refugee society, which has prayed for help to Sir Neil Malcolm, commissioner for refugees of the League of Nations.

"If we are forced to return to Germany," they said, "it will mean death or at least heavy imprisonment for hundreds of us, and concentration camps for several thousand others."

It seems a time when immigration restrictions should be suspended. Certainly, it is a time for all forms of private charity to come to the front.

George Welborn Norris, senator ad lib. from Nebraska, is distinctive, even in announcing his political intentions. In telling his state that he would not be a candidate again, he said:

"You know, I know, and God knows that I've made my last rave. I am serving my last term, making my last fight. I have nothing further to ask of the Nebraska electorate; I want good will, but I am not seeking votes."

Only fools and unbelievable reactionaries ever accused George Norris of raving; but let that pass. He has given service enough to make the name of half a dozen men. He stopped two bought and paid for senatorships at the door. He saved Muscle Shoals. He took by odds the biggest part in creating TVA. He was responsible in the senate as LaGuardia in the house for smashing federal labor injunctions.

And he is the only man alive who amended the constitution of the United States, and amended it in the interest of democracy.

Hail, and not yet farewell, to George Norris.

* * *

A five-man commission will mark out the new boundary between Bolivia and Paraguay, as agreed upon by arbitrators from six countries.

Heavy fighting between these two countries began in July, 1932, though there had been some hostilities before. Protocols for arbitration, mediation or whatever is the best for it were signed in June, 1935; and again hostilities stretched well beyond negotiations. As in all South American fighting—as in our own wars down to the World war—more were killed by disease than in battle. Neither Bolivia nor Paraguay has either men or money to spare. Yet they fought openly for more than three years before they could bring themselves to peaceful settlement.

Arbitration doesn't work when one side wants to arbitrate with guns. But when it can and does work, what utter folly to neglect it!

MOONEYS LAST HOPE

(From the New York Times.)

The supreme court of the United States has shattered what seemed almost the last hope that Thomas J. Mooney could be released from San Quentin prison by judicial process. True, in refusing to grant a writ of certiorari the court did permit Mooney's attorney to renew his petition for a writ of habeas corpus. But the indications are that the court, including such tried liberals as Justices Stone and Brandeis, will not find any constitutional way to take hold of this case.

Mooney's reported denunciation of the court "as a bulwark of the predatory, corporate anti-labor interests of America" and his demand on Gov. Merriam, of California, to end "this outrageous procrastination" in his case are, to say the least, untactful. But the issue is not whether Mooney is tactful. It is not even whether, if released, he will resume what many regarded as a career of trouble-making. The issue is whether or not he was wrongly convicted of blowing up the Preparedness day parade in San Francisco in 1916.

On the face of the evidence submitted to the jury at his trial he was guilty, but every damning scrap of this evidence has since been questioned, and much of it exposed as perjury. Gov. Merriam would serve common sense as well as justice if he reviewed the case and, if the evidence is as weak as it now appears to be, issue a pardon.

AUBREY W. WILLIAMS

Aubrey W. Williams, executive director of the National Youth Administration, looks like a southern revival preacher; and rightly. He is a revival preacher, a deeply sincere one; though the creed which he preaches and helps to practice is one of fair play in this life for underprivileged folk, particularly the young.

You can see how this sincere religion, for it is no less, has shaped his life. He was born in Springfield, Alabama, in 1890, of planter stock that had been impoverished by the Civil War, and had not gotten over it. They moved to Birmingham; and Aubrey at the age of 7 went to work as bundle delivery boy for a laundry. A year later, he became cash boy in a department store. He knows the ropes by experience.

He had about a year's formal schooling by the time he was 19; but then he went to Maryville college, in Tennessee, to study for the ministry. Later, he went to the University of Cincinnati; by this time committed to social work. In 1918, he went to France with the Y. M. C. A.; but when the Yanks began to arrive, he joined the artillery of the First Division. After the Armistice, he got a furlough and attended the University of Bordeaux, getting a degree in philosophy before he came back.

He was secretary of the Wisconsin Conference of Social Work, which secured the passage of the Children's Code, the first one in the United States. He went to the American Public Welfare Association; and was borrowed by two states for relief work. In June, 1933, Harry Hopkins got him; and he has been in that neighborhood ever since.

He is tall, lean, rather dark for the old colonial stock; and the intense look on his face is almost a habit. He is married, with four boys.

The state department of social welfare o. New York spent $50,000 on welfare gardens this year. The crops from those gardens were worth $50,000 which the amateur gardeners would have had to pay. It is now in order for some judge to declare that department unconstitutional.

World, and the response made by the loyal readers of The Labor World evidently was so startling that he has another full page this week.

Mr. Moore told The Labor World this week:

"We have known all along that THE LABOR WORLD is the effective medium for reaching the organized workers of Chattanooga," said A. Raymond Moore, the genial manager of Sterchi's, "but the large number of union people who came to see and admire our beautiful new store this week really surprised us. Nice things were said about the store and the use of union labor throughout in the $30,000 job we have just completed. Needless to say, we were gratified. We are constantly striving to supply union-made house furnishings to our union friends at the lowest prices, and we do like to hear that our co-operation policy toward organized labor is noticed. And it has been conclusively shown to us that the readers of THE LABOR WORLD are loyal to their fine paper."

30-Hour Week Is Paramount Objective Of the American Federation of Labor

The five-day week and the six-hour day without any reduction in daily or weekly pay was again made the paramount objective of the American Federation of Labor by the annual convention of the federation at Houston, Tex.

The necessity for shorter hours was presented to the convention in the report of the committee on shorter work day, whose chairman was Delegate Edward J. Gainor, president of the National Association of Letter Carriers.

Drawing attention to the tremendous army of the unemployed largely due to the increase of the output of labor resulting from the ever larger installation of job-destroying machinery, the report said:

"Your committee in concluding this report desires to again emphasize the continued increase on a steadily ascending scale of production per unit of worker through new means and methods of multiplied machine refinements.

"This constant expansion of production efficiency is the big fact of our time. It confronts us wherever we turn.

"To master the machine and make it serve the public welfare is now the supreme challenge confronting society.

"Its accomplishment will make for a larger life and soften the struggle for existence of all workers to a degree surpassing all that has gone before. To this end we should devote our best efforts.

"In the light of the foregoing survey, it appears plain to your committee that the American Federation of Labor must address itself with renewed resolution to the wider observance of the five-day week and the six-hour day as the best means of mastering the unemployment problem and protecting society against recurring depression.

"There is only one side to this case. Every fact and factor having to do with its consideration argues for shorter hours and higher living standards as the one and only way to insure economic health.

"Your committee, therefore, recommends that this convention strongly reaffirm its indorsement of the five-day week and the six-hour work day without any reduction in the hourly, daily or weekly pay. We further recommend that this purpose be declared the paramount objective of this convention, and that the officers of the American Federation of Labor be instructed to spare no effort to insure steady and certain progress toward the attainment of this great objective, and of enlisting the support of all the people in its behalf."

The report of the committee on shorter work day was unanimously adopted by the convention.

IN THE NEWS
ELMER F. ANDREWS

When Elmer F. Andrews, then industrial commissioner of the state of New York, was made administrator of the federal fair labor standards act, some reporter said that Mr. Andrews had been demoted. He was a czar in New York; but he was only a guide in the United States. And Mr. Andrews answered that he welcomed the change of title.

Mr. Andrews is 48 years old, and a native of New York City. When he finished his regular education, he went to Rensselaer Polytechnic institute. He graduated in 1915, and less than two years later, was serving in the army air corps as lieutenant and pilot.

Back from the war, he resumed engineering. He supervised the construction of railroads and warehouses on Cuban sugar plantations. He did work for several railroads. He got interested in the engineering phases of the compensation problem. In 1929, he was made deputy industrial commissioner of New York, and in 1933, he became industrial commissioner.

AFL ESTABLISHES AGENCIES TO MAKE WAGE-HOUR LAW EFFECTIVE

Educational and Enforcement Groups Are Set Up by Central Labor Bodies in 520 Cities aud by Affiliated Locals in 300 Other Localities to See That Working Men and Women Secure the Rights Guaranteed to Them by this New Law.

Washington.—William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, announced that the A. F. of L. has established a nation-wide network of educational and enforcement agencies for the purpose of making effective the fair labor standards act of 1938, popularly called the wage-hour law.

Simultaneously with the going into operation of the new law on Oct. 24, local wage-hour committees, organized in 520 cities by central bodies of the American Federation of Labor, were already functioning, Mr. Green announced. Similar committees are being formed in about 300 additional communities by local subsidaries of the A. F. of L.

In a circular letter sent to the wage-hour committees and to all organizations affiliated with the A. F. of L., Mr. Green asked organized labor to assume responsibility for policing enforcement of the labor standards established law. Affidavit forms for reporting violations of the act were sent to each organization.

Stressing the need for patience and caution during the initial period of the operation of the act, Mr. Green said:

"The new law should be given a fair chance in having its validity tested in the courts. To this end labor must make doubly sure that only in cases in which the existence of a violation is established beyond a shadow of a doubt should unions resort to litigation."

Mr. Green urged all unions to give special attention to Section 18 of the law, which specifically provides that nothing in the act shall justify an employer in reducing a wage paid by him which is higher than the applicable minimum wage under the act or permit an employer to increase existing hours which are shorter than the maximum hours prescribed in the act. He declared:

"Labor will guard against any attempt by employers to cut wages or lengthen hours under the pretext that such action is sanctioned by the wage-hour law."

Mr. Green's letter also called upon officers and members of the A. F. of L. to spare no effort in establishing through union organization and collective bargaining labor standards higher than the minimum standards of the act.

In a public statement on the wage-hour law Mr. Green emphasized that its provisions are calculated to help business as well as labor. He said:

"This law, of course, is primarily directed toward improving the condition of oppressed workers. At the same time it can and should prove of inestimable value to industry.

"Here is a great opportunity for the stabilization of industry and the eradication of chiseling competition. Effective administration of the law will wipe out the menace to legitimate industry hitherto provided by sweatshop employers.

"I urge the public and all employers to observe and obey this law for another important reason. By setting up minimum standards of wages, it will stabilize the nation's purchasing power. It will prevent shrinkage of buying power beyond definite limits by providing a rock bottom below which wages cannot sink.

"There is so much to be gained from this law by every factor in the nation's economic life that its benefits should not be wasted either by excessive zeal or implacable prejudice. I pledge that the American Federation of Labor will carry out its responsibilities under the act with patience and restraint. We will co-operate in every way with Administrator Andrews to make the lew a success. I urge the public and business likewise to give it a fair chance."

Happy Valley Farm NON-UNION!

RESOLUTION

JOHN H. BAKER

Whereas, God, the great creator who holds our destinies in the palm of His hand, has in His infinite wisdom called home to heaven our beloved brother member and president of our local union, Brother John H. Baker; and,

Whereas, although we have lost a valuable leader, his family has lost their husband and father, which makes their loss far greater than our loss, because he was a kind and loving father, a true husband, well liked by all who knew him, and hundreds enjoyed the privilege of calling him their friend, and he was known by the good deeds he did; and,

Whereas, in such moments of grief and sorrow a message of sympathy and love does much to assuage the pain and the sorrow; therefore, be it

Resolved, by Local Union No. 18269 of Cement Workers, in regular session assembled, That we hereby extend to Brother H. Kermit Baker (his son) and the bereaved family our heartfelt sympathy; and be it further

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the bereaved family, a copy sent to Brother H. Kermit Baker, a copy sent to The Labor World for publication, and a copy be spread upon the minutes of this organization.

This resolution adopted at a regular meeting of Local Union No. 18269 of Cement Workers, held Oct. 19, 1938, and signed by the secretary and committee.

JOHN FENTON,
C. E. RICHARDSON,
J. P. MORRISON,
Committee.

Clay McKenzie, Knoxville Editor, Is Seriously Ill

W. Clay McKenzie, editor of the Knoxville Labor News and secretary of the Knoxville Central Labor union, is in Fort Sanders hospital, where he underwent a serious operation Wednesday evening. He was taken ill suddenly last Monday and rushed to the hospital. While his condition is serious, hospital attendants express hope that he will recover.

Unionist Improves

Bob Parker, one of the old-time members of Brewery Workers, Local 79, is improving at his home after a six-weeks' illness. We hope that Brother Parker will soon be able to be out again.

Typo Auxiliary Being Formed

Typographical Union No. 89 is going forward with plans to organize an auxiliary to the local in Chattanooga. At the last union meeting a committee was appointed to work with some of the wives of the printers to form such an organization here and the first meeting will be held Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Arch Underwood, 2109 Kirby avenue, to make plans for such an organization.

Letters were sent out to as many of the ladies as could be reached and notices were placed on the bulletin boards of the three daily papers. This meeting will be held at 2 o'clock Friday afternoon and all wives, sisters and daughters of union printers are invited to attend this meeting. A great many ladies have already signified that they will be at the meeting, among them: Mesdames Turner Bell, W. Y. McKenzie, Mary Echols, Paul Woy, Jack Worthington, T. R. Cuthbert, Arch Underwood, H. B. Stephenson, Harry Maupin, Arthur Davis, L. E. Murray, H. T. Cathy, Charles Douglas, R. M. Cooke, J. M. Peyer, Dan Power, O. G. Elder, Joe Espy, F. R. Norelius and Mrs. F. T. Carter.

Much interest is being shown in this movement and the ladies are planning for an active and live-wire organization.

Teacher Talk

This year the federation membership has been divided into thirty-four districts, each district wherever possible comprising the members in one school. The purpose behind this new feature of the organization is to enable members to meet frequently and with more effectiveness than in general meetings alone. A district session will be held once a month, always following the board of directors' meeting, and at such other himes as may be desirable within a district. Here delegates to the board will be instructed and grievances applying to the particular school may be considered.

District elections of members are being held this week, and the new board will meet two weeks hence.

Appointments to the standing committees have been sent out, and by next week we should be able to name those serving.

OVER TWO MILLION WORKERS AIDED BY NEW WAGE-HOUR LAW

Wages Increased for 750,000 and Hours Shortened for 1,500,000---Employees Are Directed to Keep Data on 11,000,000 Working Men and Women Available for Inspection.

Washington.—The fair labor standards act of 1938, popularly called the wages and hours act, which went into effect on Oct. 24, immediately brought shorter hours for approximately 1,500,000 toilers and increased the pay of 750,000, according to estimates made public by Elmer F. Andrews, administrator of the act, simultaneously with the issuance of regulations covering records to be kept by the employers of the 11,000,000 or more workers who eventually will be covered by provisions of the new law.

The fair labor standards act elicits renewed interest by working men and women relative to the major provisions included in the measure, with emphasis placed on those large groups of toilers upon whom employers have hitherto imposed long hours of work and sweatshop wages and working conditions.

Minimum Wages and Maxium Hours Prescribed.

The act marks the first endeavor of the United States government to establish a universal nation-wide minimum hourly rate of pay and a universal nationwide maximum work week for employes in industries engaged in interstate commerce, and makes it unlawful for employers to impose wage rates below the minimum or hours above the maximum.

The act prescribes that all employes within its scope shall be paid not less than 25 cents an hour from Oct. 24, 1938, through Oct. 23, 1939, and not less than 30 cents an hour from Oct. 24, 1939, through Oct. 23, 1945, after which date a minimum wage of 40 cents an hour will apply nationally unless in the meantime an order has been entered by the administrator of the act for a specific industry or classification prescribing a different rate, which cannot be less than 25 cents an hour during the first year of the operation of the act nor less than 30 cents an hour thereafter.

With regard to the work week the act fixes a maximum of 44 hours for the first year, 42 for the second year, and 40 thereafter. Overtime is permitted, but for any work in excess of the maximum hours time and one-half the regular rate must be paid.

Industry Committees.

The act creates a wage and hour division in the U. S. department of labor, which is under the direction of an administrator. By appointment of the president, Elmer F.

Sterchi Executive Says Wage-Hour Bill Will Help

The wage and hour law is one of the finest provisions for the south ever conceived, in the opinion of C. C. Rutherford, of Knoxville, president of the Sterchi Bros. Stores, Inc., who was in the city Wednesday as the guest of A. Raymond Moore, manager of the Sterchi store in Chattanooga.

Mr. Rutherford was returning to Knoxville from Atlanta, where he attended a meeting of the directors of the Southern railway. He was greatly pleased with the new Sterchi store here.

Referring to the wage-hour law, Mr. Rutherford said:

"All this talk about the act's provisions causing unemployment is silly. Far from creating unemployment, the act, in my opinion, will create more work.

"This country has never prospered except in periods of high wages. The south should be very happy to abide by these regulations."

About $3,000,000 of the Southern railway's freight car order would be spent in the south, President Pegram, of the Southern, told the directors. This part calls for 1,300 40-ton steel sheathed box cars to be built by the Pullman Standard Car Manufacturing company at Birmingham.

Label League Meets

There will be a meeting of the Label League Friday night at the Hotel Patten at 7:30 p.m. All officers and members are urged to be present.

Dictatorship to Follow War, Says La Follette

Manitowoc, Wis—Declaration of war would mean establishment of a military dictatorship in the United States, Senator Robert M. La Follette predicted in an address here.

Detailed plans for complete mobilization of human and material resources in the event of war have been worked out by the war and navy departments, he said.

Meetings of the executive council, which are held weekly, have been most enthusiastic, and the group is spending much time and energy in setting up the organizational end of the federation's work for the year.

FIVE SENTENCED FOR VIOLATING ANTI-PICKETING INJUNCTION

New York City.—Supreme Court Justice Salvatore A. Cotillo sentenced five men who violated an anti-picketing injunction issued by him to serve jail terms and pay fines ranging from five days and $100 to thirty daye and $250.

The men were convicted of criminal contempt in the first case of its kind to come before a jury in New York state.

The defendants were Ben L. Burman, 25, business agent for the CIO Window Trimmers' union, 30 days and $250; Samuel Weisbad, 40; Jesse Williams, 28, and Tony Bajor, 20, ten days and $100, and Harry Etsig, 60, five days and $100.

They were convicted of violating an order issued last June, restraining them from picketing stores of the Busch Jewelry compan, whose window dresser employes the union was seeking to organize.

The defendants originally claimed that all were members of Local 144 of the union, but Justive Cotillo said all but German were professional pickets employed by the union at $2 a day.

Cotillo described the picketing as a "nefarious attempt to intimidate an employer."

Execution of the sentences was stayed 60 days to give the defendants time to appeal.

I think the first virtue is to restrain the tongue; he approaches nearest to the gods who knows how to be silent, even though he is in the right.—Cato.

BAKERS AND CONFECTIONERS' LABEL

This Label is an important safeguard of the Bakery and Confectionery Workers' International Union for its members against inhuman conditions, low wages and long working hours. People demanding this Label are not only supporting the Bakery and Confectionery Workers, protecting them against the conditions mentioned, but they are also protecting themselves and their families against the spread of disease-breeding germs which exist in unsanitary bake-shops. Our Label is only granted to sanitary and clean bakeries. If a bakery owner lives up to the requirements of our organization, he may use our Label. The Union shop workers are subject to health examination by Union physician and health maintenance by Union support.

Other requirements are. (a) Sanitation and cleanliness in the shop; (b) treatment of the workers as human beings; (c) reasonable hours of work; (d) payment of the Union wage scale. Bakeries not displaying our Label on their products do not meet with either one or all of the above-stated requirements. Any fair-minded employer, however, will not object to them and may use the above Label. Does the bread you buy bear this protective Label of the Bakery and Confectionery Workers? We solicit your cooperation.

Canadian Labor Congress Cool To A. F. of L. Move to Force Ousting of CIO Affiliates

Ottawa. — President William Green's statement that the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada would be expected to purge itself of its CIO affiliate unions if it wanted to continue its A. F. of L. affiliation brought the following response from President P. M. Draper, of the T. & L. C. of Canada:

"The convention at Niagara Fall (last month) instructed the executive of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada to continue negotiations with the president of the American Federation with the object in view of arriving at a settlement of this matter that would be satisfactory to the American Federation of Labor and the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada."

Canadian Labor "Astonished."

President Draper declined to make further comment. The Labor World of Montreal, which has always served the interests of the A. F. of L. internationals, remarks: "Canadian labor has the right to be astonished at President Green's declaration, more especially in view of the recent decision of the Trades and Labor Congress to continue to seek, by every possible means, the unity of the labor movement. The resolution on the subject adopted by this congress epitomized forty-five separate resolutions urging efforts to secure unity."

The Labor World criticizes President Green's claim that the A. F. of L. has as much right to require the Canadian Congress of Labor to purge its membership as it has in the case of state federations of labor chartered by the A. F. of L. "The mission of the Canadian congress is to act as the legislative mouthpiece of organized labor and, on that terrain, it plays the same role in Canada that the A. F. of L. plays in the United States," says the Labor World.

"On the economic terrain, our local unions are dependent on the internationals and subject to their constitutions and regulations; there is no room for any equivocation on that point. But there is room for surprise that the Canadian congress should be considered the equivalent of a state federation of labor. The organized workers of Canada are not of that opinion, and, moreover, they hold that the situation (created by the emergence of the CIO) is not the same in Canada as in the United States.

"Our international locals already have to face the opposition of national and Catholic unions and a new division in our ranks would be a disaster from every point of view. It is these considerations which determined the attitude of the congress at its Niagara Falls convention."

The congress resolution instructing the executive to work for unity contained the following clause: "That action taken shall be on terms acceptable to the international trade unions and thus avoiding disregard for or defiance of their laws and policies."

NLRB CONDEMNS REPUBLIC STEEL AND ORDERS REINSTATEMENT OF OVER 5,000 STRIKERS

Washington.—One of the most arrogant enemies of all organized labor has suffered a stinging defeat. The national labor relations board has issued an order condemning the unfair labor practices of Tom Girdler and his Republic Steel corporation in sober but unflinching terms as causes of the strike, violations of the law, and examples of brutality. It has ordered the Republic to cease and desist from these unfair practices, and to reinstate more than 5,000 men who took part in the strike of 1937.

At every step, every claim of the Republic and its spokesmen was denied. Point by point, the order of the board charges that in every place, the company took the lead in aggression and disorder.

Sought to Crush Union.

"From the facts recited," says the NLRB, "we think it clear that the underlying cause of the strike . . . was the respondent's (the company's) campaign to crush the union by means of the unfair labor practices set forth above. . . . The record shows that ever since the inauguration of the plan (company plan) in June, 1933, the respondent had made plain its policy of complete antagonism to the self-organization of the employes, and its determination to destroy any such organization by any means at its command.

"On July 2, 1936, . . . the respondent reiterated this basic policy in a public statement, and immediately and ruthlessly put it into effect. Its spies shadowed union organizers; its police attacked and beat them; . . . and its chairman and president publicly vilified the union leaders."

Union Formed to Fight.

And again, after a detailed summary of the actual events, the NLRB says:

"The whole history of the respondent's unfair labor practices . . . had placed the union in a position where it had to fight for its life or be destroyed. The respondent, not the union, had chosen the way of industrial strife."

The NLRB found eleven men among the strikers whom it would not order the company to reinstate; these men all had pleaded guilty or been convicted of various offenses, some serious. For the rest:

"The respondent had itself been guilty of brutal acts of violence preceding the strike, and the respondent itself committed or was responsible for acts of violence during the strike far more serious than those attributed to the strikers in question.

"It does not lie in the mouth of the respondent to assert that the offenses of its striking employes are necessarily and of themselves a bar to their reinstatement, or that they are any less fit to be employes than the respondent is to be the employer."

The board's order requires the Republic Steel corporation:

To offer reinstatement to 5,000 men who went on strike, even if it has to discharge men hired to take their places. This does not mean back pay for these strikers.

To pay remedial wages to any striker who is not given a job or placed on a preferential rehiring list within five days of his application.

To reinstate twelve men with back pay and award back wages to fourteen others.

To reimburse for lost wages employes involved in two lockouts.

Disestablish as collective bargaining agencies all the Republic's "employe representative plans."

And—a new proposition—the Republic is ordered to reimburse any federal, state or local government relief project for wages paid to strikers during their period of discharge.

Bring In Toys For Needy Kids

Calling all toys! Calling all toys!

With more than 10,000 empty stockings to be filled this Christmas in more than 3,000 underprivileged homes, the Chattanooga Santa Claus club is now on the job for the third year in succession to see that this job is done. The one and only objective of the organization, according to Mrs. Manker Patten, the president, is to see that no child goes toyless in this city.

To take care of these empty stockings, according to Mrs. Patten, it will require in the neighborhood of 35,000 toys. And getting these toys together is a happy task in which everybody in town can participate.

There are two ways in which toys are secured: First, through purchase with funds contributed to the club for this purpose; and second, through the donation of toys. The toys donated may be either new or used.

Used toys form the great bulk of the supply that is gathered. These are turned over to the firemen in the fourteen fire halls of the city and there they are rehabilitated, repainted and made good as new. In fact, the firemen have become so adept at reconditioning old toys that they often turn out jobs that are actually better than they were originally.

The public is requested, therefore, to ransack attic and basement, gather up all outgrown, outworn and damaged toys and take these at once to the nearest fire hall. There, between now and the middle of December, the kindhearted firemen will hammer and saw and tinker away at them until they are restored to a new freshness and made ready for another career of making little children happy. And, in the course of time, all of these toys will find their way on tables and shelves to look like a great toy store where the parents of the children for whom they are intended are invited to come and fill their wants just as they would at one of the downtown stores, except that everything is free.

In addition to providing toys for underprivileged children who might otherwise be overlooked by St. Nick, the idea back of the Santa Claus club is to put Christmas back in the home and remove the aspect of charity. The children know nothing about all this. The parents to whom cards are issued get their supply of toys, hide them away until Christmas Eve night and then put them in the little stockings in the good old-fashioned way. The little ones rise on Christmas morning to find that old Santa Claus has been to see them and there is nothing to destroy their confidence in the complete security of their own homes.

The Santa Claus club is an entirely voluntary organization of local citizens and it has the support and co-operation of every worthwhile welfare organization in Chattanooga. While other organizations furnish food and clothes and other forms of direct relief throughout the year for those in need, the Santa Claus club operates only at Christmas time and its sole purpose is to provide toys for children who might otherwise have to go without these necessary childhood joys.

This coming Sunday has been designated by the Santa Claus club as Toy Day in the churches and every person, young and old, who attends either Sunday school or church service is requested to carry along a toy to be turned over to the church toy chairman for the Santa Claus club.

Nov. 8 and 4 are toy days in the schools and every child is invited to join in the good work by carrying a toy to school for the same purpose.

Scooters, skates, dolls, tricycles, kiddie cars, doll beds, balls, dishes, and things of this nature are more needed, according to Mrs. Patten, than anything else.

Total of Women at Work Shows Big Increase in Seven Years, Unemployment Census Finds

Washington.—John D. Biggers, director of the federal unemployment census, has reported to President Roosevelt a remarkable and unsuspected increase in the number of women employed. The census finds that from 1930 to 1937, 2,740,000 more women entered the labor market than could be counted on from the increase of population during those seven years.

Biggers says that this revelation shows "an economic and social trend worthy of consideration by the temporary national economic committee."

The check showed that, of women over 16 years of age in this country, 25.3 per cent were gainfully employed in 1930 and 31.7 per cent in 1937. The report goes on:

"If all of this increase in female workers represents permanent instead of temporary entrants into the labor market, it makes a change in the trend as compared to the last two decades (from 1910 to 1930).

Proportion Stable for 20 Years.

"This trend shows that though the proportion of the female population gainfully employed increased consistently until about 1910, it remained relatively stable from 1910 to 1930."

In substance, this means that for twenty years the increase of women workers was held in check, probably by child labor laws and the custom of longer schooling; but this check did not operate in the next seven years.

"New workers over 25 or 30 years of age," says the report, "if they are women, are apt to be recently widowed, separated or divorced persons, or they may be wives forced into the labor market when the family income is inadequate."

Wives Bulk of Increase.

Taking into consideration the figures on family incomes, the wives who go to work to supplement their husband's wages would seem to form the bulk of the increase.

Mr. Biggers sent in his resignation with his report, and received a letter from the president, congratulating and thanking him for his services.

Q.—Is there any soda in soda water?

A.—No. It is pure water charged with carbon dioxide and flavored with syrups. It was named soda water because bicarbonate of soda was used in preparing the carbon dioxide for charging the water.

Train Dispatchers To Keep Up Fight For 6-Hour Day

Chicago.—The six-hour day will continue to be the principal objective of the American Train Dispatchers' association.

"We urge our executive officers to continue unceasingly the fight for the six-hour day," declared a resolution adopted at the union's convention, held here. "We believe that the only answer to the machine age is the shorter work day."

The union, an independent organization, is affiliated with the Railway Labor Executives' association, which is composed of A. F. of L. and independent unions.

Although the union is not involved in the railroad wage controversy, its president, J. G. Luhrsen, who is secretary-treasurer of the executives' association, was commended highly by delegates for his aid to unions in the fight against the proposed 15 per cent wage reduction.

The convention called upon members and friends to unite in working for a solid front ni the labor movement.

Luhrsen was re-elected president but will continue to be on leave of absence. At present his full time is devoted to his duties as secretary-treasurer of the Executives' association. C. L. Darling will continue to act as president.

The Train Dispatchers have established representation rights on practically all Class 1 railroads. Membership has increased about 75 per cent since the last convention, three years ago.

A MESSAGE TO ORGANIZED LABOR

What YOU BUY and WHERE You Buy It

MAKES . . .

The LABOR WORLD

. . . GREATER

BUSINESS MEN who advertise regularly in THE LABOR WORLD are responsible for the recent enlargement of the paper. A larger paper gives new strength and prestige to the labor movement in Chattanooga.

BEING BUSINESS MEN, if their advertising does not bring results which they can trace to THE LABOR WORLD, these advertisers will not continue to use the paper.

THE LABOR WORLD is the only voice of organized labor in Chattanooga. It is YOUR voice—you who read the paper. In helping THE LABOR WORLD to grow YOU are creating an agency of great value to YOU—personally.

PERSONAL PRIDE, personal interest and organization expediency demand that union people buy from business men who advertise regularly in THE LABOR WORLD.

WHEN YOU NEED SOMETHING, first try to buy it from some of the friendly advertisers in THE LABOR WORLD. If each of our readers will adopt this policy, and stick to it, we will build one of the nation's greatest local labor papers in Chattanooga—and very quickly—and it will help the unions of Chattanooga to secure improvement in conditions affecting our working people.

THE LABOR WORLD is already something to be very proud of, and if readers stick to the cause it will surprise all of you.

LET'S GO. Buy from advertisers in THE LABOR WORLD—and tell them why you are buying from them. Tell business men who do not advertise that they must get in THE LABOR WORLD if they want a share of Chattanooga's great union trade.

AND FINALLY, if you hear any news about any of our people, yourself included, call us up and tell us about it. Call us when you have talked to some advertiser, and think we can get him to advertise in THE LABOR WORLD.

General Motors To Rehire 35,000 Men in November

New York City —[illegible] the first week in N[illegible] eral Motors expects to add [illegible] men to its payrolls. The announcement was made by Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., chairman of the board of directors, who announced pay cuts of executive employes, made last February, would be rescinded.

"Our new models [illegible] in this announcement have been well accepted. There appears to be a greater interest than a year ago. This is evidenced by the attendance at the showings of our new cars as well as by the number of new orders already received.

"Therefore, the corporation feels justified in increasing its current production schedules by revising upwards the plans made last summer, as well as in readjusting its general operating program to a higher level of volume."

200,000 Now at Work.

Unofficial advices from Detroit indicate that about 200,000 workers are employed by General Motors now, most of them on part time. The average employment during 1937 was [illegible]. It is obvious, therefore, that the General Motors authorities are not counting on such a rush as they entered into rather early last year.

Estimates of the additions to the G. M. payrolls must be received with large caution, since they are, to date, purely financial estimates; and because promises of accounting departments seldom work out fully in the pay envelopes. If the 35,000 extra men have steady work, they may get through the year about $47,500,000. Full time employment instead of part time is figured to yield another $40,000,000.

Unemployment Still Serious.

"This rehiring of [illegible] workers mitigates the situation," said Homer Martin, president of the U.A.W.A. "But serious unemployment in the automobile and other industries remains.

"It also seems that the [illegible] will not find itself in a position to replace all the men who worked in the various plants in 1937. These men and their families will have to remain on WPA and relief."

MORE ABOUT 2 Million Workers

drews, former state industrial commissioner of New York, serves as the administrator of the wage and hour division.

The administrator is required to appoint an industry committee "for each industry engaged in commerce or in the production of goods for commerce." These committees, consisting of an equal number of representatives of the public, the employes and the employers in the respective industries are required to make a survey of industrial conditions and file recommendations with the administrator as to the highest minimum wage, not to exceed the 40 cent rate fived as the ultimate goal, which the committee believe the industries can pay. The administrator is empowered to take the necessary procedure for the application of the recommended rates. The orders of the administrator are subject to review in the U. S. circuit court of appeals for the appropriate district. The court is authorized to modify the orders or set them aside in whole or in part.

Administrator Andrews has already appointed an industry committee for the textile industry, in which about 1,300,000 workers are employed.

$10,000 Fine for Violators.

Under penalties the act provides that it shall be unlawful to transport or offer for transportation goods produced in violation of the wage and hour provisions, with a fine of not more than $10,000, or imprisonment for not more than six months, or both fine and imprisonment, for any person or firm found guilty of such violation. The imprisonment penalty is not applicable to first offenders.

In addition, civil action may be brought by employes who have been paid less than the minimum wage or who have not paid overtime for work in excess of the maximum hours. The act authorizes such employes to recover the amount due them, plus an additional equal amount as liquidated damages, plus the allowance of reasonable attorney's fees and costs.

Workers Exempted from Both Wage and Hour Provisions.

There are many exemptions, in whole or part, from the fair labor standards act. The following are exempted from all minimum wage and maximum hour restrictions:

Bona fide executives, those employed in administrative, professional or local retailing capacity, or as outside salesmen.

Those engaged in any retail or service establishment the greater part of whose selling or servicing is in intra-state commerce.

Seamen.

Employes or air carriers.

Those employed in catching, taking, harvesting, cultivating or farming all fish, seafood, sponges, seaweed, etc.; also those employed in the loading, unloading or packing of such products for shipment or in processing, marketing, freezing, canning, curing, storing, or distributing of these products or of their by-products.

Those employed in agriculture (Agriculture includes farming in all its branches, dairying and the production of agricultural commodities, the raising of livestock, poultry, bees or fur-bearing animals.)

Learners, apprentices and handicapped workers, but only to the extent exempted by orders or regulations of the administrator.

Those employed in connection with the publication of weekly or semi-weekly newspapers with a circulation of less than 3,000 where the major part of such circulation is within the county where the newspaper is printed or published.

Employes of street railways or local trolley or motor bus carriers.

Anyone employed within the area of production (as defined by the administrator) in handling, packing, storing, ginning, compressing, pasteurizing, drying, preparing in their raw or natural state, or canning of agricultural or horticultural commodities for market or in making cheese or butter or other dairy products.

Exemptions from Maximum Work Week Provisions.

In addition, the act completely exempts from maximum work week regulations workers employed—

In the first processing of milk, whey, skim milk, or cream into dairy products;

In the ginning and compressing of cotton;

In the processing of cottonseed;

In the processing of sugar beets, sugar beet molasses, sugar cane or maple sap into sugar (but not refined sugar) or into syrup;

As drivers of trucks or busses operated by common and contract carriers in interstate commerce for whom maximum hours of service have been established by the interstate commerce commission under the motor carrier act of 1935;

On railroads subject to the provisions of the interstate commerce act.

Partial Exemption for First Processors and Others.

For a period or periods totaling not more than fourteen weeks in any calendar year workers employed in the first processing of perishable or seasonal fresh fruits or vegetables are exempted from the maximum workweek provided by law, as well as from the requirement entitling them to overtime pay for work in excess of the maximum. The same fourteen-week exemption from the maximum workweek applies to workers employed in the first processing, within the area of production (as defined by the administrator), of any agricultural or horticultural commodity during seasonal operations, or in handling, slaughtering or dressing poultry or livestock.

Child Labor Prohibited.

The act prohibits the shipment in interstate commerce or delivery for shipment of goods produced in establishments in or about which any "oppressive child labor" had been employed within 30 days prior to the removal of such goods.

"Oppressive child labor" is defined in the act as meaning the employment by anyone of children under 16 in manufacturing or mining; the employment of children under 16, except by a parent, or person standing in place of a parent, in any occupation; the employment of children between 16 and 18 in occupations declared by the chief of the children's bureau to be hazardous or detrimental to the health or well-being of children between such ages.

In occupations other than mining or manufacturing the chief of the children's bureau is authorized to grant permits to work to children between 14 and 16, provided such employment is limited to periods which will not interfere with their schooling and to conditions which will not impair their health or well-being.

Warns Unions Against Tricks Of Anti-Union Publication

The organization committee of Chicago printing trades unions warns all labor organizations in the country to be on guard against one of the slimiest tricks ever attempted against us. The stunt apparently originated in the office of Life, one of the products of the anti-union Donnelley concern.

Life usually has one of the members of its editorial staff approach the officials of one of the more important unions with a story about the big circulation of the publication. Then the editorial staff member suggests that the union furnish him with information so he can prepare a big write-up of its activities.

As soon as the intended pawn of the anti-union publication, Life, grabs the bait, the circulation office gets busy among members of the union publicizing the appearance of the article; the editor of the official paper of the union is contacted and induced to write a story praising Life and announcing the appearance of the article, with the idea of fooling the members of the union into buying a scab product. Some organizations of labor and at least one political party professing to speak for labor have fallen for this trick.

Recently an organization of needle trades workers succumbed to this sort of cheap publicity and the officers of the union and the editor of the official union paper helped sell Life to the members who depended upon them for intelligent direction. Last May, at its convention, one of the minor political parties actually peddled Life to the delegates and visitors and their official paper printed glowing accounts of the fact that a publication of national circulation had written a distorted account of their activities.

Most of those approached, however, have repulsed the attempts of the publishers of Life to bribe them with cheap ballyhoo, as they consider their union integrity worth vastly more than praise in the columns of a scab publication.

Encouraged by the fact that it worked with some people, and believing that the bait of publicity would blind others in the labor movement to their responsibility as loyal labor people, Life had the audacity to approach a prominent official of the Typographical union with the plea that it was searching for "interesting articles" and wanted assistance in preparing an article on the Union Printers' Home at Colorado Springs, Colo.

The instrument used for this purpose was one Mr. Allan Brown, a member of the editorial staff of Life. But Mr. Brown approached the wrong man. He tried to induce Mr. Ralph Wright, business representative of New York Typographical Union No. 6, to help him. The following is part of the letter written by Mr. Wright to Mr. Brown, which should be a guide to all trade unionists who may be approached by the servile lackeys of that anti-union publication. Mr. Wright said in part to Mr. Brown:

"Your magazine Life and your publication Time are printed at the notoriously non-union Donnelley plant in Chicago. The printing trades unions of that city for several months have been waging a campaign to organize Donnelley's. They have sought and are receiving the full co-operation of the International Typographical union and all of its locals, included in which is New York Typographical Union No. 6.

"Patrons of the non-union Donnelley plant, including the publishers of Life, have been requested to lend sympathetic co-operation to the effort to establish fair American conditions in the Donnelley shop by demanding that their printing be produced under these conditions. To date, I have heard of no such indication that you desire to lend such co-operation.

"It, therefore, occurs to me that your desire to give favorable publicity to the Union Printers' Home at this time may well be interpreted as an effort to offset the effect upon your circulation of the refusal of countless legions of members and friends of the printing trades unions to purchase magazines printed under the non-union, inferior conditions existing at Donnelley's. I am sure that your 'friendly' gesture, in view of the circumstances, might well be considered an attempt to have the members and friends of the printing trades unions betray our Chicago brothers for thirty lousy pieces of silver in the form of publicity for the great and renowned institution at Colorado Springs."

Curtis R. Sims, president of Chattanooga Central Body and also business agent for Bakery Local No. 25, was assaulted with a blackjack by an unknown person last Friday evening.

Sims was peacefully picketing the non-union Krispy Kreme doughnut shop on McCallie avenue, near Willow street. The slugger came up from behind and dealt a glancing blow on Sims' head which knocked him groggy to the ground. While passersby assisted him to his feet the coward ran precipitately down a side street and escaped.

Although there is a labor dispute going on no arrests have been made for questioning.

Outside of a very sore spot on his head, Sims was back on the job after a few patches and bandages were applied.

Clay McKenzie Laid to Rest as Labor Movement Pauses to Pay Him Respects

Labor Editor Had Built Himself a Monument in the Hearts of All Working People in Tennessee.

Followed by a throng of sorrowing trades unionists and a multitude of friends in other walks of life, W. Clay McKenzie was laid to rest last Wednesday at New Zion chapel, near Athens, Tenn.

Brother McKenzie was editor of the Knoxville Labor News, and was recording secretary of the Knoxville Central Body. He took seriously ill Monday a week ago and was rushed to the hospital for an emergency operation. For about a week it appeared that he would recover, but a reverse set in and he died Monday night.

Brother McKenzie's funeral was held in Maryville, Tenn., in the First Methodist church, where he was an active member, with Rev. C. B. Tarwater and the Rev. Reagan officiating.

Holt Ross, representing the American Federation of Labor, delivered a splendid eulogy of Brother McKenzie's services to the working people.

In attendance as a mark of love and respect were labor officials all over the state, the president and secretary of the Tennessee Federation and several executive board members, along with other trades unionists acting as honorary pallbearers.

Many telegrams and messages of sympathy were received by the family. President William Green, of the American Federation of Labor, in a sympathetic telegram said James F. Barrett, of the southern office of the AFL, would personally represent him at the funeral. George L. Googe, southern representative, also sent a message saying Mr. Barrett would be his representative.

Dr. J. I. Steelman, commissioner of conciliation of the U. S. department of labor, telegraphed that Virgil C. Finch, of conciliation bureau, would arrive to represent him.

The Tennessee Valley Trades and Labor council executive committee, headed by Sam E. Roper, president of the Alabama Federation of Labor, in session at Hotel Farragut, adjourned its meeting when advised of the death of Mr. McKenzie. Resolutions of respect were prepared and personal messages sent to Mrs. McKenzie.

Teacher Talk

The first meeting of the new board of directors of the federation will be held on Wednesday, Nov. 9, at 7:30, probably at the Hotel Patten. The board consists of the officers, chairmen of standing committees, delegates to the Central Labor union and district directors.

* * *

There has been considerable favorable reaction to the grouping of members into smaller units, and to the new method of dues collection through these units. Please let us know what you think of the idea.

* * *

Being a member of the executive committee is a lot of fun. For instance, President and Mrs. Stanton Smith had the group come to their house for dinner before Wednesday's meeting. Mrs. Margaret Locker, Misses Archie Ruth Brown and Josephine Hamilton, Messrs. J. Stegar Hunt, W. P. Bales, Tom Bell, Arlie Hoodenpyl, Willard Millsaps and Paul Long were present.

* * *

Miss Josephine Hamilton is planning her committee's work on legislation. They are interested in federal aid for education, a merit system for teacher employment, sabbatical leave, and the problem of credit toward pensions for teachers formerly of James county schools. Remember t was through the federation that an amendment to the pension law was passed which enabled city teachers to count as much as five years' experience elsewhere towar pension credit, by paying simply the required levy and 6 per cent per annum interest for the period concerned.

It is odd but true that, confronted by the need of saving money, the railroads seek to cut the wages of workers, but not the salaries of officials.

Southern Groups To Meet in B'ham For Human Welfare

Many AFL Leaders to Take Part in Program.

Birmingham, Ala.—The eyes of southern labor today were focusing on the Southern Conference for Human Welfare, which is to be held in Birmingham, Ala., Nov. 20-23 for the purpose of establishing a southwide program to correct the economic and social ills of this region.

Known as "the south's answer" to the National Emergency council's recent report on southern conditions, the conference is to consider remedies for many problems which are of vital interest to the laboring man and woman.

C. P. Thiemonge, of the Birmingham Musicians' association, an affiliate of the American Federation of Labor, stated as his opinion this week that every member of organized labor should take a keen interest in the forthcoming conference, particularly in the sessions of its committee on labor relations and unemployment in the south. Other committees which will serve the conferences are those on farm tenancy, suffrage (poll tax), women and children in industry, housing conditions, freight rate differentials, public health, public education, prison reform, race relations, youth problems and constitutional rights.

Sam Roper, president of the Alabama Federation of Labor, is vice-chairman of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare and Vice-President Hugh W. Brown is one of the southern sponsors responsible for the gathering being called here.

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, the first lady of the land, will be the featured speaker on the conference program here the night of Nov. 22, when she is expected to address a capacity audience at the municipal auditorium. Public attendance is invited and there will be no admission charge, or other restriction attached to attendance. This will be Mrs. Roosevelt's first appearance at an open public meeting in Alabama. In addition, Mrs. Roosevelt will participate in several of the committee sessions of the conference during the day prior to her address.

Judge Louise O. Charlton, general chairman of the southwide gathering, pointed out that the conference is of equal interest to all branches of organized labor, and stressed the fact that every union member is invited to participate. Union locals, she said, are urged to elect delegates to the conference.

Linemen Help Chest Officers By Free Service

Strikers Spend Day Hanging Signs on Light Poles in Civic Duty.

Those striking electric linemen you saw this week working on the light standards in the downtown area were only doing their bit toward helping out the Community Chest. A call came in from Mr. Paul Severance, manager of the chest office, for some help in putting up Community Chest posters, and when the striking linemen heard of it there were more than sufficient volunteers to do the job.

"We are not too busy fighting for our right to organize to help this city in its drive to aid hungry and needy people this winter," the strikers said, "and as many of us that are needed to do the job will be on hand."

In praising the strikers for their contribution, Mr. Severance said: "The linemen showed a splendid civic virtue in contributing their services. They did a splendid job and it was offered so wholeheartedly and enthusiastically that it should set an example for other citizens to pitch in to put our drive over the top."

News Signs With The Mailers Union

Local 92, Mailers, affiliated with the International Typographical union, announced today that the Chattanooga News had signed a contract with them for one year. The contract signed is the same in effect on the Times.

This makes the Chattanooga Free Press the only paper in Chattanooga that has not unionized its mailing room.

Contracts with Hamilton County Herald and The Labor World have been in effect for some time, officials said.

William Mitch, district president of the United Mine Workers of America, is joint vice-chairman with Mr. Roper and numbers of delegates are to attend as representatives of the railway brotherhoods.

Sponsors of the Birmingham gathering include eleven of the twenty-two members of the president's southern advisory committee, which aided in preparing the National Emergency council report on the south; a number of outstanding college and university presidents and officials, farm experts, labor leaders, notable newspaper editors and publishers, economists and public health and welfare leaders.

Nationwide attention is being attracted to the conference here, due in part to the large numbers of distinguished southern and national figures who will attend and also due to the fact that this is an effort to solve what President Roosevelt recently termed "the nation's No. 1 economic problem."

"This is not just another conference," Judge Charlton said today. "Its aim is action—action which will lead to a higher standard of living for all the southern people. Such an aim deserves your support in the common cause of humanity."

Illinois Court Decision Is Held Death Blow to Most Company Unions

Chicago.—The appellate court, in an opinion regarded as a severe blow to so-called independent unions, has affirmed a decision handed down early this year by Judge Harry M. Fisher, of the circuit court, which held that labor unions could not incorporate as non-profit organizations under Illinois law.

The lower court decision was made when the Allied Federation of Labor, an independent union, was denied a petition for a writ of mandamus to compel Secretary of State Edward J. Hughes to issue a certificate of incorporation.

In denying the request for the state charter, Hughes ruled that the "not for profit act," as amended in 1937, did not include labor unions in the list of organizations covered. His ruling was defended in the courts by Daniel D. Carbell, assistant attorney-general.

Carmell declared that the appellate court decision, the first of its kind ever made by a court of review, was of far-reaching proportions because it makes illegal most of the company unions now in existence in Illinois.

For some time small labor groups, none of which were affiliated with recognized labor organizations, have been able to secure charters from the state for a $10 fee. This enabled such groups to masquerate as bona fide labor unions. A legal opinion from the attorney-general's office put a stop to state chartering of "dummy" unions and it is now expected that all charters issued prior to that time will be withdrawn.

WALSH-HEALY ACT BENEFITS

(From California Oil Worker.)

Benefits derived by labor under the Walsh-Healy act are not thoroughly understood by enough of the members of labor unions. Full advantage should be taken of the improvements labor has won by the enactment of the measure.

Four million workers have received the prevailing minimum wages under the operation of the law. Employers with government contracts of over $10,000 have been required to obey the provisions of the act.

Secretary Perkins has made a report on the operation of the act during the two years it has been effect. The measure has proven a success wherever it has been invoked.

Systematic government inspection of factories having government contracts that come under the law has resulted in employers voluntarily paying overtime and minimum wages. There were other cases where the law had to be enforced, though these were in the minority. Something over $6,000 has been collected in back wages and many reluctant employers have promised to observe the law.

The victory won by the A. F. of L. over the CIO in the waterfront election two weeks ago has put new life into the labor movement in New Orleans.

Winnfield, La.—A local union of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners was organized here last Friday, with almost 150 charter members. The membership is made up of stave mill workers, and Representative John Howatt, of the international, formed the union, assisted by E. H. Williams, of the A. F. of L. staff.

Knoxville.—Forty new members were obligated at the regular weekly meeting of the Fulton Sylphon Workers' local union here last Thursday night. The local voted to close the charter on Nov. 11, after which the initiation fee will be $5 for the first week thereafter, $10 for those joining during the second week after closing the charter, and after that the initiation fee will be $15. It is expected that practically all eligible workers will join the local this week and next, thus becoming charter members of the organization.

Plans are already being made to prepare a contract for submission to the management, covering wages, hours and working conditions, and asking that the local union be recognized as the sole bargaining agency for the workers.

Bastrop, La.—A. A. Jeane, assisted by E. H. Wililams, of the A. F. of L. staff and president of the Louisiana State Federation of Labor, organized a local A. F. of L. union here for the chemical workers, and the charter has been installed. Negotiations for an agreement are already under way, and it is believed that splendid advancement will be made for the workers through their organization.

Monroe, La.—A committee from the building trades council, assisted by E. H. Williams, of the A. F. of L. organizing staff, succeeded in procuring a paint job on the bridge project here for the painters' local union. It is quite a large job and means much to members of the painters' union.

Greenville, Miss.—Agreements between the United States Gypsum company and Federal Unions Nos. 20549 and 20547 have been signed, giving recognition to the unions and providing many excellent protective measures for the workers. Negotiations of these agreements were conducted for the workers by Ed Long and Walter Schaffer, of the A. F. of L. organizing staff.

New Orleans, La.—A local union has been organized and the charter installed here for freight handlers employed by the L. & N. Railway company. T. D. Grimes, of the A. F. of L. organizing staff, was in charge of the organization work and installation of the charter.

Birmingham, Ala.—A local union was organized here last Thursday by the freight handlers employed by the L. &N. Railway company, and charter applied for, with a large charter membership. T. D. Grimes, of the A. F. of L. staff, directed the work of organization and will install the charter upon its receipt here.

Mobile, Ala.—Agreements have been signed between the Mobile Cleaning company, the Central Cleaners and Laundry Workers' Local Union No. 226. These two plants have signed exceptionally good contracts with the union. Negotiations for the union workers were under direction of Cornelius Maiden, of the A. F. of L. staff.

Memphis.—Unfair W. T. Rawleigh company, manufacturers of cosmetics, continued this week to be the object of a strict boycott instigated by the painters' union, which was refused recognition by local company officials.

D. A. Pitts, business agent of the painters, said this week he had one conference late last week with the manager of the local branch, who offered a compromise that would permit non-union labor to continue on the job. Mr. Pitts was unwilling to accept this proposition which, in reality, ultimately would undermine the best interests of unionism.

W. T. Rawleigh company was placed on the unaif rilst last week by the building trades council after Mr. Pitts reported the manner in which his requests for a conference with plant officials were received.

Mr. Pelley says that if the government is going to subsidize other forms of transportation, it should subsidize railroads. The government's been doing that for 100 years. Railroads have got public subsidies in cash of more than $700,000,000; and land subsidies larger than France, Belgium and the Netherlands together. Whatd'y'mean, subsidy?

South Needs Home-Owned Industries, Says U-T Engineer

Knoxville.- Instead of flirting with outside capitalists in an effort to get new factories, the south should promote the growth of locally-owned industries, said William H. Baskerbill, assistant professor of chemical engineering at the University of Tennessee, in a radio address over Station WSM.

"If the south is ever to rise to a very high economic level, there must be an additional expansion from within," Mr. Baskerbill said. "With her agricultural system working under a decided handicap, and her industries paying low wages, with the profits going largely to outside interests, the chances for the development of large financial resources within the region have been small."

Because the south has not furnished the necessary capital for industrial development, in some instances resources have been sold to outside interests at very low prices, he continued. "Having learned some of the advantages of an industrial income to supplement our agricultural income, the craving seems to be to get more industry, regardless of the price."

Locally-owned industries in the south necessarily start small, and are under certain handicaps, said Mr. Baskerbill.

"They need research facilities that they do not have, and the engineering colleges of the region do not have the money to furnish. It is they who need the industrial inducements that are now going to outsiders."

Former President Benes, of Czechoslovakia, will lecture at the University of Chicago next winter. On the international sell-out, perhaps.

HARLEY FOWLER
for
UNITED STATES SENATOR

The foundation upon which Labor Unions rest is the Constitution of the United States. Without it there can be no Labor Unions.

FOWLER SAYS:

"When I became a lawyer I took an oath to support the Constitution of the United States, and I am making this race in fulfillment of that pledge."

FOWLER SAYS:

"I believe that it is right and proper for laborers to combine for their own advancement and protection, and that the Employer has no right to dictate to the Employees to what particular Union they shall belong. Laborers should have the right to exercise collective bargaining through an agency of their own choosing and should be protected in that right."

How Horrible!

Slowly the hands of the clock crept around to the hour, and at the first chime the procession commenced to wend its way to the scaffold.

William Smith had just eaten a hearty meal, and his face showed no trace of fear. Upon arrival at the scaffold, everything was placed in position, and the rope was adjusted.

With a last look at his watch to see that the time had really arrived, the man in authority gave the signal, and William Smith and his fellow - bricklayers recommenced work after the dinner hour.

Federal Judge Orders Hague to Respect Constitutional Rights in Jersey City

Newark, N. J.—Jersey City is a part of the United States and subject to its laws, Federal Judge William Clark has ruled, in effect.

Judge Clark ordered Mayor Hague and other officials of Jersey City to cease interfering with the constitutional rights of speakers and union organizers who tried to enter the city.

He made the ruling in a suit brought in the U. S. district court by the American Civil Liberties union and the CIO. The suit was argued some months ago.

Judge Clark, with a 15,000-word opinion, issued a restraining order against the Jersey City officials who had been charged by the plaintiffs with abrogation of civil rights in numerous particulars ranging from preventing the distribution of union literature to the "deportation" from Jersey City of individuals represented by the plaintiffs.

Four Restrictions Imposed.

The court's order imposed specific restrictions on the Jersey City officials in four particulars:

1. It prohibits any interference with the plaintiff's rights to enter Jersey City and forbids city officials from deporting those whom the city deems undesirable.

2. It prohibits interference with the plaintiffs' rights to carry placards.

3. It prohibits interference with the distribution of leaflets and other literature by the plaintiffs.

4. It prohibits interference with the plaintiffs' rights to speak in public places for which permits were duly sought.

In two respects, Judge Clark's order was qualified.

Two Qualifications.

He did not rule on the question of renting public halls, holding that no competent evidence had been adduced to show that city officials had forced hall owners into an attitude hostile to the plaintiffs. Rather, he said, the hall owners appeared reluctant to rent their buildings because they agreed with city officials in their stand toward the plaintiff organizations.

On the section of the plaintiffs' petition dealing with the right to picket under the national labor relations act, Judge Clark likewise issued no ruling, but recalled that he had ruled favorably on the claims of the CIO in an earlier injunction issued March 15, 1937. That decision, he said, had been appealed and was pending in the Third circuit court. He said he would wait outcome of that appeal.

A MESSAGE TO ORGANIZED LABOR

What YOU BUY and WHERE You Buy It

MAKES . . .

The LABOR WORLD

. . . GREATER

BUSINESS MEN who advertise regularly in THE LABOR WORLD are responsible for the recent enlargement of the paper. A larger paper gives new strength and prestige to the labor movement in Chattanooga.

BEING BUSINESS MEN, if their advertising does not bring results which they can trace to THE LABOR WORLD, these advertisers will not continue to use the paper.

THE LABOR WORLD is the only voice of organized labor in Chattanooga. It is YOUR voice—you who read the paper. In helping THE LABOR WORLD to grow YOU are creating an agency of great value to YOU—personally.

PERSONAL PRIDE, personal interest and organization expediency demand that union people buy from business men who advertise regularly in THE LABOR WORLD.

WHEN YOU NEED SOMETHING, first try to buy it from some of the regular advertisers in THE LABOR WORLD. If each of our readers will adopt this policy, and stick to it, we will build one of the nation's greatest labor organs here in Chattanooga—and very quickly . . . and it will help the unions of Chattanooga to secure improvement in conditions affecting our working people.

THE LABOR WORLD is already something to be very proud of, and if readers stick to the cause it will surprise all of you.

LET'S GO! Buy from advertisers in THE LABOR WORLD—and tell them WHY you are buying from them. Tell business men who are not advertising that they should use THE LABOR WORLD if they want a share of Chattanooga's great union trade.

AND FINALLY, if you hear any news about any of our people, yourself included, call us up and tell us about it. Call us when you have talked to some advertiser, and think we can get him to advertise in THE LABOR WORLD.

THE LABOR WORLD, Telephone 6-7562

HATS FOR SOLDIERS CARRY UNION LABEL

Washington—Whether history is to decree war or peace for the United States, nobody knows—but whatever happens, thousands of privates in the United States army will do their duty under hats that carry the union label behind the sweat-band.

This important news was received here by the Union Label Trades Department of the American Federation of Labor from Norwalk, Conn., where the American Hat company has just received another order for 25,000 army lids. The company has a signed contract with the United Hatters, Cap and Millinery Workers' International union.

When the order for 25,000 has been completed that will make 55,000 union label army hats, according to Hugh J. Glover, organizer for the hatters' union.

One of the nation's foremost gridiron strategians, Coach Bernie Bierman, is shown in this candid camera study as he watched his Minnesota Gophers during a workout for their title defense of the coveted Big Ten championship. Coach of the Minnesota eleven since 1932, Bierman's Gopher teams won national honors in 1934-5-6, and the Western conference crown, or a share in it, in 1934, 1935 and 1937.

TAKE IT or LEAVE IT

Points of View Picked Up From Various Sources
CY KOLOGY, EDITOR

Warning of price increases is heard in the land. Everything from beans to structural steel is going up, it is asserted. Secretary of Commerce Roper says premature price boosts might impede business recovery. Others take a gloomier view and say the nation is headed for a time of steadily rising prices, which will pinch the workers severely.'

Business will cut its own throat if it doesn't keep prices down. It has profited mightily in the past from quantity production at low prices. This plan still works.

A new pamphlet by the public affairs committee places emphasis on the power of the modern industrial executive to adopt a sensible pricing policy.

"Instead of adding costs together in order to arrive at a price, aggressive business men have started with the needs of the consumer and his ability to buy, and then set about finding a way to satisfy these needs at a price the consumer can afford to buy," says the pamphlet.

* * *

Prices in the United States can hardly escape being affected by the proposed big new armament program. The program will cost money—plenty of money. Some estimates place it at a billion dollars. The worker will foot the bill. He will pay and pay. These facts are plain. The armament program may be wise or it may be unwise; it may be necessary or it may be unnecessary.

This is not an argument pro or con. It is a plea for understanding what a vast armament program will cost in terms of human welfare. Such a program will bring higher and higher taxes. It will bring a period of a declining standard of living—a period into which the whole world seems moving. It will place a load on every citizen, since a big slice of the national income will go into non-productive instruments of death.

* * *

Edward F. McGrady warned the International Labor Conference at Geneva last year that armaments placed a staggering load on the worker and threatened even our "present inadequate standards of living."

Now comes Joseph P. Kennedy, American ambassador to Great Britain, emphasizing the same thing.

"The arms burden, in the final analysis, comes out of the livelihood of the workers of the world," Kennedy said recently.

Monopoly investigation headed by Senator O'Mahoney is hiding its light under a bushel or something similar.

September and October were supposed to see the investigators in full cry, according to advance ballyhoo.

Can it be that politics and the election have something to do with the delay in starting the hearings? When the investigation does start, it will be following in the path of a committee which made a monopoly inquiry 'way back in 1900, nearly 40 years ago.

Oldsters recall the report in 19 volumes, signed, among others, by those hard-boiled reactionaries, Senator Boise Penrose and Representative William Lorimer.

Most of its recommendations have since been made law. One which has not was a proposal for legislation very similar to the federal corporation licensing bill introduced by Senator O'Mahoney and much in the news the last two years.

"There is no new thing under the sun," it was pointed out long ago.

During September, 270 old-age insurance claims, averaging $44.94 were paid in Tennessee and 237 in Georgia average $12.20, it is announced by Louis R. Stein, Jr., manager of the Social Security Board's Chattanooga Field Office. In the same period the national total of claims paid was 17,133 for an average of $53.05.

"Since the old-age insurance system went into effect January 1, 1937, more than 216,500 claims, representing a total of $8,539,739.44 have been certified for payment," Mr. Stein said. "Each single cash payment is equal to 3½ percent of the total taxable wages paid to the individual for work in industry and commerce. Claims now being paid are lump sums to relatives of workers who have died or to workers themselves who have attained the age of 65 since January 1, 1937.

BAKERS AND CONFECTIONERS' LABEL

This Label is an important safeguard of the Bakery and Confectionery Workers' International Union for its members against inhuman conditions, low wages and long working hours. People demanding this Label are not only supporting the Bakery and Confectionery Workers, protecting them against the conditions mentioned, but they are also protecting themselves and their families against the spread of disease-breeding germs which exist in unsanitary bake-shops. Our Label is only granted to sanitary and clean bakeries. If a bakery owner lives up to the requirements of our organization, he may use our Label. The Union shop workers are subject to health examination by Union physician and health maintenance by Union support.

Other requirements are (a) Sanitation and cleanliness in the shop; (b) treatment of the workers as human beings; (c) reasonable hours of work; (d) payment of the Union wage scale. Bakeries not displaying our Label on their products do not meet with either one or all of the above-stated requirements. Any fair-minded employer, however, will not object to them and may use the above Label. Does the bread you buy bear this protective Label of the Bakery and Confectionery Workers? We solicit your cooperation.

$250,000,000 Wage Cut Rejected By Railroad Fact-Finding Board

Roosevelt Body Finds Wage of Railway Workers Is Not High as Compared With Compensation of Workers in Other Industries, and Holds That a Wage Slash in the Railroad Industry "Would Run Counter to Trend of Wage Rates in Industry Generally."

Washington. — The emergency fact finding board appointed by President Roosevelt recommended that the Class One railroads withdraw their proposal to reduce the wages of around 1,000,000 employes by 15 per cent.

Basing their conclusion on a series of public hearings held between Sept. 30 and Oct. 17, when representatives of the nineteen standard railway labor unions and representatives of the carriers went exhaustively into the proposed reduction which would take $250,000,000 out of the pay envelopes of railway employes for the benefit of the owners of railroad securities, the fact-finding board presented President Roosevelt with the following conclusions:

"1. The wages of railway labor are not high even as compared with wages in other comparable industries.

"2. A horizontal reduction of wages on a national scale would not meet the financial emergency of the industry, since the savings would not be distributed merely to the needy roads.

"3. A wage reduction in the railroad industry would run counter to the trend of wage rates in industry generally.

"4. The financial distress of the carriers which has obtained since October, 1937, when the last wage increases were granted, is as yet a short-term situation. As such it cannot be regarded as grounds for a wage reduction, especially in view of present indications of an improvement in the business of the carriers.

"5. In the light of these findings, the board concludes that the proposal of the carriers for a reduction of the wages of railway labor should not be pressed and recommends that the carriers withdraw and cancel the notices which would put such a reduction into operation as of Dec. 1, 1938."

Emergency Board Members.

The emergency board consisted of Chief Justice Walter P. Stacy, of the North Carolina supreme court; Dr. Harry A. Mills, retiring chairman of the department of economics of the University of Chicago, and Dean James M. Landis, of the Harvard Law school.

End of Dispute Is Visioned.

Under the railway labor act the recommendations made by the emergency fact-finding board are not binding on either the railroad managers or the railroad labor unions. The railroads may put a wage reduction into effect after thirty days if they wish to do so. In that case the railway labor unions would be expected to carry [illegible] nal transportation policy."

through their strike threat, which created the emergency.

But it is believed in Washington that as a result of the White House conference called by the president a truce in the dispute between the unions and the carriers will materialize with special reference to these two recommendations of the emergency board:

1. "The evidence before the board has impressed it with the necessity that now rests on government for a complete and thorough-going reconsideration of the relationship of the railroad industry to our national well-being. * * *

2. "The hearings before this board have thoroughly impressed it with the fact that both carriers and railway labor have now a vital and common concern in the working out of an adequate na-

"TIME" MAGAZINE PEDDLES ANTI-UNIO FAIRY TALES

Chicago, Ill.—The organization committee of Chicago printing trades unions issued a statement last week that vast numbers of union men and women and sympathetic friends of labor are refusing to subscribe to or otherwise purchase Time and Life, two products of the notorious anti-union concern of R. R. Donnelley & Sons company. In an effort to offset this campaign against their publications the publishers of Time and Life have pursued a policy of deliberate misrepresentation of the Donnelley plant. A considerable number of union people have written to these publications, informing them that they will not patronize a Donnelley product. In an effort to "whitewash" Time of the charge of anti-unionism a certain I. Van Meter, who bears the title "editorial secretary," has sent identical letters to a number of union people who, in turn, have sent the letters to the organization committee of Chicago printing trades unions.

In these letters the editorial secretary of Time says:

> In the first place, Time is not anti-labor. I know that I do not have to say that, but I will just to make sure that it is understood.

But in the following paragraph of the letter the editorial secretary proves that Time is anti-labor. The following absurd statement is put forth by way of explanation of the relationship of Time and the Donnelley outfit:

> In the next place, Time has been printed at Donnelley's for ten years or more. During this time they have developed a unique printing operation which could not be duplicated by us elsewhere within several years. When you consider the fact that the editorial content of a million copies of Time goes to press Tuesday morning, goes on the stands from coast to coast on Friday morning, you will realize what an exceptional operation this is. The mechanical side has been developed for us by Donnelley over this long period of years.

The above paragraph from the letters sent out by the editorial secretary of Time is nothing other than a brazen repetition of the unprincipled ballyhoo used by Donnelley and his henchmen in an effort to create the impression that the Donnelley plants are the only ones in the country capable of handling a certain class of work. Furthermore, any person who knows anything at all about printing machinery, and equipment generally, knows that there is not any printing process in the world that cannot be completely duplicated down to the last detail in three months' time. If Donnelley has been able to make the publishers of Time and Life believe he has a unique process not now in use by other printing establishments and not available to them then they are among the most gullible people in the world and totally unfit to edit and publish any serious product. And certainly no one is going to accuse the management of Time and Life of belonging to the most backward section of the population. Hence there is but one conclusion to be drawn from the letters of the editorial secretary of Time and that is that the Time management is consciously anti-union and hopes deliberately to deceive union men and women into believing that Time management is all right but that unfortunately they are so involved with the Donnelley menage that nothing can be done about it.

Time and Life know the printing trades unions can refer them to a score or more union printing enterprises in the United States that can turn out any job that is now done by Donnelley's and do it vastly better and more efficient. A half dozen other printing concerns right here in Chicago regularly handle jobs similar to Time and Life and in addition handle other and more intricate printing work than Donnelley with his present equipment can possibly handle.

To claim, as does Time, that only Donnelley can handle their work is nothing more nor less than a plain swindle, and the printing trades unions shall see to it that every union man and woman in this country properly evaluates all such fraudulent arguments for exactly what they are—miserable apologies for an anti-union policy on the part of the publishers of Time and Life.

U-T Dean Speaks On Vocational Changes

Knoxville.—Despite unemployment problems puzzling America, today's youth has just as good a chance to succeed as any other generation, declared Dean Fred C. Smith of the University of Tennessee, speaking on the "U-T Radio Youth Hour" over Station WSM. On the other hand, the chance for failure today is greater than ever before, he added.

"The opportunity for successful and satisfying occupational and social life today is as great as ever before if a goal has been set with intelligence and adequate preparation made to achieve that goal," said Dean Smith. "I am also convinced that there is an unusual chance for failure today for those who have not thought through their employment problems, and who have not prepared for any kind of work."

Speaking on "Shifting Vocational Patterns," Dean Smith summarized the trends in the various occupations, pointing out notable increases and decreases in the demand for workers during the past twenty years. His summary follows:

Occupations which have employed men in greatly increasing numbers are: Foresters and rangers, general mechanics, chauffeurs and truck drivers, floorwalkers and foremen in stores, salespersons, designers and draftsmen, teachers, engineers, chefs, accountants and auditors.

Occupations for men in which employment has decreased: Miners, blacksmiths, operatives in cigar, tobacco, suit, coat and overall factories, draymen and teamsters, conductors on street railways, nurses and stenographers.

Occupations for women in which employment has increased: Bakers, chauffeurs, commercial travelers, insurance agents, real estate agents, undertakers, guards and doorkeepers, policewomen, clergywomen, trained nurses, barbers, hairdressers and manicurists, restaurant and cafeteria operators.

Occupations for women which have decreased: Farm laborers, dressmakers and seamstresses, tailors, dentists, operatives in cigar and tobacco factories, and mail carriers.

"Probably 90 per cent of all women eventually become homemakers, but a majority follow other occupations for five years or less," he said. "This constitutes a special problem. Often the most happy solution is found by the girl who prepares herself for some occupation, like nursing or social work, from which she can make a logical transfer when she becomes a homemaker, and which she might resume without too great a loss of skill or interest should she again become self-supporting."

Tepco Strike Called Off; Labor Board To Hear Charges By Electrical Union

Strikers Will Demand Their Jobs Back--Power Company Remains on Central Body "Unfair" List---Nobody Killed

The strike called by the employes of the Tennessee Power company on Aug. 23 was officially voted off by the members of the I. B. E. W. last Friday night. Applications for reinstatement to former positions are being made by the men who have been on strike. It is believed the company will reinstate men rather than face charges before the labor board, which, it is said, will be filed by those men whose applications for reinstatement are rejected by the company.

The company had made a proposition earlier in the month to the effect that if the men would tender their resignations from the company's services, and then apply for their jobs, thus becoming new employes, and by the same action wipe out all claims as employes of long standing, that the company would take them back. This ridiculous proposition was, of course, rejected by the men.

Many labor officials in this area have expressed the hope that no one will think that the strike has been lost. True it is that the strikers did not win their objectives, but the very fact that the employes of this powerful company, whose record is one long history of ruthlessness, have demonstrated to the company that they could and would strike against intolerable conditions, has served notice on the Tennessee Power company that its long day of uninterrupted bossism has come to the end of the way.

MEATCUTTERS' NOTES

Local 600 has just enrolled four new members—Clyde Barfoot, of Barfoot & Wells Grocery company (East Chattanooga); J. A. Smith, Smith's meat market in the A. & P. store (East Chattanooga), and Jack Chandler. Jack is the son of Brother C. R. Chandler, who is secretary of the Meatcutters' union here.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Harvey, 412 Hampton avenue, announce the birth of a baby girl last Monday. The newcomer weighs 11½ pounds. Both mother and baby are doing well, and Local 600 offers congratulations to the proud parents.

Teacher Talk

The federation has completed its depositions in the city salary suit, and is waiting for the city to do the same so that the case may be argued before the chancellor. Last spring, it will be recalled, a vote was taken by the federation, and the verdict was to sue to determine the validity of the law rather than to collect back salaries. If the provisions of the law should prove satisfactory, then amendments could better it, the principle having been established.

* * *

An error was made last week concerning pension provisions. The county teachers are now allowed to apply five years or less of experience in other systems to their pension time by paying the annual percentage that they would have paid had they been in the county system during that time, plus six per cent interest for the period. The legislation committee is now working for a like provision for the city.

* * *

The membership committee, headed by J. Stegar Hunt, seconded in the city by Miss Margaret O'Grady and in the county by Mrs. Ethel Stroud, are laying plans for a real increase of teacher unionists. . . It has been pointed out that some members who have dropped out are under the mistaken impression that they must pay dues for the entire period when they were non-members in order to be reinstated. This is not the case. The six months dues owed at the time of being dropped, a $2 reinstatement fee, and current dues will bring the erring one back into the fold.

* * *

Contrary to popular rumor, the average membership of the federation during last year was practically as high as it had been in past years. With reinstatements taking place now and a big membership drive coming soon, we hope soon to report a record membership.

* * *

Some very attractive courses have been organized by a group of trade unionists and other interested people—the workers' education committee of Hamilton county. Dramatics, current events and parliamentary law are the subjects of the present courses. Already in progress, they will run for four more weeks. Any member of the federation is welcome to attend the sessions, and tuition is free. Dramatics is taught by Nathan Hightower on Tuesday evening, 7:30-9 o'clock; current events by Travis Headrick on Thursday from 8 to 9:30, and parliamentary law by Arlie Hoodenpyl, Tuesday, 7:30 to 9, all classes meeting in the Ferber building.

This group, of which the chairman is Nancy (Mrs. Stanton) Smith, is going to sponsor a southwide conference on workers' education at an early date. Following this, another six-weeks' term will be organized.

NOTICE

Chattanooga Central Labor Union will meet Monday night in regular session, Central Labor Hall, West Seventh Street, at 7:30 p.m. All delegates are requested and expected to be present.

Gov. Browning to represent Tennessee and labor at the annual conference in Washington called by Secretary of Labor Perkins. This conference is attended by representatives from all the states to discuss labor legislation.

Poll Tax Will Provide "Fireworks" At Birmingham's Labor Conference

Mrs. Franklin Roosevelt Will Attend Entire Day Nov. 22 and to Address Southerners That Evening at Auditorium

Birmingham, Ala.—Appointment of Virginius Dabney, nationally known editor of the Richmond Times-Dispatch, as chairman of the suffrage committee of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare, which meets in Birmingham Nov. 20-23, was announced today by Judge Louise O. Charlton, general chairman of the conference.

The suffrage committee's sessions are expected to provide some of the real fireworks of the southern conference, since it is this group which will deal with the problems of liberalizing the poll tax laws.

Dr. Herman Clarence Nixon, of New Orleans, field chairman, stated that seven of the eight states in America which require voters to pay poll tax are located in the south. He also cited the National Emergency council's report that more than half of the white citizens of these states are barred from voting, due to accumulation of back poll tax.

Judge Charlton announced that hundreds of leading southerners have enlisted as members of the suffrage committee and that their views on this topic are believed to be widely divergent. It is expected that the conference will recommend liberalization of poll tax requirements, but it will not be known until the suffrage committee adjourns whether this liberalization would take the form of outright abolition of the poll tax in the south. There are many southern advocates of abolition for the cumulative feature of the tax, Judge Charlton said.

Early entries in the suffrage committee membership, it was announced at headquarters here, indicate an unusual interest on the part of organized labor in this topic.

A headline attraction of the conference will be an address the night of Nov. 22 by Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt. The first lady of America will attend conference session all day Nov. 22 and on that night will address a public session of the conference in the municipal auditorium. General attendance is being invited. There will be no charge for admission.

Gov. Bibb Graves, of Alabama, will be chairman of the conference committee on freight rate differentials. Dr. Herman Clarence Nixon, of New Orleans, will serve as chairman of the farm tenancy committee. Dr. Frank Graham, president of the University of North Carolina, has been named chairman of a southwide committee to award the conference's annual Thomas Jefferson medal. This medal, designed and contributed by Rockwell Kent, noted artist, is to be presented the southern statesman judged most outstanding in promotion of human welfare in the south along the lines of the philosophy of Thomas Jefferson.

In addition to the topics already named, the conference will discuss labor relations and unemployment, housing, prison reform, constitutional rights, public health, race relations, education, youth problems and women and children in industry.

Known as "the south's answer" to the National Emergency council report on southern economic conditions, the gathering here will be held for the purpose of mapping out a program to correct southern economic evils. Its sponsors include hundreds of the south's most widely known men ano women.

Elect Labor's Friends

By CHARLES STELZLE
Executive Director, Good Neighbor League

Organized labor in the United States is in many ways facing one of the most serious situations in its history. It has internal problems which have brought division and conflict, but these will undoubtedly be worked out in due time, because its members must realize that the only place where we can live is in unity.

But these are other situations which confront labor today, some of which may bring about its [illegible] Industry. Because of the united [illegible] it has [illegible] of the [illegible] in the United States, and [illegible] to destroy its power and strength.

These forces are operating in various parts of the country but the outstanding purpose of reactionary legislation which was greatly [illegible] organized labor is to attempt to make impossible the progress, progress of which it has been long denied in spite of the general recognition of its justice.

The most important factor in determining whether organized labor shall be hated will be the results of the election on Nov. 8. Practically every candidate for office [illegible] to be a friend of labor. Whether he is one or not may be determined by his record. If he has held office before, this record can easily be established. If he has not been elected, his general attitude toward the voter in the campaign, as clearly evidenced by his platform pronouncements and campaign literature, will indicate his position.

Labor has a right to expect that its friends will be elected to office. It has a right to expect that its friends will be elected to office. It has a right to expect that its friends will be elected to office. It

The Auxiliary to Typographical Union No. 89 is practically a fact now. At a meeting last Tuesday night thirty-nine ladies signed the petition for a charter and plans are going ahead for the installation of that charter at the next meeting, which will be held on Tuesday night, Dec. 13.

The members are enthusiastic about the new organization and spent a great deal of time Tuesday night in adopting a constitution and by-laws. The committee for drawing up the constitution was composed of Mrs. Ted Kirby, Mrs. Harry Maupin and Mrs. J. M. Peyer.

The Women's Auxiliary to the Postal Clerks will meet next Wednesday afternoon, Nov. 16, at 2 o'clock at the home of Mrs. Grover Robertson, Ringgold road. Associate hostesses will be Mrs. William Burnette and Mrs. George Ackley. Mrs. Eugene Melvin is president of the auxiliary.

Interest in auxiliary work is growing right along. . . . Rumor has it that the Pressmen have appointed a committee to see about organizing the ladies in the pressmen family.

Today is a big day . . . the biggest little boy has invited his mother to lunch at school. Closed Shop Pact With North Shore Line Benefits Chicago Electric Railway Union

Wage Cut Sought by Receiver Defeated—Employes Must Become Union Members.

Chicago, Ill.—Members of Division 900 of the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employes of America, are greatly elated over the smashing victory they won over the agreement which ended the seven-week lockout on the North Shore Line, which operates an electric interurban system between Chicago and Milwaukee.

The employes returned to work with a signed agreement which stipulated that Division 900 is the sole collective bargaining agency and provides that none but members of the Amalgamated association may be employed in the operation of the property.

The Amalgamated association won the fight against the arbitrary 15 per cent wage cut which the receiver for the North Shore Line attempted to impose when he canceled the contract on Aug. 15.

According to the agreement under which the men returned to work the scale of wages in effect before the lockout was maintained, except that for sixty days the higher-paid employes accepted receiver's certificates in lieu of 20 per cent of their wages and for thirty days accepted these certificates for 15 per cent of their pay. It was provided that employes whose wages are 50 cents per hour or less would receive full pay in cash.

Negotiations on wages, hours and working conditions to take effect at the end of the 90-day period were begun immediately after the agreement went into operation. If after thirty days from this date no agreement is reached, the questions in dispute will be submitted to an arbitration board.

Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson, in whose court the receivership lies, signed the order placing the agreement in effect. He previously had directed the receiver to ignore the contentions of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen and Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, and deal exclusively with the Amalgamated association. These two "independents" had appealed to the national labor relations board for certification as the representatives of the motormen and conductors on the system. The board, after hearing the facts, declined to issue a ruling.

The Amalgamated association paid out better than $40,000 in lockout benefits to its members during the stoppage of work.

The Illinois State Federation of Labor, at its annual convention at Peoria, Ill., condemned the Brotherhoods for their dual and disruptive tactics in trying to dismember the Amalgamated association. Judge Wilkerson, at the hearing at which he signed the agreement order, alluded to the strong suspicion that the Trainmen and Firemen were working hand in glove with the two steam railroads which compete with the North Shore Line for freight and passenger business between Chicago and Milwaukee.

The Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor at its session in Atlantic City in Auguest gave support to the Amalgamated association in its struggle against the two brotherhoods.

Streamliners Reported Railroad Money Makers

New York City.—Coverdale and Colpitts, a firm of engineers which has specialized in high speed, streamlined, light weight, stainless steel railroad trains, has made a survey which they say proves that these trains are the best paying investment the railroads have.

The Burlington Zephyrs earn, net, 67.8 per cent of their gross receipts. The streamliners of the Santa Fe earn clear gains of 61.3 per cent. The Hiawathas of the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul & Pacific clear 74.1 per cent of their takings.

Naturally, the firm which designs these trains would say nothing against them, but no one has even suggested that they are stretching the facts.

Americanism and Unionism

[illegible] to the utterance of Decatur, "My country, right or wrong," we also add, "May she always be right." When our country does something which is not fair and square, it is an American duty to right the wrong. At the same time, no good American would renounce his country because of that misdeed.

At the same time, I hold no other loyalty above my loyalty to my union and my country. One is not superior to the other. Neither of these loyalties has ever conflicted. They never will. Our union movement has made many mistakes, and will make more mistakes. I am still loyal to my union, all the while attempting to remedy our errors and get back on the right path.

Therefore, when we spread our flag of unionism to the breeze, alongside with Old Glory, we say, "My country and union, right or wrong, but may they always be right."

We Grow Steadily

The labor movement continues to make advancements along all lines, as is evidenced by the increase in membership in fields already organized, as well as new organizations.

This is shown by the ever-increasing mailing lists of The Labor World. All members of unions affiliated with the Central Labor Union receive a copy of their labor paper each week as a part of their membership dues. This past week there have been many additions made by the Culinary Workers, Hodcarriers, Teachers' No. 428, Meatcutters, and the Bridge and Structural Iron Workers, Local 526.

We are always glad to welcome new members into the ranks of organized labor. The Labor World is YOUR paper--read it carefully every week and send in news about your union and anything of interest about the members of your local. AMERICANISM and Unionism the SAME.

HAPPY VALLEY DAIRY IS ANTI-UNION

Labor Is Proved Right

The ICC had approved a plan for remodeling [illegible] of the [illegible] & Ohio railroad. Interest charges are [illegible] per year on these debts, and [illegible] annual charges on debts of [illegible]. The holders of these notes and bonds are not to be taxed [illegible] and nothing is done about the [illegible] with the B. & O. goes to the Reconstruction Finance corporation. And Pauley [illegible] a hoped to stave off a receivership under the bankruptcy statute.

The witness says the interest charges, but it [illegible] a selling charge in the weight of the [illegible] and when the unsolved, intricate, [illegible] "plan," reference is made to railroad bonds. What fifty years ago, or even ten years ago, have anything worth mentioning [illegible] what would happen to the B. &O. by this [illegible]. That would substitute one series of [illegible] for another!

The same announcement proves that railroad [illegible] in March a flat a 15 per cent [illegible] not let the railroads out of the [illegible] and the president, and [illegible] were right, too.

"The Open Door"

For twenty years or more, American statesmen have insisted on the "open door in China." The phrase, indeed, was invented away back in the Boxer rebellion days, when our secretary of state used it to head off the partition of China. It has been a basic principle of American diplomacy. But where is the open door now?

There isn't any. Japan has formally closed it. [illegible] islands of less than 150,000 square miles and perhaps 70,000,000 people, announces [illegible] as the ruler, master, dictator of a region [illegible] as large as the United States, with [illegible] people. All trade of other peoples with China is to be controlled by Japan, which means that there won't be any worth mentioning.

A Plain Warning

Pointing out that the criminal acts of Richard Whitney, former president of the New York Stock Exchange, had continued for twelve years, and that though many of his associates knew of his rascality, none of them gave him away, the securities and exchange commission report sums up thus:

"The attitude that the stock exchange was more of a private club than a public institution, and that its responsibilities were to its members rather than to the nation of investors which it served, has had a long history. It was a well entrenched customary attitude. But although it can thus be explained, it cannot be permitted to continue."

COOKS' AND WAITERS' SCRAPS

»»»» Louise Tinker, Correspondent ««««

Tuesday night is our regular meeting night. We expect you to be present. It is your organization, you know, and it will be whatever you make it.

* * *

Miss Euba Morgan, our capable president, is at the Rathskeller on Cherry street. Elba will always be glad to have her friends and former customers visit her at her new location.

* * *

Seems mighty good to be home again.

* * *

We've a new restaurant—that is, a new union house. It is the Union cafe on South Broad street. This restaurant is located in the section of town where the Hedges-Walsh-Weidner, U. S. Pipe and Giles foundries are and we wish to use this means of thanking the molders who helped to bring about the placing of a card in this restaurant. A. J. Hardy operates this new union house.

* * *

Had a nice visit out to Jack's place in East Chattanooga this week—our first in several weeks. Saw lots of people we knew. They were people of organized labor.

* * *

You wouldn't dare hire a non-union painter to paint your house, a non-union carpenter to do repair work to your house, ride a non-union cab, let a barber who is not a union man cut your hair, neither would you have your printing done in a shop where they could not furnish you with the label, would you? Do you always eat in a restaurant where there is a union house card? Stop and think. What helps you helps us you know.

* * *

* * *

As we have told you before, there has been a death in the Culinary Workers' circle. It was Erskine Edmondson. Now Erskine had a lot of friends among the restaurant workers as she had been employed at Moreland's for several years. She was a very reliable member and her presence will long be missed by those who knew and daily came in contact with her.

* * *

Don't be the kind of fellow who will enjoy the good things others have made possible for you without giving anything in return. Every worker should join the union of their craft.

* * *

The State cafe has been redecorated—all in green, a light green with dark green trimmings. Of course, the work was done by union labor.

* * *

We have tried so hard this week to stay calm and well collected, but right here on the very last we go on the war path and the reason is that only Tuesday of this week we find one of our chairman of a well-known organization smoking a popular non-union brand of cigarettes, and did we tell him about it too? He goes about telling us that all his clothing has the labels. Well, brother, your cigarettes don't have and now is a good time to buy your smokes with the label. They don't make you cough, and too, union-made cigarettes do satisfy if you want them to. It depends on you, you know.

"I Don't Mind Working Hard, But I'm Worth More Than $60 a Month"

He walked in the office with all the assurance of conquering youth — a clean-cut chap with pleasant ways and appearance. He wanted a job.

"I graduated last spring from ..... university with a degree in business administration," he said. "It took me four years and four thousand dollars to finish the work. I can give you excellent references."

He sat down. Despondency was strangely lacking. Neither was there any cockiness of attitude which many of our college youth spread about. He seemed reconciled to what faced him—as he described it "finding a job, any kind, that will pay me enough to eat, sleep and clothe myself."

"I know what you're going to say," he admitted with a slight smile. "You're going to tell me you just don't need another man. You're going to tell me my references are good and that my qualifications are good, but that you just don't need another man.

"I hear that a lot, and I guess I'm kinda getting used to it. But it's not easy.

"I guess I'm lucky, really. You see, I have a job offered me in a bank. They say they will pay me fifty dollars a month. It's not easy, you know, living off fifty dollars a month when you have to keep dressed up all the time, live in a decent place, and have enough to eat.

"I'm willing to work and to work hard, but it just looks funny to me that my earning capacity is less than $12.50 a week. I made more than that working at a soda fountain one summer before I got out of high school. 'Course, they say times were better then than they are now. . . .

"This is a labor newspaper, isn't it? I guess you print all the things about unions and what organized labor is doing . . . Huh, we used to study about labor unions at the university. They were training us to be executives . . . Executives—that seems funny now.

"Yes, the professors told us a lot about unions, except they never did say anything favorable about 'em. We were told about how an employer has got to be ready to take care of men who try to start up a union. The professors said unions never did do any good.

"Now I wish I was in a union, because from what you say there's not a single one which has a wage scale as lo was $50 a month.

"Sure, I'll take the job they're offering me. I'm darn glad to get it because I've spent my folks' money long enough. I just thought I'd look around a little and try to get something a little better.

"Two years ago I promised my girl we'd get married this winter. I'm afraid to promise her now that we'll ever get married . . . but I know you aren't interested in hearing about my troubles.

"Thanks for listening to me. I'll be seein' you."

demonstrated its policy and purpose to deny the men their right to organize in this advanced age when organization of labor is recognized as a just and proper condition by every one, from the president of the United States to the corner grocer, the Tennessee Electric Power company holds on to its old policy of placing thugs and gunmen in strategic positions where they can use their guns on their union employes in order to kill the union.

The policy of the Tennessee Electric Power company is one cause of the growth and popularity of the TVA. The high-handed, rule-or-ruin policy of Jo Con Guild, Jr., president of the Tennessee Electric Power company, has created so much resentment against his company that the public votes almost unanimously for the TVA, or anything else that is in opposition to the power magnates.

President Guild seems unable to learn anything from peaceful progress made by the Georgia Power company, where men are treated as men. The fact that the Georgia Power and Light company works under an agreement with its union employes, to the decided advantage of the company, the employes and the public, seems to have no meaning for Mr. Guild.

The fact that such power companies as the Tennessee Electric Power company are rapidly going out of business, because of the high-handed policies of the power trust in the past, compared to the fact that the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers is growing greater all the time, ought to be sufficient evidence that men engaged in the work of the power industry of the United States are going to have their organization, as they are so justly entitled to have. No labor official in this section has any doubt whatever about the ultimate outcome of the contest between the workers and the Tennessee Electric Power company. The I. B. E. W. has opened permanent headquarters here in Chattanooga, with but one thought in mind, and that is to continue its campaign until there exists a written agreement between the power company operating here and the I. B. E. W.

BIGGEST JOB GAIN THIS YEAR IN SEPTEMBER, A. F. OF L. SAYS

Washington. — Nearly 600,000 men and women went back to their jobs throughout the nation in September, the biggest employment gain in any month since the business slump started a year ago, the American Federation of Labor estimate in its monthly employment report based on figures from the federal government and other reliable sources.

Reports from local A. F. of L. unions indicate that employment increased still further in October. Weighted figures show that unemployment decreased from 14 per cent of the union membership to 13.5 per cent in the first part of October, the federation reports.

"In spite of these gains, however," the federation comments, "unemployment is still at a very high level. Our estimate shows 10,539,000 out of work in September, and, although the October gains have reduced this figure somewhat, there are probably more than 10,000,000 still out of work."

The federation says that employment gains in September were considerably larger than the usual seasonal gains, which it holds is further evidence that business recovery is under way again. Gains have been spread over nearly all fields of industrial activity.

The TVA investigation, carried on for weeks and then suspended for months, is to be resumed. Let it go through to a finish. But also, let it be said that up to date, no scandals have been uncovered, no errors found that cannot be matched in a thousand lesser tasks, and no wild howls so freely raised have been justified.

LAST YEAR 26,000 GIVERS

Subscribed to the Community Chest. 26,000 kind-hearted citizens who lent a hand where they knew there was a need. Yet about 10,000 persons who were asked to give said, "NO".

If any self-respecting person were to read the alibies, the excuses, the criticisms, the objections that these 10,000 persons gave --just to keep from giving---he would go to almost ANY extreme to keep from being included in that number.

It is a Community offering, in which EVERY ONE should have a part. It's an emergency fund to give relief, to end suffering, to help build better citizens and make this city a BETTER PLACE TO LIVE. ow Good Time to Make Stand Against Government Recognition of Regional Low Wage Scales — Norris Is Power for Fair Electric Rates — Hague Tyranny Hard Hit.

By GEORGE L. KNAPP

The proposal that 45 cents an ur should be made the minimum ge of steel mills in twelve south- states, as a means of qualify- those mills for government con- s under the Walsh-Healey act, uld be debated and challenged ply before being accepted.

t is true that the minimum ge of 62½ cents an hour pre- ibed for the other thirty-six tes seems satisfactory to the rkers, though the hearings ren't been held yet. It is true t only a small proportion of el workers are in the depressed gion. But the theory that a de- essed industry should be recog- ed in government purchases, : Uncle Sam will subsidize, by s orders, steel sweatshops if they ppen to be located below the ason and Dixon line, is simply t to be tolerated without a fight. he first battle may not get a uni- rm rate at the first battle, but is looks like a mighty good place make a start.

The report on which the 45 cent posal is based says that the gest employer of steel labor in south pays 36.5 cents an hour. re is a right good place to show northern manufacturers gone south for low wages that Uncle Sam is on their trail.

* * *

The federal power commission is out with some cheering news for the housewives of Washington, D. C. They are getting the cheapest electricity of any city of size for hundreds of miles. They pay for domestic use 98 cents for 25 kilowatt hours a month, while Baltimore pays $1.25; $3.10 for 100 kilowatt hours while Baltimore pays $3.90.

And Baltimore is lucky, compared to some places. Tilghman, Md., a little town on the eastern shore, pays $3 for that same 25 kwh. that Washington pays 98 cents for.

The real reason for Washington's luck is not known to all who share it. That reason is 77 years old, with a kindly face, a shock of white hair, and a double-barbed tongue when he wants to use it. It is Senator George W. Norris, of Nebraska, who has lambasted extortionate utility rates so that no one who can hear him on Capitol Hill has the nerve to charge them.

And, as father of TVA, he's cheapening household rates for the whole country.

* * *

Federal courts many, many times have issued injunctions crushing the liberties of citizens. Usually, though not always, this has been [illegible] at the plea of corporations, who wanted to hamstring their own employes. The Wilkerson injunction in the last real railroad strike, which forbade the strikers to use any measures in their own behalf, "except to indulge in silent prayer," was merely the worst of hundreds.

But in New Jersey, U. S. Circuit Court Judge William Clark has issued an injunction protecting the liberties of citizens, and curbing the arbitrary tyranny of Mayor Hague, of Jersey City. Hague may no longer deport labor organizers, nor stop and search without warrants the cars of labor organizers, may not deny permits and protection for such men as the three liberal congressmen, headed by Maverick, of Texas, whom he has refused to allow to speak in his bailiwick.

Thanks to this injunction, the bill of rights once more is effective in Jersey City.

The new deal could stand a much heavier loss in congress—if it only could pick the losers.

New victories are being chalked up each week in the most successful organization drive ever conducted by the A. F. of L. unions, the membership of which totals approximately 11,000.

Q. How did the United States get Alaska?

A. Alaska was purchased from Russia in 1867, for the sum of $7,200,000 in gold. There was much opposition to the purchase, because the area was believed to be not valuable. But in the forty years following the United States collected twice that amount in taxes from Alaska.

An Old Bank Takes a New Name

• Again a Pioneer has come to Chattanooga. This time it's a bank—the Morris Plan Bank, renamed to typify the old south—the old spirit of pioneer service—the new spirit of Pioneer Bank service.

• Morris Plan was a good name—but we outgrew it. It was a method of operation and a lending method, at that. No one lending method can now describe our service, which includes so many—one for every phase of service to the individual.

• So an old bank with a new name, with nothing changed but the name, extends the old invitation—come in. The old service of Morris Plan lives in the new service of the Pioneer.

The Cherry Tree

Where with our little Hatchet we tell the truth about many things, sometimes profoundly, sometimes purposely, sometimes recklessly

Important buying by the utilities means more employment. That's the big thing in the government supported move of the large utility systems to place "immediate orders" for new electrical equipment in connection with national defense plans.

More jobs mean more business activity, more prosperity for all.

Plans for the utilities' buying were announced by the president's national defense power committee following conferences with utility industry representatives.

Too bad this move was not made long ago. There has been talk of it for years, but little or nothing was done beyond necessary replacement purchases. Instead, government and utility officials wasted time and energy denouncing each other.

1937-38 depression, after it had run awhile, made some of the loud mouthed ones begin to think a bit. Thinking has brought constructive action, apparently. Thinking always gets more constructive results than abuse, name-calling and general hullabaloo. A lot of people have yet to learn this elementary fact.

* * *

War of words between government and utilities has made the judicial-minded grieve, where it has not made them laugh in derision. So much bunk was talked by politicians and business men alike! Now common sense is beginning to reassert itself.

One utility leader said that the plans for expansion showed what can be done when government and industry sit across the table in cooperation. Organized labor and employers have been following this plan for a long time. It has worked. It has prevented industrial strife, led to practical co-operation between workers and employers. It will work in other fields, including the field of government-industry relations.

* * *

Public utility issue, like many issues, can best be handled without much bellowing from the politicians. The bellowing serves to arouse heat, but gives scant light. Utility abuses can be corrected by vigorous but sane action. Citizens don't have to depend on Washington, either, for remedy. State and local action will get results and will gain in effectiveness as it gains in experience.

This has been proved again and again. Local initiative and action brings relief from all sorts of oppression, including utility rate oppression.

"Who would be free, themselves must strike the blow."

* * *

Political shouting and tumult dies. Maybe that's one reason why Thanksgiving comes in November, after the election. Then the people can give thanks for blessings received, not forgetting the blessing of a let-up to political guff.

But the nation goes rolling right along, despite the fact that candidates make the welkin ring no more and schemes guaranteed to save the world go the way of the autumn leaves.

A Great Store . . . In a Great City

Sterchi's Will Open New Jewelry Section Today

Official opening of a new jewelry department will be held at Sterchi Bros., Inc., today. Celebrating the company's fiftieth anniversary in November and December, Sterchi's is adding similar departments in all of its stores.

"And Chattanooga has been chosen as official headquarters for all of these jewelry departments," announced Harry Fractor, in an iterview today.

Mr. Fractor will be in charge of the numerous departments. While he will spend a large part of his time visiting the Sterchi stores in other states, Mr. Fractor said that his office will be located in one of the office buildings of this city.

The jewelry department in Sterchi's modern new store at 532 Market street is on the main floor, just off the foyer. Arnold E. Connors, well-known jeweler, will manage the new department.

According to Raymond Moore, manager of the furniture store, the department has been added strictly for the convenience of customers.

"We feel that an addition of this type, one enabling our customers to make all their purchases in one store, will simplify their shopping problems," said Mr. Moore. "The jewelry will be sold on easy payments, with no interest or carrying charge."

The American Telephone and Telegraph company has not quite earned its $9 per share dividends this year; but don't be worried. In the four years from 1932 to 1935 the A. T. & T. drew from its surplus $14,917,110 to keep up its dividends—but not a cent to keep up its employment.

YOUR DOLLAR

YOUR DOLLAR will be a regular monthly feature. The facts and opinions given are based on the monthly reports of Consumers' Union, 55 Vandam Street, New York City, a non-profit membership organization whose object is to safeguard buyers by testing and reporting on consumer goods. Note especially the information on labor conditions under which products are manufactured.

Ask any ten men what irks them most about their shirts. Nine out of ten will answer "collars."

You buy your shirt the right size and the collar shrinks. Or you buy it too large and the collar doesn't shrink. It sticks out around your neck, or else it rubs up and down your Adam's apple. It wrinkles and sags after three launderings, and concludes a lifetime of torture by wearing out while the shirt is still in its prime.

Consumers' union, therefore, when testing fifty-two brands of shirts, focused attention on the collars. Shirts were measured, tested for tensile strength, laundered twice, and once more measured and tested for tensile strength and resistance to abrasion. After that, the collars were removed and subjected to eight additional washings, to determine shrinkage, durability of fusing in semi-stiff collars, and general performance.

CU found that "Sanforizing" is still your best guarantee against shrinkage, and that a "Trubenized" (patent fusing process) collar is more likely to retain its stiffness than collars fused by some other process. Claims such as "preshrunk," "full shrunk," etc., are for the most part meaningless and collars of some "pre-shrunk" shirts shrank as much as those for which no claims were made.

Blue shirts, while sometimes not of as good fabric as white shirts of the same brand, may be equally durable if sent to commercial laundries because of the more careful treatment given colored shirts. A high thread count shirt selling at $2.50 will look finer, but will not necessarily wear better than a good cheap shirt.

"Best Buys" were determined by durability and fit of the collar, strength of the fabric, construction, appearance and price. Among the "Best Buys" were Ward's Cat. No. 2954 ($1.39), CD Cat. No. 2844 ($1.95), and Arrow Paddock ($2.50). A complete list of the shirts tested, with ratings, will be sent on request to Consumers' Union, 55 Bandam street, New York City.

Labor in the Shirt Factories.

Higher wages, shorter hours and protection against speed-up are among union achievements for shirt workers. The average wage in factories organized by the Amalgamated Clothing Workers is 45c an hour for a 40-hour week, while some non-union shops pay as little as 10c an hour for a 60-hour week. The recently introduced straight-line system of production, accompanied by exhausting speed-up in non-union factories, is held to a more reasonable pace in the Amalgamated shops.

Two unions are organizing in the industry: Amalgamated Clothing Workers (CIO), which has the majority of the organized workers, and United Garment Workers (AFL). Both organizations have union labels, but only the United Garment Workers make their use obligatory. The following are some of the brands union-made by the Amalgamated Clothing Workers: CD, Criterion, Eagle, Essley, Romar, Tru Val.

Mistake About Poison.

A recent issue of "Your Dollar" stated, on the basis of a U. S. government grader's report, that a can of Libby's peas tested for Consumers' union contained five deadly nightshade buds. Subsequent investigation by the food and drug administration, and correspondence with the bureau of agricultural economics, establishes that the government grader was in error, and that the buds were probably not of the deadly but of the garden variety of nightshade.

Children's Shoes.

Don't have your child's shoes fitted as closely as you would your own, Consumers' union advises. Shoes which fit perfectly when bought will cramp and bind the growing feet before they are worn out. Buy the shoes ¾ inch longer than the child's foot when the child is standing and ¼ inch wider. Lace shoes provide best adjustment to growth. Pumps or buttoned shoes should not be bought.

You can prevent many foot troubles in adult life by providing your child with well designed, well constructed shoes during the growing years. Poorly constructed shoes with low or narrow toes, loosely fitted heels, linings that sag and wrinkle, are never a bargain.

Consumers' union cut shoes apart, subjected the soles, uppers and linings to abrasion and tensile strength tests, to determine construction, durability and value in relation to price. "Best Buys" were "Classmates" ($2.95), Weatherbird ($2.50), Buster Brown ($3.50) and Kali-ston-iks ($4.50).

JOB AND PAYROLL GAINS LARGER THAN SEASONAL ARE REPORTED

Washington.—Secretary of Labor Perkins reports that non-agricultural employment increased approximately 440,000 between August and September and that factory payrolls jumped $7,500,000 a week. She said that the gains were larger than seasonal.

Her figures showed an increase in non-agricultural employment of more than 640,000 since June, and added that her statistics did not include casual workers and others employed in harvesting nor approximtely 120,000 cannery workers who are not part of the normal supply.

Despite the reported gains, non-agricultural employment in September still was 18.4 per cent below September, 1937, and payrolls were 22.6 per cent below the same month last year.

Q.—Was Aesop the author of Aesop's fables?

A.—He may have been the originator of animal fables passed down by word of mouth, but the Aesop's fables we know today were written long after his death. It seems likely that these fables accumulated like folk tales, and had no single author.

Minimum Candy Wage For New York State

6,400 Women and Minors Benefit in Order Requiring Employers to Pay Not Less Than 35 Cents an Hour and $14 for 40 Hours Work.

Albany, N. Y.—Miss Frieda S. Miller, state industrial commissioner, issued an order fixing a minimum hourly wage of 35 cents and a minimum weekly wage of $15 for 40 hours' work for 6,400 women and minors employed in the candy industry in New York state.

Following the unanimous recommendation of the confectionery wage board, representing manufacturers, workers and the public, rates higher than the minimums are established for short work weeks. From September 1 to April 1, which includes the industry's two busy seasons, all employes who work three days or less in any week are to be paid a minimum of $10 for that week. In the slack season from April 1 to September 1 those employed two days or less in a week are to receive a minimum of $7, the order provides.

Hours beyond 40 will be considered overtime to be compensated for at the rate of time and one-half, or 52½ cents an hour, except during the 14-week peak period of the busy season. In those weeks the rate for hours from 40 to 44 will be 38½ cents, while work past 44 hours must be paid for at the rate of 52½ cents.

36 States Will Send Delegates to Labor Legislation Meeting

Washington, D. C.—Secretary of Labor Perkins announces that governors of 36 states have designated delegates to attend the fifth national conference on labor legislation.

She said she expected additional states to be represented at the three-day conference here Nov. 14, 15 and 16. State and national labor legislation will be discussed.

States that have named representatives are, Alabama, Arizonia, Arkansas, California, Colorado, Connecticut, Delaware, Florida, Georgia, Idaho, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kentucky, Maryland, Massachusetts, Missouri, Montana, Nevada, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New Mexico, New York, North Carolina, Oklahoma, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas, Utah, Virginia, West Virginia, Wisconsin and Wyoming.

Printers Lop Off 2½ Hours Per Week With Same Wages

Contracts Signed with Three Dailies to Renew Contract

Chattanooga Typographical union No. 89 is patting itself on the back this month because of successful negotiations with the three daily papers to renew contracts providing all former conditions with the same weekly pay and a reduction of hours. Instead of working 40 hours per week the printers now work 37½ hours.

Next Wednesday, November 23, the printers will hold a referendum in which several vital matters will be decided upon by the membership totaling over 80,000. Members outside of the newspaper chapels will vote at The Labor World office between the hours of 4 and 6 p.m. on that day. The committee in charge of the election, appointed by President "Jack" Worthington, is composed of W. L. Gardner, Phil Mandre and William Keels.

It takes money to enforce even a wage-hour law. That is why some Congressmen, who did not care to vote against its passage, managed to leave it short of cash.

Paint Daubers Start Course of Training For Craft Learners

J. G. Burke Is Instructor at Vocational School Twice Weekly

"You must become better painters," Local 226, Painters and Decorators, told its apprentice boys last week when it instrutced them to attend the instruction school being held at the Chattanooga Vocational school every Tuesday and Wednesday evening at 7 o'clock.

J. G. Burke is the instructor, whose duty it is to teach the coming generation of painters the art of mixing color and doing a craftsmanlike job of their trade.

In instructing its apprentices to take advantage of a course which the old-time journeymen did not have, it said:

"You, as an apprentice painter, are hereby notified to attend the Apprentice Vocational school, corner of Chestnut and Fourth streets. This is vitally to your interest in that it will help you to master the trade much more thoroughly, so that you will learn to mix paints and make various colors. Also, how to use ground coating for stippling and graining.

"This is an opportunity the 'old-time painter' never had. You have a great chance to learn the trade and advance yourself, so that you can get paid for what you know. Again, you are instructed to attend this school, as it will be to your interest in becoming a journeyman painter."

Central Body Asks Drastic Protest of Jewish Persecution

Also Petition Widening of Ninth Street to New Viaduct

Central Labor union in its regular session last Monday evening at the labor hall ordered a letter sent to Secretary of State Cordell Hull, in which he was asked to initiate punitive steps toward the Nazi persecution of Jews. Termed as a "nation gone stark mad," the Central Body declared that persecution of any minority group should be protested, and that the present atrocities in Germany was wanton cruelty.

Officials of the Central Body were also instructed to inform the city commission that the widening project on Ninth street should be carried through, especially since a large investment had already been made to build the new viaduct, which now is practically bottled up due to the narrow and ragged avenue approaching it.

The letter to Cordell Hull, signed by Erskine Mabee, secretary of Central Body, follows:

"The civilized world stands in amazement and surprise at the wanton cruelty and atrocities being waged on the Jewish minority group in Germany today. The Central Labor union of this city strongly urges that you do all in your power and in the power of our great government to put such pressure on the government of the German Reich that the dastardly acts now being committed by the mad leaders of the German people will cease.

"We know that as long as yourself and our great President are in the positions you now occupy that the people of this great nation will never be a party or have a part in such a dishonorable affair as that of recent date in Munich.

"In closing, may we again urge you to discontinue any relations with a nation which to all appearances has gone stark mad.

"With kind personal wishes and congratulations on the efforts of your office for world peace, I am

Sincerely yours,
ERSKINE MABEE,
Chattanooga Central Labor Union."

LADIES' GARMENT WORKERS' UNION LEAVES THE C. I. O.

Executive Board Denounces as "Ruinous Dualism" Lewis' Scheme to Establish His Secessionist Group as a Permanent Organization in Opposition to the American Federation of Labor.

Washington, D. C.—The general executive board of the International Garment Workers' union, in session here, ended the union's affiliation with John L. Lewis' Committee for Industrial Organization and refused to send delegates to the C. I. O. convention in Pittsburgh, Pa., called by Lewis to form the C. I. O. dualists into a permanent organization in complete opposition to the American Federation of Labor. The I. L. G. W. U. has a membership of 250,000. Its president is David L. Dubinsky.

The general executive board based its action on the ground that it was opposed to dualism in the labor movement and was therefore unable to take part in the formation of a national organization designed to compete with the American Federation of Labor.

Pointing out that the Ladies' Garment Workers' union originally affiliated with the C. I. O. under the conviction that by so doing it would forward the unionization of the workers in the mass production industries, the general executive board declared that "the traditions and the decisions of the I. L. G. W. U. have always been against a divided labor movement and against dual unionism," adding:

"We have held and hold today that there should be room in the American labor movement for both industrial and craft unions to meet every form of legitimate evolution of labor organization in American industry without dualism and with a minimum or easily adjustable jurisdictional claims.

"It was because of this conviction that our union has from the earliest days of its participation in the C. I. O. sought to bring about a reconciliation of the conflicting inetrests in the labor movement, exploring every possible opening and opportunity for peace.

"It is unnecessary, we believe, at this moment to reiterate in detail the reasons why peace has not up to this time been achieved within the labor movement. We are, however, faced at this moment with the concrete problem of a constitutional convention of the C. I. O., called for the purpose of establishing a permanent national federation in avowed competition with the existing A. F. of L. and with all its affiliated unions."

In line with this conviction the executive board declared that "the "formation of a permanent national union to supersede the C. I. O. would, in our judgment, sharpen the conflict in the labor movement and would create great-

Signs of Prosperity

By CHARLES STELZLE

Executive Director, Good Neighbor League

Will Rogers used to say: "All I know is what I read in the newspapers." The newspapers may not always be a safe guide, particularly in matters that deal with politics and economics, because many of their editors are swayed by partisan opinions or prejudices.

But the trends toward greater prosperity in the United States have recently been so obvious that even the most conservative newspapers cannot avoid pointing out that we are on the up-grade in this country.

Here are a few of the signs which have recently appeared in the daily press:

1. Henry Ford looks forward to one of the most prosperous years in our history. He is to rehire 35,000 men at once. Chrysler has hired 34,000 since August, and more will be added soon. General Motors also rehired 35,000 men and restored pay cuts. All of this means greater prosperity not only for the over 100,000 men to be hired by automobile plants, but an even greater number who will be needed to produce the materials required in the construction of automobiles—in mines, mills, factories, forests and countless other industries.

2. According to a release from the Labor Department in Washington, permits for residential construction issued during August for the entire country—outside of New York City—increased 55.9 per cent in the value of residential buildings over August, 1937. These statistics were obtained from 2,048 cities.

3. Monthly range of 50 standard stocks as regularly reported on the financial page of the New York Times showed an increase from 70.80 in March to 106.36 in October—an increase of 35.56 points.

4. Every light-weight streamlined train operating in this country produced more traffic than other trains and substantial earnings, showing that more people are increasingly using these luxury trains.

5. The Board of Education in New York City has had great difficulty in securing teachers in the sciences and in vocational training. The salary is $4,500 per year, with long vacations, pensions, and other advantages. About 40 such teachers are now needed, but very applications are being received, although during the depression hundreds of teachers made application for these positions. The indications are that those who are qualified are getting better-paying jobs in industry because of the demand for their services.

These are just a few samples of the increased prosperity in our country. Many other signs are on the horizon. All of which are a rebuke to those howlers of calamity who declare that the country has gone to the dogs.

21,300,000 Received Relief in September

$265,698,000 Disbursed from Federal, State and Local Funds to Keep Jobless and Their Dependents From Starving.

Washington, D. C.—American business is said to be striding rapidly along the recovery highway, but the results do not appear to reach the suffering millions who are denied the right to work for their living at reasonable wages.

This tragic fact is revealed in all its rawness in the report of the social security board which estimated that 6,600,000 households, comprising approximately 21,300,000 persons, received public aid amounting to $265,698,000 in September from federal, state and local funds.

The board summarized its reports on public aid received by needy persons throughout the nation, excepting transient aid, as follows:

"Public assistance to needy aged, needy blind and dependent children from federal, state and local funds under the social security act, and other special types of public assistance, $43,316,000.

"Earnings of persons, certified as in need of relief, employed on work projects of (A) the Works Progress Administration, $158,200,000; (B) the National Youth Administration, $3,730,000, and (C) other federal agencies, $5,025,000.

"Earnings of persons enrolled in the Civilian Conservation Corps, $18,767,000.

"Subsistence grants under the Farm Security Administration, $1,212,000.

"General relief in cash and in kind, by state and localities, $45,448,000."

The Cherry Tree

A much neglected piece of news from abroad must not be lost to labor; for every blow at labor abroad sometime, somewhere, by direct reflection or—much more often—by indirect reflection, shows up in our own country. A United Press correspondent asked rebel General Franco: "Will you grant general amnesty when the war is over?" And here is Franco's reply, passed by his own censor:

"There should not be returned to society an element of fomentation and deterioration, but I believe in redemption through the penalty of labor.

"Once it has been established what penalty fits the crime in question, the criminal will be able to redeem himself through work and good behavior as a prisoner until he has paid for his crime. One day of good behavior will be equivalent to reducing the sentence by two days. We have more than 2,000,000 persons card-indexed with proofs of their crimes and the names of witnesses."

* * *

The population of Spain is around 20,000,000. General Franco, therefore, proposes "work.... as a prisoner" 10 per cent of the population over which he hopes to rule; or about a quarter of the adults in that population. They must be condemned by wholesale—there are not enough judges to give any semblance of trial; and not enough adults in all Spain to furnish juries. There are not a twentieth of buildings in Spain to house 2,000,000 persons as prisoners.

Franco is simply telling the world that there will be mass condemnation by his officers and forced labor in prison camps for about one grown Spaniard in four. The prospect is as horrible as the Roman conquest of Asia Minor, where Roman patricians followed the armies to buy captives cheap, and send them to be worked to death on plantations and in mines.

* * *

Unions are destroyed and wages fixed by fiat in Germany and Italy; and now we are told of massed slavery in Spain by the man who proposes to bring it. No worker in America to whom the information can be carried should be left in ignorance.

* * *

Two brief remarks may be made at this time about the election.

A very wise man in Washington said two months ago that it was a grave mistake for President Roosevelt to come out for even such a splendid Senatorial candidate as David J. Lewis of Maryland. It rouses resentment against what is considered a local or state-wide choice; as witness the reaction of the country to President Wilson's call for a Democratic Congress in 1918. The wisdom of this comment seems to be confirmed; but not in New York, where the President is a voting citizen.

Next, contrast this election with the so-called elections in dictatorship countries. Bear in mind that while the Nazis never got a majority vote in Germany until they seized the government, they have had unanimous votes since. The same is true in Italy and Russia; and practically true in every place where dictatorship prevails.

er obstacles for ultimate reconciliation. Traditionally opposed to dualism, we therefore decide not to take part."

In emphasizing this position the executive board said "the perpetuation of the division of labor through the existence of two national competitive labor bodies would prove ruinous to the well-being of the workers as well as to the general community.

"The setback suffered by the progressive and liberal forces in the last election is unquestionably due in part to the division in the labor movement.

"We do not believe now, and we never believed, that two separate labor movements are required to achieve the common objectives of labor.

"We believe now, as we have always believed, that one unified labor organization in this country could and should bring the benefits of organization to all wage-earners in the land, whether in the mass production or the skilled industries, and protect labor against its economic as well as political enemies.

"Being vitally interested in the reconciliation of the two parts of the labor movement, we therefore decide to remain an independent union until peace is established in the labor movement or until it is otherwise decided by a regular or special convention of our union. * * *"

Troubled Times in Mexican Republic Make Major Problem for United States Labor, Goverment and Industry

Labor Split Hurts Democratic Forces; Nation's Hope Is In Success of CROM

By CHESTER M. WRIGHT

Washington, D. C.—Mexico is an immediate and major problem for United States labor, government and industry. I have just returned from Mexico City. The situation is grave and little is being done to hasten improvement.

These are major observations, based upon my own contacts and upon access to a survey of more than half the Mexican Republic:

1—Ambassador Daniels, kindly, well-intentioned, slipped into easy-going accord with the Cardenas expropriation program and today "doesn't know what it is all about."

2—President Cardenas is carrying forward his expropriation program, giving the United States a growing headache, about which nothing much is done. It becomes increasingly difficult to do anything without creating a record of inconsistency.

3—Mexico is importing quantities of three major food items—corn, rice and beans.

4—Mexican labor is split badly, the major division following somewhat the A. F of L.-CIO lines, as follows: A, the original CROM, affiliated with the Pan-American Federation of Labor; B, the CTM, headed by Lombardo Toledano, leftist, supported by government, nominal host to the recent conference attended by John L. Lewis; C, the CGT, minor factor, basic philosophy mainly anarchistic; D, the Trevino split-off from the CROM, attempting to use that name, not at the moment an important body.

Mexico has a drastic labor law, which gives the State much power to foster or cripple a movement. Manifestly it has fostered CTM, the Toledano movement, but there are indications that Cardenas may be tiring of the force thus built.

CROM Most Solid

Most solid, resting on its own resources, though second to CTM in numbers, is the CROM, led by the veteran Luis Morones, with Eucario Leon as able executive secretary.

Beyond any question whatever, protecting of the democratic philosophy lies in the strength possessed by the CROM.

I visited Mexico without responsibility to any person or organization. I had no mission.

At the same time Matthew Woll, A. F. of L. vice president, visited Mexico, commissioned by President Green to survey the labor situation. What his official report will contain I do not know, but there is reason to believe it will be the most exhaustive report in years on conditions in Mexico and will give the CROM full credit for its achievements.

American Oil Hit

Southwestern United States is feeling t' effects of the Cardenas program through its impact on American oil. Mexican oil goes for whatever price it can find. That menaces the U. S. price structure and the oil proration program. Mexican oil sold to Germany in barter throws the barter products, principally pipe and corrugated iron, into our market with another destructive impact.

I believe proper pressure would settle the oil question fairly.

Land confiscation is another and more serious matter, but U. S. diploacy is felt through so much padding that it isn't felt with any effect.

CROM Keeps Out of Politics

Cardenas controls the one political party. Under law he cannot succeed himself two years hence. There are four or more candidates for the succession, but the No. 1 man hasn't been selected.

Morones and his associates refused to lead the CROM into the reorganized Revolutionary Party. The CROM never has entered politics as such. Its constitution says "no." The method has been to go into politics through a separate organization, keeping the unions free for strictly union work. This refusal was the surface cause of the Trevino split. He led a group of unions out of the CROM and into the Cardenas-created Revolutionary Party. The weakness of Trevino's position is obvious.

My observation of Matthew Woll's work in Mexico was intimate. He did a masterful job of conferring, observing and making friends. His official mission was an intelligent approach to the situation. To send him at that precise moment was a well-timed stroke of A. F. of L. diplomacy on the part of President Green.

Visitors Warmly Greeted

The reception at the Mexico City airport was totally unexpected and was a tribute to the regard of Mexican workers for American organized labor. There were a dozen receptions, dinners and fiestas as the 10 days passed, making in all one of the most interesting international discussions ever conducted.

Finally, no person who believes in the right of unions to a free existence and to a self-determined policy and philosophy and philosophy can fail to see Mexico's hope as lying completely in the CROM. The CTM, under the Cardenas-Toledano aegis, is an agency of the state, dependent upon the state, and going leftward with growing speed.

Mexico's future seems destined to be a troubled one for some time. Throughout the country there is plenty of disaffection. The Cardenas program isn't clicking. Break-up of even "kulak"-sized holdings is cutting farm production. Individual farmers will produce ONLY for themselves, leaving none to sell. That forces importation.

Labor Co-operation Needed

Mexico is a hay-wire country just now. But it lies just across the Rio Grande, from whence it cannot be moved. It is, per force, a neighbor. American labor knows how to work in co-operation and understanding with Mexican labor. Labor could be the greatest of all Pan-American forces for unity and co-operation and for the strengthening of democracy in its battle against the fascist axis and against the communist world propaganda. Perhaps it will be, as a result of this timely visit and of others scheduled to follow.

I have just seen enough to demonstrate the value of this kind of effort.

WPA as a Playground Maker

The WPA is known and loved all over the country for the work it has done, the roads it has built, and the scores of other benefits it has rendered. But in the account of New York City can be duplicated in other crowded centers, the people of those cities must absolutely love the WPA on account of the children. Here's the nub of the story:

At the edge of New York City's Hell Kitchen, on the roof of Christ Church, and surrounded by rearing walls of warehouses and office buildings there was during the summer a WPA "day camp" for children from the neighboring tenements. They went there as if they were going to a day camp in the woods. They wore their oldest clothes, and they brought along wieners and potatoes to roast.

On the roof, the sides protected by a wire netting, there were lean-tos made of branches, scattered logs and stones, a tent, earth (in boxes), and plants (in pots). On that roof the children rubbed sticks to make a fire. They roasted their wieners and potatoes. They played games with a soft ball. They gathered around an old Indian guide, or a former pony express rider, or an old-time cowboy (there are several attached to various WPA projects), and listened to old-time stories.

In the late afternoon, the office crowds below hurrying to the subways, the children descended, as if back from the woods, traditionally tired but happy.

$4,000 Income for Every Family Possible

How American income can be largely increased in the age of power is outlined by the American Federation of Labor in its latest monthly survey of business. Production must be hired to maximum energy, says the statement, which points out that [illegible] of the nation's industrial plant is [illegible] of Americans standing idle and [illegible] to work and produce in private industry. The statement goes on to say:

"Our American economy can achieve a $4,000 [illegible] for every family, but there is no get-rich-quick way of doing this. Nor is there any one [illegible] that will accomplish it. There are a number of steps which will bring us nearer the goal. We have already embarked on the first step: Trade union organization throughout industry and a steady and rapid increase in wages. We need to follow this by a new conception of wages: Wages based on producing power with machines.

"The old conception of wages, based on human needs and energy alone, is totally inadequate. Workers' wages are not measuring the wages justified by their power to produce. Productivity wages can be established through collective bargaining by (1) basing wages according to increases in productivity in an industry and by (2) some form of partnership wage which shares excess income equitably between management, workers and investors."

Mr. Lewis Speaks

News reports from the CIO convention are very interesting. Especially so when one recalls the charges made by Mr. John L. Lewis that the American Federation of Labor is a dictatorship, that affiliates of the American Federation of Labor do not have much to say regarding laws imposed upon them, that the A. F. of L. takes unto itself all autonomy, and so on.

Yet, in the first convention of the CIO groups called for the purpose of forming a permanent dual labor movement, we were shocked to observe that the CIO convention was not so very democratic. True, the delegates voted on their laws as drawn up—by Mr. Lewis.

A few simple souls in the convention did rise to their feet to air their opinion, but Mr. Lewis, shaking his shaggy head and beetling those eyebrows as only he can beetle, told the convention that there would be no foolishness tolerated. Those laws were drawn up to be passed, not debated.

And it has been announced that Mr. Lewis will be the first president of the Congress of Industrial Organizations. No vote had been taken when this announcement was made. Perhaps it was a prophecy rather than announcement of a result.

Which reminds us of a quip made this week to the effect that if one thousand picked labor leaders were to suddenly die, the American labor movement would also die, and that if ten picked labor leaders were to suddenly die, the American labor movement would be better off.

COOKS' AND WAITERS' SCRAPS

Have you ever opened your eyes on a Thursday morning to realize that you failed to do a thing that should be done the day before? That is the position we are in as we write these few words. We realize now that this writing should have been done yesterday.

At our meeting on Tuesday night plans were further discussed for the social the Culinary Workers are planning. This affair will be sponsored at an early date.

Mr. and Mrs. George Williams (Gladys Cox) went to Monteagle on Sunday to visit her father.

Get out and do something—work, sweat, hike, hump yourself—if need be—but dig on and deliver. Then talk if you want to, but the chances are you won't feel so much like it.

Miss Beulah Ogle has gone to Florida to spend the winter. Beulah was one of our most active members and we will miss her. Her place at the Rathskeller is being capably filled by Pearl Dalton.

The Steak House employs non-union cooks and waiters.

We have our eyes on a certain fellow who works in a certain union shop. This man leaves his shop at 6 in the afternoon and goes straight to one of the Crystals on Market street for a cup of coffee, but we know how he would howl if he saw you or I getting haircuts and shaves in a rat shop. Now wouldn't he? Don't forget the Golden Rule.

The Bob Green restaurants are union houses.

Have you ever eaten at Smith's restaurant on West Ninth street? If you haven't you should. This house is a 100 per cent union restaurant and the management has never failed to give us every co-operation.

And while in this section of town drop by Cates. We do appreciate the co-operation given us by Mr. Cates.

Harry's place is non-union.

Coplan's on Cherry street is union. We saw Lonnie Carpenter and F. H. May there this week and when you see these two unionists in a restaurant you can bet your last shirt that it is a union house.

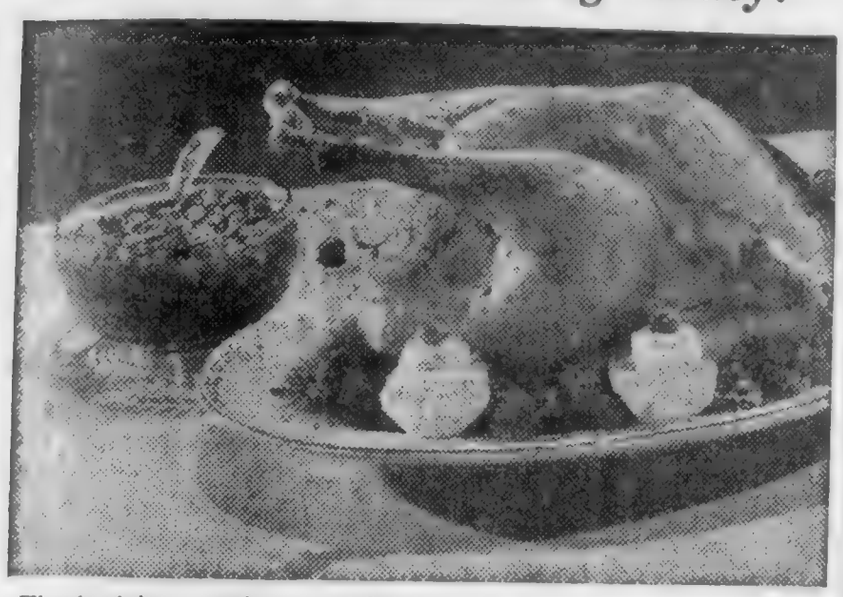
Cranberries Adorn King Turkey!



Thanksgiving — turkey — cranberries! The words have the kind of rhythm associated with roast beef, mashed potatoes, apple pie, or any other typical American menu. But because it's traditional, let's not feel dull about it.

Of course, there are many households that wouldn't enjoy Thanksgiving without the good old-fashioned cranberry sauce to give color and tang to the flavorsome turkey of the day But why stop there? Cranberries are entirely too ornamental not to have other functions at the feast day table. Try garnishing the bird with inch-thick slices of orange, cut round. On top of each orange-chunk set a marshmallow that has been freshened, not browned, in the oven In the center of the marshmallow, place a raw, bright-red cranberry Spread parsley for green emphasis around the edge of the turkey platter and be prepared for a delighted chorus of oh's and ah's, from the folk gathered around the festive board

As for desserts, there's Cranberry Meringue Pie, for instance. It's a change from plain cranberry pie and delightfully ornamental too.

CRANBERRY MERINGUE PIE

1¾ cups sugar
⅝ cup water
1 pound (4 cups) Cranberries
4 eggs, separated
2 tablespoons flour
¼ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons butter
1 teaspoon vanilla
4 tablespoons powdered sugar
Baked pie shell

Boil sugar and water for 5 minutes. Add cranberries, cook until skins pop open. Beat egg yolks with flour and salt, pour cranberries over mixture Cook for 2-3 minutes, stirring constantly. Add butter and vanilla. Cool. Fill pie shell, top with meringue of whipped egg whites and powdered sugar. Brown in slow oven, 325° F., 15 minutes

Or, Steamed Cranberry Pudding, with Foamy Cranberry Sauce, another tasty dessert that won't be hard on the eyes.

STEAMED CRANBERRY PUDDING

1 cup flour
1½ teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
½ cup brown sugar
½ cup bread crumbs
⅔ cup finely chopped suet
1 cup chopped Cranberries
1 egg
½ cup milk or water

Mix ingredients in the order given. Turn into a well greased mold, cover with waxed paper and steam for 2 hours. Serve with Foamy Cranberry Sauce.

FOAMY CRANBERRY SAUCE

4 tablespoons butter
1 cup confectioners' sugar
1 egg, separated
¼ cup sweetened cranberry juice (from Ten-Minute Cranberry Sauce)
Grated rind ½ orange

Cream butter and sugar together. Add beaten egg yolk, cranberry juice and orange rind. Fold in stiffly beaten egg white just before serving.

O'Brien, for the Teamsters; E. Fadigan, for the Warehousemen; Don J. Private Building Declared Failing Middle One-Third Of Urban Populations

Milwaukee. — The private building industry is doing only one-half of its job of providing homes, U. S. Housing Authority Administrator Straus told the National Association of Real Estate Boards here.

Straus said the USHA is designed to provide housing for the one-third of urban population in lower income brackets and private building must care for the upper two-thirds. Private business is failing the middle one-third, he charged.

ICC Makes 2 Rail Mergers Contingent on Protection Of Displaced Workers

Washington, D. C.—The Interstate Commerce Commission has made two orders asked for by railroad managements contingent on the protection of railroad labor. One concerns the fusion of the two Harvey Couch roads, the Louisiana & Arkansas and the Louisiana, Arkansas and Texas, and the leasing of the Texas branch of the Rock Island and Gulf to the Rock Island and Pacific. Both these changes will be approved, provided the roads agree that:

The labor provisions which the roads must accept to obtain ICC sanction include:

Employes displaced by the change must be given a dismissal allowance equivalent to 60 per cent of average monthly salary for the previous year. Dismissal compensation would range from six months' pay to one year's experience, to 60 months for 15 years of employment.

The railroads would pay moving expenses of transferred employes, and guarantee them against losses because of home sales or breaking of leases.

Pay of retained employes from the absorbed roads should not be reduced for five years as a result of the merger or lease.

NEWS FLASHES

Charlotte, N. C.—"Seventy-five new members added to Local Union No. 71, Teamsters and Chauffers, coming from the truck drivers' group alone, is one of the results of our activities in Charlotte," was the statement made to Representative Paul J. Aymon here Saturday night. Mr. Aymon attended the meeting of the local, and H. L. McCrorey of the Central Labor union's organizing committee, was reporting the growth of the local during the past month. Mr. Aymon praised highly the work being done by the organizing committee of the Charlotte Central Labor union, and told the truck drivers that no other organization in the South is making greater progress than the Teamsters and Chauffers.

Hiawassee Dam, N. C., Nov. 14.—Charter for the newly organized Central Labor union here was officially instituted last Thursday night and the officers obligated and installed, with James F. Barrett, representing the American Federation of Labor, officiating at the installation ceremonies. The event was a public affair and a large crowd attended.

Because of the large attendance the meeting could not be held in the C. L. U. hall, and was moved to the auditorium. All local unions brought their charters and these were hung on the wall back of the stage, surrounding the charter of the Central Labor union. Among them were the A. F. of L. charters of the local unions at Copperhill and Ducktown. These locals, being in the jurisdiction of the Hiawassee Dam C. L. U., will be affiliates.

Many international representatives were present, each complimenting the union membership in Hiawassee in the formation of the Central Labor union here. Representatives of the civic organizations in Murphy and Copperhill and city officials from both cities, were guest speakers and welcomed the Central Labor union to the community activities in this territory.

A note of sadness crept into the meeting when President Black spoke of the work which had been done in organizing the Hiawassee Central Labor union by H. E. Buchanan, president of the Knoxville Central Labor union, and W. Clay McKenzie, former secretary of the Knoxville C. L. U. These two men rendered great aid to the Hiawassee unionists in forming the central body. Mr. Buchanan, while on a trip to Hiawassee to aid in the formation of the C. L. U., had an automobile accident which resulted in permanent injury. The death of Mr. McKenzie a few days ago removed another man who worked faithfully for the Hiawassee organization. In reporting upon these sad cases, President Black paid tribute to the work which had been done by the two men.

Spartanburg, S. C., Nov. 14.—"You're raising wages for men who never have been members of your unions, and who never have done anything for themselves or for your membership," was the frank statement made by Al Flynn, president of the South Carolina State Federation of Labor, at a meeting held here Sunday by the S. C. Building Trades association. "What I want you to do is to go into every city and hamlet in South Carolina and get all of the building craftsmen to join the union of their craft, so they can help you to make these advances a permanent thing. And I am calling upon each international union whose craftsmen are to employed upon the Santee-Cooper dam and other PWA-financed projects in this state to send their representatives into South Carolina, and keep them here until the building craftsmen are organized."

Greenwood, S. C., Nov. 14.—Charter was installed here last Monday night for the newly-organized local union of freight handlers. Officers were installed and instructed in their work, T. D. Grimes, American Federation of Labor representative, being in charge of the installation program. A good membership was reported.

Birmingham, Ala., Nov. 14.—Charter for the newly organized local union of roofers was installed here last week, officers elected and obligated, and the new organization set out upon a well charted course. W. O. Hare, secretary-treasurer of the Alabama State Federation of Labor, was in charge of the installation meeting.

Memphis, Tenn., Nov. 14.—Renewal of 90 union agreements in the last 10 days with local butcher shop operators is the record established in the last 10 days by the Memphis Butchers' union, it was learned this week from W. W. Rowland, business agent.

"We've just started," Mr. Roland said late this week while checking the list of Memphis butcher shop owners. More than 90 of these owners already have signed a union contract—a symbol of fair working hours and conditions. This year's Butchers' union agreements provide many advantages non-union workmen do not receive.

The base rate of pay for journeymen butchers is $35 weekly. Apprentices will receive a scale graduated from $17.50 to $24 for their years of training.

Tampa, Fla., Nov. 14.—Five Tampa Spanish restaurants this week signed union agreements covering all employes with locals No. 104 and No. 760 of the Hotel and Restaurant Employes International Alliance and Bartenders International League of America.

The agreements, which will be in full force and effect for one year and which will be renewed automatically from year to year unless either employer or the union desires a change, set maximum hours for employes and minimum wages.

Little Rock, Ark., Nov. 14.—The Yellow and Checker Cab company strike, nine months old, was settled this week when an agreement was reached and signed by the management of the cab companies and representatives of the Teamsters and Chauffers local union No. 878.

Frank Miller, business agent for the union, and Mr. Shoemaker, manager of the two cab companies, were both pleased over the outcome and both praised Commissioner McKinley and Mr. Herrington.

Birmingham, Ala., Nov. 14.—At the meeting last week of local No. 725, Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employes, several visiting trades unionists were present and made complimentary speeches because of the new agreement obtained by the local union with the Birmingham Electric company. The agreement was obtained by the local union's own committee, without aid of international officers, A. F. of L. representatives or state or city federation officials. It is the first agreement obtained by the local without assistance from some affiliated or parent body. The new agreement brings approximately $30,000 increased pay for the coming year to the 725 members of the local union.

Green Declares Victimization Decreed by Hitler's Totalitarian Government in Germany Is Barbarous and Brutal.

Washington, D. C.—President William Green of the American Federation of Labor denounced in scathing terms the action of Adolph Hitler's Nazi government in Germany in depriving 500,000 Jews in that country of their political and civil rights and levying a tax penalty on them of $400,000,000 as punishment for the action of a maniacal Polish Jewish refugee for murdering Ernst von Rath, secretary of the German embassy in Paris.

"I cannot express the deep sense of horror I experienced over the treatment accorded Jewish people in Grmany," Mr. Green said. "It is shocking to one's sense of justice.

"It seems inconceivable at this period in the development of modern civilization the Jewish people should be subjected to such inhuman treatment as press reports indicate.

"In the name and in behalf of the millions of members of the American Federation of Labor I register my vigorous protest against the barbarous and brutal treatment accorded the Jewish people in Germany."

Wire Messengers Held to Wage Law

Administrator Andrews Denies Request of Telegraph Companies to Exempt 20,000 Employes; Present Wages Ranging From Less Than 10 to 24 Cents an Hour Must Be Raised to 25 Cents Limit.

Washington, D. C.—Elmer F. Andrews, administrator of the Fair Labor Standards act, refused the application of a number of telegraph companies for exemption of about 20,000 messengers from the minimum wage provision of 25 cents an hour. The application was made by the Western Union company, the Postal company and All America Cables.

The basis of the companies' applications was Section 14 of the act which provides:

"The administrator, to the extent necessary in order to prevent curtailment of opportunities for employment, shall by regulations or by orders provide (1) the employment of learners, or apprentices, and of messengers employed exclusively in delivering letters and messages, under special certificates issued pursuant to regulations of the administrator, at such wages lower than the minimum wage applicable under Section 6 (which is 25 cents per hour up to October 24, 1939) and subject to such limitations as to time, number, proportion and length of service as the administrator shall prescribe."

William M. Leiserson, of the National Mediation board, who was designated to hear the application, concluded that it was a plea for the approval of the present rates of pay of messengers ranging from below 10 cents to 24 cents an hour, and that the contention of the companies that considerable reduction of their employes would result from the application of the law was not adequately supported.

With regard to the alleged financial inability of the companies to pay increased wages, Mr. Leiserson said this was "not to be minimized," but he added that neither must the "financial inability of employes to work for wages less than enough to pay occupation expenses and the cost of maintaining health and efficiency be minimized."

In addition, Mr. Leiserson said the "mere statement" that discharges of messengers must follow compliance with the 25-cents per hour minimum wage was not proof that opportunities for employment would be curtailed.

Company officials testified that the annual turnover in the messenger staffs was about 300 per cent, and Mr. Leiserson concluded that if the companies were forced to discharge a part of their staffs, those dismissed could find work in other fields just as do large numbers of those who quit their messenger jobs annually for other positions.

Meat Workers Union Makes Big Gain In General Organization Campaign

Chicago. — Unparalleled success in its general organization campaign is reported by the Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butcher Workmen of North America through its international president, Patrick E. Gorman.

Big gains are being made by this old-time affiliate of the American Federation of Labor in every section of the country.

In Los Angeles, Cal., the United Packing House Workers, a CIO organization, received a decisive defeat at the hands of the Amalgamated in an election held by the National Labor Relations Board to determine the collective bargaining agent of employes of the huge plant of the Cudahy Packing Co.

The A. F. of L. union organized the plant, one of the largest owned by the Cudahy company, last spring. The union expects to negotiate a contract covering the estimated 1,100 packing house workers employed in Cudahy's Los Angeles plant in the near future.

Big Four Swinging Into Line

The San Diego plant of the Cudahy company, organized at the same time, is in agreement with the Algamated.

The Amalgamated has succeeded in bringing the Big Four Packers, the Swift, Armour, Wilson, and Cudahy companies, into line in several cities.

Out of 108 votes cast by employes of the Heil Packing Co., of St. Louis, Mo., in an election conducted by an arbitration board set up by the union and the employers' association, 67 favored Local No. 545 of the Amalgamated as collective bargaining representative.

A strike of seven weeks against the Theurer-Norton Co., called by Local No. 500, of Cleveland, Ohio, resulted in a renewal agreement providing for the union shop, a new feature in the contract.

Nearly 500 Union Pacts

Two other companies, the Cleveland Provision Co., and the Lake Erie Provision Co., renewed agreements with the same provisions after short strikes, called to obtain the union shop. The three contracts affect about 1,600 workers.

In the neighborhood of 190 large, representative independent packing houses and 300 smaller plants are operating under strictly union shop pacts obtained by this ever-growing international union. Approximately 75,000 packing house employes are protected by these agreements; and, in addition to this, about 60,000 members of the Amalgamated, employed in retail meat shops, are working under union shop conditions.

Signing of Union Pact by A. & P. Ends "Open Shop" in Chicago Chain Stores

Chicago.—A net pay increase of $300,000 a year for about 2,700 employes of 850 stores operated by the Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co. in Chicago and vicinity has been obtained under a contract entered into by the company and the Retail Clerks' International Protective Association, affiliated with the American Federation of Labor.

Completion of the agreement, the largest, by far, ever negotiated by the Retail Clerks in this area, ended 40 years of the so-called open shop in Chicago's chain stores. The clerks' union had only a small, scattered membership in Chicago and the surrounding territory a year ago.

Boosts in pay of 8 to 35 per cent, a 48-hour week with time and one-half for overtime, one week's vacation with pay after one year of service, two weeks after three years of service, seniority rights and the peaceful settlement of labor disputes were included in the two-year, union shop agreement.

Part-time workers are also protected by the pact. A guarantee of a half day's work for extra workers once they are placed on the job was agreed to by the management.

The A. & P. pact followed conclusion of a similar agreement covering around 1,400 employes of the Hillman Co., owners of several large food stores in and around Chicago.

In addition to this, the Chicago local of the Retail Clerks, headed by Max Caldwell, has signed 95 contracts with independents and four associations. Its membership totals approximately 9,000.

SAN FRANCISCO STORE CLERKS WIN BETTER CONDITIONS

San Francisco.—Striking retail store clerks returned to work after decision to accept an agreement giving them substantially better conditions. The strike affected 35 leading department stores. The clerks voted 1,068 to 1,914 to sign the agreement with the San Francisco Retailers' Council.

Larry Vail, union secretary, said the agreement did not provide for the union shop but provided for "continuation or improvement of all contract provisions in last year's agreement."

Terms of the settlement provided for all strikers to register for work with the stores and return to their former posts "as rapidly as possible." They also embodied a seniority clause, an adjustment board to discuss differences and allowed an arbiter to make final decisions.

Other provisions, Vail said, included a $2 raise in basic wages to $20 weekly, increased vacation with pay, and a clause designating the union as collective bargaining agent for all employes covered under the contract. Persons employed after Sept. 7 as extra help or to replace strikers must be dismissed.

"We are now prepared to go back to work and will make every effort to co-operate with the employers to see that the agreement is enforced equitably and fairly," Vail said. The clerks are members of an A. F. of L. union.

Bowling Alley Workers Win Union Agreement

Cleveland, Ohio.—Forty-six bowling alleys in Cleveland, members of the Bowling Alley Proprietors' Association of Northern Ohio, have signed an exclusive union shop agreement with Billiard and Bowling Alley Employes Union, Local No. 48-A, of the Building Service Employes International Union, Dillard G. Bowles, secretary, and Ralph Diana, business agent, of the union, have announced.

The contract, first of its kind in the history of Cleveland labor, affects about 500 workers, increases by 30 per cent the average weekly wages of pin boys. They are to receive 6 cents a league game instead of 4½ cents. Also obtained was a $2 raise in the weekly minimum for rack boys employed in billiard parlors, and charwomen and janitors.

All but four of the large bowling alleys in Greater Cleveland are members of the association. The union is affiliated with the American Federation of Labor and was organized only recently.

ARMOUR AND CO. SIGN FIRST UNION SHOP AGREEMENT WITH MEAT CUTTERS

New York City.—A union shop agreement affecting 800 employes of the New York Dressed Butchers Company, an affiliate of Armour & Co., one of the country's largest meat packers, was concluded here in time to avert a threatened strike. The agreement is the first to be signed by Armour & Co.

Concluding the negotiations were Joseph Belsky, vice-president of the Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butcher Workmen of North America in the eastern states area, representing local Union No. 334, and Harry Green, national labor relations representative of Armour & Co., who flew from the company's main office in Chicago to take part in the negotiations.

The signed agreement provides for recognition of the union as the sole bargaining agent for all employes of the company except those serving in managerial or supervisory positions. Working hours per week will be reduced from 48 to 40. Although there will be no actual increase in pay, the reduced working schedule represents a gain in salary for the plant's eight hundred employes, who will hereafter work fewer hours at the same wage they received before.

Included in the terms of the agreement are provisions for seven recognized holidays during the year with full pay, and vacations with full pay for employes who have been more than two years on the pay roll.

Immediate plans of the union, as announced by Mr. Belsky, provide for a drive to organize the other packing concerns operating in New York, Wilson & Co. and Swift & Co.

A Spy Around the Corner

(From the Journal of Labor, Atlanta, Ga.)

There is a spy around the corner, if we may judge by what we read in the papers. Evidently, we shall all have to take up the practice of looking under the bed every night just to make sure that there is no spy lurking there. The business of spying is not new. Each nation considers it a part of its appointed task to find out just what is going on in every other nation. Especially when it comes to the question of military and naval activities. Not only so, but industry itself is infested with spies. One business is trying to keep track of what its competitor is doing. The same practice prevails in sports, we understand.

The fact that such is going on constantly does not prevent the recurrence of those occasions when the country becomes greatly excited. We are made to feel that a vast horde of spies have suddenly descended upon us. Yet, perhaps it is well that we are made conscious of such possibilities. Else we would cease to be vigilant and allow spies to work unmolested.

Spying brings out some rather interesting peculiarities in people. If I spy on another nation and turn over to my own country the secrets I discover I am a patriot and worthy of the highest acclaim of my countrymen. But if the other country discovers me I am of all people the most despicable and death becomes to be too merciful.

BAKERS AND CONFECTIONERS' LABEL

International Union Made. B. & C. W. I. U. OF A. (REGISTERED)

This Label is an important safeguard of the Bakery and Confectionery Workers' International Union for its members against inhuman conditions, low wages and long working hours. People demanding this Label are not only supporting the Bakery and Confectionery Workers, protecting them against the conditions mentioned, but they are also protecting themselves and their families against the spread of disease-breeding germs which exist in unsanitary bake-shops. Our Label is only granted to sanitary and clean bakeries. If a bakery owner lives up to the requirements of our organization, he may use our Label. The Union shop workers are subject to health examination by Union physician and health maintenance by Union support.

Other requirements are (a) Sanitation and cleanliness in the shop; (b) treatment of the workers as human beings; (c) reasonable hours of work; (d) payment of the Union wage scale. Bakeries not displaying our Label on their products do not meet with either one or all of the above-stated requirements. Any fair-minded employer, however, will not object to them and may use the above Label. Does the bread you buy bear this protective Label of the Bakery and Confectionery Workers? We solicit your cooperation.

LA FOLLETTE COMMITTEE PLANS LEGISLATION TO MAKE GOING TOUGH FOR STRIKEBREAKERS

Washington.—The staff of the La Follette senate civil liberties committee is sorting and arranging its material, gathered in long investigations, to be used in a bill or a group of amendments to existing laws which will be introduced early at the coming session of congress. One of the key points in this coming legislation is the use of the federal license.

Strikebreaking agencies dealing with corporations engaged in or affecting interstate commerce will be obliged to take out federal licenses and submit to federal supervision. So will all detective agencies.

License for Arms Buying.

Corporations and firms engaged in or affecting interstate commerce must take out federal licenses and submit to federal inspection before they can buy arms. There is a strong feeling in the staff that machine guns and gas bombs should be absolutely prohibited.

"Back to work" local organizations will be required to state the exact sources of the funds contributed to them.

There would even be supervision by some federal bureau of the employment of guards.

Curb or Strikebreakers.

Employers' associations will be forbidden to do things now forbidden to individual employers.

All in all, the purpose of the proposed legislation is to make the way of the strikebreaker hard, and one which professional thugs will have no chance to follow. Senator La Follette and Senator Thomas are expected to draft this legislation in the interim between the election and the meeting of congress.

Buy Union Label This Christmas, I. M. Ornburn Urges in Call To All Union Members

Washington.—A call to every trade union member in the nation to demand the union label on all Christmas gifts this year was issued by I. M. Ornburn, secretary-treasurer of the Union Label Trades Department, American Federation of Labor, upon his return to Washington from the Houston A. F. of L. convention.

A union label campaign has already been started among the merchants in every city to stock up with union-made goods, the department announces. A more intensive drive will be made during December, when the retail sales are greater than at any other time in the year.

While members of labor unions continually urge the consuming pulic to buy union label products, Mr. Ornburn said:

"The Union Label Trades Department is especially desirous of building up union label trade during the holiday shopping season. Many practical and useful gifts can be purchased that are made under union conditions. The merchandise upon which the union label is displayed is of the highest quality and made by the most skilled workers in industry." In conclusion, he said:

"Let's put the open shops and sweatshops out of business by buying only union label Christmas gifts."

Pay Cut Under Wage-Hour Act, Furniture Workers Strike

New Orleans.—Three hundred and twenty-five men struck at the New Orleans Furniture Manufacturing company because the company used the wage-hour bill to cut wages.

They had previously worked 50 hours a week. Now it is 44 hours. The company refused to raise the rates enough to give the men, especially the better paid men, the same weekly income as before. Hence the strike.

ROOSEVELT NAMES TRACY TO ATTEND LIMA PARLEY

President of A. F. of L. Electrical Workers' Brotherhood Included in Group to Accompany Secretary of State Hull to Pan-American Conference.

Washington, D. C.—President Roosevelt appointed Dan W. Tracy, president of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, as one of the delegation of 11 selected to accompany Secretary of State Hull to represent the United States at the eighth International Conference of American States, which is to begin December 9, at Lima, Peru.

In a radio broadcast here, Adolf A. Berle, Jr., assistant secretary of state, who is also a member of the U. S. delegation, said the major objective of the Lima conference is to strengthen the bonds of co-operative cultural and defensive action and maintenance of peace among the democracies of the western hemisphere.

Speaking on a series of programs arranged for short-wave distribution in Latin-America to counteract the effects of propaganda broadcasts from Nazi, Fascist and Soviet Union sources, Mr. Berle described the Lima conference as one happy event arising among the "great many unhappy events that have happened in foreign affairs during the last few months."

PRIZES FOR UNION LABELS

Bakers Promote Contest for Union Label Buying

CLEVELAND, O.—Over 25,000 women in Cleveland, O., members of a union buyers' club, are buying bread that bears the union label, thereby assuring themselves of getting good bread made by well-paid workmen under sanitary conditions and of a chance to win valuable prizes.

Bakery and Confectionery Workers International Union, Local No. 19, is sponsoring a six-month contest for members of the club, the purpose of which is to stimulate a greater demand for the Bakers' union label. The local is to give the club $50 at the end of each month to award as prizes to women who collect the most union labels during that month. At the end of the six-month period, the woman who has the largest number of Bakers' union labels is to receive either an electric washing machine or mangle as a grand prize.

Preparations to take part in this unique drive to make housewives union label conscious are under way by other local unions of Cleveland bakery workers.

In 1937, Cleveland bakeries used more than 20,000,000 union labels, an unprecedented number, as a result of promotional activities by Local No. 19.

All major bakeries in Cleveland, except those operated by three large grocery chains, are under contract with the union. Only seven of these do not use the union label, but it is expected that agitation by Cleveland's housewives will soon make use of the union label by these bakeries advisable.

The only time a wife appreciates a slam from her husband is when they are bridge partners.

Many Firms Make Soil Pipe Lines Under Union Pact

Molders' Union Lists Names and Asks Concentrated Support

Local No. 8, International Molders' union, this week informed The Labor World that approximately twenty manufacturers of soil and clay pipe products are now operating under strictly union conditions and agreements, and that two such companies are right here in Chattanooga.

The two local companies are the Somerville Iron Works and the Casey-Hedges company.

The molders ask all building tradesmen and the general public buying such products to insist that the firms named below be given preference.

The firms are:

Alabama Pipe Shop, Standard Foundry, Rudisil Pipe company, Anniston Soil Pipe, Emory Pipe Foundry, Interstate Foundry, Union Foundry company, Central Foundry company, all in Anniston, Ala.

Hatters Score Again In Fight Against Runaway Shops

Chicago.—Another victory has been won by the United Hatters, Cap and Millinery Workers' International union in its fight against runaway shops.

In a preliminary decision by David F. Smith, trial examiner for the national labor relations board, the Murray Hat company, of De Kalb, Ill., has been found guilty of violating the national labor relations act.

The company had been in business in Chicago under the name of the Kronthal Manufacturing company. To escape the union, it moved to De Kalb, where it opened a non-union shop, but again encountered stiff opposition from the Union, which followed it to its new place of business.

The trial examiner recommended dissolution of the company union and cancellation of its contract with the company, reinstatement of eight employes fired for union activities, with back pay from the time of their discharge last February, and immediate reinstatement, upon application, of all strikers, and displacement, if necessary, of strike-breakers to make room for the strikers.

Textile Workers in Swing From CIO to A. F. of L., Green Declares

WASHINGTON, D. C.—President William Green of the American Federation of Labor predicted here that affiliation of 6,000 New England textile workers with the Federation is the forerunner of largescale withdrawals of textile workers from the Congress for Industrial Organization.

Green based his prediction upon withdrawal from the CIO of the Providence and Woonasquatucket Valley Wool and Worsted Workers District Council. The 6,000 members of the group joined the A. F. of L.

"This step is only the beginning of an intensive organizing drive being conducted in the textile industry in every part of the country by the National Council of Textile Unions, recently formed by the American Federation of Labor," Green said.

AFL Head Opposes Strike Against German Ships

WASHINGTON, D. C.—William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, telegraphed Irving Caesar, music publisher, that it would be impractical for union longshoremen to refuse to unload German ships because it might cause international complications.

Caesar had telegraphed Green urging longshoremen to refuse to work German vessels in protest against Jewish persecution by Nazis.

The A. F. of L. head said that he agreed with Caesar's attitude toward Nazi Germany, but that the unions could not take that form of protest.

STYLIST AT STERCHI'S

Patrons of Sterchi Brothers may now have without cost the services of an expert home stylist in harmonizing new purchases of furniture or draperies, or furnishing completely one room or an entire house. An interior decorating department has just been established. It is in charge of Mrs. Addie Hamilton, who comes to Chattanooga after long experience in large stores of Chicago and Kansas City. "We want this department to be of service to our patrons," said A. Raymond Moore, manager. "Our friends should feel perfectly free to call on Mrs. Hamilton for advice in any home furnishing problem."

Starting in 1939, General Motors will lend its workers during any week of idleness 60 per cent of their average weekly wage, to be paid back in work. A forward step, yes. But when a shoe factory in Massachusetts and a packing house in Minnesota guarantee an annual wage, paid by weeks—and succeed at it, why shouldn't G. M. try it?

Now that Japan has closed the open door in China, which has been a standard principle of our diplomacy for a generation, what are we going to do about it? Echo answers, "What?"

General Motors Wage Loan Plan Aims at Thwarting Collective Bargaining, Ornburn Holds

WASHINGTON, D. C.—"The General Motors scheme of wage loans is just another tricky scheme to throttle collective bargaining," said I. M. Ornburn, head of the A. F. of L. Union Label Trades Department, and one of the busiest union leaders in Washington.

"This is worse than a company union," he went on. "There, at least the workers can get together, and anyone who is willing to risk being fired can talk to the company. Here, the company issues a law, without consulting any union. General Motors should have had a conference with the officers of its unions, no matter what those unions may be. Instead, the company issues a decree.

"The plan holds up a picture of 'benefits' to turn the workers aside from collective bargaining. But there are no real benefits.

"The plan divides G. M. workers into three groups; those with 5 or more years' service with the corporation, those with from 2 to 5 years' service, and those with less than 2 years. The last are left out altogether.

"Workers who have been with the G. M. 5 years or more are promised a loan in times of unemployment to bring up their weekly income to 60 per cent of what it is when regularly employed.

"Suppose a man works for 80 cents an hour—rather more than most auto workers get—for the standard 40 hours a week. On full time, he gets $32 a week; and 60 per cent of $32 a week means $19.20 a week. If this man goes on half time, he gets $16.00 a week in wages, and the company loans him $3.20 a week to make up the 60 per cent. When full time returns, the company deducts from his pay envelope each week half the difference between $19.20 and $32; or $6.40 a week.

No Added Income Guaranteed

"In this case, he would pay back two weeks' loan with one week's work. If the plant shut down altogether, the company would loan him the whole sum; and it would take 3 weeks' work to pay back one week's loan.

"Even for the 5-year-or-more workers, this scheme does not guarantee a dollar of added income or a day of steadier employment. If a man worked two-thirds of the time, which is a rather common ratio in the auto factories, he would have a steady income indeed; but 30 per cent below his normal level.

"The 2-to-5-year man will get a loan up to 40 per cent of his normal wage—but only up to a sum equalling 72 hours' normal pay. Assuming that he draws the same pay as the older employes—which generally he doesn't, in a case of complete shut down he would get loans of $12.80 a week for between 4 and 5 weeks.

"All the power is kept in the hands of the company. The company admits that it will make no loans in stoppages due to fire, flood or war, or those due to riots or strikes. The company, if it wishes to dodge, need only provoke a disturbance, call it a riot or a strike, and refuse all loans.

"It's a trick which does the worker no real good, and was intended to turn him aside from his only salvation—collective bargaining. It ought to be exposed everywhere."

The Nazi bandits are breaking all records of their ancient profession in the size of the ransom they are demanding from the Jews.

Points of View Picked Up From Various Sources
CY KOLOGY, EDITOR

The return of the American ambassador from Berlin, even though not formally recalled, is a distinct rebuke to the nazi government. President Roosevelt's words on the question emphasize that rebuke. especially these:

"I myself could scarcely believe that such things could occur in a twentieth century civilization."

As a matter of fact, the mobbing and robbing and persecution of the Jews and the mobbing of Catholic prelates did not occur in a twentieth century civilization. Macaulay speaks of the evil deeds of a government "which has the strength of civilization without its mercy." He never had such an example as the Nazi government would furnish him now.

For as a plain statement of fact, the Nazi government has taken leave of every attribute of civilization, except its power. Using all the agencies, both productive and destructive, that modern science has placed at the disposal of man, it is conducting persecutions the like of which have not been seen in any part of Europe west of Poland since the Thirty Years War ended in 1648.

* * *

The Nazi minister of economics, Walther Funk, says that $800,000,000 of wealth owned by Jews, about one-third of the total wealth owned by Jews in Germany, has been confiscated. And the $400,000,000 fine levied on German Jews because of the shooting of a Nazi official is still to be collected. Funk summed up his work in the words: "The measures thus far taken will permit complete exclusion of Jews from the business world."

In addition to the savagery of it, Funk's statement confirms the repeated stories that Hitler is having a hard time getting cash.

* * *

In spite of all disturbances in the international field, British trade union membership has increased more than 500,000 in the last year, and now stands at 5,851,000.

Except for the World war, that is the highest membership British unions ever reached.

While union membership grows, the number of British unions declines. There are now 1,033 unions in Britain, 49 fewer than five years ago. Twelve unions have nearly half the total membership, and 40 have more than three-quarters of it.

With this fact in mind, the fact that British workers are getting more and more angry and disgusted with the British foreign policy has large meaning. The last bulletin received from the Trade Union Congress, with headquarters in London, contains a scathing denunciation of the Munich agreement, and contains the definite charge that Britain and France, under Chamberlain's leadership, threatened military measures against Czechoslovakia if she resisted.

"Czechoslovakia was like a person held down by his 'friend' so that his attackers can rob him better," says the bulletin.

YOUR DOLLAR

YOUR DOLLAR will be a regular monthly feature. The facts and opinions given are based on the monthly reports of Consumers' Union, 55 Vandam Street, New York City, a non-profit membership organization whose object is to safeguard buyers by testing and reporting on consumer goods. Note especially the information on labor conditions under which products are manufactured.

High price does not necessarily mean high quality when you buy children's snowsuits, Consumers Union reports in its November issue. Some of the comparatively low-priced suits which CU tested came closest to having the ample cut, good construction and reinforcements, and the colorfast, all-wool, windproof fabric that are needed to protect your child against cold, resist wetting and stand up under the abuse a snowsuit is sure to get. The most expensive suit in the test, Kenwood ($16.95), while of fairly good construction, was too porous to give good protection. Best buys were: Ward's Cat. No. 7485 (Montgomery Ward, Chicago; $7.35 plus postage) and Brewster (J. A. Brewster, Camden, Maine; $8 plus postage). The Ward suit is lined; the Brewster is not.

Alkalizers

Have you a little acid in your blood? If you have, don't reach for Alka-Seltzer but phone the nearest hospital or undertaker right away. Only victims of serious, often fatal organic disturbances show any noticeable acid blood reaction.

Alkalosis—poisoning from indiscriminate, continued use of alkalizing powders, is actually far more of a menace, says Dr. Arthur F. Hurst, renowned English physician, who adds that he believes more deaths result from unrecognized poisoning by alkalizing powders than from accidental poisoning with the barviturates (sleeping drugs). Many doctors will agree with Dr. Hurst that dosing with alkalizing remedies is dangerous and overdone.

It is true that an aklalizer will often soothe the pain of indigestion. It is also true that some cases of dyspepsia are associated with high acid content of the stomach—though there are many other cases with low acid content or even total absence of acid in the stomach. But even in cases with high acid content, the strong probability is that acidity is merely an additional symptom, not the cause of indigestion.

Most stomach disturbances can be traced to emotional stress, wrong food or drugs or organic disease. The symptoms may be the same in any case. To diagnose your ailment as "acid indigestion" and dose yourself from the last advertisement you read is dangerous business, for the patent remedy covers up the symptoms without treating the cause. At best, you're wasting money. At worst, you may be taking poison and neglecting a serious organic ailment which needs medical care.

Some of the highly advertised "alkalizers" such as Bromo Seltzer and Sal Hepatica are not alkalizers at all. Some of them contain potentially dangerous pain-relieving drugs rather than alkalies. Others, such as Bisodol, are actually composed of alkaline powders but are over-priced. The cheapest, simplest alkalizer is sodium bicarbonate (baking soda). A pinch of baking soda in a half glass of warm water may be tried to relieve occasional attacks of indigestion due to alcohol, hurried eating or emotional disturbances. But even baking soda should not be used too often. Consult a doctor or clinic if you have continual or often repeated indigestion.

"Acid foot," "acid skin" and the other acid ailments you find exclusively in the advertising pages are just so many forms of sales promotion. Far from needing an alkalizing cream, your skin is covered by a slightly acid secretion, the "acid mantle" which protects it against bacterial infection. "Alkalizing" the skin or feet is likely to irritate the skin since it interferes with the "acid mantle."

The truth, which advertisers are so effectively obscuring, is that you don't need alkaline remedies, drinks, foods or cold creams because your body's complex chemical balance is self maintained. Your blood, lymph, and tissue fluids, body cells, lungs and kidneys are successive supply lines maintaining equilibrium. And when those defenses have broken down, as they may do in rare instances, patent medicines and patent foods will not restore the balance.

Safety Razors

Durham Duplex, Gem Micramatic, Gillette, Valet Autostrop, Schick, or Rolls—whatever style of razor you use, you can probably improve your shaving if you wet your beard thoroughly with warm water, wash your face with soap and water and follow this with two or three minutes of vigorous lathering. When you shave, draw the razor diagonally across your face to give a partly slicing stroke, rather than straight up and down.

Part of CU's razor test was performed by a "shaving squad" of staff members who for months made the supreme sacrifice of coming unshaven to work in order to compare efficiency of various shaving techniques, brands and types of razors under laboratory conditions. Their experience seems to indicate that the Gillette type razor is best choice for the average man who wants good shaves at low cost. The Gem Micromatic type gave somewhat closer shaves, but had also a greater tendency to cut the face, and blade cost even with Best Buy blades was about twice that of the Gillette type.

Mrs. Marine—I'll say it does. The battleship he had tattooed on his chest now looks like a Hudson river tug.

IN THE NEWS

GEORGE M. HARRISON

George McGregor Harrison, chairman of the Railway Labor Executives' Association, president of the Brotherhood of Railway and Steamship Clerks, etc., is very much in the news just now. He was general in chief of railroad labor in the fight against a wage cut; and every point he made in that struggle was admitted to be true by the President's Emergency Fact Finding Board.

When you consider that he was opposed at every point by railroad lawyers and managers, that is a large and important victory.

If George had printed his middle name in full, the railroad managers might have been prepared. "McGregor" is probably the fightin'est name of the fighting Scotch; and they have all been hard to handle. Bobbie Burns boasts that

"Bring a Scotsman frae his hill...
Say 'there's the foe!'
He has no thought save how to kill
Two at a blow."

In this case, Harrison had nothing to kill but wrongful claims, and he certainly slaughtered them.

He was born in Missouri in 1891, son of a railroad watchman. He got some kind of railroad work when he was 12; and the chances are that the union rules were waived to let him join the Brotherhood before he was 21. Anyway, he was chairman of his lodge at 27; and went right on up. His schooling was mainly in night schools; and he is a Ph. D. from the University of Hard Knocks. He was named by the President to one of the committees to gather material for the Social Security Act.

He is a big, husky, wide shouldered, hard fisted; physically and mentally. And he has made these qualities count.

EXIT FOR BLUECHER

(From The Washington Post)

The mystery regarding the fate of Marshal Vassily K. Bluecher is only partially cleared up by the announcement in a Moscow newspaper that his post as commander-in-chief of the Red Army in the Soviet vineyard who, having fallen afoul of Stalin, now rest in unlocated graves? These questions are not answered. What appears certain is that a brilliant strategist and superb military organizer, who more than anyone else was responsible for the building up of Russian prestige in the Far East, has been summarily and inexplicably eliminated from the picture.

The fact that that Bluecher's popularity with the rank and file of the army he led did not prevent his being purged is eloquent proof of Stalin's power. The Soviet dictator is still obviously stronger than any he has come to regard as a possible rival. But at the same time the Bluecher episode is further evidence of that disturbed and chaotic internal situation in the Soviet Union which has played so great a part in sharply reducing Russia's international influence.

Let Freedom Ring!

By CHARLES STELZLE

Executive Director, Good Neighbor League

The election campaign through which our country has just passed has again shown us the values and the privileges of a democracy. There is no country in the world in which the freedom of discussion—through the press, the public platform, or through personal discussion—is so free and open as in America.

It is the fredom which saves our country from the attacks of alien forces and influences. The promoters of Communism and Fascism must lack a sense of humor when they take advantage of their privilege to say pretty nearly what they please against our form of government, in order to bring about a governmental system which would deny them this privilege. Or else they are just plain stupid.

If they were to exercise the same freedom in the countries which they exalt as ideal—Russia, Germany, or Italy—they would find themselves facing a firing squad or they would be forced to occupy a lousy cell in a concentration camp. They are fortunate, indeed, that we do not apply this custom to them, as the first step in bringing about the sad program which they are advocating, for this person is in the main protected in their treasonable governmental practices.

Opposed to government as we know it, and to democracy, with its freedom of opinion regarding public questions. Such opposition is not to be the object of a conspiracy. But one of the most effective of the activities of Communism and Fascism is that they are working to deprive us of this right.

It doesn't matter whether this tyranny comes through a so-called proletariat government or one that is dominated by the aristocracy—it's all the same in its effects upon our freedom. It doesn't matter who may be our master if we are to be deprived of our rights and privileges.

And so, let's continue to hammer out our differences as we have done for 150 years, agreeing on a common program through a give-and-take process, but doing it as free men and women.

MORE ABOUT NEWS FLASHES

Power and Light Company, which holds the franchise for this service in Jackson, are now organized 100 per cent into a unit of the Amalgamated Street and Railway Employes Association, which is an affiliate of the American Federation of Labor.

This report was given to the Central Labor Union of Jackson, last Friday, by W. E. Waitt, representative of the A S & R E A, who has spent several days here organizing the group. There are 65 charter members of the new unit of organization, and charter will be obtained in the near future.

MOBILE, Ala., Nov. 21.—Registered Pharmacists of Mobile have organized a strong local union, affiliated with the Retail Clerks Protective Association. The charter has been obtained, officers named, a well defined program for expansion adopted. Charles E. Shanner, Clerks' general organizer, formed the organization and installed the charter.

MARYVILLE, Tenn., Nov. 21.—The NLRB has ordered an election among the employes of the Aluminum Company of America for the purpose of selecting a bargaining agency, the election to be held within 15 days from Nov. 18. The ballot will be a four-way affair, with the Aluminum Employes Association, the International Union Aluminum Workers of America, and the Aluminum Workers Local Union No. 19104, contesting for the bargaining agency, while the fourth choice is that an employe may vote for neither of these organizations.

The Aluminum Employes association is an independent union; the International Union Aluminum Workers of America is a CIO outfit; the Aluminum Workers Local Union No. 19104 is affiliated with the American Federationof Labor.

Local Union No. 19104 was once a strong union here. Through it, the workers were granted good increases in pay and their working conditions greatly improved. Freu A. Wetmore was president for some time prior to July, 1937, when a strike occurred at Alcoa. Wetmore had been playing with the CIO for many months, while still serving as A.F.L. president of the local union. When the strike vote was taken, Wetmore, it has been charged many times and never denied once, doubled the strike vote to make it appear that a majority of the workers wanted the strike. The long fight here has been waged about the head of Wetmore.

It is not known just what day the election will be held, the NLRB having a funny way of ordering an election within a given number of days, and then the actual rate for the election being named at a later date.

CHARLESTON, S. C., Nov. 21.—This city's labor family is proud of the newly organized local union of Structural and Ornamental Iron Workers International, charter has been installed, officers named and proper affiliations have been made. Frank Walsh was elected president of the local, which was organized by Stanley Rounds, International representative. The new local is No. 601. Mr. Rounds was here and had charge of the installation program. Assisting him were C. F. Strickland, business agent of the Atlanta local; A. S. Lyerly, business agent of the Jacksonville local; Al Flynn, president of the State Federation of Labor; President Mallard of the State Building Trades Council; Business Agent Coles, and other labor officials.

This is the third charter installed by Representative Rounds during the past sixty days, the other locals being at Wilmington, N. C., and Jacksonville, Fla. There is about $65,000,000 in work to be done in this immediate vicinity, it was pointed out by Mr. Rounds, the wage rates having been set on practically all of the jobs.

PARIS ISLAND, S. C., Nov. 21.—The J. A. Jones Construction Company has begun work here on a million dollar job for the government, in the erection of a Marine barracks. The job is fair, and union building mechanics are employed.

COLUMBUS, Ga., Nov. 21.—The Beer Construction Company, of Atlanta, has the contract for the construction of a barracks at Fort Benning. Iron workers from Atlanta and other cities are employed on the job.

The Cherry Tree

Anthracite coal producers boost prices. Not much, it is true, but the boost is sure to be reflected in already high retail anthracite prices.

That doesn't look like a very bright move. Hard coal is a declining industry. Oil, soft coal and other fuels have been hitting anthracite demand for years.

Anthracite industry has endeavored to meet the competition by a publicity and advertising urging the merits of its product.

But unless the industry has the ability and the will to compete with rival fuels on a price basis, the chances are it will continue to lose ground.

* * *

Anthracite is not the only industry that hikes prices when demand falls. The Railroad industry has followed this unwise policy. Other industries raise prices when demand increases.

If industry knows what is best for it, it will take smaller profits and keep prices down as business activity gains. That means larger purchasing power for the consumer and greater consumption.

Price boosts, especially if sharp, threaten continuance of the present recovery. Here is something for organized labor in every community to watch. If prices soar, labor can do a patriotic duty by asking, "how come?" and pounding away everlastingly for adequate answer.

* * *

Big volume buying of Christmas gifts bearing the union label would aid recovery. It would help to put to work, increase workers' income, strengthen the labor movement. Big union label buying would fortify democracy, be a blow at low wage foreign goods. Purchase of union label products and services is assurance you are "Buying American." Are you insisting that every Christmas present you purchase bears the union label?

* * *

Maybe Herr Hitler and his gang have bitten off more than they can chew this time. Their barbarious persecution of the Jews is serving as nothing else has to line up world opinion against the nazi regime. This feeling is bound to be reflected in decreased demand for German products. Strengthening of the boycott won't help nazi industry or finance and it can easily offset all the nazis take from the Jews. Sooner or later every tyrant stubs his toe.

"The bigger they are, the harder they fall," said Solomon. On second thought, Solomon didn't say this, at least in these words, but it is a wise remark nevertheless.

Popeye, Micky Mouse and other "dangerous characters" of screen and comic strip are to be barred from Italy in the interest of the totalitarian education of children.

"Our aim is to raise children in the firm imperialist spirit of the fascist revolution," orated Dr. Casini, of the ministry of popular culture, in making the announcement at a national conference of literature for children.

Italians with the slightest sense of humor must have chuckled over Dr. Casini's bombastic assertion. If enough of them laugh at this and other of fascism's absurdities, it will be a factor in putting fascism on the skids.

TO enjoy work, a woman must feel well. Cardui aids in building up the whole system by helping women to get more energy from their food—and so increases resistance to the strain of functional periodic pain. Try it!

THE FIFTH MAN

(From the Evening Star, Washington, D. C.)

If present trends continue the total of traffic deaths this year will be only 80 per cent of the fatalities recorded in 1937. In other words, where five lives were lost last year, one should be saved in 1938. That means that some 8,000 people who would have been dead in 1937 will be alive when this year draws to its close.

The National Safety Council has issued a warning, however, that motorists must drive more carefully than ever during November and December if the traffic death rate is to be held down for the rest of the year.

For one thing, the records show that the death rate triples after the sun goes down. Then there is also added danger of skidding in November and December, when sleet, rain, snow, ice and wet leaves on the pavement add to the hazards of motoring.

The advice of the safety council is timely and should be heeded by motorists and pedestrians, too. With just a little extra caution on the part of all concerned, it should be possible to keep that fifth man alive.

IOWA TRUCK DRIVERS WIN STRIKE

DES MOINES.—Union and operators' representatives reached an agreement here giving victory to central Iowa truck drivers after a three and one-half weeks' strike.

The settlement was approved by a full membership meeting of the union. The strikers were members of Local 90, International Brotherhood of Teamsters, A. F. of L. affiliate.

Walter L. Stewart, attorney representing the operators, and Leo Quinn, secretary of the local, said companies not yet covered by an 11-state truckers' agreement would sign immediately.

Quinn said 275 drivers, the last remaining on strike, had ceased picketing. Originally, more than 1,000 drivers struck. They tied up operations of approximately 40 "over-the-road" motor freight carriers and 20 local transfer firms.

The contract regulates wages, hours and working conditions. Under its main provisions, drivers are guaranteed two and three quarter cents per mile for "over-the-road" hauling and a minimum of 75 cents an hour for loading and working other than driving.

A minimum rate of 60 cents an hour is provided for hauling done within a radius of 75 miles of a company's home office or on round trips not exceeding 150 miles. A rate of 57½ cents an hour is provided for city pick-up and delivery.

Supreme Court Review Again Refused Mooney

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The Supreme Court refused to reconsider its denial of a review in the case of Tom Mooney, giving no reasons for its action. Justices Black and Reed, who voted for a review when the case was up in October, took no part in considering the appeal to reconsider.

Despite the court's stand, Mooney probably is closer to freedom than he has been in 22 years. Culbert L. Olson, governor-elect of California, has repeated his campaign statement that he would consider Mooney's application for pardon in the light of his, Olson's, expressed belief that Mooney was not guilty of the crime for which he is serving sentence, but "had been convicted on perjured testimony and false evidence."

ECONOMIC HOPE No. 1

The Nashville, Chattanooga & St. Louis Railway has been privileged to serve the South for over ninety years — the South which, favored as it is by Nature, still counts as its greatest asset its own people.

Emerging from the ravages of the Civil War, with its manpower sacrificed on the altar of local self government, without credit, without the ordinary necessaries of life, the South was then confronted with an emergency greater by far than that now or recently obtaining. The southern people were too proud to beg — too courageous to quit — so they went to work. With infinite personal sacrifice, with the same sublime courage which nerved their husbands and sons, under the immortal Pickett, to storm the heights of Cemetery Ridge, they started on the long, hard road to economic rehabilitation. History records their travail, but it also records their success. Prosperity followed hard and intelligent labor — as it always does — but above all the South maintained its self respect and its independence.

Through these dark years the NC&StL did its full part — today it is doing the same thing.

Again NC&StL whistles are blowing and more men by the hundreds are going back to work to make the NC&StL a better servant of its own people. By hard work, study, fidelity to real democratic principles, cooperation, and patience, the South can and will lead the Nation to greater prosperity and happiness.

The NC&StL salutes the South—

Speech Urging Education and Fight On Poverty as Best Ways to Beat Reds Meets Wide Popular Approval

Talk by Eminent Educator, Stressing Teaching of Democracy, Respect for Constitutional Rights and Improvement in Economic Conditions, Brings 32,000 Commendatory Letters.

New York City. — Education, preservation of constitutional rights, and improvement of economic conditions are the best means to beat communism, William F. Russell, dean of Teachers college, Columbia university, said in an address that has stirred widespread and unusual expression of popular approval. Dean Russell spoke before the New York state convention of the American Legion.

Approval of the dean's address, entitled "How to Tell a Communist and How to Beat Him" was expressed not only by the Legionnaires at the close of his talk but was shown even more by a remarkable flood of commendatory letters. No less than 32,000 letters from all over the nation were received by the dean, praising his speech and declaring hearty support of his views.

Throughout his address, Dean Russell strongly emphasized education teaching democracy and relief of poverty and distress as the most effective weapons against Communism and the Communist. At one point he cited the conditions that gave Communism its chance in Russia.

Russian Reds Aided By Three Conditions

"There were, I think, three," he said. "First, widespread misery, poverty and distress; second, suppression of freedom of speech and the right of meeting and assembly; third, general ignorance.

"These are the three conditions that give Communism a chance to flower and flourish."

The way the Russian Bolsheviks, as the Communists were then known, worked their way to the seizure of power, said the dean, was as follows:

"Talk about peace, talk about social equality, especially among those most oppressed. Talk about organization of labor, and penetrate into every labor union. Talk on soap boxes. Publish pamphlets and papers. Orate and harangue. Play on envy. Arouse jealousy. Separate class from class.

Democracy Attacked From Within

"Try to break down the democratic processes from within.... Constantly attack the leaders in every way possible, so that the people will lose confidence. Then in time of national peril, during a war, on the occasion of a great disaster, or on a general strike, walk into the capital and seize the power. A well-organized minority can work wonders."

"You can only tell a Communist by his ideas," Dean Russell declared, after telling of his experiences in Russia and Siberia in 1918. He described methods of the Communists in seeking to get control throughout the world.

"Every country must become communistic, according to the ideas of the Communist leaders," he continued. "So they have sent out missionaries. They have supplied them well with funds. They have won converts.

Communists Work Through "Cells"

"These converts have been organized into little groups called "cells," each acting as a unit under the orders of a superior. It is almost a military organization. They attack where there is unemployment. They stir up discontent among those oppressed, particularly among the Negroes and Jews.

"They work their way into unions, where they form compact blocks. They publish and distribute little papers and pamphlets.... These are scurrilous sheets. In one issue I noted 29 errors of fact. After a recent address of mine they passed out a dodger attacking me, with a deliberate error of fact in each paragraph."

Poverty Makes Soil For Communism

Describing conditions making for the growth of Communism, Dean Russell said:

"When you have abject poverty widespread, when people are out of work, when houses are damp, dirty and crowded, when children cry for food, there you have a soil fertile for Communism.

"It is no accident that there are Communists in the suburbs of Paris and London, in Harlem, or along the waterfront in New York and San Francisco. After a drudging day of despair, the family sick and cold, the doors of hope shut, you can't blame the unlucky for giving willing ear to the blandishments of the Communist propagandist, who says that Russia is a happy land with golden gates, flowing with milk and honey.

"When men are down they'll sell their birthright either for a mess of pottage or for a pot of message.

"One way, then, to fight Communism is to go to the root of poverty and distress. Whatever you may think of certain aspects of the work of the present administration, you must see that in the program of resettlement, in the WPA, in the CCC camps, and in the National Youth Administration, President Roosevelt and his advisers have been helping the poor and helpless.

"What they have done for the poor has been the most powerful blow against Communism. No matter what the national government does, whether you agree with this program or not, the good American who wishes to fight Communism must lend every effort to clean up the slums, to assist the unlucky, to cure the sick, to care for the sick, to care for the widow and the orphan.

Violation of Rights Big Aid to Reds

"You have a second condition favorable to Communism when people dare not speak their minds. Let the right of assembly abridged and sympathy follows the supposedly injured party.... Nothing pleases the Communists more, nothing advertists them so much, nothing wins them more converts, than violation of these rights."

Dean Russell declared that what the Communist most fears is education. "Communism cannot flourish where all, or almost all, the people know a good deal about history, political science and sociology.... The educated person knows that social changes come very slowly. If you are in a hurry, as in Germany from 1919 to 1933, or in Spain, there is revolution and reaction....

"The educated man moves slowly. He is in no hurry. The educated man moves steadily and persistently. He will not be lulled to sleep.

Education Blow at Communism

"So to hit Communism, at its weakest point," he continued, "you must have education. You cannot fight an idea by banishing it. You cannot fight an idea by shooting it. Purges, 'red scares,' teachers' oaths, discharging professors, never stopped Communism. The only way you can fight an idea is by meeting it with an other idea; and the only way you can meet it with another idea is by proper education.

"It is most fortunate for us that most of our children have a chance to go to school....It does not make much difference to me as an American what sort of Latin or spelling or algebra they study, but I do hope they will learn what democracy is and why we have it; what life was like when our ancestors lived under tyranny, and what life must be in Russia and Germany, in Spain, Japan and Italy; what these liberties are that we prize, what these rights are that we must maintain; and what our corresponding duties must be.

Knowledge Is Power In Anti-Red Fight

"Let these girls and boys hear of the theories of social improvement. Let them know what Communism and Fascism think they are. Let them go right down to the bottom. Knowledge is power."

In ending his address, Dean Russell summarized his argument, saying:

"You of the Legion recognize the enemy. How shall we beat him? Relieve poverty and distress. Stand up for the rights of meeting and assembly and freedom of speech, particularly when you do not agree.

"Foster Education Above All"

"Support the schools and foster in every way the study of history, government, and social life.

"Above all, support a liberal education, an education for men, not dogs, that we may enter and live in a world of ideas, of beauty, of thought. This should be the American program.

"It will cause the most of discomfort to our enemies; it will do the most to perpetuate and preserve the form of government and the kind of life which the Fathers of our Country willed to us and to which they were confident we would give our last full measure of devotion."

Hammers and Saws Ring 'Go Ahead' Signal As Home Building Leads Way to Recovery

Nationwide home building activity, nearing 1929 pace, is seen by business leaders as bulwark of re-employment and payrolls. Upper center, typical new small home combining conventional design with modern trend to large window area (photo from American Home); below, new apartment construction field is active; upper right, John D. Biggers, National Unemployment Census director and president of Libbey-Owens-Ford glass company, who reports home building industry "figures to lead the new recovery drive."

NEW YORK—The staccato beat of hammers and whine of saws are ringing a "go ahead" signal into the ears of industry and consumers as home building surges forward to its best year since 1929.

With the chart line for contemplated residential construction nearing pre-depression peaks, business leaders and economists regard the home building industry as the nation's greatest purse-opener, prying loose long-dormant dollars to revive payrolls and employment in many fields and set in motion a long-pull recovery parade.

Building of small homes in small communities—putting to work the home town contractors, carpenters, plumbers, masons and material suppliers—is the bulwark of the movement that, according to the Federal Housing administration, will see 1938 chalking up the highest home building figures since 1929.

FHA valuation figures for the first eight months of 1938 on "small home mortgages selected for appraisal" total $650,000,000, an increase of 52 per cent over the $430,000,000 for the same period of 1937, best since 1931. Widening margins in these gains the last six months indicate the building of 350,000 new family units in 1938—against 285,000 in 1937 and in contrast to the 1933 low of 54,000—pointing to continuation of the upward trend in contrast to the decline that marked the latter half of 1937.

Indicative of the confidence industrial leaders feel in this trend and in its role as provider of re-employment, not only in building trades but in scores of industries supplying materials, equipment and services, is the statement of John D. Biggers, president of the Libbey-Owens-Ford glass company and National Unemployment census director.

"In talks with architects, builders and supply dealers throughout the country," Mr. Biggers said, "I have found optimism in every section about prospects for new homes and for modernization, window-conditioning, re-roofing and other insulation and improvement projects. This should go far toward solving the unemployment problem, for in the years 1926-29, according to the National Industrial Conference board, an average of 2,303,000 workers were employed directly in building construction. About 35 cents of every home-building dollar goes to labor—on the site of construction. Thus home building figures to lead the new recovery drive, carrying dozens of tributary industries along with it."

Contributing to the building activity surge is the fact that interest in new materials and arrangements in homes has never been greater, even in so-called boom times, according to Paul McAlister, director of the Permanent Exhibition of Decoration and Architecture here.

Joseph B. Mason, editor of American Builder, attributes the upswing largely to the fact that "the idea of easy, long-term single mortgages with FHA backing is just beginning to take hold—people are building because they are just learning how it can be done on little money. When you think of the bathtubs, boilers, stoves, lumber and other heavy goods that go into homes it's easy to see what the building revival will do to put the railroad and steel industries back on their feet, too."

No Excuse for Blinding of Workers In American Industries, Declares Authority on Eye Injuries

Bethlehem, Pa.—There is no longer any excuse for the blinding of a worker in American industry, and yet industrial accidents and industrial diseases still constitute one of the principal causes of blindness in America, declared Louis Resnick, a member of the staff of the National Society for the Prevention of Blindness, of New York City, an an address here before the Pennsylvania Association for the Blind.

Mr. Resnick, who has just returned to the United States after making an extended study of the means of preventing eye injuries which are proving most effective in Europe, told the Pennsylvania Association that American industory is far ahead of European industry, and probably of any country, in the conservation of vision of its industrial workers.

Eyes Can Be Safeguarded

"The industrial accident and disease hazards affecting the eyes are now pretty thoroughly known," he said. "Methods of averting these hazards, or protecting workers against them, have been thoroughly demonstrated and are commonly known. Protective devices against almost every type of industrial eye accident are now available. No employer can justifiably claim that it is impossible to safeguard the eyes of the workers in his plant.

"Such concerns as the United States Steel Corporation, the Union Pacific railroad, the Pullman company, and others—large and small—have succeeded in reducing the frequency and severity of eye injuries to the point where the blinding of a worker has become a rare instead of a commonplace occurrence.

No Reason for Hazards

"The accident prevention methods used by these and hundreds of other corporations successfully have been repeatedly and widely reported by the National Safety Council, the National Society for the Prevention of Blindness, and by the numerous other interested organizations.

"In view of these facts and in view of the high cost of industrial accidents, it sems that only sheer stupidity or a total disregard for humane considerations can account for the continued exposure of of workers to industrial eye hazards.

"The National Society for the Prevention of Blindness after careful studies has estimated that industrial eye accidents and eye diseases cost American industry some $50,000,000 a year."

Huge Cost in One State

Mr. Resnick pointed out that "in Pennsylvania alone more than 10,000 industrial workers lost one or both eyes in the course of their employment during the past 20 years, and that the industries of this state have paid more than $16,000,000 in compensation for these injuries. The average compensation to these workers for the loss of one or both eyes was $1,571. The loss in wages to these workers was probably 10 times that amount—usually much more."

AGE HANDICAP TO MACHINISTS SEEKING EMPLOYMENT, WPA REPORT ASSERTS

Washington, D. C.—The Works Progress Administration has published a study of "Ten Years of Work Experience of Philadelphia Machinists." It covers the period from 1926 to 1936, and shows that when Philadelphia machine shops complained in the latter year that there was a shortage of machinists, they were not stating facts. There were still plenty of unemployed machinists in the city.

"The age of machinists was significantly related to their employment status," says the study. "Half the machinists studied reported no employment lasting one month or more during the 10-year period. This half was somewhat older than the average. On the other hand, those who were unemployed in May, 1936, were also older than the average.

"While age is no handicap to the skilled machinist in retaining a job, once he becomes unemployed age becomes a distinct liability."

Unemployment was worst among machinists in early 1933; but, says the study:

"By 1935 and 1936, there were frequent reports of a labor shortage in the occupation. Yet in May, 1936, one out of every eight machinists was found to be unemployed, and another was working at some other occupation, most often less skilled work. More than half the unemployed had been without a job for at least a year."

Green Asks Boycott of All German Goods

AFL PRESIDENT ANGERED BY HITLER'S RACE PERSECUTION

Collective Resources of Organized Labor Are Called Into Demonstration Against Tyranny and Greed

WASHINGTON, D. C.—A bitter denunciation of Adolf Hitler's Nazi government for its unparalleled persecution of Jews in Germany and a call to the American people to join in a nation-wide boycott of the goods and services of Germany until the persecution of the Jew is stopped, featured a radio address here by William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, over the National network of the Columbia Broadcasting System.

The boycott, Mr. Green said, is backed by the 5,000,000 members of the American Federation of Labor, whom he called upon to intensify their militant action against the Nazi dictatorship until its victimization of the Jews is terminated.

Green's Speech

The American Federation of Labor was the first great institution in this country to put into effect an economic boycott against Nazi Germany. This action was taken five years ago at the 1933 convention of the American Federation of Labor and has been reaffirmed at each succeeding convention.

What was it that influenced the 5,000,000 members of the Federation to pledge unanimously through their chosen representatives that they and their families would not buy goods made in Germany?

There are two compelling reasons. First, the wholly unwarranted persecution of the Jews in Germany by the Nazis and secondly, the destruction of the organized labor movement in Germany by the Nazis.

One of the first acts of the Hitler regime when it came into power was the arrest and imprisonment of German labor leaders. This was followed by the suppression and dissolution of the Germany trade unions in a campaign of brutality and ruthlessness that matched Hitler's attacks on the Jews.

Foresaw Reign of Terror

The American Federation of Labor recognized immediately that this Nazi move was the beginning of a reign of terror that spelled the end of all freedom in Germany. We knew it would result in enforced labor and virtual slavery for the German workers. We knew that a government ruthless enough to wipe out the rights of labor would not hesitate to trample upon the rights of all races, creeds, religions and beliefs. For a strong, free and independent organized labor movement is the greatest protection any country can have for the protection of its freedom and civil liberties.

Press dispatches from abroad show the atrocities against German Jews have now been renewed with a ferocity which recognizes no limitations. Labor cannot remain silent or passive. We must make our position known, not only through individual and collective protests, but through collective action.

With this in mind, I have today called upon every organization affiliated with the American Feder-

Following is a list of fair plaster contractors:

Teacher Talk

In the field of education, the most significant action taken by the Southern Conference on Human Welfare was the endorsement of the principles of the Federal Aid bill which is to come before the next Congress. Also endorsed was the petition for the elimination of poll taxes as a requirement for voting. It will be remembered that this petition originated in the Tennessee Committee for Progressive Legislation, a progressive group which itself grew out of the state legislative conference of last spring, of which S. C. Cox was chairman and Stanton Smith secretary.

* * *

The federation's legislative committee was entertained at tea on Tuesday by one of its members, Miss Edmund Hoosier. At this meeting the discussion concerned chiefly preparations for pushing the Federal Aid bill.

* * *

Make your plans now to attend the next federation meeting, Dec. 17, 2 p. m., at Dickinson Junior High school. The afternoon hour was adopted because of favorable response to the change.

* * *

One highly interesting subject to be discussed at this meeting will be that of sick-pay recommendations. Miss Kate Garvin, chairman of the committee that has spent much time in correspondence with many schools and in the compilation of data received from these schools about their sick-pay plans, made a preliminary report at the latest meeting of the board of directors. You will remember that the city allows half pay up to 20 days, but the county allows none whatsoever. Watch for a bulletin anent this vital matter.

IBEW APPOINTS BELL AS REPRESENTATIVE

Although the Tennessee Electric Power company has mistreated its union employes in shameful fashion, there is a note of optimism and cheerfulness in the ranks of Local 846, Linemen, that is an example to all trades unionism, according to a statement made this week by Press Representative L. H. Beckum, of the linemen local.

Another bit of important news is the announcement that President and Business Agent Hayden Bell, of Local 846, has been appointed by the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers as a special representative.

Brother Beckum's press release says:

"Local 846, I. B. E. W., wishes to announce the promotion of its business manager, Brother Hayden N. Bell, as an international representative. We regret the loss of our good brother here in our local, but feel sure he will make the international a good representative.

"Assistant Business Manager Brother Claud Putman took Brother Bill's place as business manager of our local.

"Local 846 has changed their office from 615 Walnut street to 249 East Eleventh street, so we want to urge each and every member to be present at our next meeting, which is Friday, Dec. 2.

"Everyone is in the best of spirits over the strike situation. Nearly all the men have gone to work at different places, most of whom are working for H. B. Nelson, of the Federal Engineering and Construction company here in Chattanooga.

"We want to urge all our men to stay in good spirits until things do work out right.

We Weep

Says The Editor

We offer to our readers today abject apology for this issue of the Labor World. If you find it is not up to our standard, charge it to misery and grief, bitter tears shed over the pitiable plight of our Tennessee Electric Power Company. Perusal of the daily papers during the past several days, with their pathetic stories of the troubles of the Power Company, would melt the hardest heart, and the claims of spokesmen for the company that particularly the State Utilities Board is "persecuting" them, have doubtless caused weeping and wailing among the populace. Of course, to some the heart-rending picture would be peculiar because there are doubtless those who believe that the Tennessee Electric Power Company approved the creation of this same Utilities Board, and there are even those who will say that the power interests were primarily responsible for taking control of public utilities out of the hands of city governments and placing all authority in this central commission. Again, there are possibly hard-hearted people who will contend that utility interests have occasionally "hand picked" members of this State Utilities Commission.

Also, there is a possibility that some folks are deluded into the attitude of considering the State Utilities Commission in the nature of a sort of Frankenstein for the Power Company.

It will appear to some, however, that recently the people have failed to be impressed by the many and devious plans of the utilities to name the personnel of this Board and have elected men who will represent the interests of the whole people. Bitter tears have doubtless been and will be shed over the Power Company's deep interest in and sympathy for those who are unable to pay "penalties" when their light bill is overdue, but there will also be those hard-hearted ones who will wonder by what right a penalty is exacted for delayed liquidation of any account and by whose authority such "penalties" are exacted by the power interests.

The pathetic picture has us all unnerved, and at press time the editor was weeping like a child.

"Our" Power Company has the interests of the whole people at heart. "We pay taxes." Therefore, we should be allowed to continue an arrogant policy which has been undisturbed since the memory of man runneth not to the contrary.

Excuse us, please, while we wipe away another tear.

The Cherry Tree

Talk of a big United States armament expansion progras is producing a good deal of hysteria and near-hysteria.

All sorts of fool statements are being made.

Such as, for example, that South America is in danger of actual Fascist and Nazi attack.

Talk that the chief subject of the forthcoming Pan-American conference at Lima will be "collective security," based on great military and naval power, has been rife in the press and elsewhere.

This is another way of saying that the United States and the South American nations will discuss banding together in a military alliance to oppose attack by Germany, Italy and Japan.

Talk of this kind pleases the armament makers no end and they are already licking their chops over prospect of fat profit pickings.

* * *

The totalitarian nations are too busy elsewhere to consider the fantastic idea of military conquest in South America.

Everything indicates that the major expansion of Germany, dominating totalitarian power, will continued to be toward eastern Europe, as now.

China will keep Japan busy for a long, long time to come.

Much more probable than military attack on the new world will be attempts by the totalitarian nations to extend the Nazi-Fascist idea into South America.

Against ideas battleships, airplanes and bayonets will be ineffective.

* * *

Best way to fight the totalitarian idea in South America and everywhere, for that matter, is to improve economic conditions.

If the Lima conference will devote its best energies to helping the South American nations solve their economic problems so that there will be no reason for their turning to the totalitarian powers, it will be getting somewhere.

Goading them on to big armament programs will not help.

Promotion of trade between all nations in North and South America will help.

Encouragement of peace and respect for international law will help.

Aid to everything that makes for democracy and the successful working of the democratic system, will help.

* * *

Senator Gerald P. Nye of North Dakota has been saying some things that please a lot of Americans.

Nye headed the senate munitions investigation and he knows the wiles of munitions interests.

Calling for a slow down of United States arms expansion, Nye asserted that talk of threats from foreign powers was "only a cover for those hell-bent on a mad naval program."

"There is no likelihood of any power or combination of powers attacking South America," he said.

Warning that the United States cannot hope to carry the "terrific load of taxation" entailed in proposed armament programs, Nye added:

"If there be those who think that the armament program is going to bring recovery, they only have to go a step further and conclude that the way to bring complete recovery and the nth degree of prosperity is actually to go to war and turn all energies to armaments."

UPHOLSTERERS PROTEST NAZI TERROR

New York City.—The Upholsterers' International Union of North America has joined the nation-wide protest against Nazi persecution, going on record in the following telegram sent to President Roosevelt by Sal B. Hoffmann, president of the union:

"The Upholsterers' International union, an affiliate of the American Federation of Labor with a membership of 35,000, heartily applauds your courageous statement on the latest brutalities of the Nazi madmen.

"Our membership joins your protest against the persecution of the Jews, Catholics and Protestants who are the special objects of the bloody Nazi terror. We urge an embargo on German goods by our government."

Buy Union Label Gifts

"The Better the Day, the Better the Deed"

BY

I. M. ORNBURN, Secretary-Treasurer
By I. M. ORNBURN, Secretary-Treasurer

WHY NOT dedicate the Holiday shopping season this year to the great cause of the Union Label? What could be more appropriate than to devote our time to urging Christmas shoppers to buy only Union-made gifts and patronize only Union services? This action would certainly be in accord with the spirit of the season, for as a great divine recently said: "What can be more sacred, more holy, and more deserving than the Union Label, which signifies that human life has been more highly valued in the production of commodities than mere profit sought by greed? The Union Label is an emblem of justice, of fraternity, and of humanity."

WHEN YOU see the Union Label on any product it is a message from the workers of the factory in which the goods are made that they were manufactured under humane conditions by men and women who work for decent wages during reasonable hours. It is the best guarantee that the product is not made by child labor. It is an assurance that fathers and mothers earn enough to support their children, educate them, and also allow them to enjoy fresh air and sunshine instead of slaving in sweatshops. It is insurance for healthy and useful citizens.

THE HUMAN element in our society is more important than profits. When one patronizes those firms that display the Union Label, Shop Card and Button, he is raising the standards of all American workers. Organized labor advocates many of the ideals which the Carpenter of Nazareth taught in His day.

WHEN WORKERS gather in the family circle at Christmas time to distribute presents, they should be sure that they are Union-made. It will give them greater enjoyment. Many practical and worthwhile products, upon which the Union Label is displayed, can be purchased.

THERE IS NO method through which better times can be brought to American than through the buying of Union Label and American-made products. It will keep our money in our own land. It will increase employment. It will raise wages. It will better the conditions of every worker. It will increase purchasing power. It will reduce taxation for relief purposes. In general, it will bring a more permanent prosperity to America.

SURELY, THESE are worthy reasons why every purchaser during Christmas shopping season should patronize only those firms that display the Union Label, Shop Card and Button.

Auto Patents First Study Subject of Monopoly Inquiry

Washington. — Chairman O'Mahoney announces that the billion-dollar automobile manufacturing industry would be the first economic field investigated by his joint congressional monopoly committee.

O'Mahoney said the investigation would deal with automobile patents, and patent pooling, to show how they "affect the economics of the country, favorably or unfavorably."

This evidence will be presented by the department of justice when hearings begin Dec. 1, he said.

The hearings, he said, will open with comprehensive summaries of the national economic situation by Dr. Isador Lubin, department of labor statistician; Dr. Willard Thorp, Dun & Bradstreet economist attached to the commerce department, and Leon Henderson, works progress administration economist serving as committee executive secretary.

The machine is both the glory and the scandal of our age. It is the glory because it enables man to create more wealth in twenty years than the world could formerly produce in eighteen centuries. It is the scandal because, having created vast wealth through machine production, many of our people are left in a condition of utter destitution and deprived of the work opportunities for self-maintenance.—U. S. Senator James J. Davis, of Pennsylvania.

American Labol Take Heed!

Events in France should impress indelibly upon the minds of every American worker the danger of military rule and the surrender of inalienable rights to federal fiat.

Premier Daladier of France, that brave and indomitable French patriot, who several weeks ago spoke softly to Dictator Hitler, sold the Czechs down the river, called in Bumble-puppy, now has called out the troops, French troops, with bayonets, gas and all other civilized appurtenances, and has prodded the French workers, his own people, back to work.

That's not all. Under the French military rule, where every able bodied man is a member of the military reserves, Daladier called the workers themselves to their military posts, and forced them by a strange contortionist stunt, to prod themselves with their own bayonets to drop their strike.

Refusal to do so would be violation of military law, punishable by death, or at least long years of imprisonment.

Let American labor be slow in conferring upon our own government such legislation. Let us not legislate ourselves to such an extent that we cannot strike when we see fit, cannot fix our own wages, cannot organize ourown unions, cannot think for ourselves, without federal sanction.

Labor to Help Save Nazi Victims

The American people have been stirred to deep indignation by the persecution of the Jews and others in Germany.

They have voiced indignation at the outrages and sympathy with the victims in unmistakable manner, as witness expressions by the press and radio and action taken by many kinds of organizations all over the nation.

Soon they will have an opportunity to show their sympathy in a practical way.

With Matthew Woll and other labor executives taking a prominent part, plans are under way to form a great national organization of Americans in all walks of life to aid victims of European tyranny.

Labor's past record in the field of humanitarian help gives assurance it will be in the lead in the movement. Always a defender of liberty and democracy and hater of tyranny and absolutism, labor can be depended upon to give aid in any just cause.

And labor's aid, with the aid of every other element of the population, will be needed. The task of saving the victims of Nazism and Fascism will be a tremendous one, demanding the earnest co-operation of not only the United States but of all democracies.

The Case in Two Nutshells

"The captains of industry created mass production, but they could not build up a mass market able to absorb the production of high powered industry. Therefore, our plant has never been used to capacity, and we have the spectacle of millions on starvation incomes in the midst of a possible plenty."

Those two sentences from the Monthly Survey of Business of the A. F. of L. are about as perfect an indictment of our present situation as one can expect to achieve. It is proper to add that none of the machines which have transformed industry were invented by the captains of industry themselves. And three other sentences from the same document simply must be quoted:

"We need to think of ourselves as consumers. The consumer is the key man of the power age. His buying power is the gold mine out of which resources for industrial growth must come. Eight out of every ten consumers derive their buying power from wages or small salaries. Therefore, the trade union has a responsibility as spokesman for more than three-quarters of all consumers."

A sobering as well as an inspiring statement. Let it spread.

No Graft Comes to the Pay Check

Some times one can get a light on the great skill, financial acumen, and great constructive capacity of the masters of big corporations by taking a look at the financial pages. Here are two instances.

The United States Rubber company announces that it is going to pay $4 a share this year on its preferred stock. There are 690,000 shares of this preferred stock; and more than twice as many of common stocks, which do not even get the smell of a dividend. More, this is the first dividend that United States Rubber has paid in 10 years—since 1928.

During all this time, this holding company—it has six subsidiaries—has been bitterly anti-labor. Yet the only dividend in 10 years comes after the Wagner act has guaranteed the rubber workers' right to organize.

The Commonwealth & Southern company, a very big utility holding company, reports net income for the 12 months ending Oct. 31, this year, of 9 cents a share on its outstanding common stock. There are 35,675,528 such shares outstanding—and there never was any excuse for issuing 10 per cent of that number.

The bulk of the big corporation masters show high ability mainly in devising ways to get legalized graft. And, once again, seldom or never does graft money get into the pay envelope.

»»»» Louise Tinker, Correspondent ««««

We start this week by telling you a good story we heard the latter part of last week. It had to do with a man who is not a member of any labor union and who has, to a certain extent, never particularly cared for organization. Well, things happen in the place where said man is employed and he goes rushing to the local asking that they intercede for him that he may retain his job—it is another case of "seniority must rule"—and the organization has promised help as per usual. Now we stop and wonder why he never thought of the union some 25 years ago. Sometimes when we think the whole thing over we wonder deep down in our hearts if such people are worthy our helping. They don't need us only in time of trouble.

The culinary workers do appreciate the union people who are patronizing our union houses. Always look for the shop card. If you don't find it then don't eat. No, no, no, no. Through co-operation there is victory.

Minnie Kennedy has returned to Smith's Cafe after several weeks' absence because of illness.

Have you heard about the culinary worker who bought himself a lamp pole at Eighth and Cherry streets bright and early the other morning? After this I probably won't be hearing these things but it is a fact that if you are interested in purchasing a lamp pole at a very reasonable rate with terms to suit yourself it might be wise to contact L. G. Alley. While you are doing this trading say a little prayer for me.

Had lunch at Garry's Grill on Third street on Wednesday. If you want to get all the good home-cooked food you can eat for almost a song you should go out to this union restaurant. No fooling, folks, the food is perfectly grand.

On Thanksgiving day 25 of the News boys had dinner at Moreland's. They were the guest of their manager—I think he is called their district manager.

Chris Dades, who operates the State Cafe at 525 Market street, recently received his naturalization papers which makes him a full-fledged citizen. Chris was born in Conrenthos, Greece, and has lived in the United States for approximately 25 years. In his restaurant, which is a union house, you see proudly displayed the American flag as well as the shield. With his naturalization papers Chris also got a new name and from here on out he will be Chris G. Angelo.

PEEK REPORTS ON BUTCHERS' PROGRESS

C. C. Peek, International representative of the Meatcutters' union, is in Chattanooga this week, having returned from organization activities in Mobile, Birmingham, Memphis and Nashville.

He reports that the Memphis Meatcutters have one of the best locals in the South. They have just completed the signing of new contracts and this group is one of the outstanding groups in the Memphis labor movement. Brother Peek has also installed a charter for an Oil Refiners' union in Memphns. This local is the second in Tennessee, the other being Oil Refiners, No. 323, in Chattanooga.

Local 323 was organized in 1933 as a Federal Labor union and went under the jurisdiction of the Meatcutters' International in 1934, and has continued to flourish in Chatanooga since that time.

The butchers in Sheffield, Florence and Tuscumbia are about 90 per cent. organized now, according to Brother Peek, and work is progressing on organization of a local in Decatur.

NAZI-ISM VERSUS CIVILIZATION

By CHARLES STELZLE

Executive Director, Good Neighbor League

It is one of the shocking things in this topsy-turvy world to awake to the fact that among certain kinds of people there is a mere crust between civilization and savagery. This has been demonstrated in the action of the Nazis in their treatment of helpless people wtihin the German Reich, and which threatens to extend to many other countries.

Their brutality has transcended the acts of pre-civilization pagans. The amazing thing is that this has been done by those who regard themselves as "super-men," at a time when the pity of the civilized world has been increasingly stirred in behalf of all oppressed and depressed peoples.

We thought we were getting somewhere in our progress toward human kindness and tender mercy. Then suddenly we discover that the beast has torn loose, tearing and devouring, and wallowing in the blood of human beings.

He began with the Jews. They were the most helpless, and therefore the easiest to destroy. Then he attacked the Catholics because they dared proclaim that they had souls of their own. The Protestants came next. They would not bow down to the pagans who had set themselves up to be gods.

And now the brutal war is on, on all fronts, nothing barred. Anything goes, while the rest of the world stands aghast. The victims haven't even the chance that was given to men during the world war, for then the contestants on both sides had weapons which they might use in self-defense.

But now—crippled old women are prodded by beastly "storm troopers," made to crawl on hands and knees through muck and slush to their final destruction. Little children are brutally beaten and marred for life, and men are driven to suicide through the brutality of these Nazi "heroes."

Meanwhile the rest of the world seems to stand helpless. The democracies are like sheep in the presence of a "dictator wolf." It is a question as to how long this situation can continue. It seems inevitable that somewhere something must break out which will destroy this monstrous creation of a disordered mind.

If there is still justice in the world, if there is a force powerful enough to subdue even this incarnation of the beast, then there is hope for civilization. Of this we may be sure—it will require the united efforts of Protestant, Catholic and Jew, the protests of Labor, and the rising wrath of all right-thinking people everywhere.

INTERNATIONAL UNIONS MAKE GOOD PROGRESS IN RAISING CANADIAN WORKERS' PAY

OTTAWA.—The international unions in Canada are making good progress in their program of improving the conditions of the workers.

The Brotherhood of Railway and Steamship Clerks, Freight Handlers, etc., has signed an agreement, retroactive to Sept. 1, with 12 grain elevator companies at the head of the Great Lakes providing for wage increases up to 10 per cent for 700 men. This brotherhood has also just signed a new agreement with the Canadian National and Canadian Pacific Railways providing for wage increases for 800 persons employed in the steamship departments of the railways.

New Pressmen's Pact

In Vancouver, British Columbia, Printing Pressmen and Assistants' Union, Local No. 69, has obtained a new agreement with 16 printing firms, providing a wage scale of $1 per hour and the 40-hour week.

The International Brotherhood of Teamsters, Chauffeurs, Stablemen and Helpers Union has issued charters to from 488 to 500 members previously organized in the Toronto Taxi Drivers' Union, a national body. This brotherhood has recently formed new locals in Hamilton and other cities.

Machinists Gain

The International Association of Machinists has signed its first contract with the Bernard Drydock company, Vancouver, the largest firm of this kind on the west coast of Canada. The machinists also expect a contract with the Boeing Aircraft plant at Vancouver within a short time.

The Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employes Union has just signed a new contract with the city-owned Toronto Tramway company.

CORRINGTON GILL

Corrington Gill, assistant administrator of the WPA and [illegible] for it, is one of the men who has not been [illegible] by a "business education." He is one of the ablest servants and champions of the new deal.

He was born in Grand Rapids, Mich., forty years ago, son of a manufacturer of carpet sweepers. He went through public school and high school, and was at a preparatory school in Detroit when war was declared on Germany April 6, 1917. Corrington Gill enlisted in the navy April 7, 1917, and served on the destroyer fleet across the water for two years.

He was graduated from the prep school at Detroit just the same, though his teacher of German objected, saying that Corrigan was one of the poorest scholars in German that he ever had taught. Gill estimates that there might have been some justice in that judgment, but it didn't hurt. He graduated from the University of Wisconsin, paying special attention to accountancy, mathematics and management. He was business manager of a press association in Washington and wrote the financial news for it for some years. He went for himself as adviser on investment to several New York banks and other financial institutions. He predicted, in writing, the crash of 1929.

Later, he came to the federal employment stabilization board, originated by Senator Wagner. Then he was with PWA for a time; and for 5½ years, he has been with WPA, one of its ablest officers and spokesmen.

He is 6 feet 1 inch in height, lankily built, with black hair, brownish gray eyes, aquiline face that might have belonged to an old-time missionary who sought dangerous assignments. And just to think that with his mind and training, he might have come to be a partner in the House of Morgan!

WAGE CUTS TO 25c MINIMUM ILLEGAL, ANDREWS SAYS

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Elmer F. Andrews, administrator of the wage-hour law, denounced vigorously the trick of some employers who are reducing wages to the 25 cents an hour minimum.

He considers this dodge "most illegal," but he is also thinking of a clarifying amendment to the law which would make prosecution easier and surer. Section 18 of the law, he said, was designed to prevent this trickery. Some lawyers claim that the reducing of wages from say 30 cents an hour to 25 is legal; but you can find lawyers who will say most anything.

About 1,200 complaints on this score have been received. Special agents have been sent out to investigate. Here as elsewhere, the administration and enforcement of this law is hampered by an insufficient appropriation for putting it into effect.

A. F. of L. Asks $1,500 Minimum Wage And 35-Hour Week for Federal Workers

Fourteen-Point Legislative Program for Government Employes Also Includes Optional Retirement After 30 years, Overtime Pay, Night Differential, Appeals Board, Shorter Hours and Better Working Conditions for Personnel of the Veterans' Administration, Federal Penal Institutions, and for Custodial Employes.

A strong resolution favoring a $1,500 minimum wage for full time employes of the United States Government with automatic salary increases and a five-day 35-hour week with no decrease in pay was unanimously supported by the recent annual convention of the American Federation of Labor at Houston, Tex., which endorsed the 14-point legislative program of the American Federation of Government Employes with the assurance that the A. F. of L. "will use every effort toward bringing this program to a successful conclusion."

"1. A minimum wage of $1,500 per annum for all full-time employes with statutory automatic increases in salary.

"2. A five-day week of 35 hours with no decrease in pay to be applied throughout the Government service.

"3. Extension of the merit system to include all branches of the civil government now excluded by law.

"4. Extension of the Classification act to the field services desiring the same.

Liberalized Retirement Rules Asked

"5. Optional retirement after 30 years of service. Amendment of Section 7 of the Retirement act to permit an employe who has rendered 15 or more years of service and becomes involuntarily separated to receive the benefits otherwise provided in the act. Unqualified disability retirement after 60 years of age. Optional contributions not to exceed 10 per cent of salary to purchase additional annuities above the specified rate.

"6. Compensation for overtime either in the form of salary or leave, with the provision that an employe shall be required to work overtime only upon authorization of the chief of a major unit of an agency, such authorization being given direct or through the immediate supervisor of the employe. Unlimited accumulation of leave credit as a result of overtime with the provision that it shall be available until used.

"7. Application of the night differential to all positions requiring night shifts.

Prevailing Wage Urged

"8. Payment of not less than the prevailing wage to craft employes in agencies not affected by wage boards or other machinery for fixing adequate wages.

"9. Consideration of length of service, experience, and general fitness in promotional examinations as contemplated by the executive orders of June 24, 1938, so as to prevent promotion procedure from becoming mechanical and to assess the true value of each factor entering into the selection of employes for promotion.

"10. Creation of a Board of Appeals, independent of the agency in which the employe is employed which shall be so organized as to protect fully the rights of employes.

"11. Optional quarters, subsistence and laundry, with provision for applying the cost uniformly to all positions wherein it is customary to supply such services.

"12. Shorter hours and more reasonable pay for employes in veterans' administration facilities.

"13. Better pay and better working conditions for custodial employes, including charwomen and charmen.

"14. More reasonable hours and better working conditions in all federal penal institutions."

Sees Growing Sentiment For Labor Peace

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Secretary of Labor Perkins told a press conference here that she has found a real desire for reconciliation between the two opposed labor groups among both A. F. of L. and C. I. O. members; and that this desire is growing.

Asked about the naming of a peace committee, she answered that this was one of many "trial balloons" which ought to be tried.

Birmingham Street Car Union Wins Wage Boost

BIRMINGHAM, Ala.—The 725 members of Local No. 75, Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employes of America, are deservedly elated over their new agreement with the Birmingham Electric Company. Negotiated by the officers of the local, the contract adds approximately $80,000 to the pay envelopes of the members during the coming year.

Book Match Manufacturers To Stop Unfair Practices

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Under stipulations entered into with the Federal Trade Commission, two distributors of book matches, both of Chicago, will stop certain unfair methods of competition in connection with the sale of their products.

National Press, Inc., 122 North Jefferson street, will cease representing in its advertising matter or in any other manner that it offers the only complete line of union label matches in the country or that it is the only concern in the country that can supply the union label on book matches, when such are not the facts.

Harold Meitus, trading as Superior Match company, 60 West Superior street, agrees to discontinue advertising, when such are not the facts, that he sells the most complete line of union label book matches in the country and is the world's only volume producer of union-made book matches.

Supreme Court Agrees to Review Lower Court Decision Holding Sit-Down Strike Is Illegal

Carpenters Win Strike In Furniture Plant

NEW ORLEANS.—The strike at the New Orleans Furniture Manufacturing company, which closed the plant late in October, was settled when members of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America, Local No. 1054, A. F. of L., voted to accept company peace offers. The strike, involving 125 employees, was the first here under the new federal wages and hours law. It came about because, although the company raised all employees to the 25-cent minimum specified by the law, some of those in higher brackets suffered net pay decreases because of the shorter hours under the wages and hours act. The company offer, according to Leo Carter, A. F. of L. organizer, included union recognition, a 44-hour week and net weekly pay increases from 50 cents to one dollar a week. In addition the agreement calls for time and a half overtime.

Why Two Big Steel Companies Fight Wage Scales Fixed by Labor Department for Government Contracts. More Million Dollar Incomes.

By GEORGE L. KNAPP

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Under the Walsh-Healey act, the Department of Labor fixes the minimum wages that firms seeking government contracts of more than $10,000 must pay. On steel contracts, which are expected to be very large in the near future, the department fixed two bottom wages: 46 cents an hour in the north and 41 cents an hour in the south. The Bethlehem and Republic Steel companies are now fighting this scale, and are preparing briefs of protest.

The reasons are simple. Bethlehem, in some of its big plants, pays from 20 to 50 cents an hour. Republic pays the wage fixed by the department in a good many of its northern plants. It gets costs in Buffalo and [illegible] to 40 cents in its Birmingham plants.

If they have to come up on government contracts to 47 cents in Bethlehem and 46 in Buffalo, they will have to come up on other contracts and in other mills. If competitors get cuts under the same kind of conditions to the extent that other manufacturers are allowed a selling certain to [illegible] the same game. This [illegible] the interest of [illegible] in the steel industry.

* * *

In this connection, it is mighty interesting to see what the executives of these two steel companies pay themselves. Here are the figures for 1937 for Bethlehem:

Charles M. Schwab	$180,000
Eugene G. Grace	394,586
Quincy Bent	154,376
C. Austin Beck	154,376
Paul Mackall	154,376
16 officers and directors	1,600,841

Here are the figures for Republic in 1937:

T. M. Girdler	$174,999.96
R. J. Wysor	99,999.96
Myron A. Wick	75,000.00
17 officers & directors	500,449.87

Girdler got the same cash from the Republic in 1936; and in addition he got 2,800 shares of Republic common stock at $6 a share. The market price of that stock in that year ranged from a low of $16.87 to $29.87 per share.

* * *

The internal revenue bureau reports that sixty-one individuals in this country report net income of $1,000,000 or more, each, in 1936. This is a nearly 50 per cent rise in huge incomes from forty-one of 1935. The odds are heavy that 1937 will show gains—in the top brackets—over 1936—but it will take a long time to get up to the 511 million dollar or more incomes of 1928, and the 513 such incomes in 1929.

Several points of interest attach to this report.

The effective tax rate on sixty-one giant incomes in 1936 was 71.66 per cent.

The effective tax on the 511 giant incomes in 1928 was 16.70 per cent.

Only twelve states and the District of Columbia reported such incomes; and 25 of them came from New York, and seven from Delaware.

The best thing about such concentration of wealth is that Uncle Sam is taking a pretty fair toll out of it.

300 Union Members Study To Qualify as Officers

NEW YORK CITY.—More than 300 members of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union have enrolled in the officers Qualification Courses started here this fall. Under a decision made by the last convention of the ILGWU, all new candidates for paid office must for three months take courses which include the history of the ILGWU, economics of the garment industry, structure and function of the union, and trade union techniques.

This is the first attempt by any union to create "civil service" conditions for its officers.

Spy Business Lot of Hooey, Smedley D. Butler Declares

Minneapolis.—"This spy business is a lot of hooey!" Maj.-Gen. Smedley D. Butler, formerly head of the U. S. Marine Corps, shouted to 10,000 delegates to the Minnesota Education association.

"It all a build-up to encourage the American taxpayers to spend three or four billions to build up a war machine," he said. "They're always arresting Japs or Germans. Did you ever hear of a French or British spy? They're here, but they get in their propaganda quietly."

NEWS FLASHES

STONEWALL, Miss., Nov. 28.—"If you were here all the time, these things wouldn't be allowed, and we would not be caused to suffer so!"

These words were spoken by a worker in the Stonewall cotton mills, located away out here, a score of miles from Meridian, where all residents either work for the cotton mill or do business with the mill people. The mill is owned by a man whose principal business is in Cincinnati, and who comes here at infrequent intervals. The pleading voice of the worker spoke more eloquently than any orator ever expressed it in condemnation of absentee ownership.

"Just as long as your bosses here take their pretty reports to you, and just so long as the profits show up, you are satisfied, and the workers can simply go to hell!" continued the terrific indictment which the worker, who is head of the A. F. of L. union here, was making against the South's greatest curse—absentee ownership.

Then followed a list of charges of mistreatment of workers which caused the big mill owner to sit in absolute silence and bewilderment. The owner is, doubtless, a good man. As a matter of course the mill owner had been accepting reports from his subordinate officials at full face value. There has been no way by which the workers could reach the owner. Finally, he had been induced to meet the union committee in a conference wherein the union was seeking recognition and the establishment of the principle and practice of collective bargaining. It was in the conference that the union had spoke the above words—words which sprung from a troubled heart.

"If you were here all the time, these things wouldn't be allowed and we would not be caused to suffer so!" Never has stronger condemnation of absentee ownership been made. Never has a more sensible appeal been heard for the principle and practice of collective bargaining.

There was determination, too, in the voice of the union head—determination to obtain recognition for his union and establishment of collective bargaining, for collective bargaining makes it impossible for the subordinate officials to keep the owner in darkness about conditions existing in the industry. Tens of thousands of men and women in industry have paid heavy penalty to absentee ownership, and organization with collective bargaining is the only remedy for the unwholesome conditions always existing in plants whose owner and chief executive is seldom upon the scene.

CHARLOTTE, N. C.—H. L. Kiser, president of the North Carolina State BHuilding Trades Council, is expecting a large delegation of building tradesmen and international representatives to attend the state council meeting in Gastonia next Sunday, Dec. 4. The session will be held in the county courthouse, beginning at 1 p. m.

An open meeting is being planned for Saturday evening, preceding the regular business session on Sunday. It is said that many international union officials, state federation officers, and other men active in the labor movement will attend the open meeting Saturday night, Dec. 3. Much interest in Gaston and surrounding counties is being manifested in the approaching events. The Saturday night meeting will be open to all people, and speakers will discuss the general labor situation.

An interesting feature of Sunday's program, it is announced, will be an analysis of the wage increases obtained for the building tradesmen during the year 1938, as a result of the organization of the State Building Trades Council. This council began organization activities early in the year, first meeting being held in High Point. Several meetings were held in various cities of the state before final organization of the State Building Trades Council was completed. Increases in wages began, however, the first week after the first meeting was held. Wage rates for practically every building craft in the state have been increased during the year, and as the Gastonia meeting will be the last session of the state council during 1938, the proper analysis of the great good accomplished during the first year of the State Building Trades Council's activities will be most interesting, and prove the value of organized and concerted effort.

NEW ORLEANS, La.—An agreement was signed here last Saturday between the W. G. Coyle Steamship company and the A. F. of L. union of coal trimmers. The closed shop, an increase in pay ranging as high as 30 cents an hour, time and one-half for overtime, are some of the more important portions of the agreement. Leo B. Carter, of the A. F. of L. staff, assisted the local union in the negotiations.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. — Arrangements have been completed whereby continuation of the publication of the Knoxville Labor News is assured. After the recent death of W. Clay McKenzie, editor and publisher of the Knoxville labor paper for many years, [illegible] concern among trade unionists as to the future of the paper. The Knoxville Labor News is recognized as one of the outstanding labor papers in the South.

Under the new arrangements James A. Trent, former Knoxville [illegible] ure in local labor circles, will act as publisher of the paper, while W. S. Goodsen, for many years a member of the Labor News staff, will serve as editor of the paper. Supervision of the paper is in the hands of the Knoxville Central Labor Union, and it is a most satisfying labor officials. The entire factory arrangement, according to labor movement will welcome the information that the Knoxville Labor News will continue to serve the labor movement in its characteristic fearless and fair manner.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn.—The Building Trades Council of this city has been reorganized, a new charter installed, and the work of the council already begun. The labor movement in this vicinity is well pleased wtih the step taken by the building tradesmen, as a live, aggressive Building Trades Council is absolutely essential to the success of the labor movement.

One of the first things done by the newly organized council was to investigate wage rates to be paid on PWA jobs at Coal Creek and Harriman.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. — All meat cutters and butchers in the Lackawanna Grocery company, 2576 Editon avenue, have become members of the Meat Cutters and Butchers union under terms of the agreement signed by the management.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The National Labor Relations Board dismissed the petition filed by Local No. 392, International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers, a C. I. O. affiliate, seeking investigation and certification of collective bargaining representatives for the employes of the Utah Copper company and the Kennecott Copper corporation at their Arthur and Magna mills, Salt Lake City, Utah.

The labor board based its action upon the result of a secret ballot election held at Magna, Utah, which resulted in 232 votes for the union, 666 against, with 27 challenged and two void ballots, a total of 977 voting from among 992 eligible employes.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark.—W. E. McClure, well known member of the Order of Railway Conductors, was appointed by the governor this week as the third member of the Arkansas State Industrial Board. His appointment will be effective Dec. 1, for a period of two years. J. Paul Ward of Batesville was designated as chairman of the board.

Mr. McClure has been connected with the railroads for many years. He came to North Little Rock in 1891 as a brakeman for the old Iron Mountain railroad and has been a conductor for the Missouri Pacific lines for the past 25 years.

DEAR SANTY

With Christmas practically here, everybody is mighty busy buying around for gifts that please. The boop-oop thing for Bill is fun to look around at all the things we might get and it would be fun to have Santa just supply us with lots of things to pass around. . . .

Don't say a word about last year but The Vogue has toys. You can get 25 of them for a dime, with your name printed on each. Or for a little more a spinning top. I got this. Be sure to look at the book and find the one it. Love!

And for the little tikes is no end to the things they will like. For instance, the young girls buy is sure to want one of those baby cooing dolls that the Boys' Shop has for Christmas this year. They are very much like the real thing, even to the cooing.

And the eyes are already popping over the prospect of getting one of the 3-in-1 wagons. Sears has some that are swell. They are a combination coaster, truck and everything on wheels. Maybe he won't be angelic for months up to Christmas, just to get one of these.

It is not too late, Santy, but it is impossible for little folks to get at the toys they'd like . . . because the littlest youngster went right on to Miller's and wanted to take a drum or some with him. He thought he'd better not take too many chances Santa's airplane might run out of gas.

The biggest little boy says he doesn't want so much this year. He's quite concerned about getting Santa to realize that gifts are makes a beautiful piece of furniture for the home and can be enjoyed by everyone.

The brand-new Auxiliary to Typographical Union No. 53 is sure to have a nice Christmas gift. Their secretary has just telephoned to say that the charter is in. . . . Official installation is to be made at the December meeting which will be on Tuesday night, Dec. 13. But those smart Auxiliary activities don't wait.

Aw, Santa, if this letter has stopped you, just remember that the stores remain but open a year and there are only 25 more shopping days.

Also, please remind our folks to have their Christmas gifts union-made. A real suggestion.

Now when it comes to little girls, I have to call in assistants. Of course, the very little girls adore dolls, but in taking around with Paula Hathaway, Alice Unterwood, Marge Boyer is and other little misses whose families are all good shoppers, I find that all you need is dolls, quite large ones, but wee dollies. Wee Moderns has all the smart things that the girls in the family will want.

Our Missus would like a visit from Santa, too . . . and the furniture stores have loads of lovely things that would please us all. To mention a few high spots . . . there's a bedroom suit at Sterchi's that is very attractive. And I found a linen chest at Rhodes-Jones that would be an ideal place to keep all those extra things that there's no storage space for.

The better half would be delighted to have one of those knee-hole desks that Haverty's is displaying. Maybe the house wouldn't look so cluttered up with all the miscellaneous papers, et cetera that he scatters around, too.

Or a rocker . . . those platform rockers are a special weakness of mine. Maybe it's just because of laziness, but my idea of real comfort is to have one of those rockers, a good book and some chocolate handy. Clemons Bros. has a real special on the platform rockers now . . . they are quite an improvement on the regular rockers, too, because, no matter how much you rock, you don't move about over the room.

And there's no nicer gift for the house—and the entire family—than one of the spinet pianos that Lansford's has. These small pianos have a marvelous tone and can be used in a small living room without giving a crowded appearance. It ation of Labor and every man and woman in the labor movement, as I have never appealed to them before, to redouble their vigilance in the boycott of German goods and German service.

NAZI BOYCOTT

I now address the same appeal to all of my listeners. Such action can speak louder than words. Refuse to buy German goods or to use German service until the persecution of Jews in Germany is terminated and they are accorded their rights as human beings.

Hitler already is feeling the pinch of economic distress. His announced intention of seizing all Jewish property in Germany is evidence of this. If anything can impress upon Hitler the tragic folly of his course and induce him to change his ways, it is economic pressure from the outside world.

Hitler Is a Scheming "Madman"

We must always remember that this brutish Caesar, this desperate madman, is scheming and deliberate in his savagery. Is it conceivable that the recent wholesale attacks upon German Jews were undertaken merely to avenge the assassination of a minor German diplomat in Paris by a crazed boy?

Is it believable that Hitler has tortured the Jews merely for the horrible sadistic joy of seeing helpless victims suffer? Is it even understandable that he has staged this mass spectacle of cruelty just to divert the attention of the oppressed German people from their own privations?

What, then, can be Hitler's motive? Is it possible he has conceived a vast criminal plot to blackmail the world? Is it possible that he is holding the German Jews captive like a kidnapper, in the hope of forcing the Jews of other nations to pay ransom for their release? Is it possible he expects the other nations of the world to pay him ransom in the form of trade benefits?

These questions should be answered by those who have studied the German situation at close hand and are in a position to know more about the facts.

It is significant that President Roosevelt has recalled our Ambassador from Berlin for consultation here. It is encouraging that the President has discarded the niceties of diplomatic usage and frankly stated his personal shock that such things as are happening in Germany could take place in these supposedly civilized days.

By so doing the President has expressed the feeling of all our people of whatever faith in every walk of life. We know that Hitler has attacked not only the Jews but Catholics, Protestants, organized labor and every individual, religion, or group that stands in his way. No one is safe in Germany today.

Therefore, I pledge the support of the American Federation of Labor to any practical plan for the release of refugees from Hitler's wrath. This must be done not as charity but in the name of humanity.

And in that same spirit I pledge that the full strength of the American Federation of Labor and its 5,000,000 members will be exerted to keep the plague of Nazism from spreading in this country.

And in that same spirit I pledge that the full strength of the American Federation of Labor and its 5,000,000 members will be exerted to keep the plague of Nazism from spreading in this country.

What is happening in Germany today is so terrible that it makes us ashamed that human beings can sink to such depths. But we must not let it discourage us. It should renew our faith in our own free democracy and strengthen us in the determination to hold fast to the principles of liberty, justice and decency which have guided our destiny as a nation. Let us show the world that these principles cannot die in the hearts of human beings.

Woll Tells News Reels: Build a Moral Ring Around Germany

"Speaking for the American Federation of Labor, America is shocked to the core by the ghastly outbreak of unprecedented persecution in Germany," said A. F. of L. Vice-President Matthew Woll to Metro's news-reel microphone at A. F. of L. headquarters in Washington.

"No person can turn a deaf ear to the cry from a tortured and stricken people.

"All civilized humanity will be revolted by the sickening exhibition of Nazi brutality. The world must build a ring of moral resentment around Germany until the dictators are thrown out."

"In this same spirit of appreciation, we wish for you, The Labor World and the American Federation of Labor Godspeed in your efforts to alienate suffering humanity in Germany."

TEPCO FACED WITH CHARGES IN NLRB COURT, PERSONAL SUITS RUMORED TO FOLLOW

Several Millions Dollars Might Be Involved as IBEW Carries on Fight Against Utility

Charges that through its "overseers, officers, agents and managers," the Tennessee Electric Power company has "interfered with, restrained and coerced its employes who have joined the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers in the exercise of their rights guaranteed under Section 7 of the (Wagner) act," have been filed by the brotherhood with the labor relations board in Atlanta, according to information received here.

The union seeks reinstatement, with back pay, for ninety-four members of the union which called a strike against the power company.

Reports have it that at a later date many of the strikers will enter suits against the company for false and malicious arrest. During the strike many of the men were arrested on various charges, some of whom were tried and not convicted. The men charge that since they were arrested maliciously and without foundation they are entitled to damages.

H. G. B. King is representing the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers.

Painters Union Says Apprentice Boys To Attend School

At a regular meeting, according to J. G. Burke, Local 226, Painters and Decorators, revised its laws so as to make mandatory upon all of its apprentices that they must attend the training school classes now being held every Tuesday and Wednesday night at the Chattanooga Vocational school.

The new law says that if the apprentices fail to attend regularly their card will be revoked.

Brother Burke is instructor at the school. "This course of training is an advantage which the old-timers did not enjoy, and our local intends to see that the new generation takes full advantage of it. We are striving at all times to improve our craft in order to give better service to the community," he said.

The classes open at 7 p.m.

Postoffice Auxiliary Plans Christmas Party

The ladies' auxiliary to Postal Clerks' Union No. 192 will entertain with its annual Christmas party at the next regular meeting on Thursday afternoon, Dec. 15, at 2 o'clock at the Country Woman's club.

There will be a Christmas tree and the members will exchange gifts. Each member has a "friendship sister" and will have a gift for her. Children of the members are also invited to this party.

There will be a special program, but this will be in the form of a "surprise" for the members.

Anthony Eden had better be ready with explanations in his speech before the National Association of Manufacturers on "Democracy." The NAM doesn't know the meaning of the word.

Bob Reynolds has been confined at home on account of illness for the last three days. Hope Bob will soon be able to be out again.

* * *

H. T. Llewellyn has recovered and is able to be back at work again.

Typo. Auxiliary No. 219 To Be Installed Tuesday

The charter for the recently organized auxiliary to the Typos has arrived from the Women's Internationary Auxiliary and will be installed on Tuesday night, Dec. 13, at 8 o'clock, when the new organization meets in regular session at the Patten hotel.

All members of No. 89 are invited to meet with the ladies on this occasion and there will be many who will attend. The charter will be officially installed by Jack Worthington, who is president of the local Typographical union. Secretary Finney T. Carter will be present.

The Central Labor union will be represented by president and secretary Curtis Sims and Erskine Mabee and a representative of the Tennessee Federation of Labor will attend. Commissioner R. M. Cooke, who has been an active member of No. 89 for many years, will also be present to welcome the new group.

The auxiliary will be No. 219 and there will be forty-five names on the charter. The ladies have made a splendid beginning and are enthusiastic over prospects for one of the best and most active chapters in this section of the country.

The Women's International Auxiliary has local groups throughout the country wherever there are Typographical unions and Chattanooga's auxiliary will be the fourth in the state.

President Roosevelt served notice at the University of North Carolina that the new deal is going right on.

AFL OPPOSED TO USING TAXING POWER TO ENCOURAGE PLANS FOR PROFIT-SHARING, GREEN SAYS

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Proposals to use the taxing power of the Government to promote profit-sharing plans are "unalterably opposed" by the American Federation of Labor, President William Green of the federation told a Senate [illegible] committee investigating profit-sharing systems. Senator Clyde L. Herring of Iowa is chairman of the subcommittee.

President Green said in part:

"Labor is not opposed to principles involved in profit-sharing, but it is opposed to the way in which it has developed and operated. Profit-sharing as developed in the United States was imposed on all existing economic injustice and discouraging union activity to secure a fair living wage. Sometimes profit-sharing plans were mainly developed by corporations that attempted to substitute for real collective bargaining an arrangement to create company representation with. For the most part was the form without the substance.

Collective Bargaining Vital

"Labor believes all plans affecting labor must rest on collective bargaining. Beginning with the basic fact of our social organization that people must have incomes to buy the necessaries and comforts for living, labor asserts the right of every person to opportunity to earn that income which includes the right to payment from work done.

"The right of labor to the fruits of its toil has been obscured by the complexities flowing from the corporative form of financing, and mass production with its standardization of designs and machines and sub-division of work for repetitive processes. Corporation financing has altered and obscured the responsibility of investors in a business enterprise. Mass production or large-scale production has obscured the relation between the worker and his productiveness.

"What is needed in this situation is genuine organization of workers in unions.

No Substitute for Justice

"This union function is indispensable to justice to workers, to balanced progress of the industry within the business structure and to social justice and peace in the community. Denial of this fundamental justice to those who carry on the production processes of industry or maintain our service institutions, or attempts to frustrate collective bargaining are what cause labor disputes and social discontent. Substitutes for justice may for a time prevent the outbreak of disputes but they increase and foster a spirit of unrest which sooner or later takes its toll.

"In recognition of these facts our nation has undertaken to assure to wage earners the right to organize in unions and to bargain collectively through representatives of their own choosing. This priceless foundation of economic liberty we intend to maintain against all invasions whether by employers or governmental administrators.

"Labor cannot be asked to accept blindly management's decision on what constitutes profits. All of the facts must be available.

"(1) Production and costs records must be equally available to union and management.

"(2) Sales policies must be considered by both parties and be mutually acceptable. All records must be equally available to both sides.

"(3) Salaries of executives and officers and returns to investors must be subject to the same conditions.

"(4) Financial policies and proposals must be subjected to the same review and decision.

Standard Wage Comes First

"(5) The standard wages of producing workers, which are production charges, should be fixed by collective bargaining at the highest level industry could reasonably be expected to pay and should provide for customary standards of living proportionate to productivity as human labor power is increased by mechanical power and machine tools, and reflecting lower unit production costs. The standard wage is the cost item which is the first charge in industry and which is necessary to the sustained consuming power upon which all business depends.

"(6) Profit-sharing or a partnership wage is the share which labor would have in the net income of the enterprise. In reality labor is a partner in production, not from the investment of capital, but from the investment of experience and work ability. As a partner labor would have a voice in determining rates of profit-sharing.

"The American Federation of Labor is unalterably opposed to using the tax power of the Government to promote profit-sharing plans. We are squarely opposed to amending the Social Security Act to provide tax credits for funds allotted to profit-sharing or any similar purpose, however worthy they may be in themselves."

Game Birds Lose Natural Refuges On Modern Farms

KNOXVILLE. — Unknowingly, the modern farmer has become one of the greatest enemies of upland game birds, said Dr. Graeme A. Canning, University of Tennessee zoologist, in a recently published article on "Conservation of Game Birds."

"Modern farming methods, with the removal of all natural protection, is undoubtedly one of the most important factors in the disappearance of game," wrote Dr. Canning. "A quail on the closely cut field stands out conspicuously against a bare sky-line, and a widely spaced barb-wire fence affords it no protection from the predatory bird or mammal."

The presence of cover under which game birds may hide is listed by Dr. Canning as one of the essential needs of birds to maintain themselves. Other factors affecting their maintenance are: natural powers and habits which help them escape death; the presence of parasites to which they may be subject; the prevalence of enemies, such as predatory animals and the hunter; and unfavorable weather.

"Man need not bother himself by attempting to increase the birds' powers to escape or to resist parasites or inclement weather, for those powers they already possess. Man can far better apply his efforts in restoring their natural habitats," he said.

The two methods of conservation of game birds, establishment of natural breeding areas and artificial propagation, both have advantages, he continued. Artificial propagation finds its greatest use in the handling of birds such as quail, turkeys and pheasants. These can readily adapt themselves to the presence of man, and they can be fed upon grain.

"The development of the modern shotgun has added a new problem with which game birds must contend," he said. "Yet, no hunter wants to see the extinction of any of these forms. No man should be a hunter until he is first a naturalist, for he must appreciate the problems confronting the game birds to maintain their species.

"Through greed and ignorance much of the nation's wealth has been lost, and through the inefficient cutting of forest lands, native timber areas have been destroyed. Dust storms have blown away fertile top-soil of western plains, and the air in these regions remains heavy with dust. Floods have carried off rich humus, clogging the mouth of streams and making them unfit for fish. These evidences of man's thoughtlessness have all required national programs to aid in the readjustment of nature's balances and as man has tipped the balances of the physical world against himself, so also is he now blindly destroying the wild life bird he professes to love."

New York Mayor Praises Unions, Attacks Communities Seeking Cheap Labor Industries

New York City.—Speaking as he laid the cornerstone for the Central Needle Trades High school, Mayor LaGuardia praised labor unions and launched a scorching attack on communities which seek industries by adverising cheap labor.

"We say to other communities," said the mayor, "who advertise brazenly 'come to our city where labor is cheap; come to our city where taxes are low; come to our city, industries, where we have no child labor laws, where labor will do anything you say and take anything you pay—' I say to those communities that they have nothing to be proud of, whether they are across the river or down south or in the mining communities of Pennsylvania.

"Should Hang Heads in Shame."

"They should hang their heads in shame, instead of advertising that their city depends on exploited labor, and child labor, and keeps taxes low by not having a proper system of education."

The school building just started will be eleven stories high and is estimated to cost $3,500,000. Educational leaders and labor representatives joined with the mayor in calling this school "the high tide in educational achievement;" and the mayor went on:

"Here in New York City we believe in pleasant, cheerful shops; and we believe in intelligent, educated workers in the shops. . . .

Thorough Training Planned.

"One generation ago, the needle trades workers were graduated from the sweatshops. Today, we graduate them as cultured, refined men and women. Through strong labor organizations and an intelligent industry, they work under human conditions."

Pupils attending the Needle Trades High school, the mayor said, will get a thorough training in every phase of the industy. And beyond that, they will get a background of economic subjects, "necessary for the full enjoyment of the better things of life."

Twenty-five Independent Packers in Los Angeles Area Now Have Agreements With Amalgamated Meat Cutters.

Los Angeles, Cal.—T. J. Lloyd, vice-president of the Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butcher Workmen of North America, affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, announced the consummation of an agreement between Local 207 and the Cudahy plant in Los Angeles.

The agreement calls for a union shop, vacations with pay, holidays and a 32-hour guarantee. Approximately 900 employes are covered by the contract.

This is the first major packer in Southern California to sign an agreement with the Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butcher Workmen. Organizers M. R. Tyson and D. K. McDougal and the officers of Local No. 207 assisted Vice-President Lloyd in negotiating the agreement. The local union was established nine months ago.

Officials of the union announced that in the past year twenty-five trading area have signed agreements with the A. M. C. and B. W. of N. A.

AFL Unions to Bargain For Armour Employes

Coopers, Operating Engineers and Electrical Workers Included in NLRB Certification for South St. Joseph Plant.

Royersford, Pa.—The International Association of Bridge, Structural and Ornamental Iron Workers, affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, has been certified by the national labor relations board as the sole collective bargaining agency for employes of Belmont Iron Works, of Royersford.

The action of the board was based upon comparison of union membership cards against company payrolls, which disclosed that the A. F. of L. union had a majority of the company's employes under the appropriate unit.

Lodge No. 1390 of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers of North America, affiliated with the C. I. O., claimed some of the employes as members, but introduced no evidence to prove their claim.

LABOR RELATIONS SURVEY IS BEGUN

New York City.—Evans Clark, executive director of the Twentieth Century fund, announces that the fund's labor department is starting a survey of labor relations in the United States. Six or eight industries, chosen from such basic groups as clothing, automobiles, longshoremen, rubber, printing, radio and electrical workers, hosiery, railroad, iron and steel and the retail trade will be studied carefully.

The study will find first the status of collective bargaining in each industry chosen prior to 1933, then its experience under NRA, and then under the Wagner act. The growth of unionism will be dealt with, and the legal status of unions and agreements.

AFL Union Aids Colored Employes of Government

Washington.—Charles I. Stengle, president of the American Federation of Government Employes, affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, outlined plans to aid colored employes of the federal and District of Columbia governments at a meeting in Odd Fellows auditorium here.

Declaring there had been exploitation of the colored workers by organizations which could do them no good, Mr. Stengle explained that the A. F. G. E. had opened an office where their problems could be handled. The work is being directed by Andrew Wicketts, president of Lodge No. 466.

James C. O'Brien, of the U. S. civil service commission, recommended that colored employes equip themselves to rise in government service. He said the competitive promotion system inaugurated by President Roosevelt offered an opportunity in this direction.

The co-operation of the American Federation of Government Employes was praised by Charles A. Peters and Bert C. Garddenr, of the national park service.

Hodcarriers Full of Pep

Tuesday night I received a thrill that every unionist could receive if he would only take the time to visit various local unions. The occasion was a visit to a local building laborers' union.

As I walked into the room there was not a vacant chair, the walls were lined with members—at least one and one-half. It was not a regular meeting. It happened that Chattanooga must have labor politics for its labor movement.

As I witnessed my message I could not help but look over the faces. Men were there who a year or more ago hesitated for their wages as little as 10 cents per hour. I say for that same work they received 40 cents per hour. That was done by organization.

[illegible] I could hear them repeat the killed wages statement, the pretext that laborers not organized they will get paid [illegible] a decent living, that [illegible] organize their brother workers, if you please, have fought valiantly for their right to organize.

Yet, the "better class" of people who terms these men as being "unskilled" cannot themselves push a wheelbarrow without dumping the whole load within ten feet, could not stand up to eight hours of good hard labor.

These same "unskilled" men have evidenced more skill than their critics. On 10 cents per hour—on 40 cents per hour—they are attempting to feed families, little babies must be educated and reared to become good citizens. Hats off to the so-called "common" laborer.

Of such is the backbone of our nation. Of such is the future of our movement. Let the critics rave and moan. These men have organized. Better days are in store for the lowly workers full of determination that they will win out despite all opposition.

The Union Label Tells

The wage-hour act does not require goods to be given a label showing that they have been made in accordance with this law. Most people knew this already; but a statement from the office of the administrator of the act should remove all doubts. And this statement certifies once again to the service which the union label trades are rendering to the cause of decent wages and working conditions.

Goods bearing a union label do not need another label that they are made in accordance with the wage-hour act. The union label proves that, and more. Unions, where they had the power, anticipated the law, and went beyond it years ago.

Norris Is At It Again

Senator Norris, of Nebraska, the only living man who has put through an amendment to the U. S. constitution, is considering the introduction in the next congress of a proposal he has offered before, namely, that it shall take a 6 to 3 vote in the supreme court to invalidate an act of congress.

Labor has no objection to such a change. In fact, the last minimum wage law to be knocked out in the court and the first railroad retirement act met their death by a vote of 5 to 4. It has been well said that several reforms are on the statute books only because a certain justice of the supreme court changed his mind.

Labor has an important part in electing a congress, and usually no part whatever in choosing a judge of the supreme court. It won't hurt or disappoint labor a little bit to have the Norris plan go through.

HAPPY VALLEY DAIRY IS ANTI-UNION

Civil Service in Federal Relief

There is no cause for surprise in the fact that the Gallup poll shows a 3 to 1 vote in favor of Harry Hopkins' proposal to put federal relief administrative personnel under civil service. There is ground for wonder that democrats and republicans, WPA workers and outside voters vary only a very few per cent. The explanation is that three-quarters of the American people see that something like the WPA is going to last a long time.

It is an odd but enlightening fact that of the 25 per cent who vote against civil service, a very large fraction explains its vote by saying that "relief may not have to be permanent, but putting it under civil service would make it permanent." A somewhat smaller fraction wants the whole relief business turned over to local and county officials. In other words, Uncle Sam would furnish the money, for he is the only person who can do it, and the city and county bosses would distribute it.

As for those who think that universal and steady employment in private industry are "just around the corner," as a certain ex-president used to say of prosperity, they might as well be left to their dreams. That state of affairs is and should be our goal; but no prophet can tell us when it will be reached.

Chattanooga Gets Low Gas Rate for Househeating

Gas for house heating is now made available in Chattanooga at a special low rate, just authorized by the Railroad and Public Utilities Commission of Tennessee.

Thousands of Chattanoogans have been waiting for this good news, and now it's here, bringing gas for house heating to you at about half the cost heretofore prevailing.

The new residential house heating rate will be based on a combination of uses, as follows:

1. Cooking, automatic water heating and heating with a central fired system or equivalent.
2. Cooking, refrigeration and heating with a central fired system or equivalent.
3. Combination of all above named uses.

Under each or any of the foregoing combinations, the rate schedule will now be:

First .	200 Cubic Feet	50c per hundred
Next .	1,300 Cubic Feet	10c per hundred
Next .	8,500 Cubic Feet	7c per hundred
Next .	40,000 Cubic Feet	4c per hundred
Excess	50,000 Cubic Feet	3½c per hundred

This new rate is what you've been wanting, NOW it's here for you. Let us estimate your requirements, involving no obligation on your part.

We had a grand—perfectly grand—trip over to Hiwassee dam on Sunday. Got lots of friends there that we made while we were in Knoxville. The people of the labor movement in this labor-minded little town have recently established a central body. You should see the interest that is existing among the workers there.

Hard Battle by California Labor Beat Proposed Anti-Union Law By Overwhelming Majority

Washington.—The elections on the Pacific coast this fall demonstrated to labor the truth of its watchword, "The price of liberty is eternal vigilance," Paul Scharrenberg, American Federation of Labor legislative representative, told an ILNS representative.

Organized business groups tried to get enactment of anti-labor laws by the referendum route in Washington, Oregon and California. The results in each state reflected the kind of of battle put up by labor to defeat the law. California defeated the referendum by a 300,000 majority; Washington beat it by a narrow margin; Oregon labor lost the battle.

California labor won the fight in Los Angeles county, the former "open shop" center of the Pacific coast. It won largely because of the rude awakening Los Angeles county received on Sept. 16 when an anti-picketing ordinance was carried by a 40,000 majority. Up to that time labor leaders were confident that labor could defeat anti-labor legislation without outside support, merely by advising union members and their families how to vote. The beating which Los Angeles labor took stirred labor throughout the state to build a strong organization to fight Proposition No. 1 in the November elections. National and international unions joined the fight, and President Green sent Mr. Scharrenberg to the coast as his representative.

There was A. F. of L.-C. I. O. co-operation, with an agreement that the CIO name was to be kept out of the picture as much as possible because the anti-labor group was directing its fight around the slogan, "Stop Bridges and the CIO." But labor carried its fight to the public as a citizens committee.

Hollywood stars fought on labor's side; their appearance on public programs brought out the crowds. The actors also helped put over the radio programs of labor.

Senator H. Styles Bridges, of New Hampshire, is one of those politicians who never gets anything in his speeches quite straight. It is, therefore, no surprise to have him blathering that the Wagner act and the NLRB foment strikes and boycotts.

Choral Society Presents 'Messiah'

The "Messiah," Handel's great musical biography of the Savior, will be presented by the Cadek Choral society Monday, Dec. 13, at the memorial auditorium. Conducted by J. Oscar Miller, who with Harold J. Cadek founded the society eight years ago, the group will be accompanied by an orchestra under the direction of Ottokar T. Cadek.

For guest artists appearing with the chorales will be: Dorothy Baker, soprano, of New York; Paula Heminghaus, contralto, of New York; Theo Karle, western tenor and descendant of Andrew Jackson; and Hubert Kockritz, baritone voice teacher at the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music.

The Cadek Choral society's 1938-1939 season will bring to Chattanooga: The "Messiah," Dec. 13; a miscellaneous program featuring the music of George Gershwin, March 7; and the May Music Festival with an artist recital May 8, and "Cavalleria Rusticana" and "I Pagliacci" in concert form on May 10.

The Cadek Choral society headquarters are at the Chamber of Commerce, 819 Broad street, until after the first concert. Miss May Archibald and A. Lee Head the campaign committee, and Thankful Everett is campaign director.

The Cherry Tree

"Monopoly" investigation finally gets under way. Hearings in Washington may last for months. Investigation is popularly called the "monopoly" inquiry, but will be much broader than the name indicates.

Temporary official economic committee is the official name of the body in charge and describes the nature of the inquiry more accurately than the common name.

Senator O'Mahoney, chairman, told ILNS months ago that the workings of the whole economic system would be studied by his group, composed of six members of congress and six members of the national administration.

Some order, that. What will the investigators do with it?

* * *

If the "monopoly" investigators are out to present a factual picture of what is going on in the industrial and business world, they can be of great service to the nation, even to the world.

If they are out to prove a particular theory or thesis, the inquiry might easily turn out to be quite largely a waste of time, energy and the people's money.

Some government investigations have been just that. They have been hell bent on bolstering some pet idea and have not been any too scrupulous in methods employed to "prove" their case.

This kind of funny business does democracy no good. Senators and representatives sometimes seem to forget this obvious fact.

* * *

Now they're "purging" youthful communists in Russia. Alexander Kossarev, first secretary of the Young Communist league, who has had a distinguished career in red ranks, has been dismissed from the league on charges of having violated the spirit of democracy by "telling everyone his word was law."

Kossarev was not very bright. He should have known that the only guy in Russia who can tell everyone his word is law is Dictator Joseph Stalin.

Joe tells 'em and makes 'em like it. If they don't, they are purged mighty quickly. And purging is exceedingly unpleasant for the "purgees," as victims who have escaped alive can testify.

* * *

The anti-new deal boys are sure republican gains and failure of the Roosevelt congressional "purge" in the democratic party mean rocky going for FDR.

The loud talkers may be in for a disappointment. Generally speaking republicans of a progressive turn of mind won the most victories and polled the most votes Nov. 8.

The new g. o. p. members of congress are not going to fight all progress. Far from it. Watch and see, if you don't believe it.

* * *

Much new deal legislation is imperfect, even strong new dealers admit. It is pretty sure to be revised as time goes on. Part of the revising is likely to be done in the coming session. Labor will fight for changes in the national labor relations board. Changes in other laws will be sought.

If members of both parties got together and agreed on what revision seemed best at this time and what new legislation was needed, there would be progress with least effort. Of course they will not agree on many things, but there are some things they can agree on. Co-operation would be helpful in this time of stress and strain in the United States and the world.

OPEN LETTE

TO THE OWNERS OF BONDS AND PREFERRED STOCK OF THE TENNESSEE ELECTRIC POWER COMPANY:

Within the last few weeks, many owners of bonds or preferred stock in the Tennessee Electric Power Company have inquired of the Electric Power Board of Chattanooga, whether or not this Board expects to acquire the Power Company's local distribution system. In view of these inquiries, and of the frequent misrepresentations of the Board's policies and purposes, we are addressing this open letter to the owners of Tennessee Electric Power Company bonds and preferred stock, so as to make our position plain.

In the Spring of 1935, the Tennessee General Assembly created this Board. This was done following a special referendum election of the citizens of Chattanooga March 12, at which 19,056 votes were cast for a people's power distribution system for this city, and only 8,091 against one. This election showed the definite determination of the substantial majority of the citizenship.

The Act by which this Board was created and by which our actions are governed, provides, among other things:

First—It directs this Board to acquire, by purchase or by construction, an electrical distribution system for Chattanooga.

Second—It authorizes the issuance of general obligation bonds of the City of Chattanooga, up to a total of $8,000,000, to pay for the acquisition.

The people at the ballot box have already chosen to have their own TVA power system. The Board is morally and legally obligated to acquire a public power distribution system for the people of Chattanooga. This is the people's will. The Board is the servant of the people, and will carry out the people's mandate.

Under the Act, however, the Board does have a choice of ways and means by which the system shall be acquired. This the Board can do either by purchase or by construction.

Ever since the Board's organization, beginning at our first meeting, we have consistently sought to buy the Power Company's distribution system here.

Within a short time after its organization we wrote the President of the Tennessee Electric Power Company, proposing a conference with him to negotiate a price at which to buy the Company's electrical property here.

He returned a definite and categorical refusal to negotiate.

On six other occasions since then, this Board has formally urged the Tennessee Electric Power Company or the holding company which controls it, to negotiate with us.

Each such request has been refused.

The Board felt it possible that, even if the private power magnates were unwilling to negotiate with us, they might accept a specific offer from us of a sum of money for their local distribution plant. On July 7, 1938, the Power Board offered to pay the Tennessee Electric Power Company $6,200,000 for its Chattanooga distribution property. The Power Board added that it would consider seriously any counter-proposal made by the private power group.

This offer was rejected and no counter proposal was made.

On July 7, 1938, this Board asked Commonwealth & Southern to submit us whatever proposition it would accept for sale of the local properties. This request likewise met refusal.

On August 24, 1938, we offered to take the lead in negotiating the purchase by the City—in cooperation with the Tennessee Valley Authority and other municipalities and power associations—of all electrical generating, transmitting and distributing properties of the Tennessee Electric Power Company in the entire Chattanooga District. This proposal too has not been accepted.

Furthermore, the Tennessee Valley Authority has offered to buy on its part, and to urge upon cooperating cities, towns and cooperative power associations to buy as to their part, at a price which would enable the Tennessee Electric Power Company to pay you back 100 cents on the dollar. This proposal also has been rejected without your having been consulted.

The Board feels that the history of our fruitless efforts to acquire by purchase, met by the unfailing refusal of the private power interests even to sit down and talk with us, is deeply significant.

From the beginning, the Power Board has sought to purchase the private power system here. It demonstrates that we have exhausted every resource at our command, in a vain effort to find a path to purchase. We have done our best to buy. We are willing to buy. Private power refuses to sell. Private power bears on its shoulders the burden of responsibility for forcing duplication here.

There are two main reasons why we have sought so earnestly to acquire a public power system by purchase:

First, We recognize that it would be better for Chattanooga to be served by the people's system alone rather than by two competing systems.

Second, We have a sincere interest in the welfare of legitimate investors in the bonds and preferred stock of the Tennessee Electric Power Company, and do not wish to see them suffer loss because the private power group insists upon competing with us.

The Board knows that a distribution system acquired by purchase would perhaps cost the people more than one, and would not serve them so well as would one secured by construction.

However, our anxiety to ptect leg and preferred stockholders haled us

Supreme Court Rejects NLRB Order Requiring Big Utility to End Contract With AFL Union

Washington.—The supreme court has rejected and annulled that part of the national labor relations board order which required the Consolidated Edison company of New York to abrogate the contract it has made with he International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, an American Federation of Labor union. The court sustained, in the same decision, the NLRB's authority to handle the case.

Chief Justice Hughes, who wrote the decision, pointed out that the abrogation part of the order rested on the charge that the contracts were the result of unfair labor practice by the big utility company. Said the chief justice:

"This conclusion is entirely too broad to be sustained. If the board intended to make that charge, it should have amended its complaint accordingly, given notice to the brotherhood (the IBEW), and introduced proof to sustain the charge.

A. F. of L. Rejoices.

"Instead, it is left a matter of mere conjecture to what extent membership in the brotherhood was induced by any illegal conduct on the part of the employers."

The case was brought to the NLRB by the Cio, and the A. F. of L. naturally is jubilant. William Green, president of the A. F. of L., issued a statement in part as follows:

"The majority opinion declared that the national labor relations act gives the board 'no express authority to invalidate contracts with independent labor organizations.' Such authority, if it exists, the court held, can only be applied in the case of a company controlled or company dominated union.

Blow at Board Seen.

"In so ruling, the supreme court has knocked the props out from under the board's arbitrary, prejudicial and grossly unfair position toward the A. F. of L. with regard to union contracts.

"This decision is not only a great victory for the American Federation of Labor; it is also a great boon to the nation. It serves notice on the national labor relations board that law and justice will not sanction its policy of prejudice against the A. F. of L. and favoritism to the CIO."

Lee Pressman, CIO general counsel, evidently referring to a part of the opinion quoted above, said:

"By implication the court holds if the board had specified its charges clearly in the complaint it could properly have declared the contract invalid in its entirety as it attempted to do."

Court Divided on Ruling.

The court was divided on both counts, 6 to 2, but not the same 6 and 2. Chief Justice Hughes and Justices Brandeis, Stone, Roberts, Black and Reed agreed in upholding the board's authority to take the case, while Justices McReynolds and Butler dissented. The first four named agreed on annulling the abrogation of the contract, and Justice McReynolds joined with them, while Justices Black and Reed would have sustained the entire NLRB order.

This is the thirteenth case in which the NLRB has been before the supreme court, and the first rebuff the board has received from that quarter.

Toledo Slum Clearance Projects Benefit Small Income Families

New Development Will Provide 380 Dwellings for Workers Upon Whom Employers Impose Substandard Wages.

Washington. — Nathan Straus, administrator of the United States Housing Authority, announced that sealed bids for construction of "Charles F. Weiler Homes," the low-rent housing development in Toledo, Ohio, will be received until 12 noon Dec. 21 in the offices of the Toledo Metropolitan Housing Authority in Room No. 410 of the Colton building and will be opened immediately thereafter at the Commodore Perry hotel.

For this development, which will provide about 380 dwellings for low-income families now living in Toledo slums, the USHA has made a loan contact of $1,644,000, representing 90 per cent of the total estimated development cost, which includes the cost of land, dwelling and nondwelling facilities, as well as overhead expenses of the local authority, its architects and engineers.

Charles F. Weiler Homes will be erected on a 27-acre tract of vacant land about two miles from the center of the city and adjoining 53-acre Navarre park. During and after completion of the project, an equivalent number of slum dwellings will be demolished or closed up throughout the city.

Brand Whitlock Homes, the government's PWA housing division project developed from an allotment of $2,000,000 and now under lease to the Toledo authority, was one of the first projects built under the government's pioneering housing program and provides 164 homes for low-income families at rents within their limited means.

Points of View Picked Up From Various Sources

CY KOLOGY, EDITOR

The strike of French workers as a protest against the policies of the government has failed more completely than even the correspondents on the ground believed possible. For this, there are three main reasons.

First and foremost, the patriotism of French workers, and their keen appreciation of the dangers to their country in the present situation of Europe.

Second, the power vested in the French government to call strikers to the colors, and thereby shift their allegiance from union or party to military officers. Many years ago, a railroad strike in France was broken in this fashion, and Premier Daladier used it here. Those workers engaged in hospitals and in transporting goods were expressly exempted from the strike call.

* * *

Third, the French workers have not been able, as yet, to agree on a program of reform. They agree pretty well on what they don't want; but they are not united on the practical questions of what they do not want and what they will call for first.

When the French railroad strike was broken half a generation ago, the government in power was wise enough to grant the strikers shortly afterward most of the benefits they had sought to win by striking. It is devoutly to be hoped by every worker in every country that Daladier will show the same wisdom, in even larger degree.

Under the French mobilization law, all mobilized workers who refused to tend their jobs would be tried for desertion or insubordination by military courts. As soldiers, they would be subject to long prison terms if found guilty of such offenses. Those who did not refuse would be receiving soldiers' pay and breaking their own strike.

Such a fate awaits American workers if the industrial mobilization plan of the war department which has been drafted carefully over a period of years is permitted to go through congress, many labor men fear. Providing for a draft of manpower between the ages of 18 and 31, the plan seemingly would regiment labor and would set up controls over the entire country tantamount to a military dictatorship. Several attempts to enact sections of the plan through the Hill-Sheppard and May bills have met with defeat, but there is no assurance that they will not be reintroduced in congress next year.

* * *

Should that be tried, the recent happenings in France stand out as a warning to American workers that they must fight aganist any attempt to legislate civilian mobilization plans in peacetime, trade unionists say. Adoption by congress of the war department's industrial mobilization plan, in whatever form it may take, must be vigorously opposed and prevented, they contend.

Pause, passerby, and hang your head in shame. Biggest Life Insurance Co. Is Again Accused of Unfair Labor Practices

Albany, N. Y.—The state labor relations board has issued a complaint, making new charges of unfair labor practices against the Metropolitan Life Insurance company, largest life insurance company in the world. The Metropolitan, the complaint says:

"Fostered, encouraged and dominated a company union known as the Employes' Fidelity Organization by donating free office and meeting place, equipment and services to the organization, by coercing and persuading company employes to join the organization, and by discriminating in favor of its employes who are members of the Employes Fidelity organization and against employes who refuse to join that body."

The complaint goes on to say that 22 Metropolitan agents were discharged and denied reinstatement because they would not withdraw from membership in the United Office and Professional Workers, a CIO union.

The state labor relations board had previously ordered that the Metropolitan to recognize the Office and Professional Workers as the sole collective bargaining agency for its industrial agents, and the appellate division of the New York courts has upheld that order. Industrial insurance is weekly payment insurance.

A committee of Metropolitan policyholders has repeated its demand that the temporary national economic committee now functioning at Washington include the company's labor practices in its investigation of monopolies and the workings of the economic system.

GREEN AND WOLL ASSAIL NAZIS' WAR ON JEWS AS DELIBERATE SAVAGERY

WASHINGTON, D. C.—William Green and Matthew Woll, in vigorous speeches broadcast by radio, denounced Nazi persecution of Jews and trade unionists as an assault on all that civilization holds dear.

Green, resident of the American Federatior of Labor, bitterly assailed the Nazi regime as a "reign of terror" and strongly suggested that Adolf Hitler is seeking to blackmail the world.

Woll, Federation vice president and leader in a national movement for Jewish relief, scored Nazi-ism as "deliberate savagery of vicious leaders who know no other way to have their will."

President Green told the radio audience that a few hours previously he had called upon the American labor movement to redouble its vigilance in the boycott of eGrman goods and services. He urged that the boycott continue until "the persecution of Jews in Germany is terminated and they are accorded their rights as human beings."

"One of the first acts of the Hitler regime when it came into power," said Green, "was the arrest and imprisonment of German labor leaders. This was followed by the suppression and dissolution of the German trade unions in a campaign of brutality and ruthlessness that matched Hitler's attack on the Jews.

Action Doomed Freedom

"The American Federation of Labor recognized immediately that this Nazi move was the beginning of a reign of terror that spelled the end of all freedom in Germany."

Green declared that it must always be remembered that Hitler "is scheming and deliberate in his savagery" and raised the question of the Nazi leader's motives.

"It is possible," he asked, "that Hitler has conceived a vast criminal plot ot oblackmail the world? Is it possible he is holding the German Jews captive like a kidnapper, in the hope of forcing the Jews of other nations to pay ransom for their releace? Is it possible he expects the other nations of the world to pay him ransom in the form of trade benefits?"

AFofL Support Pledged

In closing, Green pledged the support of the 5,000,000 A. F. of L. members tc any practical plan for the release of the refugees from Hitler's wrath, and also pledged the full strength of the Federation to "keep the plague of Nazi-ism from spreading in this country."

Woll excoriated the Nazi dictatorship as one of ruthless savagery and declared the tortures the Nazis hav inflicted upon the Jews have never been matched in western Europe since the days of Columbus.

"Americans are serving notice on the Nazi regime, of their resentment, no only of the outrageous cruelty of the spectacle which is inflicted upon the consciousness of a decent civilization," Woll said. "They also resent any implication that they can be restricted in their expression of contempt for the men and the movement which is today dominating Germany and part of western Europe, but which cannot dominate America.

"Every American should become a part of some movement directed toward the relief or the salvation of the victims of the Nazo savagery."

"Must Build Moral Ring"

Warning that what happens to the Jew is a matter of vital importance to those of every faith, the speaker declared the Nazis aim to annihilate all who will not bow in subjection. He ended his talk as follows:

"Every hour of every day letters, telegrams and telephone calls are coming to me, expressing unity against this terror. And I declare, as I have declared before, we must help today's victims and we must build a moral ring around Germany until hideous and murderous dictatorship gives way to a complete restoration of freedom, civilization and decency."

Where Government Fails

(From the Terre Haute Advocate, Terre Haute, Ind.)

Every once in a while some citizen expresses the view that something is wrong with the government of the United States, Indiana, Vigo County and Terre Haute.

Back in his or her mind will be some pet subject upon which the government, administered by imperfect officials, has made some error, and therefore out comes a sweeping denunciation of the entire republican form of government.

As a matter of fact, the American system of government is not perfect. It cannot be as long as the power of the voter to control is not reflected in perfect voting, and this is a few centuries away. The defects that appear in any branch of government today are there because of the failure of citizens to express themselves at the polls, or to otherwise show proper interest in government.

Craft Recognition Won By A. F. L. Die Sinkers

TOLEDO, Ohio. — Confronted with the indisputable fact that practically all of the die sinkers employed by the Willys Overland Motors, Inc., Toledo, belong to Local 105, International Association of Machinists, the National Labor Relations Board certified the Machinists local as the exclusive agent for the die sinkers in bargaining with the company.

The die sinkers definitely and firmly insisted on their right, under the National Labor Relations Act, to retain their craft identity instead of being merged into a mass of heterogenous employes according to the scheme of the industrial union.

NORTH KANSAS CITY, Mo.—After an investigation of the complaint that the Koch Butcher Supply company of North Kansas City had discriminated against members of the Cabinet and Millmen's Local Union No. 1635 and Sheet Metal Workers Local Union No. 2, both affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, the National Labor Relations Board ordered the company to reinstate five employes to their former positions without prejudiceto seniority or other rights and to award remedial wages to three of the five employes, totaling about $697.67.

In addition, the board ordered the company to stop discouraging membership in the A. F. of L. unions and to disestablish the Refrigerator Plant union for employes of the company and to end its domination of the plant union.

Brewers Back Movement for Use Of American Barley and Malt

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Efforts of the American Grains Committee to improve the quality of American barley for malting purposes were endorsed by the United States Brewers' association at its recent convention in New Orleans. The committee is made up of representatives of all the associations of brewers and also representatives of farmers and organized labor. The aim of the committee is to encourage the use of American-grown barley and American-processed malt.

I. M. Ornburn, secretary-treasurer, Union Label Trades department of the American Federation of Labor, in addressing the convention, said that 98 per cent of the beer manufactured in the United States bears the union label of the International Union of the United Brewery, Flour, Cereal and Soft Drink Workers of America. Mr. Ornburn is chairman of the American Grains Committee and was instrumental in bringing about its formation.

The resolution reads as follows:

"Whereas, immediately upon the repeal of prohibition, there existed a scarcity of American barley of malting quality, and in view of such continued scarcity due to crop and weather conditions, the importation of malt was a matter of necessity; and

"Whereas, improvement is being made in the production of American barleys of malting quality, with resulting benefits derived therefrom by American farmers, labor, and the malting and brewing industries; now, therefore, be it

"Resolved, That the future importation of foreign malts be discouraged by the American brewers except in case of grave emergencies;

"Be it further Resolved, That it is the future duty of this committee to work toward co-ordination of efforts by the organizations represented on the committee with the brewing chemists, the crop improvement associations, with the various universities and with the United States Department of Agriculture co-operating."

Nearly Million Workers Reported Returned to Jobs Since July

WASHINGTON, D. C.—About 900,000 non-agricultural workers have been returned to jobs in the four-month interval since July, bringing the total number of persons at work to 34,000,000, compared with 38,000,000 in 1929 and 37,000,000 in September, 1937, Secretary of Labor Perkins reports.

Miss Perkins said that 248,000 workers were placed in positions in October, with automobile, body and parts plants alone absorbing 85,000 new employes. Retail trade establishments, she said, hired about 44,000 additional workers in October to handle the increase in fall business.

Manufacturing as a whole, the secretary said, added 156,000 employes to payrolls, exclusive of a decrease of 103,000 casual workers in canneries.

Weekly payrolls rose about $5,100,000 a week, again of 3.3 per cent, the secretary reported.

The secretary said that general gains also were reported in wholesale and retail trade establishments, anthracite and bituminous coal mines and private building construction, resulting in a higher payroll index for October than any other month in 1938.

RADIO STATION GOES UNION

FTC Throws Light on Monopoly and Price Control in Farm Implement Industry. Production Cut Deep, Prices Little, in Depression Years.

By GEORGE L. KNAPP

Washington.—The annual report of the federal trade commission, just out, should be of interest to farmers, wage-earners, and the monopoly committee now working in Washington. Taking the last party first, the report says of the farm implement industry:

"There is a high degree of concentration, accompanied by price leadership, in the manufacture and distribution of farm implements and machines. The bulk of the business is in the hands of a few companies, whose dominance is shown by the large proportion which they control of the total investment, profit, production and sale of the most important implements; by their price leadership in the industry, and by their control of wholesale and retail outlets."

If the monopoly committee can't find a tip in those words, it had better get new glasses.

* * *

As for wage-earners, the FTC reports that the chief farm implement companies, for the ten years from 1928 to 1937, both included, made an average net profit on its investment of 8.5 per cent. The International Harvester company, which handles 53 per cent of the important farm implements sold in America, made an average of 10.6 per cent profit. This, please note, is an average, which includes the bitterest years of the depression.

The FTC didn't have any figures on employment in farm implements, but the department of labor did.

In 1933, the farm implement industry had 19,264 workers—probably on part time and reduced wages.

In 1935, the farm implement industry had 55,944 workers.

The last figure shows how many men can be making farm implements when the farmer is able to buy what he absolutely needs, not by any means what he wants. If the farm implement factories had cut their prices during the depression, more men could have been kept at work. But—

Gardiner C. Means, as good an economist as there is in America, reports that from 1929 to 1933, the farm implement companies cut production 80 per cent, and prices 6 per cent.

Cut wages; cut jobs; but never cut prices. So says monopoly.

* * *

Speaking before a senate committee, Gerard Swope, president of the General Electric company, said that his company had paid out $100,000,000 in profit sharing to its 60,000 employes in the last 22 years, but that he didn't know yet whether it was a good thing or not.

A hundred million dollars has an impressive sound. But if you take the figures which Mr. Swope gives and work them out on a personal basis, you will find that each of the 60,000 workers got an average share of profits of $75.75 a year for the 22 years. Mr. Swope was right. The G. E. experiment was on altogether too small a scale to be trustworthy as a guide.

As for Mr. Swope's advice that the government arrange a tax to encourage corporations in paying annual incomes to their workers, it would be far better for corporations to guarantee their workers steady employment. Justice Brandeis got a Massachusetts shoe firm to put this in practice more than 30 years ago, and it's working yet.

Cotton Mill Pay In South Shows Slight Gain

Washington.—A labor department survey shows that wages in the cotton textile industry of the south last August were 8 cents per hour below those of the north. Even this is an improvement. In July, 1937, southern mills averaged to pay wages 10.3 cents lower than those of the north.

The report says that about 10 per cent of the cotton textile workers in the country have been benefited by the wage-hour law, and that nearly all of them are in the south.

TOO MANY POOR ARE SICK

By CHARLES STELZLE

Executive Director, Good Neighbor League

Sickness and death rates in the United States are of vital interest to the workers of America, because in normal times about 80 per cent of the poverty in this country may be charged against sickness, and death rates steadily increase as the rate of wages goes down. In the major diseases which are the cause of three-fourths of all deaths, the death rate among workers who receive less than $1,000 a year is twice that of the rest of the population.

The United States public health service, in charge of Miss Josephine Roche, of Colorado, who is favorably known to labor, has just issued a statement which declares that death rates have reached a low of only 11.0 per 1,000 of the population.

This is probably the lowest death rate of any country in the world, with the exception of Australia and New Zealand, although in several states in this country, the death rate is fully as low as it is in these two countries.

This is cheering news, because undoubtedly this steady decrease in death rates also affects the workers of America. However, the sickness and death rates are still far too high. On an average day, Miss Roche reports, 4,000,000 or more persons in the United States are disabled by illness. Of course, many more are ill, but they go to work anyway. But every year 70,000,000 lose more than one billion days from work. The total cost of illness and premature death is approximately $10,000,000,000 a year.

No physician's care is received in 30 per cent of serious illness among relief families, none in 28 per cent of such illnesses in families just above the relief level. The babies of the poor die at a rate five times higher than the babies of the moderately well-to-do. Fifty million Americans are in families receiving less than $1,000 per year income. Medical care decreases sharply as the need for it increases.

It is natural to infer that decreased death rates is accompanied by a decrease in the amount of sickness, but it does not necessarily follow that the decrease of sickness rates is in the same ratio as the decrease in death rates, because progress in medical treatment has so steadily advanced that certain diseases are now curable, whereas in earlier times they proved fatal.

The big job is to have the poor of our country receive the benefit both of preventive and curative measures. To this end our government is doing more than is generally credited to it, particularly as it operates through its public health service.

Whoops!! Only fourteen more days to do that Christmas shopping.

* * *

Ran across a new idea in Christmas wrappings the other day. Some of the stores have packages of letters in different colors. Instead of using outside cards with the recipient's name on it, you just spell the name out right on top of the package. Tried it out myself on a package—wrapped it in blue cellophane, tied it with white cellophane ribbon and spelled out the name in white letters. Looked nifty, for an amateur.

Of course, if you are one of those clever people, you could probably cut out your own letters . . . try it.

Here's swell news . . . for the many people who like eggnog as a part of the Christmas spirit . . . You can get your eggnog ready mixed at Grant-Patten's. It saves a lot of time and is sure to be good. It is non-alcoholic, of course, but all you have to do is add your own flavoring.

When you are planning the Christmas dinner, don't forget to [illegible] (or any other meat you plan to serve) come from a union meat market. You will not only be getting good meat, but you will be helping a fellow worker.

And if you buy your bread instead of making it yourself—be sure it is made in a union bakery.

And your coffee? Remember the good Rich-Maid, UNION-MADE coffee and tea.

There are so many little things that you can do which will help the labor movement and will take so little effort on your part. Watch for them.

U. S. Coal Mines Fatal-Accident Rate Next to Highest in World, ILO Finds

Geneva.—The fatal-accident rate in American coal mines is higher than that of any other country except Japan, says an International Labor office report on accident risks, submitted to a committee of experts meeting in Geneva to discuss "Safety in Coal Mines."

The report indicates that high productivity does not go hand-in-hand with safety in the coal industry of the United States, which boosts the highest output per man in the world.

The report, which emphasizes the fact that the accident risk in coal mines is far higher than in any other industry, contains statistics of accidents in the leading coal producing nations. It discloses that between 1927 and 1935 fatalities in American coal mines averaged 4.27 per 1,000 man-years of exposure to risk, as compared with 4.32 for Japan; 3.07 for Canada; 2.77 for the Union of South Africa; 2.01 for Poland; 1.70 for New Zealand; 1.61 for Germany (Prussia); 1.34 for Great Britain; 1.18 each for Belgium and India; 1.01 for France; 0.92 for the Netherlands, and 0.84 for Australia.

However, in all but six of these countries, the fatal-accident rate in coal mines decreased between 1927 and 1935. The six exceptions were Japan, Canada, the Union of South Africa, India and France.

In the United States fatal accidents in coal mines decreased from 4.43 in 1927 to 3.67 in 1935; in New Zealand, the decrease was from 1.86 to 0.47; in Germany (Prussia), from 1.80 to 1.15; in Great Britain, from 1.34 to 1.29; in Belgium, from 1.30 to 1.10; in the Netherlands, from 1.09 to 0.92; and in Australia, from 1.03 to 0.69.

"Up to this time we've worked to pay taxes ...now we can start working for ourselves"

THE face of that clock you see in the picture tells much of the story of what's holding back business and the country today.

Part of each dollar anybody takes in has to go for taxes—in cash. They are a first charge.

And the appalling fact is that on the average over one-fourth of every working day of all business, all enterprise, all workers is needed to produce the amount government spends.

No wonder business is handicapped—unable to grow soundly—unable to do the things it would like to do to provide more jobs.

Everybody in America is hit by government costs—the worker and producer most of all.

Government costs — taxes — compete with the wage earner for higher pay or any pay. Government gets there first.

Taxes add to the cost of everything you buy*—taxes are so large today that business, try as it will to economize, must endeavor to cover them in the cost of the things it sells.

The plain truth is, so long as government spends at the rate it is spending today, productive enterprise is kept so busy raising money for government that it is shackled in trying to "take up the slack" in unemployment.

And the little known fact is—not more than $1 out of $6 spent by government goes to relieve those in need.

Lower taxes mean a better chance for everyone able to produce—not only for the man at the work-bench, but also for the man on the park bench.

●

One of the surest ways to bring enduring good times in America is to give enterprise a hand, because what helps business helps you.

*Write for free pamphlet.

The 2 hours and 12 minutes blacked out on that clock show the part of each 8-hour day the average American must work to produce what government is spending.

No right-minded person will criticize necessary sums for relief of actual need. Relief now takes $1 out of every $6 government spends.

But what about the other $5? Fifteen years ago this was about $3.15.

So, $1.85—or over 30%—out of every $6 now goes for new kinds of spending, for new bureaus, new commissions, new buildings with additional upkeep charges, etc.—some of which might be fine if we could afford them. But, let's get solidly on our feet first.

If government were to cut off this new spending, the blacked-out time on that clock could be cut nearly in half—as it would mean less unemployment relief, more jobs, less waste.

Clerks Flocking to Union in A. & P. Grocery Stores

Blunt Refusal to Grant Recognition Forces 'War'

Radio Workers Local Has Six 'Closed Shops' In Addition to Both Radio Stations

Management of Sterchi Stores last Monday told Local 662, Radio Workers, affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, that it could not consider favorably the signing of an agreement with them for the radio repair and service man in their employment.

As a result, the union was forced to withdraw from the store its member, and today there is a picket walking back and forth which tells the world that once more Sterchi's is "Unfair" to organized labor.

This is not a new experience, although for the past several years it seemed that Sterchi wanted labor's friendship. In fact, a valuable spirit of co-operation had been gradually built up between the store and labor, only to be torn down by the blunt refusal of the management to allow recogni-

Machinists Change Meeting Dates, Elect New Officers

Lodge 56, International Association of Machinists, elected a new slate of officers last week for the coming year. Officers re-elected are: President, Harry A. Sivley; recording secretary, G. W. Axley; financial secretary, W. D. Axley, and secretary-treasurer, N. F. Wilson.

New officers elected were Vice-President Frank Seeley, Conductor Sam D. Green and Sentinel C. H. Crow.

Business Agent Barney refused re-nomination, and the election of a new business agent was postponed until a later date.

Because of conflict of meeting dates with Central Body, Lodge 56 changed its meeting time to the first and third Tuesdays, at the same place, Wheland hall, in the Memorial auditorium.

Nine new members were given the obligation.

One of the highlights of the week was the visit of Research Director David Kaplan, of the I. A. M., whose headquarters are in Washington, D. C. Brother Kaplan has been conferring with TVA officials with the idea in mind of an adjustment of wages for the craft.

While here he was shown the beauties of our scenery, and expressed his admiration of Chattanooga's surroundings.

BUILDING TRADES FIGHT STERCHI'S

Although Manager Raymond Moore says that the labor movement should dump overboard the Radio Workers because Sterchi has used union building trades men for remodeling work, last night the Building Trades council formally declared Sterchi "unfair."

"When Mr. Moore employed our men to remodel his store, he received the best service money could buy. Labor's motto is 'One for all and all for one' and we do not intend for selfish reasons to allow Mr. Moore to select his friends in labor. He must be fair to all of organized labor if he wants to be our friend."

A&P Stores Completely Closed Shop in Atlanta

Organization Spreading to Chattanooga; Many Applications for Membership Pending

News from Atlanta regarding the unionizing of every A. & P. store in Atlanta has seemed to have fired with determination the clerks in the local groceries here to have a clerks shop card in each of the seventeen A. & P. stores in Chattanooga.

In addition to the nearly 100 Atlanta units gaining the house card, the large A. & P. bakery has become organized and will use the union label. This is in line with previously announced national agreement made by A. & P. to sign agreements with Meatcutters and Clerks union wherever employes ask for collective bargaining.

In addition, the immense grocery chain has agreed with the Allied Printing Trades council to have all of their printing in the future bear the union label of the printing crafts.

Already many of the clerks in the A. & P. stores in Chattanooga have signed application blanks, and it is believed that within a few days an application for a grocery charter will be made, and in due time an agreement will be asked from management.

Unlike the Sterchi furniture store management, the A. & P. says that they want to be friendly to organized labor every day in every way.

Building Trades and Central Body Want TVA Civil Service

Chattanooga Building Trades council this week requested that our congressional representatives take steps toward including all TVA employes under civil service. Many thousands of employes of the federal government are under civil service, and it is only just that all be treated alike, the craftsmen say.

In addition, Central Body backs up a request by the Building Trades council to urge our congressmen to force contractors for HOLC work to bid on such work with prevailing rates of pay. As it is now, low wage contractors can always underbid fair contractors, with the result that it is impossible for union contractors to secure HOLC work regardless of the desire on the part of the home owner to pay decent wages.

Women's Auxiliary To Typos Got Start As Charter Installed

Women's Auxiliary No. 219, to Typographical Union No. 89, held installation proceedings at the regular meeting Tuesday night, with a splendid and enthusiastic crowd present.

Members of the Typos were invited as guests of the auxiliary for this meeting and many of them attended.

Jack Worthington, president of the printers, presided over the installation proceedings and called on several of the visitors to make short talks to the members and visitors.

Commissioner R. M. Cooke congratulated the ladies on their newly formed group and wished them much success in their new venture. "Bob" has been a member of the local Tpyos for more than 30 years.

Erskine Mabee, secretary of the Central Labor union, welcomed the auxiliary into the Chattanooga labor movement, and stated that much interest is being shown locally in the formation of auxiliaries to the labor unions and hoped that several more auxiliaries would soon be added to the list within the near future.

Short talks were also made by F. T. Carter, Harry Maupin, Arch Underwood, T. R. Cuthbert and Martin Peyer.

After the charter had been installed, No. 219 went into the election of officers. The following ladies were chosen to serve the auxiliary during the next year: Mrs. L. M. Worthington, president; Mrs. Turner Bell, vice-president; Mrs. Arch Underwood, secretary-treasurer; Mrs. Arthur Davis, recording secretary; Mrs. Mary Echols, chaplain, and Mrs. Dan Power, guide.

Meetings of the auxiliary will be held the second Tuesday of every month. Committee appointments will be announced later by the president.

Rhode Island Court Nullifies C. I. O. Contract With Textile Workers Union

Providence, R. I.—A strong repercussion on the activities of the CIO and the rights of members of unions which it seeks to appropriate is bound to result from the decision of the superior court of Rhode Island and Providence plantations that the "purported contract" signed on March 9, 1937, by Francis J. Gorman, international president of the United Textile Workers of America, and John L. Lewis, chairman of the committee for industrial organization, the intent of which was to abolish the U. T. W. A. and transfer its functions and membership to the textile workers organizing committee, an affiliate of the CIO, was in complete violation of the constitution of the U. T. W. A., and therefore not valid in law.

The case was brought before the superior court by Robert W. Gaffney, state director for Rhode Island of the CIO Textile Workers organizing committee and affiliated CIO groups, against Joseph Sylvia and others. Mr. Sylvia was formerly an organizer and field representative of the T. W. O. committee. He and others were charged with converting certain funds of the T. W. O. C. and depositing them in the name of the Providence Woonasquatucket Woolen and Worsted District council of the CIO. Mr. Gaffney and his associates asked that the respondents be enjoined from using the designation "CIO," from disposing of the funds or property allegedly belonging to the T. W. O. C., and to render an accounting of all funds, etc., alleged to belong to the T. W. O. C.

TERMS OF GORMAN-LEWIS CONTRACT

The court found that the contract signed by Gorman and Lewis gave to Lewis the authority to appoint the membership of the Textile Workers organizing committee, "which he shortly did;" that all the property and functions of the U. T. W. A. were delivered to the T. W. O. C. "in their entirety;" that the contract "gave full authority to the T. W. O. C. to carry on and manage the organizing campaign, to terminate it," together with sole authority to determine "when and how the U. T. W. A. would be reorganized."

"The T. W. O. C. then organized and proceeded to carry out the terms of the contract," the court said. "Its officers promptly took over the offices of the P. T. W. A with all the rights, privileges and duties of those officers and the officers of the U. T. W. A. were relegated to the background. The T. W. O. C. took over the physical property of the U. T. W. A., the offices, furniture, records, etc. The T. W. O. C. proceeded to collect dues and initiation fees from members and such other funds of the U. T. W. A. as from time to time came in."

DISPUTE OVER FUND ARISES

After pointing out that later following a disagreement as to policy the T. W. O. C. dismissed Mr. Sylvia because of his attitude toward that group, and that on June 24, 1938, Mr. Sylvia, along with other respondents, Mary Taccone and Frank Dame, deposited certain funds in their possession in the Union Trust company's Olneyville branch in the name of the Providence and Woonasquatucket Woolen and Worsted District Council, and that the T. W. O. C. claims these funds and seeks to enjoin the Sylvia group from the use of letters "C. I. O." the court said:

CONSTITUTION OF TEXTILE WORKERS UNION CITED

"The fundamental question to be determined is whether Gorman as president of the U. T. W. A. had the authority to execute the contract above referred to. The U. T. W. A. is an unincorporated association but has a constitution and by-laws which define the powers and duties of its officers and members. This constitution and by-laws constitute a contract between the members of the U. T. W. A. and also a contract between the organization itself and its membership.

"In Article I of the constitution and by-laws of the U. T. W. A. we find a provision that the organization shall not be dissolved while there are nine dissenting unions.

"The evidence in the case before us clearly shows that the control of the organization, its finances, its policies and its future were turned over to the CIO under the terms of this contract.

"It seems also reasonably clear from said evidence that it was the intention of the parties to said contract that the U. T. W. A. should cease to function as an organization and that the question of when and if it was reorganized rested solely with the CIO.

GORMAN-LEWIS CONTRACT HELD INVALID

"It is fair from reading the contract to deduce that it was the intention of the parties to said contract that the U. T. W. A. should, in effect, be dissolved. No opportunity was given to the local unions to express their wishes in the matter, hence it is impossible to say whether or not at least nine unions would dissent. * * *

"When the dissolution, merger, amalgamation or consolidation of an organization such as U. T. W. A. is contemplated, it would seem to be the implied duty, at least, of the officers thereof to give the members of the local unions affiliated therewith an opportunity to properly express their approval or disapproval of such a proceeding. However that may be, it seems clear that it was the express duty of its officers to call a special convention under such circumstances in accordance with Article X, Section 2 of the constitution and by-laws of the U. T. W. A.

"No opportunity was given to the local unions to express their views on this fundamental change in their organization and we feel that it was beyond the power of their President Gorman to act for them in this regard without their express approval. Hence, we find that the execution of this contract by Gorman, purporting to act for U. T. W. A., was invalid and ineffective and did not operate to bind the U. T. W. A. as an organization.

NEITHER GROUP HAS RIGHT TO DISPUTED FUNDS

"The contract being invalid, it follows that the complainants have no right, title or interest in and to the funds now on deposit in the bank or in the hands of Mary Taccone and Miss Marsolli or to the personal property mentioned in the evidence.

"The T. W. O. C. got possession of this money by taking away from each worker his U. T. W. A. book upon payment of dues by him and issuing in its stead a due book of T. W. O. C., all without the consent of said worker, transferred the names of members of U. T. W. A. to a list of allegedly constituting a list of T. W. O. C. members.

"Such proceedings surely paid scant heed to the wishes of the individual union members in these important matters.

"We find the funds now in bank and in the hands of witnesses Taccone and Marsolli as well as the personal property in the office at Olneyville Square belonged to the member locals of U. T. W. A. as existing at the time of the execution of the alleged contract in the proportion that they hav contributed to the same in the form of dues and per capita tax.

"The Providence Woonasquatucket Woolen and Worsted District Council has not shown that it as such is entitled to any of the funds or property above mentioned nor that it is entitled to claim any designation which would entitle it to the use of the words 'Committee on Industrial Organization' or 'C. I. O.'"

FUNDS ARE IMPOUNDED FOR FUTURE ALLOCATION

The court found that the money in the hands of Taccone and Marsolli "belongs to the local unions of the U. T. W. A." and ordered that it be deposited in the office of the clerk of the superior court for the counties of Providence and Bristol; that the funds on deposit in the Union Trust company in the name of Providence Woonasquatucket Woolen and Worsted District Council "are the money and property of the local unions of the U. T. W. A." and ordered that the bank hold the same until further order from the court; that the Providence Woonasquatucket Woolen and Worsted District Council "has no authority to use the designation 'C. I. O.' or any other designation tending to represent it as affiliated with the committee on industrial organization and it is enjoined and restrained permanently from such use."

T.W. O. C. ORDERED TO ACCOUNT TO THE COURT ON MONEYS COLLECTED

And finally the court ruled "that the Textile Workers organizing committee of the CIO and its representatives are hereby ordered and directed to render an account to this court on or before the 31st day of December A. D. 1938, of all moneys collected and receipts from the membership of the local unions now or formerly of the U. T. W. A. collected by it or them from March 9, 1937, up to and including July 15, 1938, and to deposit any and all such funds now in its or their hands with the clerk of the superior court for the counties of Providence and Bristol forthwith."

Basis of Prosperity

By CHARLES STELZLE

Executive Director, Good Neighbor League

Practically everything that is happening to us today happened to others thousands of years ago—according to the archaeologists who found the records on clay tablets, baked 5,000 years ago, or to the historians who began to write some 2,500 years later.

They tell us about sit-down strikes, hours of labor, salary bonuses, collective bargaining, cost of living, old-age pensions, silver standards, crooked politicians, women's rights, and in the Bible itself we have the story of Egypt's seven years of plenty, and seven years of depression with "bread lines" and a "food commissioner."

During all of these experiences panaceas were suggested to meet the problems of the times. Some of them worked out, but many failed. It's a strange thing that some deluded leaders are today offering the same old quack remedies that were tried and failed in the days when they had to be written upon clay tablets instead of typewriters.

But it is still more remarkable that plans and principles which were basically sound are being disregarded today.

We have learned that dictatorships and autocracies are not conducive to the freedom and happiness of the whole people.

We have learned that the character of a nation's greatness is determined by the character of its individual citizens.

We have learned that no question is ever settled permanently except upon the basis of justice.

We have learned that right human relationships are more important than the creation of great organizations and corporations and machine production.

We have learned that the source of happiness depends not so much upon what we have as it does upon what we are.

We have learned that character is more vital in building up a permanent basis of prosperity than reputation, for a man's reputation, dishonestly earned, may quickly be smashed, whereas his character is eternal, and cannot be taken away.

And all these things which history has taught us may be applied to every problem facing us today—as individuals, and as nations. They may be applied to personal relations, to the labor problems, to national questions, and to international affairs.

Therefore, let's stop looking for short cuts and patent remedies, and let's study the lessons which history has taught us. For upon these depends our future prosperity and our present happiness.

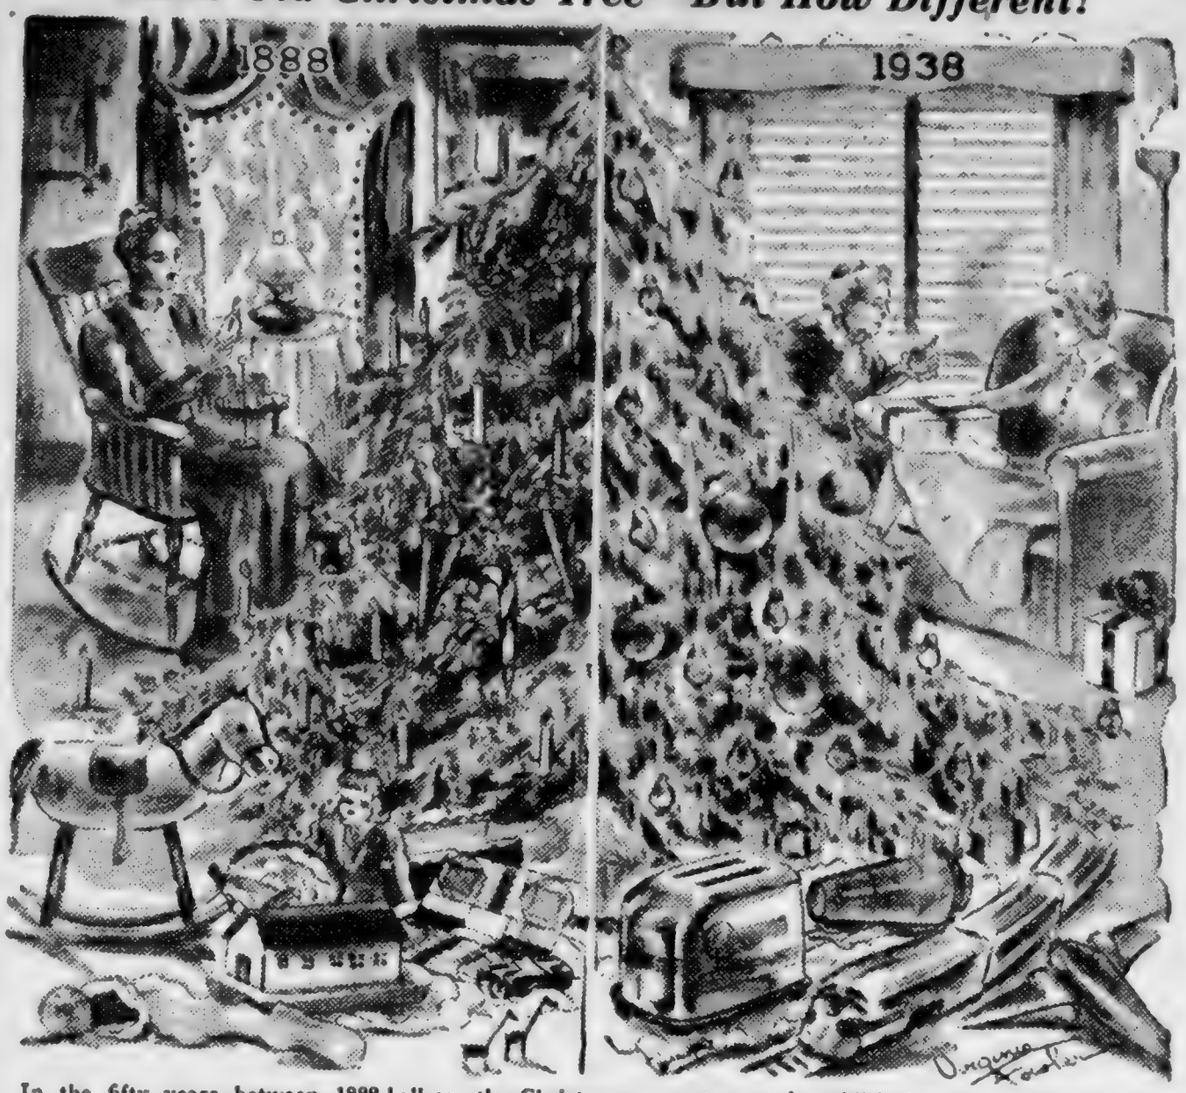
Same Old Christmas Tree—But How Different!



In the fifty years between 1888 and 1938, the Christmas Tree has grown-up more rapidly than in all its previous centuries of existence. The old candles, flaming and askew, have given place to brilliant little electric solar systems, the decorations have become simpler and more streamlined.

Most modern and streamlined of all are the Christmas presents nestling at the foot of the ancient tree. Whole villages and plants, ready-cut and fitted, waiting to be erected; electric trains flashing through and over minute models of the most famous tunnels and bridges, a host of streamlined presents, ranging from the most subtle and delicate applications of electricity, to the fully automatic electric toaster, long-established as the center of the modern breakfast table.

The well known artist, Virginie Fowler, has shown above, two halves of the Christmas Tree, one bearing the decorations and presents of 1888; the other, those of 1938. And the young woman of the earlier picture, is the grandmother of the later!

Shoe Workers Average Weekly Pay Is $21.33

N. Y. Employes Get Higher Average, $26.20; Pennsylvania Rate, $16.20, Lowest

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Working men and women who make most of the shoes worn by 130,000,000 millions of people in the United States (and some for the export trade) are certainly not paid wages high enough to enable them to purchase many of the luxuries of life. This fact is strikingly revealed in the report of Miss Mary Anderson, director of the Children's Bureau, to Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins, that the average weekly wage is only $21.33.

The report, covering both wages and hours in the shoe industry, will be used by the Public Contracts Division of the Labor Department to determine whether shoes to be purchased by the Government comply with the labor standards provided in the Walsh-Healey Public Contracts act.

The highest average weekly wage, $26.20, Miss Anderson said, was paid by employers in New York state, while the ignominy of paying the lowest average weekly wage, $16.20, was won by Pennsylvania employers.

A significant feature of the report is the fact that those who own and operate the shoe factories of the United States impose lower wages on women workers than on men. The average woman worker was paid only $17.10 per week, which is but 70 per cent of the average earnings of men, Miss Anderson said.

In Pennsylvania the average of women shoe workers hit the low figure of $12.80 per week. In New York state women workers were paid an average of $20.65.

The range in the weekly earnings of men ranged from $18.05 in Pennsylvania to $29.80 in New York.

"Peace on Earth, Good Will to . . "

(By James F. Barrett)

Almost two thousand years ago a little babe was born, and for many centuries past the world has celebrated the babe's birthday as an event of great import to all people. That babe became a carpenter, a teacher, a preacher, a crucified Christ and a resurrected Lord. He died an ignoble death to establish the noble spirit of the Brotherhood of Man. He pronounced it as His benediction that there should be "Peace on Earth, Good Will to All."

Last week several hundred little children were torn from the arms of their mothers, over yonder in Germany, and sent into a strange country to live with strangers. Armed officers went into the hotels, where the mothers had assembled their little ones, upon orders from the dictator, and took these little ones from their mothers' arms and marched them to the railway station, the larger children carrying those who were too little to walk the distance.

Many mothers swooned, some died, as they saw their little children being marched away, with no hope whatever of seeing them again.

That brutal episode in this twentieth century could not have happened had it not been for the fact that a house painter laid aside his brush and paints a few years ago, intoxicated with evidence of his power over his people, and proceeded to establish a dictatorship in Germany. His first step was the destruction of all labor unions. The workers were wielded together into one solid phalanx, with all local and craft autonomy wiped out, and all workers forced under the absolute direction and dictation of the former house painter.

Then that mad man's course led to the destruction of fraternal orders, and then came elimination of church organization and activity. And now comes the world's most brutal persecution of a people.

As we enjoy this coming Christmas Eve, assisting Santa Claus in making preparations for that most joyous hour of a little child's life—the awakening hour on Christmas morn let us keep in mind those mothers and fathers whose little children were torn from their arms last week, and sent away to strangers, in a strange land. Let us remember that a house painter, crazed with a passion for power, is the sole cause of all of that brutal, hellish persecution of a people, climaxed by that awful scene of little children being torn from their mother's arms and marched away.

Let us, therefore, in the hours of "Silent Night" determine anew that no house painter, no shaggy-browed coal miner, no power-crazed fiend in America, shall be permitted to destroy our unions, our fraternal orders, our churches, our free government. Efforts and events in this country closely parallel the course pursued by Hitler. No dictatorship can be established in any country until the working people are subdued. That is the first essential step, and then follow the fraternal orders, the churches, and then the government itself.

"Peace on Earth, Good Will . . . " What peace is there for the persecuted of Germany? Wherein is there any good-will in a dictatorship? Let all people realize that labor is freedom's first line of defense, and that labor cannot defend freedom unless labor itself is free. In singing Christmas songs this yuletide America ought to sing its praises to the American Federation of Labor for its determined fight to keep America free, to the end that no house painter, no coal miner, no man of any kind, can establish a dictatorship in this country from which little children could be torn from the arms of their mothers and sent into a strange land to live among strangers.

Purges Encourage Stalin Worship

Strange scene at the Opera House in Moscow when the Moscow theater held a celebration. It was to celebrate the anniversary of its proletarian art establishment and Joe Stalin, himself, was there in person. There were artists and artistes with flowers to greet him, red soldiers freshly decorated from the eastern front, marching to salute him, and representatives from fields and factories to do him honor. Said their spokesman: "All our feelings, all our thoughts are directed to you." Well, people, if half the stories they tell of the Soviet purges are true, al we've got to say is: "By gum, they'd better!"—Tacoma Labor Advocate.

Germany Harms Herself

Joseph Goebbels, Nazi minister of propaganda, says that all the Jews whose lives are spared must be driven out absolutely penniless. Spain did that with the Moors, once; and the result was ruinous to Spain. Regions which the Moors had farmed with success went out of cultivation; 16,000 looms in one Spanish city sunk to 300; silk and sugar manufacture in the country absolutely ceased.

Germany will not be hit quite so hard by expulsion of the Jews as Spain was by banishing the Moors; but the effect will be in exactly the same direction.

Some Thoughts on War

War does not, and can never, prove which side is right, but only which side is the stronger. No nation is wholly or chiefly composed of villainous individuals. All warfare is atrocious, but most "atrocity stories" are untrue.—James Hilton.

Westinghonse to Put Wage-Hour Standards Into Effect at Once

Pittsburgh.—The Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company announced on Dec. 8 that it will put into effect immediately the final provisions of the federal fair labor standards act for all salaried non-exempt employes.

Anticipating by three years the minimum wage and maximum hours of the federal act, the Westinghouse concern said it would make retroactive to Oct. 24 the 40-hour provision, which does not become effective under the act until 1940. The announcement affects about 12,000 workers.

"The company's policy is to put the full requirements of the act into force at once, making overtime payments on the 40-hour basis immediately," President George H. Bucher announced.

Pay Increase Awarded Drivers Of Children's Bus System

New York City.—Frank Swacker, an arbitrator appointed by the New York state board of mediation, has awarded drivers employed by the children's bus system, of New York City, an increase in lages of 62½ per cent.

Arbitration followed a strike, called by Division No. 1181, Amalgamated Association of Street, Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employes when the management failed to live up to a union agreement entered into earlier in the year, under which it agreed to arbitrate the question of wages.

Swacker directed that the wage rate of drivers employed by this bus system, which has a contract with the city's boar dof education and serves some 20,000 school children, be increased from $20 to $32.50 for a five-day week. The rate of pay for drivers, when employed in the work of carrying children to and from school and in incidental work they might do during customary hours of service, is to be $6.50 a day.

The wage rate obtained by the union, an A. F. of L. affiliate, is the highest ever to be achieved for this type of work. The award benefits about 300 union members.

Moderate Income Increases Would Have Tremendous Effect On Industry, Dr. Lubin Shows—Huge Wheat Surplus Worries Agricultur-Surplus Worries Agriculture Department.

By GEORGE L. KNAPP

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Isador Lubin, head of the Bureau of Labor Statistics, will go down in history as the man who showed that an increase of $2.25 a day in the wages of our poorly paid workers would bring unparalleled prosperity, far better distributed than that of 1929. If that doesn't entitle Dr. Lubin to a wreath or even a halo from American labor, what would?

Five million, two hundred thousand wage earning families in the United States are scraping through on less than $1,250 a year. Give these $2.25 a day more to spend, and they would spend $800,000,000 a year more on food, $416,000,000 more on clothing, and other increased expenditures for various improvements in conditions of living, including $208,000,000 more for medical care, totalling up to nearly $3,000,000,000.

"It should be borne in mind," said Lubin, "that these estimates cover the effects of a change in the incomes of only a limited group of our population. . . . The outline of the demands that would be made on American industry following even a moderate increase in the incomes of all families and single individuals now receiving less than $2,500 would, in fact, be almost unbelievable."

Never have I known such a mass of undisputed facts handled with such skill. The so-called monopoly investigation is off to a magnificent start, whatever happens to it afterwards.

* * *

Word comes by roundabout roads but with a strong probability of truth that eastern railroads are trying to go back to a two-cent fare. The obstacle is the Pennsylvania, which took the lead in getting the raise to 2½ cents a mile. But that raise has not brought the "expected" increase in revenue, and other railroad managers are trying hard to persuade the Pennsy to yield.

So runs the story, and the only flaw in it is that quoted word "expected." Who expected an increase in total revenues from a boost of fares? Not the ICC, who told the railroads plainly that the candy they cried for so loudly was likely to make them sick. Not the actual managers of the railroads, except, perhaps, on the Pennsylvania. Most of them had lowered rates—and made money at it.

The truth of the matter is that the railroads of this country have come so thoroughly under the domination of high finance that the managers are often little more than highly paid errand boys for the big financiers. It takes a big financier to raise rates when sales are falling off and competition is getting keener.

* * *

Secretary of State Hull isn't the only member of the administration who is worried by developments abroad. Secretary of Agriculture Wallace is doing his full share. We had on hand in this country in October 851,000,000 bushels of wheat. Last year in the same month we had 761,000,000 bushels, and in October, 1936, 541,000,000 bushels.

Plainly, a huge and hard-to-manage surplus is piling up. Our markets in Europe are hampered by restrictive laws, designed to promote the growing of wheat at home, and Canada, Argentina and Australia are lively competitors. The recent agreement which Secretary Hull put through with England has brought on order for 20,000,000 bushels of American wheat that doubtless would have gone to some other country; but that is a small matter compared to the quantity waiting to be sold.

Meanwhile, there are millions of people here who do not get as much wheat as they want because of poverty.

Toys Should "Fit" Child's Age Level

Knoxville. — Select a child's Christmas toys as you select his clothes—to "fit" his age level, suggested Dr. Ella J. Day, head of the University of Tennessee's child development department.

"If the child is just learning to walk and climb, give him play materials to stimulate these activities. He needs his first picture books when he begins to talk, housekeeping toys at about three when he begins to want to help mother, and crayons and scissors when he begins to manipulate them," said Dr. Day.

Parents, aunts, uncles, etc., should consider what the child is ready for as regards physical growth and mental and social development in selecting toys, continued Dr. Day.

"If toys are selected with some relation to the child's growth and needs, they will be toys which stimulate self-reliance. This seems important from the standpoint of building up habits of industry, concentration and stick-to-itiveness, and to foster creative and constructive activity."

To illustrate her point, Dr. Day told a 4-year-old who completely ignored her expensive toys to play with a 10-cent rolling pin. "This did not indicate lack of appreciation of any gift, but rather the child's interest in an occupation."

"They are distracted by the array of things presented to them at one time. The young child would profit more from a few well-selected toys given to him from time to time as he grows."

Dr. Day also recommended that parents consider the probable "life" of a toy before buying.

"We can afford to put more money into toys which a child will find many uses for, also one that grows up with him. A sand pile and good blocks are two such play materials. Whereas most wind-up mechanical toys, novelties like a monkey on a string, or a jack-in-the-box or even a hobby horse are rather short lived and limited in their use."

Southern Labor "Spots"

Atlanta, Ga.—An agreement has been entered into by the Atlanta plant of the National Biscuit company and organized labor employed by the company, which is accepted as an instrument of mutual value and protection. Local Union No. 42 of the Bakery and Confectionery Workers' international, and Lodge No. 1, of the International Association of Machinists, are the contracting parties with the National Biscuit company.

This agreement is for one year, beginning Dec. 2, and provides recognition of the local unions as exclusive collective bargaining agencies for the workers involved. The 8-hour day, 40-hour week, with time and one-half for overtime work, are features of the agreement. The company further agrees to furnish and launder all uniforms. Heretofore, the workers paid for their uniforms.

The negotiations were handled for the company by L. F. Alderman, local manager, and T. D. McMahon, New York representative. The Bakers' union was represented by C. T. Hulsey, president, and H. C. Bishop, financial secretary, of their local. The Machinists were represented by J. H. Howard, grand lodge representative, and F. H. King and G. C. Whipple, of Lodge No. 1. There is evidenced a spirit of full co-operation between all concerned, and Paul Chipman, recording secretary of Local Lodge No. L, and other local union officials, praised the company officials and union representatives who negotiated the agreement for their splendid work.

Winfield, La.—A central labor union has been organized here, and the charter applied for. There are nine local unions here, and the field for a live central body has long been most inviting. The charter is expected at an early date and upon its receipt the new central body will be legally instituted. E. H. Williams, president of the Louisiana State Federation of Labor and representative of the American Federation of Labor, assisted the local unions in forming the central body.

New Orleans, La.—A union shop agreement has been signed here between the New Orleans Steamship association and Local Union No. 1497, I. L. A., covering 300 clerks and checkers. An increase in pay of $1 a day was obtained, with full seniority rights, time and one-half time for all overtime work, and guaranteed half-time pay for waiting time. The contract committee of the I. L. A. and Representatives Leo B. Carter and Emmett Townsend assisted the local union in negotiating the agreement.

New Orleans, La.—An agreement was signed here between the New Orleans Steamship association and Local Unions 1418 and 1419, providing union shop conditions, load limit, guarantee of one-half time for waiting time, restricted hiring, regulation of foremen, and many other features of tremendous value to 3,500 longshoremen who come under the agreement. Emmett Townsend, I. L. A. representative, and Leo B. Carter, A. F. of L. representative, assisted the membership in negotiating the agreement.

Tuscaloosa, Ala.—Charter for the newly organized local union of Natural Gas company's employes has been installed here, officers named, and the new organization already serving its membership. S. E. Roper, A. F. of L. representative, had charge of the installation program.

Birmingham, Ala.—Local Union No. 277, United States Garment Workers of America, has been recognized by the Johnson Manufacturing company as exclusive bargaining agency, as a result of a consent election held under direction of the state department of labor. The members had been on strike during the past several days, and as a result of the election an agreement was signed, providing that workers return to work this week and complete all garments for which cloth had been cut. During this time, the company, having recognized the union, will negotiate a permanent working agreement.

Representative Reynolds, of the United Garment Workers, and S. E. Roper, of the A. F. of L., assisted the membership throughout the period of the strike and in the election and subsequent negotiations. The settlement is considered a great victory for the employes.

Auburndale, Fla.—An agreement has been signed between the Adams Packing company, of this city, and Local Union No. 21210, as a result of which the membership of the union is greatly pleased. Paul J. Aymon, of the Atlanta office of the American Federation of Labor, assisted the officers of the local union in the negotiations with the company officials.

Memphis, Tenn.—C. C. Peek, international representative of the Meatcutters and Butcher Workers' union, expressed himself as being highly pleased with the work done in Memphis by W. W. Rowland, business agent for the Memphis local, and the splendid support given his union by the labor movement in Mempihs.

Representative Peek's most recent report shows that agreements have been signed between the Meatcutters and Butchers' union with 68 Kroger stores and 13 Liberty stores. In addition to the stores covered in the above contracts, the union has rcently signed agreements with ten independent stores which had never before been in the union. In odd moments, Mr. Peek said, the representatives found time to renew a score or more agreements which expire at this time.

Taken all together, there are contracts and agreements now in effect covering the meatcutters and butcher workers in 171 places of business in Memphis, making this the best organized city in the south, insofar as the meatcutters and butcher workers are concerned. This international is an affiliate of the American Federation of Labor.

There is something on earth greater than arbitrary or despotic power, and that is the aroused indignation of the civilized world.—Daniel Webster.

Although some six radio dealers have signed closed shop agreements with Local 662, it is believed by many that there is a "gentleman's" agreement between several of the larger furniture stores not to sign in order to freeze out the union.

As a result, however, it is not unlikely that more organization will occur in the furniture houses that are so anxious to fight labor. Already there is some talk by the truck drivers and clerks that after all they might be more secure if they, too, became organized.

When presented with a proposed agreement, already signed by six houses, Manager Raymond Moore, in a gruff and rude manner, is said to have thrown the paper to the floor with the comment that he "did not care to discuss the matter."

The general manager, whose office is in Knoxville, came to Chattanooga when the patient radio boys appealed to him, and although there was no objection to the conditions of the contract he remained firm in his decision that signed recognition would not be given.

Negotiations are at present being carried on with other furniture houses, with prospects of signing agreements with them.

And with all the months of investigating the TVA, not a dollar of graft has been found in it.

Early Mailing Helps Postman Avoid Problem of Yule Rush

Public Always Waits Until Last Minute Despite Tearful Pleas.

If Christmas mailers didn't wait until the last minute with their cards and packages, post office officials predict the annual Yule rush would be minimized immensely. But despite tearful pleas each December, the bulk of holiday mail falls into post offices, less than seven days before Christmas. What the public really fears, say officials, is that their gifts will be delivered too soon before Christmas. As a result all too many gifts don't arrive until after Christmas! "Mail early," is the plea of the heavily burdened postmen below.

TEACHER TALK

Don't forget the federation meeting which is scheduled for Saturday, Dec. 17, at 2 p.m. at Dickinson. Miss Kate Garvin's sick-pay committee will be ready to recommend action that may become the basis for negotiation on sick-pay with the city and county departments of education, and Miss Josephine Hamilton's legislation committee will report on its campaign for passage of the federal aid bill and kindred subjects.

We're hoping to be able any time now to report the progress of the membership committee. With so many good reasons for being in, it's hard to understand how anyone can stay out. One type of teacher that especially rouses our ire is the one who stands on his dignity and supposes that union members belong to a different world from his. Try informing these aloof ladies and gentlemen that Albert Einstein, Odell Shepherd, Laurenc Tibbett, all the first-string actors in the country, professors in Harvard, Yale, Cornell, Princeton, Chicago and the other great universities are members of their unions. Teachers who suppose that decent salaries and working conditions come just from being good boys and waiting for the politicians to recognize their merit are political morons.

Don't forget that the good unionist buys goods advertised in The Labor World. Insist on the union label in goods you buy—from cigarettes to overcoats. Use union labor in repair work and home construction. It is then only that you are a real unionist.

This column is anxiously awaiting the hearing, in chancery court, of the city salary suit. It was reported the federation has completed its evidence. Next move is the court's in calling the lawyers to plead the case.

We have heard that some teachers have the mistaken impression that the federation is responsible for the county teachers receiving no increase in salary this year, so we here review the facts in the case. In the summer of 1937 the county court refused to continue the salary scale for the school year 1937-38, but resolved that this action was to be only a suspension, that the scale would be continued the next year; that is, the current year. Last spring, at their April meeting, the court adopted a resolution to instruct their financial committee to make a budget that would include increases to raise all teachers to a minimum of $1,000, and put into effect the second step of the schedule. The proposal to raise all to the $1,000 minimum, without regard to the salary schedule, came from a nonunion group of teachers and injected a new issue into the situation.

Bear in mind that the court had already indicated its intention to continue the salary schedule. When polled independently by the federation and by the county board of education, the teachers overwhelmingly indicated their desire to continue the schedule. Finally, the court did neither. The federation had representatives at all the budget sessions of the court, fighting for the interests of the teachers.

The American Federation of Teachers has now 40,000 members, twice the number of 1936.

The Cherry Tree

Members of congress beginning to sound off on various subjects.

Senator Borah, always good for a statement, predicts that if the United States joins the "hysterical" world armament race, popular sentiment will force congress to approve a constitutional amendment giving the people the right to declare any but a defensive war. Stranger things have happened.

One thing sure, the war referendum proposal will be up again, with Representative Ludlow seeking an immediate house vote on his plan. The house shelved the Ludlow measure last January, without voting on it directly. Vote on the shelving showed what Ludlow's supporters construed as strong support for the plan.

Senator Capper and other Senators favor a plan similar to Ludlow's. Capper says he will push the proposal.

* * *

The foregoing is not an argument for or against the proposal to permit the people to vote on declarations of war. Congress, however, should certainly vote on any measure seriously considered by any number of representatives or senators. That is good Americanism and don't let anyone tell you to the contrary.

To dodge an issue is cowardly and only puts off the final decision. That was what was done on the Ludlow bill and on Senator Wagner's anti-lynching bill. The anti-lynching bill had many supporters in the senate, but was not permitted to come to a vote. A time-wasting filibuster early in 1938 prevented a decision.

* * *

Several senators insisted states could deal with lynching and indulged in tiresome guff for days in an attempt to support their position.

Well, there have been six lynchings since June. All of which makes Herr Hitler and his cronies point the finger of scorn at the U. S. as a nation given over to mob murder.

Lynch mobs never think how their lawless actions lay the U. S. open to criticism from enemies of democracy. It could hardly be expected that they would, as lynchers are incapable of thought.

* * *

Some senators are talking about the national labor relations act. It is suspected more than one would like to amend the act to death. They have had nothing to say about constructive changes proposed by the American Federation of Labor. And they have kept very quiet about the reappointment of Donald W. Smith to the labor board. A. F. of L., for what it considers good reasons, wants to see Mr. Smith retired to private life. Vote on the reappointment is going to put some senators on the spot. How they will hate to place themselves on record!

* * *

Old year ending, new year coming fast.

A. F. of L. made fine progress in 1938, despite unfavorable conditions a good share of the time. Conditions are better now and if improvement continues through 1939, even greater A. F. of L. progress will be made.

What will 1939 bring? One guess is as good as another.

Outlook seems fairly promising, though there are some disquieting circumstances, such as let-down in certain heavy industries.

Organized labor will be on the job and keep everlastingly at improving the condition of the workers, no matter what the new year brings forth.

I. T. U. Reserves Right To Limit Members' Work to 5-Day Week

INDIANAPOLIS.—The International Typographical Union announced here its members had defeated in a referendum vote a proposal that local unions sign contracts for a maximum six-day, 48-hour week.

By defeating the proposal the union reserved the right to limit its members' work to five days a week. It also voted to amend its laws which forbid renewal of present bonus scales.

It defeated a proposal requiring working pensioners to pay two per cent pension and mortuary assessment on monthly earnings of more than $30. Present law requires payment on earnings over $60.

The union also voted to change the inauguration of elective officers from Sept. 1 to July 15, effective in 1942; to hold annual conventions the Saturday preceding the third Monday in August, except when the convention is held in Colorado Springs, Colo. It would convene there the Saturday preceding the second Monday in September.

Home Loan Bank Board Sees Further Building Recovery

Washington.—A further recovery in residential construction may be expected, the Federal Home Loan bank board reports, providing there are no "untoward incidents such as a sudden increase in building costs."

The board, in a summary of reports from various parts of the country, said "it appears as if the potential demand due to an accumulated housing shortage is now transferring itself into effective demand."

An electric heater to keep railway switches free from ice and snow has been invented. The heater is sealed to prevent entrance of moisture and is permanently installed under the rail.

Total of 132 Billion Dollars Lost By Nation in 9 Depression Years, Lubin Tells Monopoly Inquiry

Washington.—Nine years of depression have cost American wage and salary earners 119,000,000,000.

This was the lead off, so to speak, of the public hearings of what everyone has learned to call the monopoly committee. Chairman Senator O'Mahoney, of Wyoming, opened proceedings by filing documents and making a brief statement. Then Isador Lubin, head of the U. S. bureau of labor statistics, took the stand, and began to spread the facts as to what the depression has done before the audience and the nation.

"The total loss of working time from the unemployment that has prevailed in the United States for the past nine years," he said, "is equal to more than a full year's employment for everyone who had a job in the non-agricultural industries of the country in 1929.

Farmers' Income Hard Hit.

"Putting it in another way, if the number employed in non-agricultural activities in 1929 had been maintained unchanged during the last nine years and every worker in the country had taken a vacation for a year and two months during that period, the sum total of the national income of the country would have been unchanged. The loss in wages and salaries arising from unemployment exceeded 119 billion dollars, a sum which is 40 per cent greater than the peak total national income of the country in 1929.

"If the income of our farmers had been maintained at the 1929 level," Mr. Lubin stated, "their total gross income over the past nine years would have aggregated 38 billions more than they actually received. The cumulative loss to our farm population was equal to more than three times their income in 1929.

Huge National Loss Total.

"Had it been possible to maintain dividend payments at the 1929 level, the income of stockholders would have been 20 billions greater, a sum which is more than the amount paid out at the height ofg prosperity.

"In terms of our total national income, the cumulative loss has exceeded 132 billion dollars. In other words, had our annual national income continued unchanged since 1929, there would have been available, for the entire period, an average of $1,000 more in goods and services for each man, woman and child in the United States."

Mr. Lubin estimated the per capita income for the present year at $472. It was $540 in 1937, $320 in 1932, and an average of $606 for the ten years ending in 1929. He presented a group of charts, each one telling a story. One, of special interest now, shows that in 1926, 937,000 dwelling units were built, that by 1929, this had dropped more than half, that in 1932, only 50,000 dwelling units were built in the whole country, and that 294,000 were erected in 1937.

"Modern depression," he declared, "is a durable goods depression."

Progressive Mine Workers To Move Headquarters

Springfield, Ill.—The Illinois Tradesman, R. E. Woodmansee, editor and publisher, announces that the Progressive Mine Workers of America have just completed a referendum election on the question of moving the general headquarters from Gillespie to Springfield, with the majority of more than 1,500 votes. The headquarters have been in Gillespie ever since the organization was formed and at the annual convention held in October the matter was brought up and referred to the rank and file to decide. Springfield being more centrally located, the officers felt that the change should be made in the interest of the organization.

Automatic Machines Take Labor's Place

They Also Make the Worker's Skill Commercially Valueless, W. P. A. Finds.

The displacement of human labor and the destruction of the market value of skilled labor are the inevitable results of the widespread introduction of measurement devices and automatic control instruments in industry, according to a report entitled "Industrial Instruments and Changing Technology," which was prepared by the National Research Project of the Works Progress Administration and released by Administrator Harry L. Hopkins.

Although the report emphasizes that the measurement devices and automatic control instruments have "speeded up production, improved the quality of products, reduced costs and increased the productivity of labor," there is no escaping the baneful effects of this process on working men and women both in the destruction of job opportunities and the degradation of skilled labor. On these two subjects the report says:

"Instruments in some instances serve as direct substitutes for labor. Relays, switches and other mechanisms which transfer the actions of an instrument into automatic operations of a machine have eliminated manual workers. Inspection and handling operations are particularly susceptible to automatic control in mass production industries. A wide variety of automatic devices has been applied in these industries to mechanize handling and visual-inspection tasks."

"The judgment of a trained workman is frequently made unnecessary by an instrument which indicates a condition so precisely that an unskilled operative can give the process the necessary attention. Where a new skill is introduced it is likely to be of a different sort, for instance, one requiring an ability to read meters and perform calculations."

Printers Union Wins Bargaining Election

NEW YORK, N. Y.—According to an order issued by the National Labor Relations Board, the National Herald, Inc., of New York City, is required to bargain collectively wtih Hellenic Typographical Union No. 817, International Typographical Union, as the sole bargaining representative of its employes in the composing room, and to reinstate two employes to their former positions.

In addition, the Board ordered the company to pay two employes, one of them reinstated, a total of about $700 in remedial wages, and to stop discouraging membership in Local 817 or in any other labor organization.

Radio Artists Union Score Persecution Of German Jews

Chicago.—Approval of some form of amalgamation of international unions affiliated with the Associated Actors and Artists of America and the American Federation of Labor, to be determined at a later conference of the organizations concerned, was voted by one of the affiliates, the American Federation of Radio Artists, at its annual convention at St. Louis, Mo.

Membership Coars.

The union was organized a little over a year ago with a membership of about 250. Since that time it has obtained agreements with the National and Columbia broadcasting stations scattered from coast to coast. Its membership now totals approximately 6,000.

The convention urged that the American Federation of Labor Executive Council immediately approach the CIO for further negotiations, looking toward unity in the labor movement.

Pay Minimums Set.

Barbaric persecutions undertaken by the Hitler regime in Grmany, particularly against Jews and Catholics, were scored in a resolution.

The convention finished its job of co-ordinating and setting salary minimums for national network programs and authorized the executive board to call a strike against any agency or company refusing to accede to union demands.

At times in spite of everything we find ourselves passing on to you bits of this and that taken from here and there. Today we give to you a few old things to think over. Personally we believe they are good:

Actions speak louder than words ever do;
You can't eat your cake and hold on to it, too.
When the cat is away, then the mice play;
Where there is a will, there is always a way.
There's no use crying over milk that is spilt;
No accuser is needed by conscience of guilt.
There must be some fire wherever is smoke;
The pitcher goes oft to the well till it's broke.
By rogues falling out honest men get their dues;
Whoever it fits, he must put on the shoes.
All work and no play will make Jack a dull boy;
There ne'er was a pleasure without an alloy.
A half loaf is better than no bread at all;
And pride always goeth before a sad fall.
Fast bind and fast find, have two strings to your bow;
Contentment is better than riches, we know.
The Devil finds work for hands idle to do;
A miss is as good as a mile is to you.
A man by his company always is known;
Who lives in a glass house should not throw a stone.
Speech may be silver, but silver is gold;
There's never a fool like the fool who is old."

Big volume buying of Christmas gifts bearing the union label would aid recovery. It would help to put the unemployed to work, increase workers' income, strengthen the labor movement.

Big union label buying would fortify democracy, be a blow at low-wage foreign goods.

Purchase of union label products and services is assurance you are "buying American."

Are you insisting that every Christmas present you purchase bears the union label? (After this we offer apologies to Brownie Hopper. We have always advocated buying American made goods.)

France, through her administration which went back on its pledge to defend Czechoslovakia, has signed a no-war pledge with Hitler. Apparently, this does not need to be ratified by the French parliament. The treaty provides that under no circumstances will the two countries fight each other again.

Hitler's promise is worth rather less than the paper it is written on. As was shown by a detailed list at the time of the Munich business, he has broken every promise he has formally made; to the group that put him in power as well as to outside countries.

But—Hitler does not want a row with France at this time. He wants, as he states in his book, "My Fight," to turn first to the east, to establish the "Mittel Europa" mentioned in this comment before. He proposes to bring under his rule, directly or indirectly, Hungary, Serbia, Bulgaria, Greece, Roumania, get Poland to content herself as a satellite state, and then go after Russia and the wheat fields of the Ukraine.

The no-war treaty merely means that the Daladier French government has promised to let Hitler go as far as he likes on his chosen path without interference.

* * *

Neville Chamberlain, coming back from the Munich "conference," said that he had insured peace, "at least for our time." Since that time, the most cruel and most carefully planned persecution of Jews known for centuries has broken out and is still raging in Germany.

Italy, by indirect means, has served notice that France must hand over to Mussolini the colony of Tunisia, where the French population is said to be 30,000 greater than the Italian, the island of Corsica, and the part of southern Savoy. It is true that this demand is not yet official, but Mussolini is reported to have officially asked how far Hitler will back Il Duce in dealing with France.

Four nazi spies in this country have been convicted in a federal court, and more are going on trial. And the latest dispatches from Lima, Peru, where the Pan-American conference is being held, say that nazi and fascist agents are trying busily to stir up strife by inciting the Latin American delegations against the United States.

* * *

Organized labor in South Australia, acting through its unions, recently rejected a plan to join in a "defense panel" being organized by its federal government. Back of the refusal to join in the panel is fear of the part of the unions that labor will be mobilized for industrial conscription, it is reported. Workers, jealous of the rights they have won through their unions, and active on both the industrial and political fronts, see in this plan a possible government attempt to maneuver organized labor into a position from which they could not retreat. They figure that legislation would do the rest and that labor rights, won by years of active struggle, would be lost.

Patman's "Ridiculous Scheme" To Kill Chains Not Yet Dead, Printer's Ink Warns

New York City.—Warning that the proposal of Congressman Wright Patman to tax larger chain-store systems out of existence will not be defeated until it is finally voted down by congress, and that "Mr. Patman is not whipped yet," Printer's Ink magazine for Dec. 1 comments on the progress of the fight for the chain stores. The editoral follows:

Not Whipped Yet.

Unofficial word comes from Washington that Congressman Patman's ridiculous scheme to tax the larger chain-store systems out of existence will probably be rejected by the next congress.

The president, so the story goes, is against it.

And the chain-store people are feeling better. They seem to be recovering from their justifiable scare.

Far be it from us to try to upset anybody's dream of happiness. But really are not the chain-store people counting their chickens too soon?

People Must Be Informed.

Chain stores, as we have frequently said in these pages, bring to this country certain unqualified advantages that the country has a right to possess. It is an inherent right of the people that no demagogic and artificial interference be interposed between them and their privilege of buying dependable merchandise at the lowest price which volume production and distribution, efficient management and all-round good merchandising can make possible.

These privileges, of course, are exemplified in the great chain systems.

Situation Not Understood.

But do the rank and file of the chain-store customers visualize the situation in these terms?

They do not.

Left to figure the thing out for themselves, it is just like them to accept the Patman dogma to the effect that chain stores are iniquitous institutions that squeeze out the country's substance and, to use Mr. Patman's own words, "send the returns back to Wall Street"—whatever that mey mean.

Wright Patman is by no means a flashy, empty-headed individual who is chasing rainbows. He is able and earnest. We cannot see just how he can believe that his anti-chain store campaign is going to benefit the country—but perhaps he does believe it. Anyway, he is hammering away in a manner that is bound to be convincing to the average consumer unless or until the aforesaid consumer has the real facts placed before him in black and white. Even so, it will not be an easy task to convince him; Mr. Patman's vociferous war cry about Wall Street (always sure to get a hand from hoi polloi) can go a long way toward check-mating the most carefully thought-out statement of recognized economic facts.

Fight Not Over.

We believe that the Patman bill will be or at least can be defeated. But if we owned a national chain-store system we could not get a great deal of comfort out of an unconfirmed report that the president does not agree with Mr. Patman.

Only when this bill is finally voted down by congress will it be safe to stop fighting.

Meanwhile what are the chain stores doing about it? What has become of the newspaper advertising campaign with which the Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea company started out so bravely a few weeks ago?

"Mr. Pittman Not Whipped Yet."

And why did the other chains seem to be so willing to allow the A. & P. to carry the whole of the white man's burden?

These are just a few post-Thanksgiving thoughts put down without prejudice and with no desire to pester the chain-store men. But we believe they make sense. Mr. Patman is not whipped yet.

Telegraphers Fight NLRB Order, Charging Board Flouts Law by Ignoring Workers' Rights

Washington.—Charging the national labor relations board with denying legal rights to employes as guaranteed by law, the Commercial Telegraphers' union (A. F. L.) has challenged the action of the board in ordering a nationwide election of Postal Telegraph company employes.

The union's position was made known in a petition protesting the board's order, filed with the board by Patrick J. Taft, attorney for the C. T. U.

The action of the board was precipitated by the request of the American Communications Association (CIO) for a nation-wide election, which is tantamount to a request for designation as a nationwide bargaining unit, after the association had previously put itself on record as favoring separate bargaining units.

Board Acts on Presumption.

"Our position," Mr. Taft told ILNS, "is that five separate and distinct hearings have been held, over a period of more than a year, and the board has before it complete testimony offered by both C. T. U. and A. C. A., and has in its possession membership applications of a majority of the employes in forty-five designating C. T. U. to act for them, and there is not an iota of evidence of the employes in any of the forty-five cities repudiating the C. T. U. by designating A. C. A. to act for them.

"Furthermore, the board has presumed to determine that agreements now existing between the A. C. A. and the Postal company express the desire of some 10,000 Postal employes for collective bargaining on a nationwide unit basis without a scintilla of evidence that the employes at any time authorized A. C. A. to contend for such a unit.

Board's Stand Biased.

"The board's order includes employes in the forty-five cities, who previously have designated the Commercial Telegraphers' union to represent them as the sole bargaining agency and to contend for separate bargaining units.

"The board completely ignores the fact that for more than a year, C. T. U. has consistently advocated separate bargaining units; also, that the A. C. A. has been aided by the regional offices of the board to gain recognition from the company in some thirty cities on a separate bargaining unit basis. Despite the fact that the board records show the A. C. A. to have contended for separate units in the past, the board conventiently proceeds now to accommodate the A. C. A. when that organization finds it convenient to shift its position.

"The board has taken anything but an impartial stand in the matter and its action amounts to an arbitrary refusal to take cognizance of the legal right of employes to choose their own representatives."

Under the contract the members of the union receive a five-day week, double base pay, increase in commission from 15 to 18 per cent, and two weeks' vacation with pay.

The labor board announced that the certification of the three A. F. of L. unions was on the basis of cards designating the unions as bargaining representatives.

A. F. L. UNION WINS SCHOOL CUSTODIAL EMPLOYES VOTE

NEW YORK, N. Y.—The New York state labor relations board announced the certification of the School and Libary Employes union, Local 74, Building Service Employes International union, an A. The action of the board was in accordance with the result of an election in which 2,384 custodial employes participated.

Saddened by Attacks On Jews, Meeting Told

Washington.—Judge Irving Lehman, of the New York state court of Appeals, told a memorial assemblage honoring the late Justice Cardozo that the jurist's final days were saddened by the knowledge that "men who are his kin in blood and spirit are being driven from their homes."

Lehman, Cardozo's closest personal friend, was the chief speaker at services conducted in the supreme court chamber.

Cardozo's sadness at persecutions of the Jewish race was tempered, said Lehman, "by his confidence that America would never abandon its great ideals."

Lehman said that Cardozo felt that "again Caesar pretending to speak in the name of God, is demanding that men should render unto Caesar that which is God's"

Denver Labor Boycotts Nazi-Japanese Goods

DENVER.—The Denver Trades and Labor Assembly has voted to place all Nazi-German and Japanese-made goods in Denver on the "We Do Not Patronize" list.

The Assembly's action was in conformity with the request of President Green of the American Federation of Labor urging every affiliate organization to boycott German-made merchandise and to intensify the campaign through a committee of labor members.

SIX LYNCHINGS IN MONTHS

(From the Richmond, Va., Times-Dispatch.)

Is lynching in the south "dying out," as we are so often assured by apologists for this practice? Maybe so, but there have been six such murders in the region in the past six months. If lynching among us is moribund, we should like to have additional evidence of the fact.

Another point we should like to stress is that four of the six lynchings which have occurred since June, took place in Mississippi, home of the blow-torch technique of fragrant memory. Perhaps we should give thanks for the latest exhibition of savagery there, for the sheriff of the county where the crime occurred assures the public that the victim was merely hanged, and "the mob did not shoot into the negro's body or burn him."

Now that four men have been lynched in Mississippi since June, we should be only too happy to hear from Senator Bilbo, who had such an imposing part in the filibuster against the federal anti-lynching bill earlier this year. We should also like to hear from some of the other officials of that state, who let it be known that the Mississippi legislature would pass effective legislation last winter to stop these barbarities, and that consequently no federal act was needed.

Editor 'Misquoted' Self In TVA Civil Service Story Last Week

Dern That Typewriter!

The editor of The Labor World has been in he doghouse all last week. His head hangs in shame—he is disgraced—he wrote a story last week wherein his facts were diametrically opposed to the true state of affairs.

Last week The Labor World said that the Building Trades Council went on record as being in favor of civil service for TVA employes.

Instead, the building craftsmen are strenuously OPPOSED to civil service for TVA people.

A member of Congress is presenting a bill which wants to put TVA under civil service, and the labor movement is condemning his bill.

GET IT STRAIGHT THIS TIME . . .

"NO CIVIL SERVICE FOR TVA" says the Building Trades.

And as for this editor. . . . Well, maybe he can live it down. The one excuse always available is that he was misquoted. Since he wrote the story himself, he misquoted himself. You cannot trust a soul these days.

The foundry industry seems to be picking up and better business is in sight.

The public received well a new kind of picket all this week when Central Labor Union placed two young ladies in the shopping areas of Chattanooga with banners asking the people not to buy products made in Germany or Japan.

U.T.W. Head Acts to Sever Bonds With CIO and Sets Up Union as United Labor Body in Textile Field

Washington, D. C.—Acting to set up the United Textile Workers of America as an organization free of affiliation with the Congress for Industrial Organizations, Francis J. Gorman, president of the Textile Workers, served formal notice on James Starr, secretary-treasurer of the U. T. W. to move all property of the international union in his possession from New York to Washington.

President Gorman told Secretary Starr that he was proceeding in accordance with a court decision which left the United Textile Workers as the only lawfully constituted body in the textile field. He reminded Starr that the last national convention of the union directed the international office be established in Washington.

The notice to Secretary Starr followed closely on President Gordan's action in notifying the 700 local unions of the U. T. W. that the Textile Workers Organizing Committee, CIO agent, no longer governs them, and that the U. T. W. constitution must govern their conduct and organizational work. His letter laid the groundwork for an early convention of the union under the constitution.

Court Ruling Brings Crisis.

It is highly probable that the convention, when held, will decide on reaffiliation with the American Federation of Labor, of which it was a member for 35 years.

Gorman, who has opened offices at 510 Carpenters' Building, Washington, declared the situation in the textile union field had been brought to a crisis demanding immediate action by the decision of the Superior Court in Providence, R. I., which declared the contract between the U. T. W. and the CIO in valid and ordered U. T. W. funds returned to the U. T. W.

"That decision," said Mr. Gorman, "eliminated the Textile Workers' Organizing Committee from the field, TWOC was set up by the contract, The contract is invalid. Consequently its creature, TWOC, ceases to exist. Manifestly there must be a basic change in the policy of the United Textile Workers, in order to bring about a unified movement, ending the confusion and dissatisfaction growing out of TWOC activities and its dissolution by court decision.

Early Convention Seen.

"I shall exercise all of the constitutional functions of the president's office, actively and energetically, in order to make possible the development of a constructive program and a united movement. Headquarters of the international, as directed by our last convention, will be in Washington and all unions are directed to henceforth deal only with the international union headquarters under my direction and administration. My letter, in the hands of all local unions today, advises them to be prepared for an early convention of the United Textile Workers, which is, under the circumstances, a necessity."

Union Head Orders Strikers to Go Back to Work

Washington, D. C.—President John Possehl, of the International Union of Operating Engineers, ordered members of his St. Louis local back to work after being informed that their strike was "impossible" and beyond toleration by President Green of the American Federation of Labor.

Green intervened to end the strike after receiving a telephone call from George Tracy, St. Louis efficiency representative. Travy had informed the federation president that the strike threatened St. Louis with a water famine.

"The strike is impossible and cannot be tolerated because it would hold up the water supply of the entire city of St. Louis," Green informed Possehl, who immediately ordered the men back to their jobs.

Under the agreement by which Possehl called off the srike, Green was to aid in arranging conferences of labor leaders with St. Louis city officials, in an attempt to adjust grievances which culminated in the strike call.

St. Louis.—Local No. 2 of the International Union of Operating Engineers called a strike at the plants of the St. Louis waterworks late on Dec. 12. Later the men returned to work. Edward E. Wall, director of public utilities, said a jurisdictional dispute of the union with the International Brotherhood of Firemen and Oilers was responsible.

STERCHI'S TREAT LABOR TO USE OF A STRIKEBREAKER

Clemons Furniture Store Joins Sterchi Against Labor

Two new developments occurred in the Radio Workers' fight for recognition. One was the employment by Sterchi's of a strikebreaker to take the place of the union man who was forced to leave his job when management refused to recognize his union.

Clemons Furniture store last Friday definitely refused to recognize the union, although, like Sterchi, they admitted that the contract asked was entirely reasonable.

Today the two stores are being picketed by banners asking support of the radio workers in their demand for their right to organize and bargain collectively.

Refinery Workers Vote For AFL Bricklayers

HOUSTON, Tex.—Local No. 7 of the Bricklayers, Masons and Plasterers International Union of America, affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, has been certified by the National Labor Relations Board as the exclusive collective bargaining agency for bricklayers employed at the Deer Park refinery of the Shell Petroleum Corporation here.

The certification was in accordance with the expressed desire of the employes concerned.

"Speaking of old families," said the architect at the party, "one of my ancestors was present at the signing of the Magna Charta."

Workers' Living Costs Drop, Department of Labor Reports

Washington.—The cost of living for families of wage-earners and lower-salaried workers in the thirty-two large cities of the U. S., surveyed by the bureau of labor statistics, was 0.7 per cent lower on Sept. 15 than it was on June 15, Secretary of Labor Perkins reports.

"The drop in the cost of food during the quarter was largely responsible for this decrease," Secretary Perkins said. "The average cost of clothing, rent, house furnishing goods and the items in the miscellaneous group were also below the June level. Fuel and light costs reflected the seasonal increase which commonly occurs in most cities at this time of year."

Women are not nearly as vain as they are vain enough to think men think they are.

Who Hasn't?

Railway Station Carols Make Travelers Relax

In metropolitan railroad stations throughout the country this Holiday season, hurried travelers will halt to the strains of Christmas carols echoing from lofty ceilings and long corridors. Originally adopted several years ago in New York, the idea has spread each December to more cities until railroad station music has become a tradition

The concerts were started because railroad officials decided "everyone was in too much of a hurry" around Christmas time, and that if people could relax before starting their homeward journey they would have a better time.

An Eye to the Future

Young Douglas had reached the age of seven when he was promoted to the dignity of having a room to himself. His fond parents had furnished it with great care and showed it to him with no little pride and satisfaction.

Douglas viewed it in silence.

"Now, son," said his father, "this furniture is of the best. It will last you a lifetime."

Still Douglas kept silent.

"Don't you like it, Douglas?"

"Oh, yes, I like it. But how do I know my wife will like it?"

Immediate Study of Court Reform Urged At Legal Institute

Knoxville.—Tennessee lawyers should act immediately to get desirable phases of the new federal court rules of civil procedure adopted by the state's civil court system, said Walter P. Armstrong, Memphis attorney, in an address he was to make at the University of Tennessee legal institute. He was scheduled to speak at the Oct. 29 session of the two-day meeting sponsored by the U-T College of Law.

"If we fail now to attempt a revision of our practice when the subject is fresh in the minds of all, we shall neglect an opportunity which will not come again in our time," said Mr. Armstrong. "It is apparent that if we are to seize this opportunity we must take active steps to that end."

Mr. Armstrong was to speak before lawyers from all Tennessee, invited here to study the new federal court rules and to discuss the adaptability of these rules to Tennessee practice. Designed to speed up justice and reduce the cost of trials, the new rules became effective in federal courts throughout the nation Sept. 16.

Mr. Armstrong recommended that the State Bar association appoint a special committee to study the new federal rules, comparing them with the Tennessee Civil court rules. If the committee considers the federal rules a desirable model for reform of Tennessee practice, the bar association should obtain from the legislature an act conferring upon the supreme court the power to make necessary changes, he added.

"In my judgment there should also be an advisory committee similar to that reported by the supreme court of the United States, which could first formulate new rules and then distribute them to the bar associations and individual lawyers for discussion and comment. After thorough discussion they could finally be reported to the supreme court."

Mr. Armstrong pointed out that other states are using the federal court rules as a model for reform.

"The rules have been formulated by a body as capable as any that could have been brought together for that purpose," he said. "Never again will the minds of the bar be so focused upon the rules. No doubt those are some of the reasons that impelled the American Bar association to select as one of its major objectives for the coming year the bringing of these rules to the attention of the various states in hope that they may be used as a model for the revision of state practice with the result of greater precision and uniformity."

A REAL CHRISTMAS

By Vera Ashton

"OH, lookit, lookit, Jimmie. Doesn't it look like a real baby? Just 'magine it's for me!" And little Sally's face was radiant with the imagined joy.

"Ah, that's nothin' but a doll! You girls!" and Johnnie's nose turned up with disgust. "If you're lookin', just lookit that!" and he pointed to a scooter that leaned proudly against the wall in the show window. "That's what Santa Claus has picked out for me." And Johnnie's eyes shone.

A well-dressed man standing near them heard the words, and looked curiously at the ragged children. As he saw his wife approaching, the children started on, but not before he heard the boy say to his sister, "It's no use 'magining anything this year. Aunt Meg doesn't even have a chimbley for Santa to crawl down, and he probably doesn't even know that daddy and mother aren't here any more," and his brave little lip quivered.

The man turned to his wife, who had just reached him. "Madge, look at that window."

But her voice was shrill with a hysterical grief, as she exclaimed: "Oh, Phil, I can't look at those toys. You know I can't. When little Elsie is dead, and we have no one to make Christmas for."

"But Madge, that is what I mean. We have someone to make a Christmas for. See those kids there, just going round the corner? They are the Mayne children, whose father and mother were killed in that factory fire last month. They're living with their aunt, who already has four children of her own, and her husband is only working part time since the fire." He said no more but watched his wife anxiously.

"We'll do it!" she exclaimed in glad tones.

"I heard them tell each other what they wanted," Phil said joyously.

So on Christmas morning Sally and Johnnie were surprised to have an auto drive up in front of their Aunt Meg's house, and have a fine big man ask them to go home with him to dinner. And there, when they had taken off their coats and hats, they found a lovely Christmas tree with a beautiful doll and a perfectly grand scooter, and a new suit for Johnnie and a dress for Sally which made her dress sparkle with joy.

"We don't want you to go home," Mrs. Vigars said when the children began to talk about having to go, after the dinner of turkey and cranberry sauce and all the fixings. "We want you to stay, don't we Phil?"

"Indeed we do, for we need a little boy and girl in our house," Phil Vigars replied, with a happy smile on his face. And he added, under his breath, as he gave his wife a mighty hug, "This is a real Christmas, Madge. I'm glad that there was plenty of room at this inn."

AMAZED SANTA CLAUS FINDS 33 STOCKINGS IN MARYLAND HOME!

The couple has 17 children, who with the grandchildren and in-laws add up to the grand total of 33.

Santa Claus can hardly see the fireplace for the stockings when he slides down the chimney. But he never fails to fill them all. In the years since he started visiting the Sterling home, Santa has found that another called, the stork, also has the Sterling address in his book.

Each year there has been a "new addition" to the Sterling household, or in the homes of their children. As Santa's burden has become greater he has cheerfully risen to the needs and found plenty of toys and other "goodies" to go around.

But he has to replenish his supply after each visit to the Sterling home.

Late Yuletide Observed By Orthodox Christians

Conforming to the Julian calendar, thousands of Americans will not celebrate Christmas until January 7, 14 days behind the Gregorian calendar. These people are Russians, Serbians, Armenians, Bulgarians, Syrians and Macedonians—followers of the Christian Orthodox church. Greeks and Rumanians, also of the Orthodox church, mark Christmas on the Gregorian calendar but adhere to the Julian calendar in observance of Easter Sunday.

Proposed Hosiery Mills Would Ruin Northern Plants, Says Governor

Trenton, N. J.—Gov. A. Harry Moore has asked President Roosevelt to prohibit the proposed establishment of hosiery mills on seven homestead projects throughout the south.

In telegrams to the president, Secretary Dallace and Administrator Alexander of the farm security administration, Moore charged the venture would cause "gradual disintegration and bankruptcy" of the north's hosiery industry.

"Seventy per cent of all the hosiery produced is manufactured in Pennsylvania, New Jersey, New York and Wisconsin," the telegram said. "The lower wage rates and longer hours prevailing in the southern mills operated by non-union labor have already placed the northern mills at a competitive disadvantage, and this new venture will cause additional non-employment, lowering of living standards and the gradual disintegration and bankruptcy of an industry which has existed in the north for many years."

TRADE PACTS DECLARED PERIL TO U. S. WAGES

Lansing, Mich.—R. E. Oldis, retired automobile manufacturer, expressed doubt as to the value of trade agreements with South American countries in a statement made public here.

His views were expressed in a letter to Alf M. Landon, member of the United States delegation to the Pan-American conference at Lima.

Olds asserted that the United States imported 60 per cent of its sugar in 1937 while sugar factories in Florida were kept closed, depriving 10,000 men of jobs. He said only 1,100 cars were shipped to South America from the west coast last year.

"When we buy their goods produced with labor at 4 cents an hour against our regulation labor prices in this country, it is simply suicide for us to compete," he said.

The Cherry Tree

Great beating of left wing tomtoms to herald the "American Congress for Peace and Democracy" in Washington Jan. 6 and 8.

This is the crowd that formerly called itself the American League Against War and Fascism.

The promoters, among whom are many Communists and near-Communists, decided they were not doing so well under the old name and changed it for policy's sake.

* * *

The "congress" will yell lustily for opposition to Nazi-ism and Fascism. Dictatorship will be loudly denounced, EXCEPT the Russian Communist brand.

Under one proposed course of action or another, the league works to line up the United States in militant opposition to Germany, Italy and Japan.

It seeks American co-operation with the democracies of Europe, plus Soviet Russia, in fighting Germany.

The Communists are working tooth and nail to get this aid for Russia, in what they see as the inevitable clash with Hitler.

Another "war for democracy" is the goal.

* * *

League has already outlined a "relief plan" for persecuted Jews in Germany that would be comic if it did not certain so many potencies for tragedy.

"Plan" includes an attempt to make Germany pay for the initial setting up of new homes for the Jewish refugees.

The costs would be charged to the German government and if Hitler balked, each government participating in the resettlement plan would forbid all exports, loans and credits to Germany and all imports from Germany.

Good trick, if it could be worked. Trouble is, any attempt to put it into operation would threaten all Jews in Germany with massacre.

Nazis have already served notice any attempts at retaliation for their policy of persecution will virtually mean the extermination of the Jews.

Scheme would harm Germany, yes, but it harms the Jews infinitely more.

Another part of the league's plan is for strikes to stop shipments of goods and arms to Germany.

Proposal is not stated so frankly. Here is how it is put:

"That organized labor take steps to meet its responsibility for participating in the shipment of goods to Germany, especially war supplies."

If that is not a masterpiece of circumlocution, you tell us.

Plan blithely ignores the fact that A. F. of L. has declared against any such proposed strikes as impracticable. Silence on the plan by the CIO indicates it holds same view as A. F. of L.

* * *

Old year ends with no European war, despite all the oceans of alarmist talk in every month.

Well known American labor man associated with international co-operation wrote ILNS last June:

"While there are great rumors of war, especially in the United States, I want to make the prediction that . . . war will not come."

His prediction has confounded the eminent prophets of evil throughout the globe.

Q.—How many different kinds of birds inhabit Tennessee?

A.—There are 293 species and subspecies in the state, according to the U. T. department of agricultural economics. Of these, about 184 are land birds, 80 are water birds, and 27 are birds of prey. In the United States there are more than 800 species, and in southeastern states approximately 460.

Distillery Workers Meet in National Convention

Louisville, Ky.—Preparations for formation of a national council of federal labor unions of distillery workers were made by delegates to a convention, in session at Louisville, the call for which was issued by Francis Dillon, general organizer for the American Federation of Labor.

Thirty-seven local unions, with an estimated membership of 7,000, have been established in different parts of the country by the A. F. of L. in the last few years.

Big Plant Organized

About 30 per cent of the industry, including several plants owned by the larger distillers, is organized.

Biggest achiement of the A. F. of L. in this particular drive was the completion of an agreement with the Amreican Distilling Co., of Pekn, Ill., covering between 700 and 800, or 100 per cent, of the distillery workers.

In Chicago, about 93 per cent of the wineries and rectifying plants are in agreement with Distillers of Spirits and Lquor Workers Unon, Local No. 20496.

Wage Increases Won

Most contracts are for the union shop and have established a 40-hour week, time and one-half for overtime and vacations with pay. Unions have obtained wage increases of about 5 to 15 per cent.

At the Louisville convention, local unions from New York City, Chicago, Peoria and Pekin, Ill., had the largest representation. Next step will be the formation of an international union of distillery workers.

LABOR AND NATIONAL DEFENSE

(From the American Federationist)

As preparedness for national defense becomes a paramount issue, the American Federation of labor reaffirms its devotion to the ideals of our republic in peace or in war. Whether in peace or in war we demand the right to represent wage-earners against the forces that would curtail our power and against those who would subordinate human rights to special interests.

We demand the right to participate in national service on equal footing with all other citizens. We do not believe that national emergencies are signals to overthrow all standards and practices that have been found productive of human betterment. We are especially apprehensive because of the wid publicity given to certain proposals for hasty and inadequate training of workers for making airplanesm, anti-aircraft defense and munitions industries. We will protest with all our power against any such proposal for turning out partly trained craftsmen who would be a menace to both war and peace-production.

There are in the ranks of industry and among the unemployed an adequate supply of craftsmen for a defense program, and in the meantime we should be training additional craftsmen under proper safeguard and in accord with standards developed out of production experience.

The army and the navy are under obligations to consult representatives of labor before undertaking programs that concern labor.

The Season's Greetings from George L. Googe

Atlanta, Ga.—I am taking this method of expressing a most sincere wish that each and every one of our members and all members of their families may have a most pleasant Christmas. To those who are sick, I express my most profound sympathy, and wish for them a speedy recovery.

Our great family of Labor can derive greater happiness on Christmas Day than any other group, for HIM whose birthday we celebrate dignified Labor for all time by working as a carpenter Himself.

It is impossible for me to send individual greetings to each of our workers in the South, so I am asking that each of you accept this as a personal message, and I want you to know that I shall be rejoicing with you in your happiness throughout this joyous Yuletide. Anything that tends to make our family of Labor happy is great joy to me.

Fraternally yours,
GEORGE L. GOOGE.

Monopoly Practices Charged Killing Small Gasoline Firms

North Tonawanda, N. Y.—Mitchell Smith, vice-president and general manager of the Maxol Petroleum Corporation, has protested to President Roosevelt and Governor Lehman, of New York, against "monopolistic practices which are forcing small gasoline companies out of business."

Smith said he hoped to start a "thorough investigation to determine the undermining source of corruption in the gasoline industry."

Christmas and Labor

By CHARLES STELZLE

Executive Director, Good Neighbor League

In the midst of the festivities of the Christmas season, we might with profit turn our minds toward the meaning of this world-wide celebration. We instinctively think of the angel's song of "Peace on earth, good-will to men." And that is a major purpose in the coming of Jesus into the world.

But how was this purpose to be fulfilled? What was to be the program of Jesus in this connection? We have the record in His own words.

When Jesus had reached maturity, He was one day preaching in the synagogue in the town of Nazareth, where he had been brought up. He was handed the Book of Isaiah, which contained the prophecy concerning Himself, and he proceeded to read:

"The Spirit of the Lord lies upon me, because He hath anointed me to preach the gospel to the poor; He hath sent me to heal the broken-hearted; to preach deliverance to the captives and recovering of sight to the blind; to set at liberty them that are bruised; to preach the acceptable year of the Lord."

And then Jesus added: "This day is this Scripture fulfilled in your ears."

The limits of space forbids giving the details of all that this declaration of the purpose and program of Jesus signifies, but it is clear that it implies the redemption of the common people from the social, economic and physical ills from which they were suffering.

He came primarily to relieve the poor, the broken-hearted, the captives, the bind, the bruised—and "to preach the acceptable year of the Lord," which meant that this was the time when these things were to be accomplished—not in some far-off haven, but here upon earth!

History has proved that much progress has been made in this direction, but there are still those who are poor, broken-hearted, captives, blind and bruised. For these, too, this mission of Jesus must be fulfilled—in every community, in every city, in every country.

Who shall bring this about? Jesus has given us His own plan. Here's what He said to his disciples: "As the Father hath sent me, even so send I you." And this includes all those who will help carry out His program.

The redemption of mankind from the ills of the world will be brought about not only through the church, but by groups of men and women everywhere. This includes the organized workers whose purpose it is to abolish poverty, to bring healing to the broken-hearted, to deliver captives from their oppressors, to open the eyes of the blind, to give liberty to the bruised—and Organized Labor is doing all these things now!

At this Christmas season Organized Labor should reconsecrate itself to this high purpose. It is an ideal which it has long sought to have fulfilled. United, it may help usher in "The Day" of which Jesus spoke 2,000 years ago—for this, too, is "the acceptable year of the Lord."

Q.—From what is iodine obtained?

A.—It was first obtained from kelp, a seawood, and still is to a small extent. The greatest supply at present, however, is a by-product of the Chile saltpeter, according to W. T. Smith, U. T. chemist.

Good Building Gain Forecast for 1939

Washington, D. C. — Building construction in 1938 will total $8,800,000, the Department of Commerce estimates. The department forecasts a possible increase from 30 to 40 per cent above this figure for 1939.

The estimates were made by Lowell J. Chawner, chief of the de-research and came coincidently with a statement by Secretary Roper that business in the past five months has expanded sufficiently to compensate for about one-half of the 1937-38 recession.

Roper said that data prepared for him by the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce indicated that the upward trend of business activity which has been under way since June, was extended during November and was being carried forward in the early days of December.

Industrial production rose shorplyin November and distribution, Roper said, recorded an improvement in the flow of general merchandise into the hands of consumers. The further gain in the index of manufacturing output during November, he continued, reflected primarily expansion in the steel industry and rapid increase in automobile production.

Jobs for Workers Over 40 Sought--

Legion Begins Educational Campaign Among Employers

Indianapolis. — The American Legion's National Employment Committee has begun a nation-wide campaign to gain more jobs for persons over 40.

Committee members said the drive would save employers big sums yearly in unemployment compensation payments.

Headed by Jack Crowley, of Rutland, Vt., the committee plans a national educational campaign among employers to point out the advantages of hiring men and women over 40. The committee will attempt to show employers how they can save $500,000,000 in compensation payments through the stabilization which would follow the hiring of older workers, the announcement said.

Paul H. Griffith, Washington, National Employment Director of the American Legion, told the committee a forthcoming survey of more than 2,000,000 workers in 42 states would advance many reasons why employes over 40 are more satisfactory.

Court Test Planned Of Oregon's New Anti-Picketing Law

New York City.—In co-operation with labor organizations, the American Civil Liberties Union is planning to test the constitutionality of the recently enacted anti-picketing statute in Oregon. The new law was favorably voted on as an initiative proposal in the last election.

The measure forbids picketing in labor disputes not defined in the statute. It excludes all industrial controveries except those relating to wages, hours and working conditions and those in which the parties are in the direct relation of employer and employes. Unions are prohibited from collecting dues beyond the "legitimate requirements" of the organizations. The law also forbids all interference with trade and manufacture, even in connection with "trade disputes."

Similar proposals were defeated in California and Washington.

Toy Imports Show Sharp Decline

Washington, D. C.—Department of Commerce statistics show that less than 5 per cent of the toys sold in the United States this year will be of foreign manufacture.

The big boom in the war industries in Europe and Japan is believed largely responsible for a sharp drop in toy imports. In the first 10 months this year imports of Christmas stocking fillers totalled $1,361,287 as against $2,784,693 last year.

At the same time this country's sales of toys abroad increased, totalling $2,237,531 for the first 10 months as against $2,217,722 in the same months last year.

Toy imports from Japan in the first 10 months totalled $800,000, only about half that of last year.

Medical Society, Under Anti-Trust Fire, Offers Pre-Payment Medical Care Plan—Roosevelts Benefit Nation—Congressional Inquiry Fun.

By GEORGE L. KNAPP

Washington, D. C.—The first attempt to begin to try to meet the charge of restraint of trade which the Department of Justice has brought against the District Medical Society and the American Medical Society, to which the D. M. S. belongs, has just ben launched. A plan has been sent by the D. M. S. officers to the members of the society for "pre-payment medical care."

It will remain a plan unless a majority of the members of the society vote for it; and unless, after that vote, at least 5,000 individuals subscribe to it. It is full of limitations, and of things which look suspiciously like jokers. It requires a $1 entrance fee, a $5 cash payment for the first service required. The monthly payment is $1.50 for a single man, $2.70 for man and wife, not more than $3.50 for a family. But there is no hospital service; and in surgical cases, the limits of total service to be rendered on this plan in a year would be reached very quickly.

Nevertheless, the new Assistant Attorney General, Thurman Arnold, is beginning to get results, though the grand jury is still sitting. But the refusal of hospital service in the nation's capital to qualified physicians and surgeons who work for a co-operative still persists.

There are few things, indeed, in which labor and its families is showing much keener interest than in getting competent medical care within its means.

President Roosevelt and his wife are certainly a pair. He has announced that he will leave a large section of his Hyde Park estate to the Federal government, together with about 15,000 documents of public interest; and will subscribe to an archives building all the royalties paid to him this year.

Mrs. Roosevelt has announced that all the income from her many activities, after paying income taxes, will be distributed to causes which she holds worthy.

Only a few of our presidents have been tightwads. But the Roosevelt gifts recall two other gifts that most people forget or have not learned. One was that of the late Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes, who, after providing for relatives and some others, left the larger share of his fortune of about $500,000 to the United States Treasury, with no strings on it whatever.

One was the entire fortune of James Smithson, illegitimate son of the Duke of Northumberland, with which has been built the Smithsonian Institution.

* * *

Nothing so roaringly funny has come out of a congressional investigation for 25 years as the dialogue the other day between Congressman Starnes, of Alabama, and Mrs. Ellen Woodward, assistant administrator of WPA white collar projects. Starnes asked Mrs. Woodward to tell who was "this Communist, Marlowe," whom she referred to in a magazine article she had written.

"I am sorry," she said, "but I was quoting from Christopher Marlowe. Put it in the record that he was a great dramatist in the period of Shakepeare."

Starnes knew, of course, about Christopher Marlowe, but ruefully admitted he thought Mrs. Woodward was referring to some Communist.

The only joke that still tops this one came in the Senate investigation of the Titanic. A western senator asked why the passengers were not saved by shutting them into the water tight compartments!

The next issue of the London Punch contained this information:

Q.—Were there many munitions factories in the U. S. during the World war?

A.—There were only six government arsenals and two large private ordnance factories competent to manufacture heavy artillery in 1914. The number increased to a score or so by 1917, but by the time the Armistice was signed nearly 8,000 plants were manufacturing war supplies, according to "The Encyclopaedia of Social Sciences."
